The association will imitate the temperance men in that it will sound the candidates for parliamentary positions, and so far as possible, take pledges from them that they are favor of the Association's plans. Said Mr. McNaught. "When both candidates pledge themselves in support of our policy, the members of the association in that riding can use their discretion as to which candidate they will vote for. Where only one of the candidates pledges himself to it, there is not much doubt as to how they will act. In no case will the Association do anything in an active campaign manner to influence anyone. Our purpose is simply to make as public as possible the attitude of the several candidates on this question. Then the electors can vote for whom they please."

There is a campaign fund of $50,000 but it will not be used for campaign purposes, but in the education of the people by literature which is being plentifully prepared and distributed. The association used to influence the government by frequent interviews, and by other acts, some of which were questioned. They have not ceased to present their requests directly to the government but they will seek to impress the members of parliament at their most sensitive point, when they are in the throes of an election.

Mr. Drummond, another active member of the association, has his own view of the British preference. It is that everything which is imported and which Britain manufactures, should be taxed as highly as the American tariff taxes it, and that then the preference will count for something. Steel rails, for instance, at present admitted free, should be taxed so that they cannot be admitted from the United States and sold in competition with Canadian manufacture, and then Britain can have an advantage through the preference and supply all the rails that Canada cannot make.

Clearly under these circumstances this would become a dear country to live in, and the wages and revenue of the individual would have to go up with the tariff. Tariffs do not make the people rich. The Americans have a tariff that is the envy of Mr. McNaught and Mr. Drummond, and yet our neighbors have over-production, and they are entering upon a period of depression, the evidence of which is apparent on every hand.

Kidney Diseases

Every Year Thousands Suffer and Die from Kidney Disease, That Never Knew the Exact Nature of their ailment.

Among the Most Easily Noted Symptoms are Pain in the Back, Frequent Desire to Urinate, Constant Headache Sleeplessness, and Nervousness.

When these signals of danger are unheeded, and proper precaution is not taken to avert more serious results, the very worst form of kidney trouble will develop, namely, Bright's Disease, which is almost incurable.

To obtain quick relief and a sure cure you must at once commence to take Ferrozone. It is a treatment for kidney and bladder troubles of undoubted merit and is prescribed now by all doctors and physicians who are abreast of their profession. Hospitals, Sanitariums and all public health institutions rely on Ferrozone in all derangements of the kidneys, and claim that it affects more cures of chronic cases than any other remedy.

The action of Ferrozone is very mild and efficient and can be depended upon to give satisfactory results in every case. It brings about a healthy condition of all the organs of the body, causes the kidneys to eliminate all poisonous products and wastes of the body. It purifies and enriches the blood, reconstructs wasted tissues, excites healthy appetite and promotes good digestion. By the regular use of Ferrozone nutrition is improved, and strength to ward off disease is established and maintained.

No remedy for the alleviation and cure of kidney disease can possibly equal or surpass Ferrozone. This fact is conceded by all those who have used it, and a trial will convince you of its merits. Don't be misled into accepting a cheap, unworthy substitute, but insist on having the genuine Ferrozone. It is the very best that money, brains, skill and scientific research can produce, and that is the sort of remedy you want. Price 50c per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at druggists, or N. C. THE ROSE OF THE RING

Rosalie was not in a fit state to go through her performance that day; but she nerved herself to the task, and, at the usual time, Jim's smart little brougham conveyed her to the circus.

The newspapers had spread full report of the mysterious death of Sir Felix Errol, together with the disclosures concerning Rosalie's parentage, and never had the circus been so crowded as on the few following nights.

Her success had been enormous before.

Now, people were ready to pay any price to see the daughter of Sir Felix Errol going through her part.

And Rosalie, brilliant and beautiful in her glittering array, dazzled the senses of more than one man who watched her going through her part.

"She is bewitching—she is ravissante!" exclaimed Lord Morgan, as he sat in one of the satin-hung boxes. "I never saw anyone like her before. She is fit for something better than this!"

"You are right," his companion answered, waking from a sort of trance. "But will she ever give up this life? A man could well sell his soul for such beauty as hers."

It was Frank Stanford who uttered those words—the man whose love Gretchen thought to buy back with her wealth.

CHAPTER XXI.

Rosalie was glad to find herself back again at Sunnyside—away from those scenes of horror; away from Gretchen, the woman from whom she had shrunk, with such a strange revulsion of feelings.

The discovery that the will was missing, had completely dumfounded Mr. Monckton.

He had made a diligent search among the murdered man's papers, but had found no clue to what had become of the document.

A suspicion to which he dared not give voice, had dawned into his mind.

He distrusted Lady Errol, and could not help thinking she had had a hand in the disposal of the will.

Then came burning thoughts to his brain—thoughts that were like firebrands flashing through his senses.

If Lady Errol had destroyed the will, what had been her motive? What, save gain? The desire to have possession of wealth?

If she had been capable of that one sin, might not she have been guilty of a yet greater crime?

Horrible as the thought was, he could not thrust it from his mind, and he found himself mentally asking where Lady Errol had been during those moments in which Sir Felix had received his death-wound.

He called upon Rosalie as soon as he returned from Drayton Court.

It was a cold, foggy morning, and he found her shivering over a fire, pale after the emotions she had passed through, and with the trace of tears on her face.

She started to her feet when Bess ushered him into the room, and she went forward eagerly to meet him.

"What news do you bring me?" she asked, holding out her hand to him. "Has anything been discovered at Drayton Court?"

"Nothing," he answered, "more than what you already know."

"Does Lady Errol still refuse to acknowledge me as the daughter of Sir Felix?"

"And the will?"

"No sign of it has been discovered. I do not think I have ever come across a more complicated case than the one now occupying my attention. There is a mystery too deep to be unravelled."

"But somebody must have seen the guilty one pass in or out of the house. Does suspicion fall on no one?"

He was silent.

He could not tell her what was in his thoughts—the hard fight he had had to shield her from the accusation which at first pointed against her.

"I hope to prove everything in good time," he remarked, presently. "Even if the will should never be found, it is scarcely probable Lady Errol will remain in full possession of everything. Nothing can alter the fact of your being Sir Felix Errol's daughter."

"I care more for that than for anything," she said, a look of conscious pride coming to her face. "I do not want the money so much as I do to have my position righted. I have been so long an outcast; it is sweet to know I have sprung from a great race."

"You may depend upon my not resting until I have seen this matter through. I only wish I could prove where Lady Errol was during those moments in which Sir Felix received his death-wound."

The tears started to Rosalie's eyes.

She could not bear any allusion to her father's cruel death.

It seemed so terrible that she should have arrived only in time to see him die; that only with his last breath he should have called upon her name.

Mr. Monckton took her little, cold hand and held it kindly in his own.

"Forgive me if I have to speak on a subject which is so painful to you," he said. "I have your interest too much at heart not to search out this mystery. I shall not give myself any rest until that will is found."

"I know you are very kind—almost the best friend I have," she murmured, brushing the tears from her long lashes. Then, with a change in her manner, she added, "I hope, if my claim is ever fully asserted, I shall not have to live with her!"

"I hate her!" she exclaimed. "I believe I hated her the moment I saw her. Her face was like stone—so lifeless—so horrible, in the sunlight!"

She was thinking of the face she had seen as she stood at the portal of Drayton Court—the face with the sun shining full upon it—the wide, black eyes, that seemed to gaze forth without sight, the sunlight striking into them with ghastly effect.

"You saw her at a time when your nerves were unstrung," he said, watching her keenly; "and Lady Errol's manner towards you did not encourage feelings of friendship. You were prejudiced against her."

"When I first saw her, I had no knowledge as to her position at Drayton Court. She passed me as I stood at the door summoning up courage to make my arrival known."

"How did she pass you?" Mr. Monckton asked, his manner so alert that Rosalie could not help wondering what had been in her manner to so startle him. "Was she going in, or coming out?"

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary bounce of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-3c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to-day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

GOLD——$80,000,000——GOLD

—If you want to make a GOLD DIVIDEND PAYING INVESTMENT—

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 400 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 1,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 25 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

STOCK MARKETS

New York, Nov. 24—Harris Gates & Co., are fairly representative of a certain section of western opinion and told their friends last night that they look for an irregular market. They consider short interest not very large and that market on the whole is susceptible to bear operations and not in position to make any considerable advance; weakness in republic steel pfd. in spite of supporting orders.

The opening was quite without much much feature of interest. There were evidently two sides to professional opinion and commission houses had no orders in quantity. Higher London prices gave some encouragement; professional bear party claims this is only a rally in a bear market but think it may extend to higher prices on Friday at least.

Chicago, Nov. 24—There was a firm feeling in the wheat pit on the opening today but on better levels there was considerable selling and a decline ensued. The cables were quite indifferent but the private advices from England were more favorable and some of the expert interests were more inclined to buy. Good buying was noted in the Northwest and the markets there were strong. The south west was also a moderate buyer. The corn market was rather irregular; new corn in the cash market was weak and such development naturally served to discourage longs. The cables were indifferent; the export trade was limited. The crop news was without material change.

New York, Nov. 24—New low records for Republic Iron and Steel issues cast a gloom over some portions of the industrial list Tuesday, but all things considered the market was quite satisfactory. The London market was stronger. The advices from abroad were quite bullish and there was some talk than O.M.N. shorts were covering them in the English market. The firm ruling rate of interest continues. The impression is that the bank statement will be favorable. There was some buying of Pacifics and Copper for the account of strong interests; Wall street continues bullish on sugar.

The talk regarding Penna. and B. & O. was more satisfactory. The late market was irregular in view of the forthcoming holiday.

Mr. Connery's Remarks.

At short notice Commissioner T. B. Connery of the Board of Education took the place of Rear Admiral Erben, who was expected to address the graduating class of the New York Nautical School on the old ship St. Mary's, at East Twenty-fourth street and the East River, on the evening of October 8. There was a great audience, among whom were several members of the Chamber of Commerce and Maritime Exchange, as well as representatives of the United States Navy. The New York Tribune thus reports his remarks:—Mr. Connery said he would avoid scattering the usual "chunks of wisdom" in the way of advice to the young graduates, and confine himself mainly to one branch of the subject—the treatment of sailors by captains and mates on board American ships. The cruelty still practised, he said, was a disgrace to the American merchant marine, and wholly inexcusable, not to say unaccountable, at a time when nearly every other civilized Government had succeeded in protecting the sailorman at sea and on shore. The barbarities were mostly to be met with on sailing ships in deep sea voyages, he declared. He had witnessed them with his own eyes, and therefore spoke from personal knowledge. The country would do well, he said, to copy the example of Great Britain in this case, especially if it wishes to recover the lost carrying trade, and to encourage young men to go before the mast on American ships. The best way to do this, he suggested, was rigid enforcement of the laws, which he asserted is not done by American courts. Punish brutal shipmasters, and protect sailors on shore as well as at sea, as Great Britain does, he demanded. Mr. Connery urged the young graduates to see to it, when they become shipmasters, that the sailors under them were treated like human beings, not as if they were savage beasts. By doing this, he said, they would effect a reform worthy of all praise and earn the gratification of their country.

No Right to Butt In.

Tit Bits is responsible for the following:—In response to several earnest requests from parishioners, Rev. Dr. Goodman included in his morning service a petition for a cessation of the copious rains that had been deluging the land.

The next day's post brought him the following indignant protest:—

"Rev. and Dear Sir.—I was both surprised and pained yesterday to hear you pray that the rain might stop. There hasn't been a drop too much for my cucumber patch. If it stops now my crop will be a failure and I shall consider you partly responsible for it. When it comes to managing the weather I don't think you have any right to butt in. Yours truly, R. R. Chucksley."

Doctor—Well, Mrs. O'Brien, I hope your husband has taken his medicine regularly, eh?

Mrs. O'Brien—Sure, then, Doctor, I've been sorely puzzled. The label says, 'One pill to be taken three times a day,' and for the life of me, I don't see how it can be taken more than once!—Punch.

"Would you oblige me," said the reporter who gets interviews, "by telling me what book has helped you most in life?"

Nice old man—Good heavens, boy! Are you smoking? Muggs—Me smokin'? Say, do very suspicion cuts me t' de quick. Why, I'm just keepin' dis butt lighted in case de guy who dropped it comes back.—New York "Sun."

General Booth Speaks of its Work the World Over

Not Much Progress in France and None in Russia

Paris, Nov. 23.—General Booth, of the Salvation Army, said to-day: "We have not progressed as fast here in France as we have in some other countries, but I believe we have now started on a new era, and that better times are ahead."

"Are you ever charged with seeking proselytes?" he was asked.

"We only bring religion to those who haven't it," he replied. "A man tells us he is Catholic. We ask, 'Are you a good Catholic? Are you true to the principles of our faith.' So also with Protestants.

"The religion of the Salvation Army is summed up in two great commandments. 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. The difference between the Army and the Church is, that no man falls too low for us to attempt his salvation. A preacher or a priest says, 'This man beats his wife, starves his children, and commits an abomination. Punish him. So also do we say punish him, if that will do any good, but reclaim him, too. Save him. Get at his heart—he has one. Some time in life he made good resolves; he has made promises at the side of a deathbed; some one has loved him.'

"And you could appeal to Mohammedans and Buddhists?"

The old General's eyes sparkled; "In India alone," he said, "we have fifteen hundred paid agents, fourteen hundred of them natives. On the west coast of Africa we had to recall the Army for a while, and the natives formed an Army of their own. They are carrying it on there now without us."

"And are you in every civilized country?"

"All except Russia." There was a shade of regret in the General's voice, but no resentment. "The Army is in Finland, but not in Russia yet, but we are not without friends in Russia, and good and powerful ones they are. One of them is the Dowager Empress. Six members of the Royal Family of Denmark are friends of the Army and subscribers to its cause. Fifty municipalities in Denmark contribute to our establishments there.'

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 413, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for [illegible].

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

—On Saturday we will again sell best quality of notepaper, ruled or plain, in pound packages, containing one hundred and twenty-five sheets, for only 20 cents. Times Bookstore.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

Cold in the Head

What's the sense in sneezing and sniffling, dosing with purgatives or bothering with atomizers?

Catarrhozone

Sensible people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease itself

To cure a cold in about ten minutes' time use Catarrhozone. It is aromatic delightful to inhale, clean and very simple to use.

Catarrhozone is a vegetable antiseptic, and perfectly safe and harmless. Even children and infants can use it. The vapor is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through the respiratory organs is exhaled slowly through the nostrils.

Catarrhozone never disappoints. it stops sneezing, coughing and running at the eyes, by a few inhalations. Inflammation, congestion and all irritation disappear under the influence of Catarrhozone more quickly than can be told.

O. B. College, of Clarence Street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhozone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhozone cures every time.'

To carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh or any lung trouble. It keeps these diseases away and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with Hard Rubber Pocket Inhaler costs $1.00. Small size, 25 cents. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

A SPECIAL SESSION OPENED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

A Short Session and Adjournment—Forty Eight Men Got Grants for Service in South Africa

Yesterday afternoon the County Council went into special session, which will continue until Friday or Saturday. Warden Crowe in the chair, and the following members present: Messrs. Dennis Moloney, W. T. Curtis, W. T. Buck, T. Johnston, E. A. Peck, T. M. Hunter, G. W. Fitzgerald, John Menogue, and Robert Shaw.

The Warden was pleased to see all the members of the Council in their places, and stated the object of the meeting.

County Clerk Watt read the minutes of the last session, held in June, which was confirmed.

Mr. Fitzgerald called attention to the fact that he saw in the minutes that forty-eight men had been paid $25 each for serive in South Africa. He thought this was a terrible lot for this county.

Mr. Buck remarked that there had probably been more returned to the county than given out.

The County Clerk stated that fullest precautions had been taken so that the identity and residence of the men would be established and no mistake made.

The Council, on motion of Mr. Shaw, seconded by Mr. Peck, adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

POLICE COURT

Two Cases Came Before Mayor Roger Yesterday Morning

At the police court yesterday morning before Mayor Roger, who acted as Magistrate in the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble, Edward Wall was charged with breaking into Mr. Thos. Emmerson's boat house and stealing some fishing tackle and a hammer. He was remanded until Thursday.

Edgar H. Crockford, the man arrested in Toronto on a charge of sending a letter to Mrs. W. T. Lorymer, of Sawyerville, threatening to murder her husband, was remanded until next Tuesday morning.

E. W. RATHBUN DEAD

Head of the Big Company Passes Away Suddenly

Word was received in town yesterday of the death of Mr. E. W. Rathbun, Deseronto, head of the Rathbun Company. The deceased was well known in Peterborough and troughout the province. He had been suffering from heart trouble for some months, and had not taken an active part in the business of the company. He is survived by a widow and four sons and three daughters. The sons are E. Walter Rathbun, now general manager of the Rathbun Company, Harold M., Adrian and Marvin, and the daughters are Mrs. C. A. Masten, of Toronto, and Misses Fanny and Mayrie at home.

For Exhibit of Pictures at the Toronto Exposition

A diploma has been received by General Traffic Manager Tiffin from the directors of the Dominion Industrial Exposition, recently held in Toronto, on which appear the words "Awarded to the Intercolonial Railway by the Jury of Awards for exhibition of pictures, etc." The diploma is a very fine production of the litographic art, it will be suitably framed, and added to the railway's permanent collection. The exhibit meriting this award consisted of one hundred and twenty-seven large bromide enlargements arranged to illustrate in order the route traversed by Canada's famous train, the "Maritime Express," mounted Restigouche salmon, illustrating the rise, strike, struggle and victory—and moose heads, the whole exhibit occupying nearly one thousand square feet. The many thousands of visitors to this largest of Canadian exhibitions were loud in their praise of the beautiful scenery and sporting trophies of Quebec and the Provinces by the Sea, and it will no doubt result in many of our Upper Canadian brothers visiting us next year.

Peterborough's Natural Advantages

Last night's Examiner gave a very able write-up of Petrborough's advantages in the line of electrical energy and shipping facilities. Even to the residents of the town the facts presented by our contemporary is a revelation. That Peterborough justly deserves the title of Electric City we think few who read the article will deny. At this crisis in our career the ratepayers should be careful to elect men to the Council Board who will sacredly guard our privileges, and who will exercise the strictest economy in the conduct of our affairs. The rate of taxation is increasing at an alarming rate, and it imperative that it should go no higher. With an excessive rate of taxation our advantages would be nil.

THE DIFFERENCE

Coffee Usually Means Sickness But Postum Always Means Health

Those who tried never tried the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place and in this way regaining health and happiness can learn much from the experience of others who have made the trial.

One who knows says: "I drank coffee for breakfast every morning until I had terrible attacks of indigestion producing days of discomfort and nights of sleeplessness. I tried to give up the use of coffee entirely but found it hard to go from coffee to a glass of water. Then I tried Postum Food Coffee.

"It was good and the effect was so pleasant that I soon learned to love it and have used it for several years. I improved immediately after I left off coffee and took on Postum, and am now entirely cured of my indigestion and other troubles, all of which were due to coffee. I am now well and contented and all because I changed from coffee to Postum.

"Postum is much easier to make right every time than coffee for it is so even and always reliable. We never use coffee now in our family. We use Postum and are always well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason and it is proved by trial.

THANKS THE GRAND TRUNK

The Grand Trunk Railway System are in receipt from the Canadian Committee of Arrangements in connection with the Fifth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, that was held in Montreal last August, a copy of the resolution adopted by the Canadian Committee of Arrangements at meeting held 13th November, 1903.

Accompanying this resolution was a personal letter to Mr. Chas. M. Hays, Second Vice-President and General Manager, from Mr. Arthur J. Hodgson, Chairman of the Committee, which reads as follows:

Montreal, November 13th, 1903.

CHAS. M. HAYS, Esq.,
Second Vice-President and General Manager,
Grand Trunk Railway System, City.

Dear Sir:

It affords me much pleasure to communicate herewith a resolution adopted by my Committee this forenoon, conveying to your Company an expression of its gratitude for the tour over the Grand Trunk Railway System, which by the courtesy of its Management, was provided for the oversea delegates to the Fifth Congress.

Thanking you personally for having from the first inception of the project of a free tour for the oversea delegates, given the idea the most hearty reception.

I remain, Dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,
ARTHUR J. HODGSON,
Chairman.

The resolution reads:

Resolution Adopted by the Canadian Committee of Arrangements at Meeting held 13th November, 1903.

Resolved—That the Canadian Committee of Arrangements tenders to the Grand Trunk Railway Company its most sincere thanks for the hearty manner with which it met the Committee's request that the oversea delegates to the Fifth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire should, with the object of giving them some idea of the extent, resources, and beauties of this country, be tendered a complimentary tour over its lines.

That the size and sumptuous appointment of the special train provided by the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the conveyance of the party of 225 delegates was a revelation to them, and that the comfort and convenience of travelling thereon and the high speed maintained were greatly appreciated.

That the Committee gratefully recalls the Company's considerate kindness in sending with the party a number of its chief officers who in their official car dispensed each day most welcome hospitality to the delegates and their ladies, and who moreover endeared themselves to every member of the party by their constant and unwearying personal attention to their wants and comfort.

That the trip from Montreal to Niagara, with the visits paid en route to Kingston, Toronto and Hamilton, and the glimpses afforded of the River St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario, was much enjoyed by the Delegates, affording as it did opportunity to form a just appreciation of the cities in that section of the country and its River and Great Lake scenery, while the sojourn at Niagara Falls was a delight to all.

That the journey through the beautiful Dundas Valley, the visits to the cities of London, Windsor and Sarnia, with the trip under the river through the St. Clair Tunnel, were much appreciated by the party, while the boat trip through the lovely scenery of the Muskoka Lakes, taken in perfect weather, concluded a most enjoyable week.

That the Committee specially thanks the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the series of beautifully illustrated and tastefully bound guide book of the route that were presented to each member of the party, and it assures the Company that these are greatly treasured by all who received them.

That the committee of Arrangements is convinced that the circumstance that with the assistance of the Dominion Government and by the kindness of the Railway and Inland Steamboat Companies, it was able to tender the oversea delegates these extended tours through Canada, added largely to the success which has attended the holding of the Fifth Congress in this City, and it is most gratifying to know that these tours have resulted in impressing the delegates most favourably with the great resources of this country, the vast opportunities it affords for the investment of capital, and its superior advantages as a home for the surplus population of the motherland.

That the committee have been gratified to learn that the knowledge of the resources and beauties of our country thus obtained by the delegated will be widely disseminated by them through the various parts of the Empire from which they came, for it is the intention of many of the delegates to communicate to the members of their respective Chambers and to other audiences, by illustrated lectures and other means, the information they have gathered during their visit to Canada.

That the committee records its belief that the tours throughout Canada have fulfilled in the highest degree the hope in which they were planned, that in addition to affording much enjoyment to the oversea delegates to the Congress, they would result in great and lasting good to our country, and that the Railway and Steamboat Companies who gave the transportation privileges deserve and enjoy the gratitude of all Canadians for their wise generosity in this connection.

Certified a true copy.

GEO. HADRILL,
Secretary.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—None equals the Parker fountain pen —'Smooth and easy they glide along.' Just the thing for a Xmas present. Buy now and test it yourself a few weeks before giving. Times Bookstore.

—Did you see the splendid display of photos of the hunters in Roy's windows?

—Mr. L. A. Hally has opened a paint shop on Water street, one door north of the Crown Hotel. Mr. Hally is a first class mechanic, and will no doubt secure a large business.

—The town's gold brick is not getting any lighter. Proceedings in the application for a motion to quash the street lighting and street railway by-laws have been adjourned for a week.

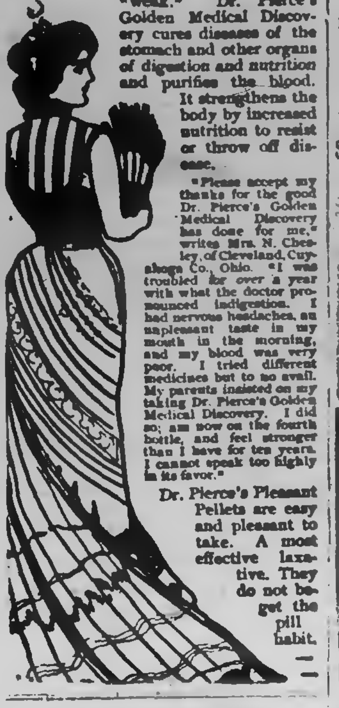
—The Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health has been instructed to communicate with the Minister of Education with a view of securing, if possible, his co-operation in an effort to improve the ventilation and general sanitation of the school buildings.

—The Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peter's T.A.S., will meet on Friday evening, Nov. 27th, at 8 o'clock. Miss Fannie Holmes will read a paper on "Early Christian Martyrs." All the members of the Ladies committee are requested to make complete returns at the committee meeting on Friday evening.

The Deadly Trail

Of disease is often the trail marked by a woman's gown. A recent investigation showed a horde of microbes, including those of influenza, consumption and a dozen other varieties, gathered in the trail of a woman's dress.

The microbe is everywhere, but its prey are the weak and feeble people whose blood is "poor" and digestion "weak." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and purifies the blood. It strengthens the body by increased nutrition to resist or throw off disease.



"Please accept my thanks for the good Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has done for me," writes Mrs. N. Chesley, of Cleveland, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. "I was troubled for over a year with what the doctor pronounced indigestion. I had nervous headaches, an unpleasant taste in my mouth in the morning, and my blood was very poor. I tried different medicines but to no avail. My parents insisted on my taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I did so; am now on the fourth bottle, and feel stronger than I have for ten years. I cannot speak too highly in its favor."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative. They do not beget the pill habit.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. Wm. Prendergast, B.A., of Toronto, Separate school inspector, is in town on an official visit.

—Mr. John Menogue, of Chandos, arrived in town yesterday to attend the County Council.

—Mrs. Foster Bryner, Mr. J. A. Jackson, General Secretary of the Ontario Sabbath school Association, and the Rev. J. G. Potter, left for Belleville yesterday, where they addressed the rally of Sunday school workers and parents held yesterday afternoon and night.

Died in Colorado

The friends of Mrs. Arthur Allin, daughter of Mr. Johnston Carey, formerly a resident of Peterborough, will hear with regret of the death of her husband, Dr. Arthur Allin, Principal of Colorado University, which took place on Wednesday last of typhoid fever. The deceased was a nephew of Mr. J. W. Carey, town. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Johnston Carey 35 Brunswick avenue, Toronto, this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to Mount Pleasant cemetery. Mr. J. W. Carey left yestrday afternoon to be present at the obsequies.

Archie Moore in Demand

Mr. Archie Moore is in great demand these days in connection with tripping the light fantastic. As a floor manager Archie is a pronounced success, his happy manner of "calling off" being very popular. Amongst his engagements are: The Caughnawaga Football Club's dance on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25, at Norwood; the Foresters ball at Keene, on the evening of November 27; the Bethany Football Club assembly, on December 18; while about December 26 and 25, a couple of pleasurable events are scheduled for Peterborough.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catherines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its generative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

GREAT UNREST PREVAILS IN THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE

War with Japan Said to be Inevitable to Save War at Home

London, Nov. 26—The Post's St. Petersburg special says that a grave ministerial crisis is on at the Russian capital. It is an open secret that war with Japan must come to save a war at home.

St. Petersburg, November 26, via London, Nov. 26—Rumors of a sensational Cabinet change are in circulation. It appears that M. Witte, president of the Imperial Council, while at Darmstadt, succeeded in alarming the Czar on the subject of Russia's declining international prestige, which he attributed to the reduced state of the peasantry, the chronic unrest in industrial centres, the agitation in Armenia, and the alleged slippery character of Russia's diplomacy.

It is stated that M. Witte's representations caused His Majesty to see matters in another light and contract a grave suspicion as to the wisdom of Von Phehev's policy. It is believed that Count Lamsdorff is almost certain to resign the Foreign Ministry shortly and than Von Phehev may be forced to follow his example. These ministerial uncertainties further complicate the question as to what policy Russia may ultimately adopt with regard to the controversy with Japan.

HASTY, RECKLESS AND VERY UNSAFE

New York Times Uses Strong Words in Regard to President

New York, Nov. 26— The New York Times, quoting Goldwin Smith, on the Panama affair and his declaration that the honor of this republic might be in better hands than those of President Roosevelt, says: "The broken treaty is evidence of that. "The sophistical apologies for breaking it," the paper adds, "supply further evidence, but there is a growing belief among us that the peace and prosperity of the country also might be in safer hands. Too much antecedent knowledge gives support to the unpleasant charge of collusion on the part of our Government in the Panama secession. No state of facts can be made out; no theory that can be put forward will censure the President from the just censure of those who charge that the course he pursued was hasty, reckless, unwarranted and unsafe."

LONDON TIMES MORE LENIENT.

London, November 26—In an editorial the Times says that the construction of the Panama Canal is apparently assured. "Apparently," it says, "the consummate ability with which President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay have carried through the whole business has won reluctant approval even in very antagonistic quarters among their fellow countrymen. Seldom do the barriers of obstruction collapse so satisfactorily."

PORT HOPE ADDS TO ITS PROTESTS

Objects to Dams for Power on Trent Valley Canal

Port Hope, Ont., Nov. 25—A joint meeting of the citizens and the Port Hope Canal Association was held today to take action regarding the last move of Peterborough and Lakefield power-holders, now petitioning both Governments to construct conservation dams in the backwoods districts, the official estimate of which was admitted at the first Peterborough meeting to cost $100,000, besides wages and maintenance. The following resolution was passed to add to the previous memorials to the Dominion and Ontario Governments:—

"That we are strongly opposed to public money being expended to provide water-power for private interests without a rental, and a proper one, being paid therefor."

Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell, of Peterborough, was present at the meeting. A deputation composed of Dr. L. B. Powers, Dr. R. A. Corbett, Thomas Long, and H. Barrett was appointed to wait upon the Ontario Government at the same time as the Peterborough powerholders deputation to oppose their request being made ostensibly for navigation purposes, but admitted openly at the first Peterborough meeting to be for power purposes, as reported by the Peterborough press. It was arranged that the officers of the association drive Mr. Culverwell to-morrow over the proposed Port Hope outlet of the Trent Cana, between Rice Lake and Lake Ontario, a distance of only eleven miles through the Smith Creek Valley.

FINEST DEPOT IN THE WORLD

Union Station in Washington will be the Largest

Washington, Nov. 26—Plans are completed for the local union station of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads. This is the station in which congress took a hand to solve a railway problem which has long been a bugbear to Washington. General Washington's original plan of more than a century ago concerning the system of radiating avenues will not be disturbed and the station will be located at the center of these avenues.

The new station will be the biggest and most ornate in the world. It will be erected at the intersection of Delaware and Massachusetts avenues. It will face directly toward the dome over the centre of the halls of congress, half a mile distant, and will be treated in an architectura style in keeping with its character as the "vestibule of the capital."

MARROQUIN WANTS HELP

Appeals to His Old Enemy President Zelaya

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 26— President Marroquin of the republic of Colombia has sent a circular letter to President Zelaya of Nicaragua asking for his moral support in dealing with the present situation on the Isthmus. President Zelaya has telegraphed to the presidents of all the Central American countries proposing to them that they combine with him in an answer to President Marroquin. The idea has been accepted by the various executives, but it has not yet been decided what form the combined answer will take.

THE ROYAL VISIT

Good Results Sure to Follow the Roya Visit

London, Nov. 25—The departure of the King and Queen of Italy brings to a close one of the brightest episodes of the present reign. The cordiality with which the Italian guests have been received at Portsmouth, Windsor and London is proof that royalty has an important function in bringing modern states together and promoting good feeling. The prestige of King Edward has been greatly expanded by his foreign journeys and receptions of sovereigns and rulers. The popular greeting to the King and Queen of Italy in the streets of London was exceptionally hearty. The banquets, theatricals and ceremonials at Windsor have been of the statliest order, and the arrangements of the court officials without a flaw. The vanity of Englishmen is gratified by the knowledge that they now have the most brilliant and best ordered court of Europe. They also perceive the advantages of the conferences of Lord Lansdowne and Signor Tittoni, and are convinced that the three western powers have been brought into the most intimate relations with King Edward's initiative. These three naval powers are now known to be acting together on the Macedonian question, and Germany is strongly urging the Sultan to accept the revised Austrian-Russian proposals before anything like an ultimatum is formulated.

U.S. FORT BURNS

Soldiers in Alaska are Left Without Provision

Dawson, N.W.T., Nov. 25—All the barracks, warehouses and paint shops at Fort Gibbon, a military post of the United States in Alaska, were destroyed yesterday by fire. The soldiers lost all their personal effects, as well as their supplies for the winter. The fire, therefore, will cause great suffering till fresh supplies can be brought from the Yukon. The stables were not burned and the soldiers will probably live in them till better temporary quarters can be provided.

The arctic winter is now on in full vigor and will last five months longer. The loss by the fire is at least $100,000.

The fire started in an unknown manner in the smokehouse. Before an alarm could be given the entire barracks were ablaze. The soldiers had nothing with which to fight the flames but snow, which proved useless. The fire made a clean sweep of the barracks, warehouses and paint shops. The warehouses contained the supplies for the soldiers for the winter and nothing was saved.

The commandant is moving with great rapidity to house the men and send up to the Yukon for more supplies. Fort Gibbon belongs to the department of the Columbia, under command of General Funston.

Malcontents Must Leave

Colon, Nov. 25—A proclamation published on the street corners of Colon to-day invites all malcontents to leave the country at the expense of the republic.

Generals Harris and Bustamente returned to Colon today on board the Canada. They will continue their journey to Savanilla. The United States cruiser Atlanta and United States gunboat Nashville have returned to Colon.

LONDON TRADERS TO DISCUSS DOMINION.

Lord Strathcona to Preside at Chamber of Commerce Dinner

London, Nov. 26— At the monthly dinner, on December 16th, of the London Chamber of Commerce, Canada will be the subject of post randial discussion. The chairman will be Lord Strathcona. Many delegates to the Montreal Congress, who partook of Lord Strathcona's hospitality will be present. The discussion will probably be in regard to the outcome of the Montreal Congress. The proceedings, according to custom, will be informal in their character, and no resolution will be submitted.

A FISCAL BLUE BOOK.

I understand that there is to be published a blue book, containing a report of the various colonial representatives in regard to the fiscal problem. Some of the reports are dated as far back as 1900.

SISTER STATES.

The Manchester Courier, commenting on the fiscal question, says: "With our colonies we swim; without them we decline to the position of a second Holland. For good or ill we are the parents of the English-speaking peoples of the globe. Is it at all likely that even the United States would see us go under? The case in regard to the colonies is infinitely stronger. They are sister States, larger than we are, and in the days to come they will be more powerful, if not so wealthy."

WESTMINSTER GAZETTE HUMOR.

The Westminster Gazette says that if Professor Hewins is going to instruct Mr. Chamberlain in economics, he has done well to resign all his other appointments, for it will take all his time to make any impression on his headstrong pupil. The Gazette suggests as a first lesson an exercise, not in economics, but in the elements of logic and common sense. Let Prof. Hewins persuade Chamberlain to make an effort not to contradict himself in the same speech, as he did in his Cardiff luncheon speech.

POULTRY PRICES

The season has proved unfavorable to rearers of poultry, both in England and on the Continent, so reliance is placed upon the Canadian supply, especially for turkeys. Importers and producers are looking for high prices.

FRUIT PACKING.

Nethard and Lowe, the large fruit importers, suggest in an interview more attention be paid in Canada to cultivating black currants and raspberries for the purpose of making pulp. This year black currant pulp sold for £40 per ton, and raspberry pulp sold almost as well. In regard to the packing of fruit, Mr. Lowe suggested that the British Government inspectors should be instructed to notify the inspector in Canada of any falsely packed fruit that they might discover here. The inspectors in Canada could than keep a lookout for the culprits. Mr. Lowe was also of the opinion that every steamer carrying fruit from a Canadian port should have a thermograph in each hold, which should be opened only in the presence of the inspectors at this side.

Marion, Ind., November 26— Burglars entered the house of Mr. John Shippey a local lumber merchant, early this morning, and attempted to cut off the fingers of Edith Shippey to secure her diamond rings. The girl's screams caused the burglars to flee. Three men have been arrested and are held for identification.

Winnipeg, Man., November 26— One of the most novel shipments that has been sent east from Winnipeg was forwarded over the Canadian Pacific Railway on Saturday, when the Hudson's Bay Company detached a freight car laden with 75 Eskimo dogs, which are to be used to haul supplies to the construction camps of the new Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through Ontario and Quebec. The dogs, which are all trained animals, were secured at the Hudson's Bay posts in the far North. The car was sent to Montreal.

Halifax, N.S., November 26 —Despite inclement weather, a large number of Liberal-Conservative friends greeted Messrs. R. L. Borden and A. C. Bell at Sydney last night. Mr. Borden was heartily cheered and escorted to the hotel. Mr. Borden will open the campaign at a public meeting this evening. A convention of Liberal-Conservatives from the north riding of Cape Breton is to be held at Sydney Mines next Thursday for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Federal House.

Belleville, Ont., November 26 — Mr. Harry T. Wills, a native of this city, and now manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, at Dawson City, was married on Thursday evening last to Miss Mary McElroy, at Seattle, she being his third wife. The couple left on their bridal tour, and in less than 24 hours after the marriage Mrs. Wills was a corpse, death being caused by heart failure. The lady was 36 years of age, and had been subject to fainting spells for several years. Mr. Larry T. Wills of this city, is one of the best known men in the Yukon.

Montreal, Nov. 26—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has already denied as foundationless the report that a new railway deal is pending, whereby the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Northern are going to be indepndent of any connection with the Grand Trunk.

It has been said that the Canadian Northern propose building a line from North Bay or Sudbury on the Canadian Pacific Railway to Toronto, over which the Canadian Pacific will have running powers, and in return for this the C.P.R. will grant the Canadian Northern running privileges over the Canadian Pacific Railway line from Port Arthur to Sudbury. The Canadian Pacific Railway at present utilizes the Grand Trunk between Toronto and North Bay and Toronto for direct Toronto business.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 26—Love begins early in either sex, according to Professor Bell, a fellow in Clark University and formerly an instructor in the normal school at Valparaiso, Ind. The professor has given much study to the phenomena of the tender passion and is pronounced as wise in that direction as he is in other branches of knowledge. He has prepared a table of the age of love in men and women and has reached the conclusion that neither sex is safe from Cupid's dart after it has reached the age of 3 years. In fifteen years Professor Bell has investigated 800 cases and his figures show that the maturity of a woman's heart is reached at 22 and a man's at 24. The professor is preparing a book upon the phenomena of love.

Ottawa, Nov. 26—There are a number of capital cases now either ready to come or being prepared for the decision of Council. The first is the case in which Ah Gum, Gum Ti and Sup Chum, Chinamen, are sentenced to death, on December 4 for the murder of their partner in placer mining, Ah Chu, at Clinton, B.C. This case is peculiar. Sup Chum confesses his guilt, and declares the other two innocent. An idea exists that, in accordance with Chinese custom the others may have agreed to pay Sup Chum's relatives for his death. It is also a curious case as giving free course to a Chinese argument that as only one man was murdered three should not be executed. It is impossible to say what will be the result of this case, which may come up today.

The next on the calendar is that of a Jap at Nanaimo, Kaiya Maide, who in all probability, will be executed on December 11.

Then comes the case of Ernest Cashel for the murder of a settler on Red River, and who will probably be hanged on December 15.

The last case is that of a Syrian Caleell Barham, now in Cornwall jail, under sentence of death for December 1. The Department is in this case sending down an expert to make an examination and report, as, although there is no evidence to that effect, insanity was hinted at in the course of the trial. His case cannot be considered until the Commissioner reports.

In Favor of Annexation

St. John's N.F., Nov. 26—United States Senator Lodge's recent declaration respecting St. Pierre and Miquelon becoming a part of the American Republic has excited great interest in St. Pierre. That colony has had the worst fishery season in its history. Trade there is depressed and the outlook is gloomy. The people are ready to welcome any settlement of the fishery dispute that will insure them prosperity, and the feeling in favor of annexation to the United States finds much favor.

CHINESE LABOR IN AFRICA

A Bitter Controversy is Now Beginning

London, Nov. 26—Prospects of a bitter controversy are unfolded in the finding of the Transvaal Labor Commission to the effect that neither south nor Central Africa contains the necessary amount of unskilled labor for its development. The commission declares that 60,000 laborers are needed at once for agricultural purposes, 130,000 for the mines and 40,000 for the railways, while thousands more will be required in the near future.

This is construed to mean that the officials are repaving the way for the introduction of Chinese labor on a vast scale. Many leading Boers have announced that they intend to resist the introduction of foreign labor by every means in their power. They have organized a press bureau in London to urge their views on the British public.

Mr. Smuts, ex-Procurator of the former Transvaal Republic, is making strong speeches and writing vehement newspaper articles against Chinese immigration. He asserts that the finding of the commission elevates the economic above the social welfare of the South African colonies—the line of financial policy that led to the late war. He says that the Asiatics will multiply and overrun the country to the exclusion of white labor and the general debasement of social conditions. He appeals to the people not to inflict this additional racial curse on South Africa.

On the other hand, practical men see nothing except stagnation for the Transvaal unless sufficient labor is obtained to work the new industries at full pressure. It is probable that the Boer protests may be overborne and the farms and railways in the Transvaal manned by coolies.

Want Dowie to Pay

Chicago, Nov. 25—The suits for debts brought against Dowie this month are approaching a total of $100,000. Every day now adds to the growing list, and in addition there are pay rolls defaulted at Zion City. To-day's suits filed at Waukegan, aggregate $6,250, as follows: Bell Manufacturing Company, $2,500; Patent Vulcanite Roofing Company $2,000; Union Fibre Company, $1,500; J. W. Shute & Co., $250. Dowie admits he is short of cash, but says he expects the trouble to blow over soon and continue preparations for his trip around the world.

TURKEY MUST ACCEPT THE TERMS

Austria and Russia Will Insist to Point of War

THEY CANNOT BACK OUT

Telegrams are Passing Hourly Between the Various Foreign Offices

Constantinople, Nov. 24, via Plovdiv, Nov. 26—Turkey's acceptance of all the essentials of the Austro-Russian scheme of reform for Macedonia is expected hourly by the Russian and Austrian Ambassadors. Nevertheless they say it may be indefinitely refused, if not altogether refused. In the latter event exciting times are expected. Russia and Austria will rigidly adhere to their purpose. They will resort to force rather than permit the frustration of their plans. They can not well back out, since Western Europe is urging them forward and holding in abeyance a a scheme of reform more drastic than the one which at present is so distressing the Porte and the palace.

WISH TO AVOID WAR.

Vienna, November 26— Telegrams are passing almost hourly between the foreign offices of Austria, Turkey and Russia on the subject of Macedonia. Turkey is trying one expedient after another in the hope of moderating the Austro-Russian demands. The two powers are strictly avoiding material concessions and yet endeavoring to compel the acceptance of their programme without risk of Turko-European war. The concert is unbroken and diplomatists continue to cherish the belief that Turkey will give way, as much more delay would mean an ultimatum from Russia and Austria. According to information which has reached a correspondent, Count Lamsdorff and Count Goluchowski have refused the Sultan's request for a postponment of negotiations until after the Ramazan festival.

During Ramazan the Mohammedans fast from sunrise to sunset and spend much of their time in the Mosques, praying and hearing the Koran read. These exercises are frequently accompanied by tears, sobbing, tearing of hair, and other signs of extreme excitement. It is realized that man in such a mental condition would not stop to count the cost if called upon, in the name of the prophet to fight the enemies of their creed

New York, Nov. 26—Dr. Alexander Marmorek, whose discovery of a serum that he claims has cured tuberculosis has just been announced, declares through a friend in this city that he bases his claim in part upon a long series of experiments, one of which was the cure of no less a person than Prince Henry of Pless a scion of the royal house of Germany

The date of Dr. Marmorek's experiments and their results are given today for the first time on the authority of Dr. Richard Gotheil, professor of Semitic languages at Columbia university, a close friend of Dr. Marmorek.

"One cure claimed by Dr. Marmorek," says Dr. Gothell, "is that of a case in which tubercular meningitis had developed. Soon a most extraordinary situation faced him. His colleagues were eager to secure his aid in the treatment of specific cases, but he tells me they openly expressed their dread of the consequences should the secret of the serum become known. 'You will take our bread away,' they urged. 'If you end tubercular contagion. Eighty per cent of our clientile is derived from such patients.' Later these sentiments took the form, he says, of threats of serious consequences should the young man dare to announce his discovery.

"It was about this time that Dr. Marmorek was called to treat Prince Henry of Pless, who was ill with tubercular disease, and his condition was considered hopeless. After the court physicians had exhausted all their skill Dr. Marmorek went to the bedside of the prince and subjected him to a series of treatments with his serum. Prince Henry recovered entirely and is in good health today.

GREAT BRITAIN TO HOLD THE PERSIAN GULF.

England will Maintain Her Supremacy. Declares Lord Curzon, Viceroy of India

Bunder Abbas, Gulf of Ormuz, Persia, Nov. 25.—While on his way here the Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, held a durbar at Shargah, which was attended by many prominent Arab chiefs of the coast. He made a significant speech, reaffirming the intention of Great Britain to maintain her supremacy in the Persian Gulf, and declared the Government adhered to its policy of guardianship and protection of the chiefs. The Viceroy reminded the chiefs of their engagements not to enter into agreements or correspondence with any other power than Great Britain, not to admit the agents of any other Government, and not alienate any part of their territory.

London, Nov. 25.—Private advices from Pekin are to the effect that Gen. Yuanshikai, Governor of Chili Province, has informed the Emperor that he is prepared to declare war against the Russians in Manchuria.

Gen. Ma is said to be ready to march into Shankaikwan at the head of 18,000 men.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN TRADE.

Yokohama, Nov. 25.—No reply has been received from St. Petersburg on the subject of the Japanese overtures, and there are many indications that the the delay in the negotiations is embarrassing to Japan's foreign trade, and is raising impatience among the people, as shown by public meetings at Tokio, Yokohama, and Osaka, protesting against the Ministerial inactivity.

One popular Tokio newspaper has twice been officially suspended for publishing verses indirectly suggesting the assassination of the Ministers.

TERRITORY THAT CANADA WILL NEED

The North-East Coast of Labrador and Ungava is Not Hers

IT IS NEWFOUNDLAND'S

Mr. J. M. Clark Advises Thas We Take in the Big Island as Soon as Possible

Toronto, Nov. 26—That instead of bemoaning our loss of territory on the Pacific coast, we should bestir ourselves to maintain the integrity of our Atlantic coast line, was the address given by Mr. J. M. Clarke, K. C., in his address before the Mulock Club. Mr. Clark was speaking of the future of Canada. He emphasized the importance of studying Canadian history and of cherishing just and adequate national conceptions. Turning to the question of treaty-making powers, he pointed out severa. instances in which Canadian opinion had been consulted. The Blaine-Bond treaty between the United States and Newfoundland was vetoed and the German and Belgium treaties were denounced at the request of Canada. However, Mr. Clark declared that the permanent solution of the problem would have to be found in some method by which an efficient and effective voice in the control of the foreign relations of the Empire in which she is specially interested could be given to Canada.

Having dwelt upon the importance of the protection of our interests in Hudson Bay, Mr. Clark took up the question of Canada's relations with Newfoundland. A wide strip of the Labrador coast, extending north-west from the Straits of Belle Isle along the shore of Labrador and Ungava, belongs to Newfoundland. Should Newfoundland have joined the United States, as would have been the natural outcome of the Bond-Blaine treaty, Canada would have lost this strip of coast line also. The only policy for Canada is to encourage Newfoundland to enter the Canadian Confederation. In this way we would make secure our control of the navigation of the St. Lawrence. The loss of territory through the Alaska award was a mere bagatelle to Canadian interests on the Atlantic coast.

That Canada should remain a part of the Empire was essential to Britain's naval supremacy. It was fortunate, therefore, that in this union Canada can reach her highest develment. Since Canada is indebted to Britain for the defence of her shipping some contribution should be made towards the cost of defence. This contribution must be made with proper safeguards. The rule of no taxation without representation was too fundamental, said Mr. Clark, to be tampered with. The action of the Government in giving further aid to the volunteer system was a step in the right direction. We could best maintain the peace of the world by preparing ourselves for war.

Strike Sympathizers Shot

Chicago, Nov. 25 —Two non-union men, who had applied for work at the plant of the American Hide and Leather Comapny, where a strike is in progress shot and seriously wounded two members of a crowd of strike sympathizers. The man who did the shooting escaped. It is claimed that they were being attacked by the crowd. Joseph Polachesky and Anton Zelmmoesky are suspected by the police of having done the shooting.

At Sunday School Entertainment at Kippen.

Kippen, Nov. 25.—An explosion of acetylene in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here at eight o'clock last evening did over $2,000 damage and seriously injured seven persons. A tea-meeting and entertainment for the benefit of the children of the Sunday school was being held in the basement of the church, which is used as the Sunday school room when the smell of acetylene gas was noticed, and the minister Rev. M. McLennan, and the caretaker, W. Moore, were investigating the cause of the leak in the generator. The leakage was supposed to be in the connections, but before it was definitely located with a terrific crash the gas exploded. The east end of the basement was blown out and the school-room was shattered.

PANIC FOLLOWED.

Several hundred people were present, and immediately the wildest excitement prevailed. They made a rush for the door leading to the yard, but so great was the struggling mass of men, women and children that the doorway was soon blocked. Those behind were prevented from escaping, and in their frantic effort to make their escape, trampled on one another. Many were bruised. In the course of twenty minutes the uninjured had extracted themselves from the crush and had gained the open air, leaving the injured inside. They, too, were then quickly rescued.

It was found that nine persons, mostly children, were injured, and it is feared that in some cases the hurts may prove fatal.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

THE PURCHASE OF ST. PIERRE

The Canadian Government should lose no time in making it plain in London that they will not tolerate the sale of St Pierre to the United States. It might appear to British minds, accustomed to think of the French Republic as a rival power, and of the United States as a "friendly ally" that it would be immaterial to us which of these foreign nations controlled the island which commands the sea route from the St. Lawrence south of Newfoundland to Europe. But it would make a very great difference to us. The United States is our one possible rival nation. We may have and have had many disputes with her; while we are never likely—as Canadians—to have a word of difference with the French Republic.

Then the St. Lawrence route is our great advantage in the matter on transportation over the United States. It is a route which is absolutely essential to our effective independence; we should keep entirely free from the most shadowy menace of American control. We can no more permit the Americans to plant a Gibraltar at its mouth, than they would allow us to command the mouth of the Mississippi. As for the French Republic, it has nothing to do with the St. Lawrence route. It cares not two straws whether it is Canadian or American. It is quite another matter to have a French outpost at St. Pierre.

Of course, we should like to see the French shore question settled, and St. Pierre brought under British control. If the British Government were fairly alive to the far-reaching importance of preserving the freedom of Canada—the "seat of future Empire"—it would lose no time in bartering some advantage in another corner of the world for this entire French claim. But the British Government is singularly blind to the necessity of safeguarding the approaches to the ports of Canada—as witness its cheerful abandonment of the two islands commanding Port Simpson.

This notion that the Americans might possibly buy St. Pierre, however, mightily multiplies the reasons for promptly getting it into British hands. It would be much easier to buy it from France than to offend the Americans by bluntly refusing to recognize their purchase of it. Yet even this latter course would be an imperial necessity if the lightning larcenists of the Roosevelt-Hay Administration were to complete the purchase before British diplomacy got in motion.

The first duty of protest rests with the Canadian Government. The British Government may easily not understand the situation out here. World politics may obscure the Canadian view of the matter. Thus no time ought to be lost in laying the facts of the case before the Imperial Ministers. After the astonishing Panama transaction, it will not do to to take anything for granted with regard to the American Government.

OUTLOOK FOR CANADA

The Montreal Board of Trade has passed a resolution in endorsement of the policy of Mr. Chamberlain, one drawing the mother country and the colonies into closer business relations. The speeches made in support of the resolution were very remarkable. One man, Mr. Meighan said that had the preferential tariff been adopted by Britain twenty years ago, the population of Canada would have been 20,000,000.

A point of divergence between the men who support the proposed tariff and those who propose it is the alleged taxation of foods. The Montreal men seem to think that the producer pays the duty on wheat and flour, and the producer (or the United States exporter), who will be affected, claims that the consumer pays it. Mr. Chamberlain seems to settle the matter by admitting that the tax on bread will be so light it will be hardly perceptible, and he has illustrated loaves which are so much alike that at a distance the difference between them is not apparent.

A subject of much importance is the capacity of Canada to meet the demands of Great Britain in the supply of food. The North-West is said to have 40,000 farmers, and they raised this year over 60,000,000 bushels of wheat. How much does Britain require? One estimate, that of a Montreal man, is 170,000,000 bushels. Another, an American, says that the United Kingdom actually imported wheat to the extent of over 200,000,000 bushels in 1902, and this year the quantity will be larger. The surplus of Canada, India and Australia, will not be more than 80,000,000 which would have 120,000,000 bushels outside the zollverein and subject to the tax.

"Now," says the writer in the Evening Post, "statesmen are clever at juggling figures, but practical men of business, especially those who are familiar with the details of the flour and grain trade, and no ghost risen from the grave can prove that British bread-eaters would this year be out of pocket not less than $8,000,000 if Mr. Chamberlain's preferential trade idea were today a consummated fact."

But the preferential tariff would work out the desired result; at least so it is claimed. The 40,000 farmers raise at present over 60,000,000 bushels of wheat in Canada. The number in five years might be increased to 80,000,00000, and the product of the soil to twice what it is now, or perhaps 125,000,000 bushels. The export of Canadian wheat will gradually and even quickly revive, and under the preference the tax will disappear. That is the theory, and it is popular for the present.

ASSAILING MR. STRATTON

The Times quite agrees with Mr. J. H. Burnham in his remarks at the banquet to Prof. Hutton the other day. Mr. Burnham stated that "the constituents of Mr. Stratton felt that the course of abuse to which he had been subjected had about reached the limit and he felt, as he was sure all Mr. Stratton's constituents felt, that it was time the Conservative party brought forward some policy that would be more creditable to it than that of abuse and affidavit producing, which had recently characterized it."

This from a leading Conservative should serve as a pointer to the party leaders to change their tactics. If the party have no other policy than one of abuse. There is little use talking about a change for the better in Ontario. Any change would be in the other direction.

Bad Complexion

Has Its Cause in Impure or Impoverished Blood

To have a soft, smooth skin, free from eruptions and unsightly blemishes, the blood must be maintained in a healthy condition.

Face powders, lotions and other toilet preparations may, for a short time cover up a multitude of wrongs in the blood, but they cannot remove these red, disfiguring pimples that are the bane of so many young ladies' lives.

Why not use Ferrozone? It is an unfailing cure for the worst kind of skin disease, the most effective of all blood purifiers, and cures bad complexion by removing its cause.

Ferrozone invigorates and purifies enfeebled blood. Makes it strong rich and red. Ferrozone puts power into the blood to nourish the body and all its organs. It is a regulator of acknowledged merit, and is quite unrivalled as a remedy for Female disorders.

Mrs. Shanly, of Pittsburg, Ont., says: "For five years my face was disfigured by raw, bleeding eruptions that resisted all treatment.

"Three Kingston doctors did their best for me and when they acknowledged themselves beaten, I tried Ferrozone. The first box helped me quite a little, and by the time I had used six boxes I was cured. Ferrozone is a fine remedy for womanly disorders of all kinds and I can highly recommend it." (Signed), Mary Shanly.

Growing girls, women, men, in fact everybody can derive untold benefit from Ferrozone. It is a tonic for the blood, brain and nerves and worth its price ten times over to everyone who uses it.

Three weeks' treatment contained in a box of sixty-three chocolate coated tablets, cost 50c., or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all Druggists, and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

"Coming out [illegible] cloak, and looked like a spectre. I was frightened, and should have turned away, and hurried back to the station had not the sounds from upstairs reached me."

"What sounds?"

"My father's groans, and what seemed to me the utterance of my name."

Mr. Monckton had dropped her hand, and he stood staring into the fire, his brow puckered, his face very pale.

"Beyond a doubt it was your name," he said, more to himself than to her. "Poor Sir Felix!

The girl's words had confirmed the suspicion he had been all this time trying to expel from his mind.

What more likely than that Gretchen should have taken the life of the feeble man she could never have loved?

The lawyer was shrewd enough to know she had married only for wealth and a title.

He remembered his client's fear of her passion, his want of confidence in her concerning his daughter—the will he had made stating that he had been duped into a marriage with the woman who now bore his name—the will in which he bequeathed Drayton Court and the bulk of his wealth to Rosalie.

Who but Gretchen could have desired his death and the destruction of that will?

"You should have told me this before," Mr. Monckton said, turning slowly to Rosalie. "It was most important I should have known Lady Errol was within hearing distance at the time Sir Felix was calling out for help."

"I was so horrified at what I saw afterwards, I could not remember anything that had happened before."

"Did Lady Errol see you as she passed by?" he asked.

"No, she went straight on, looking neither to the right nor to the left. Before I had recovered from the surprise of her appearance, she had hurried into a thicket—and in the moments that followed I lost all memory of how I had seen her."

Mr. Monckton lapsed again into silence.

Since his entrance, Rosalie had not asked him to be seated.

Now, for the first time, she became conscious that she had kept him standing during their conversation, and, eager to atone for any thoughtlessness on her part, she wheeled an armchair near the fire, and begged him to sit down.

"Thank you," he said, smiling into her sweet face, "but I must see you seated first. Will you have this chair, or shall I get you another?"

"I shall be more comfortable here," she answered. "This has always been my favorite place."

"What a child you are!" he exclaimed, thinking how beautiful she was in the warm fire-glow, despite the pallor of her face.

"Do I seem so to you?" she said, raising her great eyes to his. "Yet, sometimes I thing it must be a very long time since I was a child."

"It does not appear to me that you can be anything else," he laughed. "But," his face growing grave again, "I have something important to say to you, Miss Errol. Will you give me a patient hearing?"

"That depends upon what the subject is to be. If a pleasant one, of course I shall listen with patience—if it is only a lecture——"

"Don't finish the sentence, Miss Errol, or I shall not have courage to commence. I am going to make you very angry with me. I am going to ask you not to perform any more in Jim West's circus."

She turned her gaze away from him and frowned.

"It is no use," she said, something of the old rebellious spirit rising within her. "I should feel like a traitress if I abandoned my best friends at a time when they need me most."

"I fail to understand you," he retorted, with a touch of impatience. "Mrs. West is sensible enough to see that you can no longer fill the same position, and I am sure her husband would not wish to bind you over to a life so far beneath your station."

Her eyes flashed angrily, and she gave the fire a savage little thrust with the poker.

"It is not beneath my station," she exclaimed; "I am treated like a queen—everybody pays me homage—everybody."

He had made up his mind to do all in his power to prevent her from following a life so full of danger.

In a way, he felt himself to be her guardian, and he could not bear to think of the horrible risk she ran while going through that performance with the lions.

"You must give me the privilege of a friend, and allow me to address you without restraint," he said. "The life you have been leading—in however proud a position it may place you—is hardly a fit career for the daughter of Sir Felix. It was his wish you should relinquish the profession to which you hold yourself bound."

"And what would become of the circus?" she asked, looking up at him with her bright, brave eyes—the eyes whose pleading he found it so hard to fight against.

"The circus would sustain a loss; but it would recover from the shock in time, and, to my fancy, lion-taming is not a pleasant pastime."

"It delights the million!" she retorted, flashing her angry eyes upon him. "Impolite as it may seem, we cannot give way to the prejudice of one!"

"I am sorry I have offended you," he said, "I cannot do more than offer the advice I know is for your good."

"I hate advice! It always comes when it is not needed, and raises a storm of opposition. It is impossible for me to give up the circus without committing a great breach of confidence, for which I should be ever afterwards ashamed. There has been enough trouble in the ring lately; a little more, and the circus would be broken up, and Jim's ruin completed."

"Could not somebody else be found to fill your place?" Mr. Monckton demanded, determined not to give in without an effort. "Surely there are others, who for a high price, would go through what you do night after night?"

"Who would pay that price?" she asked.

"I would, and with much pleasure, to keep you from that life of hazard."

"Do you care so much about what may become of me?" she said, with sudden wistfulness in her voice.

"I do, indeed, Miss Errol," he answered, gravely. "Will you relieve my mind of a load by promising to bid farewell to the ring?"

"I cannot—I cannot! It is my life. What am I but the Rose of the Ring? Not even my father's name can make me more than what I am. Ask anything of me, except to give up the life I love."

TROOPS OUTWITTED

Were Led Into an Ambush by a Moor Prisoner

Manila, November 25—A fight lasting five days, and as the result of which 300 Moros were killed and as many carried off dead or wounded, has taken place in Jolo between General Leonard Wood's command and the insurgents. Major H. L. Scott, of the 14th Cavalry, and five privates, were wounded.

General Wood landed near Seit Lake in Jolo, on November 12. The Moros were soon located and fighting began immediately and continued until November 17th.

Major Scott was taking Panglima Hassen, the Moro leader, who had been taken a prisoner, to Jolo. While on route Hassen asked to be allowed to see his family. His appeal was granted and he thereupon led Major Scott into an ambush, where the American detachment was fired upon. Major Scott was wounded in both hands. Hassen succeeded in escaping during this unexpected attack, but it is supposed he was killed the following day.

The fighting took place in a country covered with swamps and rocks. The Moros were driven across the country from Siet Lake to the town in which Hassen made his headquarters, and where it was reported the Moros were 2,000 strong.

The rebel position was attacked in the flank by the American troops, who occupied the town and inflicted a loss of fifty killed on the Moros. Hassen, with a small party, surrendered. The rest of the Moros went into the swamps, out of which they were driven on November 16, leaving 76 dead behind them. On November 17th the American forces renewed the attack on the remaining Moros, of whom forty more were killed. The rebel forces have been literally destroyed by the operations, and General Wood says the indications are that there will be no extension of the uprising, which was handled without difficulty.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 200 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry-placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

GOLD——$80,000,000——GOLD

—If you want to make a GOLD DIVIDEND PAYING INVESTMENT—

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] to [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of [illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends have been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of

STOCK MARKETS

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25—There was a quiet trade in the grain pit, but this was considered natural in view of the closing of the board to-morrow. The Armour element made certain bullish expressions regarding the May option and leading interests in the crowd were reported to hold good lines of the preferred delivery; there was some fresh talk of manipulation in December, but in view of the holiday such talk was dismissed. The cash business was light and there were fair offerings. The corn market was a narrow affair, the country offerings were moderate while the cash demand was slow. The crop news was without feature. The oats market continued to proceed without independent feature. The cash trade was slow and the country offerings continued slow.

New York, Nov. 25—Uncertain fluctuations in the industrial securities and the establishment of new low records in a number of cases served to bring about considerable liquidation. The railroad news continued to command favorable comment, the statements of earnings being quite satisfactory. The bank statement bid fair a substantial gain. The late market was rather narrow and feverish. The market for outside stocks today was dull and steady.

It is expected that an effort will be made to rally the railroad stocks this morning and this will have the assistance of a strong London market, and a good buying demand for all railroad stocks we have to sell. Any improvement however is not likely to hold as there will be a renewal of attack upon industrials and the probability of a sharp advance in call money will discourage any disposition to buy during the remainder of the week. The bears are favored by the industrial developments; the fact that this is a broken week and that the money market will be unsettled until after the end of the month. We look for a further decline in Corn Products, A.L.O., preferred, A.F., C.F.I and Copper and on any of the railroads profit taking will check the advance. There are bear points on P.A. St. P., M.O.P. and U.S.q. and there is reason to expect a drive on these stocks. The London market for American securities is active and strong and London will be a buyer of our market during the early trading.

Industrials continue in poor favor but are heavily oversold. It is intimated unofficially that dividends may be reduced on Republic preferred. S.P. is a purchase; S.P. is much nearer a dividend than the price indicates, Buy B.R.T. on recessions, insiders are absorbing it. Buy L.N. and S.R.

SHOT AT THE BANKER

London, Nov. 24.—A murderous attack was made to-day on Mr. Graham, the secretary of the Bank of England, by an individual who is supposed to be insane. He fired four shots in rapid succession, but Mr. Graham was not hurt. A fire hose had to be used before the would be assassin could be disarmed and taken to the police station.

The lunatic asked to see the Manager of the Bank of England, and was shown into a reception room, where Mr. Graham and others were gathered. The stranger took up a position in front of the fire, pulled out a revolver and commenced shooting. "Come on, you coward," he cried at Mr. Graham. He was finally overpowered by the attendants.

Fired with Fatal Effect

Chicago, Nov. 25—Daniel E. Lang, foreman of the press room of the R. R. Donnelly and Sons, was attacked by a mob of striking pressmen and in defending himself, killed Emil Reichowe, one of his assailants, with a bullet through the forehead. Lang is not a union man, but a member of an organization which the Franklin union, an independent organization, declares has forced its members out of their places. The mob had beaten Lang badly before he killed Reichowe.

MOTHER FIRES AT SON

Mrs. Galloway of Toronto Shoots her Fourteen Year Old Son

Toronto, Nov. 24.—Mrs. J. W. Galloway, Quartermaster-Sergeant in the Royal Canadian Regiment, was arrested this afternoon, charged with shooting with intent to kill her fourteen-year-old son.

It was said by the police this afternoon and the shooting occurred on Monday of last week, and has been kept quiet since, because no one knew of it outside the family, and the husband and father was in a quandary over the shooting and that trouble with his wife.

The lad was shot through the mouth, the bullet came out at the cheek, and the shot was fired at close range.

Mrs. Galloway is reported by her husband to the police to have been drinking heavily, and to have been on a long debauch before she became so frenzied as to commit the deed.

It is now recalled by the police that a woman corresponding to the accused called at the Morality Department in the past summer asking for the possession of her children. She stated that she lived in Dundas street, and her husband was a quartermaster then in camp with the soldiers at Niagara. Her children had been taken from her by her husband during his absence in camp and place in the care of their grandmother. The cause assigned for this was that the wife had been drinking.

It seems that recently she again became deranged through the effects of liquor, and the shooting of her son is the result.

Quartermaster-Sergeant Galloway has been conferring with the authorities, and to-day a warrant was sworn out at the instance of Inspector Archibald, for her arrest, one object being to keep her from doing further harm.

Quartermaster-Sergt. Galloway is one of the most popular officers in the Canadian regulars, and is widely known all over the country. He has a host of friends in Toronto, and the family will have general sympathy.

Mrs. Galloway was brought to Police headquarters, and is in charge of the Mrs. Galloway is a cheerful, rosy-cheeked woman of the English type, and the last person in the world one would suspect of committing such a deed as is charged against her.

IS FOND OF FREAKS

New York, Nov. 25—Driven into armed resistance, Mrs. Isabel C. Miller is today endeavoring to save her collection of freak plants and pets from being sold as ordered by a New Jersey Court. Mrs. Miller's home is on Rip Van Winkle farm at Saddle River, N.J., formerly owned by Joseph Jefferson, and it is stocked with with a freak assortment, which she is unable to support. Mrs. Miller is a sister of the late Jay Gould. She has an income of $6,000 a month from the Gould estate, but this is not sufficient to keep her big collection of freaks, which includes one bald-headed eagle, six donkeys, four jackasses, ten horses and seventy-six head of queer cattle. Mrs. Miller mortgaged her farm and recently the deputy sheriffs attempted to seize it. Mrs. Miller drove them off with a scythe and scissors. It is rumored that the posse may surround the woman and keep her guarded until the sale is completed.

He Is Very Kind

Washington, D.C., November 25.—In the Senate today Senator Hale, of Maine, in dissenting and condemning a resolution that was introduced inviting Cuba to become a part of the United States, said: "We do not invite countries and people to become a part of the country. I have no doubt but that men sitting within the sound of my voice will live to see the day when Canada will be a part of the United States, especially if the most adventurous of British statesmen persist in building up a preferential tariff scheme that is bound to result in a tariff war, but meantime I shall not ask Canada to join us."

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money, "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO., Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

Graveyard Coughs and Colds

Cured Quickly by Catarrhozone

A cough or cold this season of the year paves the way for pneumonia or consumption. The best remedy is "Catarrhozone." It cures a cough in five minutes, and colds cannot exist but a few hours where it is used. Mrs. H. L. Clinnowith, residing at Glendive, Montana, was worried by a "graveyard" cough. In the following letter she tells how Catarrhozone cured her in one week;

"I had a bad cough for several months last fall that settled on my lungs. I was worried very much to think that nothing I used could shake it off, but reading in the Halifax "Presbyterian Witness" of the wonderful cures Catarrhozone was effecting, I decided to try it. The irritability and soreness was taken out of my throat in a few days, and in less than one week it entirely cured my cough.

"It is with great gratitude and pleasure that I recommend Catarrhozone. I am sure it will benefit and cure all who use it."

(Signed) Mrs. H. L. Clinnowith.

The reason Catarrhozone always cures is that it goes right to the sore spot, which it heals and makes well quickly. It is antiseptic and destroys disease germs in every part of the system. For Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, nothing compares with Catarrhozone. It is very simple to use, contains no injurious drugs, and is warranted perfectly safe to use. Catarrhozone Inhaler is suitable to use in a street car, theatre, church any place at any time. Complete outfit costs but $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure or your money back. Trial size, 25c., sold by druggists, or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston, Ont.

The Husband Responsible

A divisional court in Toronto has upheld the decision of Judge Street, in an interesting Peterborough case, Travis vs. Hales. There are two defendants husband and wife. The plaintiff's action was for damages for slander by the wife. The husband contended that he was not responsible but both courts hold that a husband is responsible for the acts done by his wife.

WEDDING BELLS

Mr. Chas. Hopkins of North Monaghan, Weds Miss May Akey, of Town

Yesterday afternoon at two o'clock a very pretty house wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. Henry Akey, 471 Sherbrooke street, when his eldest daughter, Miss Mary, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Hopkins, of North Monaghan.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, in the presence of the immediate relatives. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Jas. Akey, and attended during the ceremony by Miss Jennie Hopkins, sister of the groom.

The bride wore a handsome travelling suit of navy blue lady's cloth trimmed with white satin, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid was similarly attired, and carried pink carnations. Mr. Chas. Akey, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After a dainty wedding breakfast had been partaken of the happy young couple left on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for Toronto, and points west. On their return they will take up residence at 471 Sherbrooke street.

WEDDED IN KEENE

Nuptials of Miss Lottie M. Bell of Keene and Mr. M. J. Galvin, Peterborough

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. John's church, Keene, yesterday morning at 9.30, when Miss Lottie M. Bell, second daughter of Mr. Chas. Bell, of Keene, was united in marriage to M. J. Galvin, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Phelan, in the presence of a very large number of the friends of the happy young couple.

The bride was attired in an elegant costume of white corduroy trimmed with mink fur and lace, with picture hat to match. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lillie M. Bell, who wore a handsome suit of light tweed with Persian trimmings, and garnet picture hat to match. Mr. John R. Walsh, of Hastings, supported the groom.

The bride was the recipients of many valuable presents, including a black Persian lamb coat with mink trimmings, the gift of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Galvin left on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for Toronto, where they will reside during the winter months.

The bride is quite prominent in the musical circles of Peterborough, and is a talented violinist. Many warm friends wish the happy young couple all happiness and prosperity in their journey through life.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its penetrative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

A Ghost that Came in the Mayflower is sure to attract the attention of every New England woman and with pride in her heart she marvels that it is so strong and well preserved. This is due to the fact that it has received prompt attention when any signs of weakening were shown.

So the women of to-day may keep her strength and preserve her good looks if she gives immediate attention to the first symptoms of any womanly weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promptly cures disease and restores strength to all women who are weakened by any womanly disease and are run down by maternal and household cares.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Stella Johnson, of 18 Brady St., Dayton, Ohio, writes: "I was troubled with severe pains every month when I wrote to you for advice. After following your directions, I am happy to say that after five years of untold suffering I have not had any pains since first using your 'Favorite Prescription.' I thank God and Dr. R. V. Pierce for the health I now enjoy. I shall urge other women who suffer as I did to use your medicine."

Take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets instead of any other laxative.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

RUSSIAN-FRENCH ALLIANCE IS LIKELY SOON TO DISSOLVE

King Edward's Personal Power in the East

WAR IN THE EAST

A New Grouping of the Powers Completed

London, Nov. 27—The prospect of war between Russia and Japan is increasing rather than diminishing. There is no denying the fact that that conditions in the far east are strained to the breaking point. Japan is becoming impatient, and unless the Mikado's Government takes action to force Russia to terms, a serious condition of affairs will exist in the little Empire.

It may be said in general terms that the rapprochement now existing between Italy and Great Britain is much closer and more friendly than that between Italy and the other members of the Triple Alliance, although not imposing the same technical treaty obligations. The same process of disintegration, if one may use that term, has taken place in the French relations with Russia to an extent much more serious than is yet apparent.

It would be no exaggeration to say that the Franco-Russian Alliance is in danger of dissolution in the near future. The bonds uniting the two countries have become more technical than sentimental. There is an equal probability of divorce under such conditions in a national alliance as in matrimonial ones. It becomes clear almost daily that as the Dual and Triple alliances lose their most important element of cohesion the ties become stronger between Italy, France and Great Britain.

This new unratified grouping of powers is partially offset by the understanding between Russia and Germany. It is argued by those who have studied the rival interests of the two countries that it will be impossible for this combination to become general or permanent, because the commercial relations of Russia and Germany cannot be harmonized. The German agrarian conditions are almost as bad as the Russian, and it will be impossible to arrange a commercial treaty between the two powers.

A curious incident has come to the knowledge of the correspondent which has perhaps some bearing on the great progress of the regrouping of the Powers which is now going on. Early in September Emperor William wrote a personal letter to King Edward suggesting that he would like to visit him in England during the month of November. The writer does not pretend to know what reply King Edward sent to this communication, but, at all events, the Kaiser permitted it to become known in certain diplomatic circles throught one of his intimates that he had made this suggestion to his royal uncle. It is possible that the Kaiser's recent illness accounts for the fact that he did not make the visit.

HAS TURNED TO CANADA

Canada Sends as Much Iron to England as Any Four Other Powers

Mr. Chamberlain Kicks Sugar Out of England and Takes Bountied Iron in London, Nov. 26.—Earl Crewe, speaking at Warrington, said that Canada dumped more steel on our shores than any othe rcountry. The bounty enabled Canada to send us 190,000 tons of pig iron during the last three years. Germany, Holland, Belgium, and the United States in the same period sent only 124,000 tons. The Leader, in a cartoon, represents Mr. Chamberlain kicking bounty-fed sugar out of a room. A footnote says: "Mr. Chamberlain rejoices in having turned bounty-fed sugar out of the country, and in the meantime Canadian iron, on which heavy bounties are paid, is extensively imported."

IS THIS PLAY SQUARE ?

London, Nov. 26.—Referring to the German Government's alleged restriction of emigration from Austria and Russia to steamers of the Hamburg-American and Norddeutscher Lloyd lines by turning back emigrants going to ports used by other companies boats, an inquiry on behalf of the British lines is being made at Saxony.

A prominent steamship manager says that emigrants from Russia and Austria are not turned back unless their tickets for Canada or the United States read via either of the lines mentioned, but the German lines induce emigrants to use their route by giving privileges of various kinds which other lines do not offer

SULTAN ILL WITH CANCER

Rejects the Advice of a Doctor who Advises Operation

Vienna, Nov. 27—The sultan of Turkey has a cancer on his intestines, but there is no immediate danger, and he can drag on a painful existence for two or three years. His aggravated condition recently, brought on by extra exertions, caused him to call in a Munich doctor, who advised him to have an operation performed. Abdul Hamid refused to do so.

WILL STOP POACHING

Yankee Fishermen to be Rounded Up at Once

Vancouver, B.C., November 27 — The Dominion Government cruiser Kestrel sailed yesterday at daybreak for Port Simpson to guard Canadian waters against poachers from the United States who fish for Halibut in Dundas Channel, and carry them to Katchikan. Thirty-three Seattle halibut fishing boats steamers and schooners are working out of Katchican this winter, and half of them are illegally stealing fish out of Canadian waters.

HUNDREDS DROWN IN TERRIBLE FLOOD

Half of the Town of Vanizambadi in India is Destroyed

London, Nov. 27—A telegram has been received at the Indian office from the viceroy of India, Lord Curzon, saying that, according to reports received at Madras, a flood in the Palar River valley Nov. 12 destroyed half the town of Vanizambadi, in the Salem district. Two hundred persons were drowned. The floods, the telegram says, have now subsided.

ACCUSES GREAT BRITAIN OF PLOTS

M. Deschanel Thinks England Seeks to Embroil France and United States

Paris, Nov. 27.—In the presence of a crowded Chamber today Deputy Deschanel, Republican, formerly President of the Chamber, discussed the Foreign Office budget. He said it was the policy of Great Britain to create issues between the United States, Germany and France, which must tail in the eventual rapprochment of Great Britain and Russia, Adverting to Morocco affairs, M. Deschanel said that France had no intention to make war upon that country. France wishes not the partition of Morocco and she has no desire to conquer Siam. There exists no question which cannot besettled by diplomacy or arbitration. It would be a crime, he added, to seek to raise issues between Great Britain and France. The alliance with Russia must, however, be the corner stone of French policy. The speaker made no reference to Panaima.

SHOULD VISIT CANADA.

London, Nov. 26.—At a meeting of the Dudley Chamber of Commerce, Mr. F. W. Cook, who recently toured Canada, said: "If the Canadian market is to be won, the small details of manufacture must be closely studied. Either the principals of British manufacturing houses or their trusted representatives should visit Canada. Local agents are of little or no use, and sometimes betrayed the confidence of the firms they represented."

CRAZED BY BITE OF DOG.

London, Nov. 26.—The man Robinson, who attempted to shoot a director of the Bank of England, for six years prospected in the Yukon territory. While in Dawson he was bitten by a dog, the effects of which have always remained.

EXPOSE STANDARD OIL.

New York, Nov. 26—Rumors of the defeat of an effort made by the Standard Oil-Amalgamated Copper Combine to bring about a compromise in the war with the Montana Ore Purchasing Company, represented by F. August Heinze and John MacGinniss, have been prevalent. Leaders of both factions are assembled in this city, but no settlement has been effected, and the war will continue.

After a meeting of the directors of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company Mr. MacGinniss said:

"We will continue the fight against the Standard Oil control of copper. I wish to deny emphatically that the interests I represent have participated in any negotiations looking to a truce.

"The truce is that the Standard Oil interests are employing these suits to cover up matters in connection with the Minnie Healey suit. This suit is not before the United States Supreme Court, and through it we expect to show that the Standard Oil employed wholesale bribery.'

Paris, Nov. 26.—Consumption is increasing in France at a rate which causes the authorities serious alarm. Recent statistics place the annual death rate from tuberculosis in France at 150,000. Jean Bourgeois president of the Chamber of DeDeputies, recently had the matter brought home to him by the death of a grown daughter from consumption, and he is using all his influence for the establishing and equipping of institutions for the prevention of the disease. Several meetings have been held of Government leaders prominent lawyers, physicians, financiers leading citizens generally, to see what can be done about it. Commissioners have been appointed to examine the food, habitation, personal contact, and the danger of contagion in factories and other places where large numbers of people daily assemble.

Mre important than all, an effort is to be made to educate the masses to realize and avoid the danger. It will be a hard task, for there are no more obstinate, narrow-minded, prejudiced, conservative people anywhere than the French working classes. The placards forbidding expectoration in omnibuses and public places are heeded only by the people who are too well-bred to expectorate, anyhow. The sanitation in the houses is next to impossible; a man is master of his house, and all measures of hygiene are trated with absolute indifference. They say in Brittany—and apparently believe elsewhere—that dirt and filth keep warm. A house that is kept scrubbed and scrapped clean needs much more fire than one in which time has accumulated considerable dirt.

WILL VISIT SCOTLAND

Ottawa, November 27 — Hon. James Sutherland contemplates a trip to Great Britain for a month or so. He may be accompanied by Sir Charles Ross, and if so, will spend some time at the latter's country seat in Scotland

Yes; I was engaged to the same man the whole summer.—Yonkers Statesman.

Mr. Kidder—Ah, how-der-do, Doctor! If you have a few minutes to spare, I wish you would come over to my house and chloroform my youngest boy.
Dr. Price—What is the matter with the lad?
Mr. Kidder—Oh, his mother wants to comb his hair.—Harper's Bazar.

"Yes," said the dentist, "to insure painless extraction you'll have to take gas, and that's fifty cents extra."
"Oh!" said the farmer, "I guess the old way'll be best; never mind no gas."
"You're a brave man."
"Oh! It ain't me that's got the tooth; It's my wife."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Carrie—I'm sure you misjudge Mr. Sweetser, papa. He is a man of great ambitions. You should hear him tell of the things he is going to do.
Carrie's Papa—And I suppose I'm one of 'em, but I reckon he'll find it harder to accomplish than he fancies it is.—Boston Transcript.

"Isn't it strange," remarked Mrs. Billins to her husband, "that I can never get a good bargain in shoes?"
"You did once," said her husband.
"When was that?"
"When you got me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Do you take this woman for better or for worse"—began the clergyman, but before he could proceed further he was interrupted:
"It's too early to tell yet," answered the groom; "you'll have to give me time, sir."—Boston Post.

Who practises singing all day;
The neighbors declare her a nuisance,
And wish they could drive her away.
I think that she sings like an angel,
And hope she will stay in the place—
No, pardon me, I'm not her sweetheart,
But simply—the girl in the case.

The War Office is waking up. We were scandalously short of "materiel" when the Boer war broke out, but that is now being rectified with all energy. A Parliamentary paper issued yesterday shows that during the past year the War Office entered into the following contract abroad, being presumably unable to obtain at home the article so urgently required:—

A Philadelphia woman was recently breaking in a new servant, a Swedish girl, who had not been very long in this country. She was fortunate enough to own a house which had a bath-room for the exclusive use of the servants.

"Vat! Git in dat place?"
"Why, certainly."
"Vit water in it?"
"Of course."

The British Dealers Anxious for Canadian Poultry

Ottawa, November 27 — The Department of Agriculture has received a number of communications from British dealers who desire to purchase Canadian poultry. One of the dealers, Mr. Blackburn, wholesale fish market, Manchester, states that he would like to handle 23,000 cases of chickens per week. The prices offered, according to Mr. Hare, chief of the Dominion Poultry Division, offer substantial inducements to Canadian exporting firms to ship poultry to Great Britain.

Carlist Deputy Objects to Recognition of St Louis Exposition

Madrid, Nov. 27—In the chamber of deputies today a Carlist member interpolated the government in reference to the sending of the cruiser Rio de la Plata to New Orleans in connection with the St. Louis exposition, reminding the chamber of the "wrongs which Spain had suffered at the hands of the United States.

Senor Cobain, replying to the interpellation, said that the conclusion of a treaty of peace and amity had reestablished the diplomatic relations of the two countries, and as a friendly nation, the United States had invited Spain to participate in a festival instituted in the cause of civilization.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS ENTER SAN DOMINGO

Capital of the Republic of Santo Domingo has Fallen

PRESIDENT LEAVES CITY

The Jiminez Faction Will Probably Have the Upper Hand for a Time

Cape Haytein, November 27—Despatches received here from Puerto Plata, say that the city of San Domingo was surrendered to the revolutionists on Tuesday, and that President Wos y Gil and his Ministers took refuge on board a German warship. The despatches further say that great enthusiasm prevails throughout the country.

CONFIRMED AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, D.C., November 25—In a cablegram received here yesterday from United States Minister Powell, dated Santo Domingo, November 23, he announces that the President of Santo Domingo has agreed to surrender the city to the revolutionists. The articles of capitulation are being drawn up. The surrender, the cablegram said, will occur on Tuesday.

ABOUT THE FALLEN CITY

San Domingo, the capital of the Dominican Republic, is a town of 16,000 population. The Dominican Republic comprises what was formerly the Spanish portion of the island of Santo Domingo, which next to Cuba, is the largest of the West India Islands, containing 29,836 square miles, of which the Dominican Republic comprises about 20,596 square miles, with an estimated population of 580,000. The western, or French portion of the island constitutes the Republic of Hayti. San Domingo is the oldest settlement of European origin in America, having been founded in 1494 by Bartholomew Columbus. The capital contains the cathedral and Columbus' residence.

The island has been a hotbed of revolutions. General Jiminiz, a former president of the republic, is the leading spirit in the present insurrection. As already outlined in these despatches, the present rebellion has its origin in the refusal of President Wos y Gil to appoint General Morales, Governor of Puerto Plata, to a Cabinet position. Morales, disgruntled at this, put himself in communication with General Jiminez, and turned the town of Puerto Plata over to the Jiminez interests.

The revolt began in October, and on October 26, a provisional government, under the presidency of General Morales was established at Puerto Plata. From other sources the cause of the revolution was said to be due to the numerous charges of custom house frauds and alleged prevarications of the Ministers of War and Finance.

An official manifesto issued by the insurgents October 24 accused President Wos y Gil of arbitrariness, jealousy, suspicion and unjust persecutions, and said that the prisons of the capital were filled, and that many persons had been exiled. The revenues, it continued, had decreased in three months 11,000,000, although since February nothing had been paid on the country's debt. The manifesto made many other charges of fiscal irregularities. It also announced that the revolution was non-partisan, but it was "the united intention to liberate the republic from the wretches who are desirous of its discredit, ruin and death."

During the revolution the rebels have taken a number of towns, and have now succeeded in capturing the capital, which will, no doubt, lead to the Jiminez interests again securing the upper hand in the republic.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26—Today's bulletin regarding the condition of the Czarina says: "The empress slept at intervals during the night. Her temperature this morning was 98.7, pulse 68. The process of local inflammation is exceedingly slow in development. Her majesty's subjective condition is satisfactory and her appetite is improved.

PETERBORO AND ASHBURNHAM VOTE FOR UNION

By a Majority of 168 in Town and 20 in the Village--Ashburnham's Sewerage By-law was Also Carried

Public opinion—or at least the opinion of as many as chose to sufficiently interest themselves to the extent of recording their votes—decided yesterday, both in the Town and Village, that the long dreamed of scheme of "Greater Peterboro" should at last be consummated in the amalgamation of the Village of Ashburnham and the Town of Peterboro. In town 378 qualified electors—some 78 more than nine years ago when a similar vote was taken—voted for or against the scheme, resulting in a majority of 168 for the Union.

Considering that a referendum vote was called for in town, the number of ballots cast was disappointingly small. 273 voted for amalgamation and 105 against it. But one polling subdivision gave a majority in the negative, and that was No. 1, the count for which showed a majority of two against closer municipal relationship with the village across the water.

In Ashburnham more interest was manifested in the question of Union, especially so when we take into consideration the fact that only freeholders were allowed to vote. 177 ratepayers cast their ballots, which resulted in a majority of 20 in favor of Union. Neither of the two wards gave a majority against the proposition.

GREATER PETERBORO.

The result of yesterday's voting will be than in January, 1904, Peterboro will take over an an increased population—that of Ashburnham—of 1,781, which, with our present rating of 11,807, will then give us a population all told of 13,588. The village will be incorporated with the town as another ward, and if the ball is kept rolling, Ontario will in the near future boast of one more city, yclept "Peterboro"—without perhaps the unsightly "ugh."

THE SEWERAGE BYLAW.

The ratepayers of the Village also voted yesterday on a bylaw providing for the construction of an outfall sewer from Elizabeth street to the lake. 168 votes were cast for or against this scheme, resulting in a majority of 17 for the bylaw. As was expected, the Nort Ward voted against the project in a majority of seven.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of Young Men's Christian Association Held Last Night

The annual meeting of the officers and directors of the Young Men's Christian Association was held last night in the Association building, the President, Mr. Wm. Madill, being in the chair.

The report of the Boy's Department was read by Mr. Mann, in the absence of Mr. John Laing, and showed very progressive work in this branch. There is, however, great room for improvement in this department. The total number of boys enrolled is 114.

The report of the General Secretary was very encouraging, and showed the great increase taken in this work by the officers and directors. The report showed a total membership of 183, a large increase over last year.

The report of the Physical Department was also most encouraging, and showed the great interest taken in the work by the Physical Director, and also by the boys themselves. Owing to the departure of Mr. Ayers this department was set back somewhat, but is coming up again under the good management of Mr. Aplin.

The Treasurer's report showed up well also; all accounts paid and a small balance.

The report of the Nominating committee was read, and recommended the following members for officers for 1903-04:

President—Col. E. B. Edwards.
1st Vice-President—J. C. Shook.
2nd Vice-President—J. J. Howden.
Treasurer—W. D. Campbell.
Directors—term to expire 1906—R. R. Harding, A. E. Dixon, J. C. Shook, E. B. Edwards, C. D. Macfarlane, W. D. Campbell.
Director to take the place of F. D. Kerr, resigned, J. J. Howden.

A few encouraging remarks were made by Mr. Edwards, the new president, and also Mr. Harding, regarding the encouraging work done by the Peterborough Association.

DISLIKES THE RULE OF THE BRITISH CABINET

Boston, Nov. 26.—"The Chamberlain plan of protection and preferential tariffs and how it may affect Canada and the United States," was the subject of discussion last night at the annual meeting and banquet of the Canadian Club at the Hotel Vendome.

John A. Cooper, of Toronto, the first speaker, gave an historical review of the relations of the Imperial Government with Canada, and their bearing on trade policies. He said the Canadians had no desire to break away from their relation to the Crown, but wished to end their subjection to the British Cabinet. Mr. Cooper stated that the colonies wanted representation in the Imperial Council.

E. N. Foss, of Boston, declared that any statement of Imperial Federation which excludes the United States can have only limited success.

W. F. Cockshutt, of Brantford, Ont., said that instead of reciprocity with Canada it would be better to wait until Mr. Chamberlain's policy was adopted and formulate a reciprocity treaty with the British Empire.

JAPAN TO CREATE A TOBACCO TRUST

The Government Will Appropriate $18,000,000 to Buy Out All the Dealers.

London, Nov. 26.—A despatch from Tokio says that the Government will introduce in the Diet next month a bill creating a tobacco monopoly, somewhat similar to the Government monopoly in France. It is proposed to appropriate $18,000,000 to compulsorily buy out the manufacturers at the appraised value of their lands, buildings, stocks, and machinery, while only a year's income will be paid for their good-will. Inasmuch as there are 6,000 manufacturers and 700 leaf tobacco dealers in Japan owning 17,530 machines, traders regard the appropriation as absurdly inadequate.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 28, 1903

EVIDENCE OF DEPRESSION

One paper, the North-American, of Philadelphia, contains in one page a remarkable record of labor dullness and labor depression. It is notable as above the daily record of industrial announcements and as part of the many indications of that business experience which is to be so much dreaded.

There is, first, a twenty per cent. reduction for the iron, steel and tin workers. This is not confined to the wages of the men with variable occupation. All the salaried men will suffer. It is figured that the United States Steel Corporation will save by this economy, during the next year, many millions of dollars.

A thousand men in the service of the Sharon coal and Limestone company, a subsidiary concern of the United States Steel Trust, are idle, because of the closing of the mines. None of the mills of the steel corporation in Sharon are working except the tin plant. The miners are said to be in a destitute condition.

By the closing down of several blast furnaces in the Shenandoah Valley about 1,500 furnace workers are idle. The pig iron production is being reduced forty per cent., and as a consequence many of the furnaces are being put out of blast.

There is to be a reduction of 50 cents a ton in the wages of the puddlers at the Penn iron works. The cut is regarded by the men as excessive, but it will go through.

The Lehigh Valley Railway company has ordered a decrease in the wages of the trackmen on the basis of a ten hour day, and during the winter there will be a further reduction of wages and working time.

The union men employed in the Carbondale laundries—in the Susquehanna Valley—have voted to remain on strike until the wage list has been adjusted, and the Central Labor Union has promised assistance.

There is not a day now that the American papers do not contain the record of labor troubles and labor reverses, the greatest events at the present time being in Chicago where the strike of men affected about 40,000 of those employed by Cable and Elevated car companies, and the strike of cotton makers, 25,000 or 350,000 of them, and in which the railway men lost. Canada is mercifully spared these reverses. It does not seem to have yet been affected by the depression across the lines, and the question is whether, in the natural order of things, it is bound to spread, to enter this country and produce its disastrous results.

PANAMA AND CANADIAN INDEPENDENCE

If any of our people were moved by the Alaskan affair to cast their eyes toward Canadian independence, they will by that time have taken to heart the lesson of the Panama Republic, says the Montreal Star. The fond belief that a Canadian Republic would receive fair and honorable treatment from the United States, died upon the day that the Republic of Colombia was robbed of its most valuable state. We are no more likely to be treated with decent good faith than was Colombia; and yet, when the American's coveted "Naboth's vineyard," which formed an integral part of Colombia, they took it precisely as the foot-pad takes a purse.

Were Canada independent, the Americans might covet British Columbia and the entire west coast of the continent. A "revolution," a "recognition," a cash payment for something or other to the revolutionists; and the State of British Columbia would follow the road of the Isthmus state of a Latin Colombia. This would not depend upon the loyalty of the British Columbians, but upon the skill with which Americans "colonized" in that sparsely settled province.

While the British flag floats over us, however, we are in no danger. Even President Roosevelt would hardly venture to steal a province from under the paw of the Lion. There is now, happily, no weak Republic of Colombia to deal with here; but the entire force of the British Empire. Our "smart" neighbors may wheedle John Bull out of an island or two—and the more fool he!—but they will never attempt to bully him out of the St. Lawrence river or the Welland Canal or anything else he is determined to hold.

Our only chance to enjoy independence on this Continent is under the protection of the British name.

The officers are—Hon. Pres., Dr. Shaw, President, Dr. McWilliams, Sec.-Treas. Fred. Eason; Vice.-Pres, G. Bolln, Committee—J. Quinn, Bert. Edwards and Gordon Laing. Representatives to T. V. League, Dr. McWilliams and T. J. Wallace; Manager, Dr. V. McWilliams.

—One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at St. Mary's church on Wednesday morning at 9.30, when Miss Loretta Bell, daughter of Mr. Chas. Bell, was married to Mr. Michael Galvin, of Peterborough, by the Rev. Father Phelan. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. McCarthy, organist. The bride, who was given away by her father, was charmingly attired in a gown of white velvet corduroy, with hat to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. Miss Lillian Bell, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and Mr. John R. Walsh assisted the groom. The altar was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

After the marriage service High Mass was celebrated, the singing being of the usual excellence.

At the conclusion of the service the party adjourned to the residence of the bride's father where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Galvin. Many costly and useful presents testified to the high esteem in which the bride is held by all who know her.

Mr. and Mrs. Galvin left in the afternoon for a short wedding trip, after which they will take up residence in Toronto. The Times joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Galvin in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

Mr. Monckton left his seat, and prepared to take his leave—disappointed at having failed in his errand, and longing for power to turn this beautiful, wilful girl from her purpose.

"Good-bye," he said, holding out his hand to her. "I am sorry I have not made myself better understood."

He left her, and long after he had gone, she sat there, thinking over his words.

CHAPTER XXII.

Every spare moment was passed beside him, and Meg, the old woman who had been hired to look after the wounded man, grew accustomed to relinquish her charge to the more gentle care of the pretty dancer.

All through his delirium Dick was dimly conscious of an apparition of bright colors, star-lit eyes, and a light form that flitted softly about his bedside.

The quieting influence of the sick-room seemed to have chastened Lola's wild nature.

She sacrificed everything for Dick, eating dry bread herself, that she might save a little to buy dainties which would tempt him to eat, and flowers to cheer the dingy room in which he lay.

If she sighed with the old rebellious impatience, it was when her eyes roved round the desolate room, with its bare white-washed walls and rude benches, and she knew she had no power to give the invalid anything better.

"If I only had more money," she thought with regretful sadness; "if only I were not so poor, he should have everything beautiful, everything that would make him happy and content."

"He's got all he wants," old Meg said, when she heard Lola's plaint. "What's the thing you think he lacks?"

She was a rough gipsy herself, used to every hardship, and considered Dick's life one of luxurious splendor compared to that of many others.

The few bunches of flowers she had bought were all in the room that did not reveal the struggling poverty of the man who lay, partially dressed, on the rough wooden couch, his lithe limbs stretched helpless, and his face pallid as that of the dead.

"He seems so ill still, so unhappy," she said, bending over him with a wistful tenderness. "He would get well sooner if he had more care."

"Care!" Meg exclaimed "why, you slave your life out for him. If he ain't grateful to you he ought to be; he owes his life to you."

Lola smiled sadly, and her eyes rested on their sleeping patient with a strange yearning; then, uttering a sigh, she took up a dainty pink skirt and began sewing the tinselled trimming that had been torn during a night's performance.

"While you're with him I'll go and get the things I want," Meg said, taking her shawl from behind the door and folding it round her; "he won't want anything while I'm gone, unless it's a little of that barley-water I left ready."

She walked to the door, but paused on the threshold, drawing her shawl closer round her with a shiver, as she turned again to Lola.

"Dear! What a night!" she muttered. "It ain't fit for a beast to be out in this bitter wind. Don't leave the poor lad, Lola. I shan't be long gone."

She nodded reassuringly to the girl, then went out, casting one backward glance at the two she left, little thinking it was the last, the very last, time her eyes would ever see either of them.

Lola sewed on silently when Meg had gone.

Outside, the wind whistled shrilly, swirling round the house with an ominous sound, and she shuddered with a sudden chilly feeling, born more of fear than of cold, as the cruel gusts blew against the window.

Rising, she stirred the fire, and placed the table so that she might the better see her work, and with that dread feeling still at her heart, she seated herself patiently by Dick's side, half wishing he would wake and speak to her, before Meg returned.

Bending over her work, she did not see Dick's eyes open slowly and remain fixed upon her bowed form, with wondering intentness.

"You here still, Lola?" he said. "I have never deserved this kindness from you. Are you not tired of me yet?"

She turned, with a quick smile.

"Not yet, Dick. Do you feel better after your long sleep?"

He raised himself on his pillows, but a spasm of acute agony crossed his face, and Lola threw down her work, and placed her arms gently round his shoulders.

"You are really not well enough to be up and dressed yet," she said. "It was foolish of Meg to let you have your own way."

"I am all right," he replied, with a faint attempt to disguise the agony every movement caused him. "If I could walk about the room a little as I did this morning, I should get over this weakness."

"You had better lie still, Dick," she said, persuasively, drawing his head down until it rested against her breast.

He yielded to her, as he usually did. Through all his illness, Lola had held a strong influence over him. He obeyed the tones of her sweet voice with a mute submission that Meg's remonstrance or threats had failed to elicit from him.

She looked down an instant on his face as it lay so near her, and a deep pity welled into her heart.

"I am so sorry for you, Dick!" she murmured. "I know how lonely you must feel lying here, helpless."

"Lonely?" he said, quickly. "I am never lonely when you are with me, Lola."

A swift blush spread over her face; her eyes filled with happy wonder; but a shadow swept over the bright color, and her face paled again.

"You say this from a sense of gratitude for what I have done for you," she said, her voice full of bitterness.

He raised his eyes, and saw the pain quivering on her face.

"No, I spoke from my heart, Lola," he answered, laying his hand over hers, and leaning closer towards her. "I have never been so happy in all my life as during these days when we two have been together—when I have lain here, watching your gentle ways, and listening to your voice. I never knew you were so brave and tender until lately Lola."

"Ah! you do not know me yet," she said, in a low, moved voice.

APSLEY.

—It is our painful duty to chronicle the death of one of our, most esteemed young men, Isaac Ernest Lean, at the early age of 24 years and 6 months, son of Mr. Isaac Lean, of North Burleigh, who passed away on Friday evening, 20th inst. He had been ill for some months, but always bright and hopeful up to the last. Ernest was a member in good standing in North Star Lodge, No. 74, Loyal True Blue Association, at Apsley. Mr. G. Crowe, Methodist student, conducted the services at the house. The coffin was then taken by the bearers to the grave, where the beautiful and impressive burial service was read by Bro. Wm. Lean, chaplain, and Bro. D. Brown, Master, and as the remains were lowered to their last resting place, each brother repeated the following: "His name shall be treasured in our memories, and his good deeds go on perpetual record amongst us." The bearers were Bro. Bert. McIlmoyle, F. J. Bullied, Morduant Shairp, Albert Smith, Wm Staples and Henry Steele. The sympathy of the whole community for the relatives of the deceased was shown by the gathering at the funeral which was the largest here for some time. The brethren of the lodge wish to take this opportunity of expressing their sympathy to the parents and relatives of their brother.

NOT GLORIA'S MURDERER

Toronto, Nov. 25.—According to a young man just returned from England, who told his story to the police yesterday afternoon, William Carey, aged 18, of Toronto, is the same man under arrest in England who says he killed Glory Whalen, but who told the yarn in order to delude the authorities into sending him back to Toronto that he might escape sentence on a serious charge in Manchester. Carey went to England with cattle, and was arrested in Manchester. Fearing a long term, he invented the story of killing Glory Whalen. However, he was not taken back to Canada, but was given fourteen years in an English prison instead. Carey has been convicted of grave offences in Toronto. A few months ago he was arrested here, and he explained that he was a south African veteran, and by means of a medal smuggled to him at jail, was liberated.

The young man who revealed Carey's identity yesterday crossed the Atlantic in the same cattle ship with him, known him well and had a conversation with him in Manchester jail. It was there that Carey declared he would say he was Glory Whalen's murderer.

ARE YOU A PRISONER?

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vices of early youth, exposure to contagious disease, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or used to be. The vim, vigor, and vitality of manhood are lacking. Are you nervous and despondent? tired in the morning? have you to force yourself through the day's work? have you little ambition and energy? are you irritable and excitable? eyes sunken, depressed and haggard looking? memory poor and brain fagged? have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? deposit in urine? weak sexually?—you have

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] to [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of [illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

STOCK MARKETS

New York, 26—Weakness in the industrials was the feature of the stock market Tuesday. However much of the talk in the street is senseless and official interests are not dignifying the various reports with denials. The truth of the matter is that the professional bears have found a few weak spots and they have jumped on them with both feet; they have knocked out confidence of stockholders but the bulk of the selling which has taken place this week has been for the account of shorts. The present railroad situation continues generally favorable while the labor outlook is more encouraging. In the meantime the business outlook in many branches is improving.

HIGHBINDERS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Vancouver, Nov. 25.—Several important facts have been developed by the police investigation of the murder of Charley Sing at Steveston. The membership ticket of the deceased in the Chee Kung Tong, or Highbinder Society, has been found. It shows that Charley was a member and apparently in good standing of the society at whose meeting he declares he was threatened in Vancouver. Chief of Police Murchison of Steveston says that on a Wednesday Charley told him he expected men next day from Vancouver to kill him. He gave the names of Jo Hang, Young and Wong to the officer as the men, he said, amongst the Chinese by the nickname of "the hatchet boy" or the "axe-wielder." It was on the Friday morning following that Charley's throat was cut from ear to ear.

Charley Sing was killed at Steveston. The ticket is of pink cloth about seven by nine inches, and contains on its face the emblem of the society. This is a triangular figure, which is surmounted by characters apparently representing the association as being as everlasting as the sun and the mountains.

Sixteen years ago in Victoria this same Chee Kung Tong, or Highbinder Society, was described by Rev. J. V. Gardiner, a missionary to the Chinese, as an organization of blackmailers and murderers. The society was very strong in Victoria at that time. A Chinaman named Lum Hip was brought up charged with conspiring with the society to would or kill such persons as the society might name and order from time to time. Chief of Police Sheppard arrested the man, and a search of the latter's room resulted in the finding of a red document which was a warrant ordering his death of Rev. Mr. Gardiner, with a compensation of $500 to the murderer if the crime was carried out successfully. If the law overtook the murderer the latter's family was to get $5,000. This document was signed by the society which is today known as the Highbinders.

The attack has been organized against Mr. Gardiner because he had been instrumental in rescuing Chinese slave girls and the threatening letters sent to him recited that he had ruined the business of Chinese promoters of immoral houses in Victoria. The accused in the case was committed for trial, but at the assizes the prosecution failed to secure a verdict of guilty, although the presiding judge, the late Sir Matthew Begbie, charged strongly against the prisoner.

A New Book

The new book, "When Patty Went to College," by Webster, is undoubtedly the best selling book of the season. Just the book for a Xmas present.

MAKES HIS FIRST STAND

Duke Devonshire Opposed to Return to Old Policy

Mr. Chamberlain's Policy would Increase Workingman's Expense

London, Nov. 26.—The Duke of Devonshire presided, and was the principal speaker at a great demonstration in Queen's Hall here last night, under the auspices of the Free Food League. It was the Duke's first public speech since his resignation as Lord President of the Council, and the first really important meeting of the Free Fooders as an offset to the active propaganda of the Tariff Reform League. The hall was packed, and the Duke of Devonshire was given a great welcome. He said in part: "Some members of the league are not altogether opposed to some form of protection; but they were all prepared to resist to the utmost the imposition of any protective taxation on food, or protective duties generally.

He himself claimed the right to oppose anything in the nature of a return to protection. Prolonged cheering followed this statement of the Duke.

A Party Question.

The speaker said that while the fiscal policy was not yet a party question, there was nothing which the advocates of the scheme would like better than a general election, which would turn on this question alone.

The Duke urged that the policy of the Government must be more clearly defined. Had he been assured that a moderate use of the proposed power of retaliation would be made he might still be a member of the Government. He was opposed to the taxation of food because he thought that such taxation was the keynote of the entire policy to which he took exception.

Tremendous Loss.

He was prepared to prove that Mr. Chamberlain's Glasgow budget would entail a tremendous loss to the consumer, while the workingman's expenses would be increased ten per cent. He believed that no greater fallacy has ever been produced than that the prohibition or restriction of imports from abroad would increase the profitable employment of capital and labor at home.

The country was prosperous everywhere, yet Mr. Chamberlain asserted that only stagnation existed.

Alluding to Mr. Chamberlain's charge that he (the Duke of Devonshire) was "a drag on the wheels of progress," the speaker said he was content to act as a drag on the engine which was running down grade against all signals.

Supposing the revenue might gain £8,000,000 a year by the Glasgow budget, and provide a subsidy of £2,500,000 for the colonies, Canada would thus get three shillings and twopence per head, Australia one shilling and eleven pence, New Zealand six shillings and eight pence halfpenny, and South Africa the magnificent sum of three pence per head of the white population.

He could find no trace of any definite offer on the part of the colonies.

Vote of The Meeting.

Lord Goschen moved and Lord George Hamilton seconded the following resolution, which was passed by an overwhelming vote:

"That strenuous opposition should be offered to any fiscal policy involving the protective taxation of food, and the establishment of a general preferential or protective system."

Referring to the Duke of Devonshire's speech, the News says it was a strong clear note in the tumult of discordant voices.

The Times says the eyes of Devonshire and Goschen are riveted on the past, and those of Chamberlain on the future.

The Telegraph says it tells the foreigners, "Your assault is unjustifiable and unfair, but under no circumstances will I hit you back, for I would then damage my knuckles."

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Master, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate. They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders. That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

BODILY WEAKNESS

All fagged out ideas come as slow as molasses in January. You think of things just a minute or so too late. Snap is gone and the bouyancy and strength that makes life a pleasure, that's gone too.

The doctor would say that you are run down, and you don't eat or digest enough. Your stomach requires some aid, and probably your digestion needs a bracer. The blood should have phosphorus and iron to strengthen and purify it.

Now Ferrozone is a wonderful blood maker and nerve stimulant. It is really a food for the blood, nerves and vital energies and will improve your run down condition in a very short time.

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue. It is a marvellous remedy and does marvellous things as the following testimonial proves.

"After my baby was born I was left in a weak, sickly condition, totally unfit for a mother's household duties. I was excitable and nervous, and trifling things bothered me very much. I somehow would not gain strength, although I took malt extracts and tonics all the time. A lady friend recommended Ferrozone which I used with splendid results. The first box helped quite a little, and when I had taken six boxes my former health, ruddy cheeks and good spirits were fully restored."

You can't spend 50c. to a better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone and the sooner you get Ferrozone the sooner you will get well. Don't accept a substitute, but insist on your druggist supplying the genuine Ferrozone which sells for 50c. a box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

BRIDGE BEING BUILT

The Ironwork Over the New Cereal Dam Progressing

Contractor O'Toole has practically completed his contract with the Cereal Company, and is now removing his plant. Men are at work removing the coffer dams and finishing up a little dredging of the tail race.

The Dominion Bridge Company, of Montreal, who have the contract of the steel superstructure, are at work putting up the bridge on top of the new piers. The stop logs are being put in and the water is now up to the new level, making a great change in the appearance of the river above the dam.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss May G. Dunford and Mr. Cecil D. Succee

On Wednesday evening a very pretty wedding took place at 414 Sherbrooke street, when Miss May Georgina Dunford, only daughter of the late Albert Dunford, was united in marriage to Mr. Cecil Dawson Succee. Rev. W. L. Armitage performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride was gowned in white muslin with silk trimmings, and carried a lovely bouquet of white carnations. Miss Annie Bryans, of Havelock, who was bridesmaid, was similarly attired, and carried pink carnations. The groom was assisted by Mr. Wm. F. Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Succee will reside at 414 Sherbrooke street.

HOTEL MEN ANNOYED

Were Ordered to Close the Bars Yesterday by the Police.

The hotelkeepers of the town are in bad humor over the fact that they had been given notice to close the bars yesterday on account of the voting on the Union bylaw. They obeyed the order until they had time to communicate with Mr. Haverson, the solicitor for the Provincial License Holders Association, when they were told that the Chief of Police exceeded his authority in ordering the bars to close. They were then thrown open.

A deputation of the hotelmen visited The Times yesterday, and shewed that they were very much annoyed at the loss which they had sustained by closing. They are laying the facts before Mr. Haverson with a view to some action against the town for redress.

A HUNTERS' DISPUTE

Snowden Party Say Hunters Tied Up Their Dog

The fat is in the fire; and war to the knife is declared by Chief Snowden and his party against the party who they say tied up one of their dogs during the recent hunt. The Times has been informed that the offence was committed and can be proven, and that legal proceedings will be taken to put a stop to such methods.

It is hoped that the matter may be amicably arranged, and we should suggest to the offending party that steps be taken in this direction at once, before it gets beyond the settling point. It is needless to say that all interest in the eastern crisis will cease until this matter passes the acute stage. At the present writing Chief Snowden has his war paint on, and means to shoot to kill.

H. M. S. PINAFORE

A Splendid Production of the Opera Last Night

We congratulate the King's Daughters on the great success which attended the production of Gilbert and Sullivan's masterpiece, H.M.S. Pinafore, last night in the Opera House. There was a splendid audience present, and the hundred pretty little performers did their parts almost to perfection. The costumes were beautiful, and the spectacular effect was very fine.

During the intermissions the splendid orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, played a number of choice selections, which added greatly to the success of the entertainment and the enjoyment of those present.

The entertainment will be repeated this evening in every detail, when it is hoped an equally large number will be present.

Obituary

We regret to chronicle the death of Mr. James Bourne, 321 Rink street, which took place yesterday morning. She was taken ill a week ago with pneumonia. She was 60 years of age, and leaves a husband to mourn her demise. The funeral will take place from her late place of residence on Saturday afternoon.

BABY COFFEE TOPERS

Were Given Coffee at 2 Years of Age

"My mother always gave her children coffee to drink from the time they were old enough to hold a cup consequently I used it from the time I was 2 years old to my 18th year, says a young teacher, Rockford, Ill.

"Although I never suspected it, coffee was all this time undermining my health and suddenly without warning, I was taken with nervous prostration. At times I could scarcely breathe and my face twitched continually.

"I was almost helpless and my stomach was out of order all the time. For three years I was treated, with only temporary relief, having to stay in bed nearly all the time. Then my uncle, an old physician, came to visit us and as soon as he had studied my case a little bit, he said:

"Let me get you a square meal; I think I can make better coffee than any one in this house.'

"So I waited patiently for I did love good coffee and I thought I had never tasted such delicious coffee as that was and I wondered why others could not make it just the same. So uncle told me he would teach them just how it was made.

"In this way I drank Postum Coffee for nearly a month before I knew it. I found my stomach getting so much better and all my troubles disappearing and in a few weeks I was up and around the house again and stronger and better than I had been for a long time. I am still growing stronger every day and I am doing my best to get my friends to do away with coffee and use Postum in its place.

"Coffee almost ruined me and I know it and I know the only way that I got rid of it and got well was by drinking Postum in its place. I have found out that you must be careful to follow directions on the Postum package to make good Postum," Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. FAIR

An Old and Highly Respected Resident of Cavan Passes Away

It is with the deepest regret we record the death of Mrs. Wm. Fair, which occurred at her home in Millbrook on Wednesday at 11.45 a.m. Over two weeks ago Mrs. Fair was injured by a fall when alighting from her carriage which developed into an impacted fracture. The severe shock to her nervous system was so great as to cause surgical delirium, and although insensible to pain during the past few days, consciousness was never regained.

The late Mrs. Fair was a daughter of the late Robert McCamus who died in 1885. She was born in 1833, and was in her seventieth year. In 1853 she was married to Mr. Wm. Fair, and they resided at Centreville until about fifteen years ago, when they retired and removed to Millbrook. She is survived by one son, Mr. Robert Fair, of Peterborough, and two daughters, Miss Bella and Miss Ida Fair, at home. A brother, Mr. Thomas McCamus, resides in Cavan, and Mrs. James Wood is a sister.

The life of the late Mrs. Fair was a most beautiful one. She was a devoted and consistent member of the Church of England, and led a most earnest and useful life. Her death will indeed be universally regretted, and great sympathy is felt for the sorrowing family.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the residence in Millbrook to St. Thomas Episcopal church, Millbrook, where service will be held. Interment will take place in St. Paul's church cemetery.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Some Matters Which Were Disposed of on Wednesday

The County Council devoted most of Wednesday to committee work, and went into session in the afternoon, with Warden Crow in the chair, and all the members present.

On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald, a deputation from Otonabee was heard.

Messrs. J. Smithson and R. Weir addressed the Council, asking that a grant be made to the Otonabee Agricultural Society to assist in paying for the land recently purchased by the society for exhibition grounds.

On motion of Mr. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. Hunter, the matter was referred to the Finance committee.

On motion of Mr. Maloney, seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Nathan Payne, of Dummer, addressed the Council. He asked for a grant by way of remuneration for having kept a road open through his property during the time that the new Payne's bridge was under construction.

On motion of Mr. Maloney, seconded by Mr. Hunter, the matter was referred to the Finance committee.

The Council adjourned.

Clothing was Stolen

Norwood, Nov. 26.—Herbert Peters of Havelock, was arrested here this morning for the alleged stealing of a coat, cap, and pair of rubbers from William Johnson, and a coat from a young man named Fallon at an assemble held by the Caughnawaga football team in the town hall here last night. Peters was taken to Peterborough jail.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Mr. J. A. Vance, of Millbrook, was in town yesterday.

—Miss V. Ways, of Toronto, who has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Philips, Ashburnham, for the past three weeks, returns to Toronto this morning.

—Mrs. J. W. Leonard, of Winnipeg, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. C. H. Barltrop, of Markam street, Toronto has returned via Montreal, where she was joined by Mr. Leonard, who was there on a business trip.

—We are pleased to learn that Mr. G. R. Backus, relieving agent at the C.P.R., who was taken to the hospital on Saturday last, is progressing nicely and will soon be out again. Mr. G. Gilbert is acting agent until Mr. Dodd returns from his holidays.

—Mr. Wm. Fair has returned to town after an absence of three weeks in the west. Mr. Fair is the District Manager and General Superintendent of the King's Life the Century of British Columbia and Great North West Industrial Insurance Company, which has recently been amalgamated.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Four weeks more and Christmas.

—Peterborough is now in winter's grasp.

—The Cordage Company is working night and day to fill orders.

—The hearty thanks of the venison editor of this great family journal is due to Mr. Wm. Snowden, of the Gold Lake Hunting Club, for a delicious roast of venison.

—Frontenac County Councillors at their last session declared war against pedlars and their ilk by imposing the following license rates: Pack, $50; hand cart, $100; one horse rig, $200; $300; two horse rig, $300. The action was taken at the request of Kingston merchants, and with a view to getting rid of undesirable characters. The Councillors believed there are honest pedlars, but there are so many slippery ones that it is well to protect the people against them.

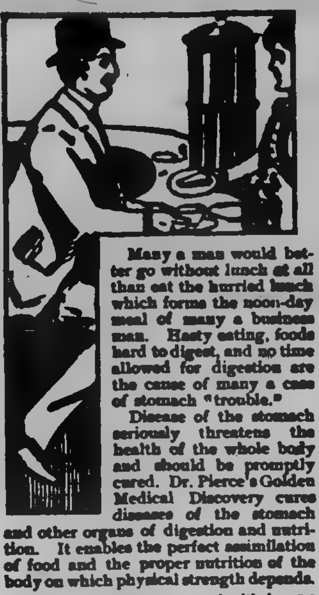
City Captured by Rebels

Cape Haytien, Nov. 26. — Despatches from Puerto Plata say that the city of Domingo was surrendered to the revolutionists yesterday morning, and that President Wos y Gil and his Ministers took refuge on board a German warship.



Many a man would better go without lunch at all than eat the hurried lunch which forms the noon-day meal of many a business man. Hasty eating, foods hard to digest, and no time allowed for digestion are the cause of many a case of stomach "trouble."

Disease of the stomach seriously threatens the health of the whole body and should be promptly cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food and the proper nutrition of the body on which physical strength depends.

"Nine or ten years ago my health became very poor, and in 1899 was so far gone that good doctors pronounced my case the worst they had ever treated," writes Mr. Harvey Phipps, of Florence, Ala. "I had acute stomach trouble, liver complaint, catarrh and was nervous to such an extent I could not sleep. I finally got three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and some 'Pellets.' Took them according to directions on the bottles, and in a few days noticed a decided improvement. I commenced to get more rest at night and could eat with pleasure, where formerly food was like chips to me. When I had used three bottles of the 'Discovery' I was a new man; could eat mince pie for supper, go to bed at seven P. M. and sleep until seven A. M. I am now working at my trade (carpentry), every day in all kinds of weather, and think if I had not taken your medicines I would now be under the sod."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its penetrative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

RUSSIA NOW RESENTS THE MOVE ON THIBET

Will Try to Prevent Great Britain Gaining a Foothold in That Country

SUCCESS WOULD ¡MEAN MUCH TO THE BRITISH

Budhists Would Regard Great Britain as Most Powerful Country in the World

St. Petersburg, November. 26 — The newspapers here regard the British expedition to Thibet as an attempt to stir up a movement in China under cover of which the powers will increase their spheres of influence, and they appeal to China not to permit the Empire to be deprived of Russian intervention, which saved it on other occasions.

The Novoe Vremya, in a recent article, declared that if the British succeeded in carrying out their plans, Thibet would be in their hands, as they will always be in a position to threaten Lhassa, and if they gain control of the holy land of Thibet. 500,000,000 of Buddhists will regard Great Britain as being the most powerful country in the world.

The Novoe Vremya, adds: "While it is impossible for the weak Thibetans to prevent the British crossing the Himalayas, it is quite possible for others to compel the British to stop by creating a slight diversion in some direction disagreeable to the British politicians."

RESULTS OF BRITISH NAVAL MANOEUVRES

The Palm was Awarded to Admiral Domville's Fleet

HIS SHIPS WERE FASTER

It was Demonstiated That This is the Great Point in Naval Warfare

London, November 28— Speed was the factor which determined on which side the victory remained in the British naval manoeuvres of 1903. The official report awards the palm to Admiral Domville and the Mediterranean fleet. This decision is contrary to the opinion expressed at the time by students of the manoeuvres. The chief problem of the manoeuvres was whether Admiral Domville, with the Mediterranean fleet of eleven battleships, could prevent the junction of Admiral Wilson's home fleet, with seven battleships and Lord Charles Beresford's Channel fleet, with eight battleships.

Admiral Domville failed to prevent the junction, owing largely to the fact that the Admiral overestimated the speed of his fleet by one knot, but, while unsuccessful in inflicting a knockout blow, he managed by admiral tactics to defeat the intentions of Admirals Wilson and Beresford to bring them to action with their fleets between him and his base at Gibraltar, and in a running fight off the Azores he damaged his opponents so greatly and left them in such an unfavorable position as regards their coal supply that the command of the sea remained in his hands.

The point of interest lay in the speed of the fleets. Admiral Domville's fleet was superior in speed to that of Admiral Wilson's, and the lesson drawn from the battle of the Azores is that with proper handling superior speed confers such an overwhelming technical advantage that the fastest fleet, even if in inferior numbers, has all the odds in its favor.

The speed of Admiral Domville's fleet did not come up to the Admiralty's anticipations. A fleet containing two battleships of sixteen knots, seven of eighteen and two of over seventeen nominal, was never able to make fore than fifteen for any length of time.

The cruisers were also below their estimated standard, for though the Good Hope did one burst at twenty-two knots the others never did much more than eighteen, and many of them broke down in the engines, not in the boilers, at that.

Furthermore, the coal supply held out very badly, under the stress of fast steaming. All the small cruisers, one or two of the big ones, and at least one battleship, the Mars, with her oil fuel, were practically out of action on this account at the end of the week's war.

MR. PREFONTAINE ON THE ELEC;IONS.

Minister Says He Knows Nothing About Date Fixed

MANY RUMORS ABROAD

Trip to the Maratime Provinces Contemplated, Much Activity Displayed

Montreal, Nov. 28—"I do not know anything about it, and I think I would know if anything was decided," said Hon. Raymond Prefontaine today, in reply to an enquiry as to the truth of the rumor that the general elections were to take place on January 28, with nominations a week earlier.

This rumor was published last evening in one of the French papers. The item containing the statement, intimated that an authoritative announcement would be made at a meeting to be held on Friday evening, in this city.

Hon. Raymond Prefontaine's office in the Post Office building gave the impression, however, that there was something doing. Well known Liberal workers were running in and after a few minutes conversation with the Minister departed with his most mysterious looks possible to assume. Groups were standing or sitting in corners of the waiting room, whispering mysteriously, and everything about the place betokened preparation for some great event.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries announced that he was leaving on Sunday at noon to visit the Maritime Provinces "I am going down to look after that Prince Edward Island Ferry business" he said. "We want to settle that matter once for all and not have it taking up three weeks discussion in the House, as it did at the last season."

MEXICO'S GRAND OLD MAN

City of Mexico, November 21—Preparations are being made for a change of presidenet, and a change will probably come within the next few months. President Diaz, after occupying the presidential chair for over twenty-five years, is thinking about retiring and letting the mantle fall upon the shoulders of Jose Yves Limantour, the Minister of Finance. An official announcement has been made that the president will, about the first of the new year, start on an extended tour of Europe.

The Ports of the Department of Bolivar Closed

Colon, November 25—8 a.m.— The text of a decree closing the ports of the Department of Bolivar reached here today. It prohibits until further notice all traffic or business between the ports in that Department and the "Rebel Department of Panama, and says:

"The Department of Panama, having declared itself free and independent and having taken up arms against the national government in an effort to destroy Colombian integrity, dignity and honor, Colombian required the employment of such measures as are dispensable for the punishment and suppression of the rebels. The acts closing the ports mentioned is taken by the Government of Bolivar independent of the Bogota Government. Bolivar can do all she considers necessary for the defence of the state, and among the measures which the legitimate ends of war warrant is the depriving of the enemy of resources and the free traffic of commerce."

The decree provides also that neutral vessels having called at Panamanian ports shall be refused admission to ports of Bolivar.

PALACE OF PEACE

To be Erected at the Hague by the Netherlands

Brussels, November 28—The Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs gave some details to the second chamber yesterday regarding the proposed palace of peace for the Hague Tribunal. It appears that Mr. Carnegie's original offer to endow a library was extended to the construction of a building for the Tribunal, the amount promised being $1,500,000. The deed of gift makes over the building, and the library to the Dutch government and stipulates that if the Hague Court loses its original character, the building and accessories will revert to the Dutch sovereign, and the President of the United States, who shall utilize it in the interests of peace and the comity of nations.

ANOTHER TURBINE

Allan Lie Was Signed Contracts for a Second Vessel

Montreal, Nov. 28—Messrs. H. and A. Allan announce that the contract for the second of their large turbine engined steamships has been let to Messrs. Alexander Stephen and Son., of Linthouse, on the Clyde.

This is the same firm of ship-builders which constructed the Allan Line's steamship Tunisian, and it was the success of this steamer since her launching, which inclined the Allans to allow Alexander Stephen and Son to again try their hand.

INDIANS KILL MEXICANS

A Whole Company of Soldiers Wiped Out by Yaqui Indians

Los Angeles, Calif., November 28 —Yaqui Indians on Sonora, oMexico, have started a new rebellion. They made a night attack at Rapairo, fell upon a sleeping company of sixty men, under Col. Francisco Picardo, and after a fight destroyed the entire force. Only six of the bodies were recovered, the soldiers having been driven into the bush and killed, some after being tortured. There is a reign of terror in the country about Cumuripa.

NOT COMING HERE

Sir Frederick Borden, who was slated to visit Peterborough this fall in order select the site for the new armoury, has evidently changed his mind. He is now in New York en route for England. This is one of the signs that there will be no election until after the House meets.

WILL BUILD THROUGH LINDSAY

The Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway has obtained the approva of the Department of Railways to location of the company's line through the town of Lindsay, the route being followed being between the Grand Trunk spur line, and the Scugog River. The company's original intention was to cross the Grand Trunk east of the pplatter's yard limits, and then by a spur line to reach somewhere near the centre of the town, but the Grand Trunk opposed th proposal crossing.

The Sure Way to Rear a Healthy Girl

The relation of food to comfort and health impressed an Iowa teacher who says.

"After teaching school for several years I became a victim of insomnia and night after night it was 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning before I would fall asleep completely worn out. Of course I lost strength and brain power and became terribly nervous until I was on the verge of nervous prostration.

"About that time I read an article about Grape-Nuts that convinced me that my troubles were due to indigestion something I had never thought of before. I got two boxes of Grape-Nut and began to use them for breakfast and supper with good rich cream. Well, the change was something wonderful and m health came back in bounds.

"Grape-Nuts took the place of non-nourishing food and I am now better in health, brain power, and spirits; sleep well and work longer and harder and never feel nervous or worried. When I have finished my school session I still feel I have lots of reserve force, and energy left, and when I go to bed at night I get sound and refreshing sleep and get up early, happy as a lark.

"I have had numbers of my scholars tr the food and I must tell you about one case. She was a puny nervous little gir and her mother told me she did not ea enough to keep a bird alive. All sh wanted was candy and other trash When I told her mother about Grape Nuts food she followed my advice and its effect upon this child, shown in the awakened energy of the body and mind was simply wonderful. Her school work became entirely satisfactory, and sh gained in bodily strength, lost all he nervousness, and soon became a rosy chubby young miss." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek. Mich.

There's a reason.

ANOTHER BIG HOUSE

Greeted the Presentation of H. M. S. Pinafore Last Night

The Opera House was again filled last night on the occasion of the second presentation of "H.M.S. Pinafore," presented by over one hundred juvenile performers. The entertainment, like the first, was given under the auspices of the King's Daughters of St. John's church, and was under the direction of Mr. H. B. Teigman, who effectively trained the juveniles. The caste was composed as follows.

The Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B. ...Herbert Sykes

WILL ADMIT ASIATICS INTO SOUTH AFRICA.

Boer Petitions Unavailing in Keeping Japanese Out of the Transvaal

London, Nov. 27.—Lord Milner, High Commissioner of South Africa, stated to an English friend that he purposes to secure the passage of a bill through the Legislative Council of the Transvaal Colony rigidly limiting the importation of Chinese into the colony, but providing for the admission of Japanese on terms agreeable to the Mikado's Government.

"The Transvaal cannot get on without Chinese labor," he said, "but it must be imported under contract. The feeling against Asiatics in South Africa is wide and deep."

A KING FOR DOMINION OF CANADA.

An American Paper Hears Ludicrous Story About the Dominion.

"There is a curious report that if the Dominion should secede from the Mother Country it would organize a Government monarchial in form. Where would it look for a king? Would it invite a member of the family now reigning in Britain to become its sovereign? There is a rumor that some of the British-Canadians would prefer the Scottish Duke of Hamilton, who is descended through the Princess Margaret Tudor, from the Plantagenets, who were claimants of the throne of France, through Isabelle, daughter of Philippe IV., King of that country. On the other hand, the French Canadians are said to look with more favor on the present Baron de Longueuil, a descendant of one of the founders of Montreal, and now chief of the seigneurial order in the Province of Quebec."

JAPAN AND RUSSIA HAVE NOW AGREED

Tentative Terms on the Manchurian Sub[ect Have Been Peaceably Settled

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.— Tentative terms on the subject of Manchuria have been settled. Japan recognizes Russia's dominant interests, and agrees not to place obstacles in the way of the solution of the problem. While still maintaining the ultimate recognition of her treaty rights, open ports, and the integrity of Chinese sovereignty, Japan is content to leave these questions in abeyance, so as not to embarrass Russia. In return Japan insists on the recognition of her influence in Corea, and the opening of Yongampho or other ports to foreign trade. Russia is willing to concede something; but she opposes the opening of the Yongampho, on account of its proximity to the mouth of Yalu River, on the ground that it will threaten her interests and complicate her difficulties in Manchuria.

Russia is doing everything possible to bring the negotiations to a conclusion. Viceroy Alexieff has the Czar's orders to this effect. Russia believe it wise to press matters while Japan is in a pacific mood, which is attributed to foreign counsel.

The sudden flash of anger in China over the Russian re-occupation of Mukden, because it is the old burial place of the ancestors of the present dynasty, is not considered grave, as China's impotency is recognized. Nevertheless, all steps will be taken to avoid a rupture, as China's friendship is needed for the future.

Despite the conviction here that the crisis has passed for the winter, Russia is taking nothing for granted. Three-quarters of her fleet are massed in or moving to the Pacific. Practically nothing is left on the European side.

Travelers who have just returned from Port Arthur report that the trains going eastward are still filled with troops and war munitions. It is estimated that Russia now has more than 150,000 troops east of Baikal, prepared for eventualities.

A telegram from Port Arthur say Yuan-Shi-Kai, the Governor of Chi-Li Province, is expected in the Province of Mukden at the end of November to negotiate with the Russians.

Vienna, Nov. 27—The sultan of Turkey has a cancer on his intestines, but there is no immediate danger, and he can drag on a painful existence for two or three years. His aggravated condition recently, brought on by extra exertions, caused him to call in a Munich doctor, who advised him to have an operation performed. Abdul Hamid refused to do so.

Ottawa, November 27 — Hon. James Sutherland contemplates a trip to Great Britain for a month or so. He may be accompanied by Sir Charles Ross, and if so, will spend some time at the latter's country seat in Scotland.

DE VAU AND THE TORONTO PLOT

To Inveigle Guest of Rossin House to Waterfront and Sandbag Him

New York, Nov. 27.—With ten years imprisonment before Edgar A. De Vau, who was convicted yesterday of having concocted a scheme whereby Samuel Lewis was to have been assaulted and robbed, District Attorney Jerome will take steps to have dismissed the complaint against James Hay, a private detective, now in the Tombs awaiting a trial on a charge of obtaining money on false pretences, and against whom De Vau was to have been the principal witness.

On the trial of De Vau, which was ended by his conviction yesterday, a piece of lead pipe enclosed in rubber hose, was one of the exhibits, witness testifying that he had told them to hit Lewis with it. There were also two bottles, one containing chloral and the other chloroform, which he had shown to them and with which he had said they could stupefy their victim if it became necessary. Both of these bottles had been purchased in Toronto, and had been found in a desk in De Vau's office.

The charge against Hay is that he obtained $200 from the Meehan Detective Agency last summer by sending a telegram to the agency from Hamilton, Ont. signed with De Vau's name and asking that the money be sent to him.

"I was working for the Meehan agency," is Hay's story, "and after a time I was laid off. I was looking for work when I met De Vau, and one day he came to my house. He told me the agency wanted me to go to Toronto with him to do some work. I did not know what the work was until we reached Buffalo, when he told me we were to shadow a man named Ellis, who has escaped from an insane asylum here.

"We found Ellis in the Rossin House in Toronto and De Vau managed to become acquainted with him. One day he told me he was to take a walk with Ellis along the river front. He gave me a piece of rubber hose, in which was a bit of lead pipe, and he said;

"'You follow us and bang this on his head. I've got carte blanche up to $400 in this case, and after you are through with him we will hire a boat and will run him over to the United States.'

"I saw the two men leave the hotel, and I followed them, but I did not want to do as De Vau told me; and when I saw some Italians I joined them and went back. When I met De Vau again he scolded me, but I told him I was afraid the Italians would see me and I did not want to do the work. Then he told me he would get the man to go to Hamilton and that I was to go there as well.

"'There,' he said, 'we will bundle him into a carriage and run him over the bridge into the United States. If he wakes up I will put him to sleep with these.'

"Then he showed me two bottles, one containing chloral he said, and the other chloroform. He added:

"'When we get to the other side I know a house we can hire, and while you watch the man I will go to New York and see how much Meehan will give up for our man. He and the Colonel who wants him ought to give us $5,000 each.

"I told him that if I was to do anything like that I would want to leave the country in a hurry and that I wanted money. Then he gave $25 to me, and with this I took a train and left the city. One day I received a letter from a relative here telling me that Meehan was after me, saying that I got $200 from him on a telegram to which De Vau's name was signed. At once I came back here to face the charge, was arrested, and here I am in prison. I know it was a plot on De Vau's part to get me into trouble, and I know that if anyone got that $200 De Vau was the man."

In his charge Recorder Goff explained the law to the jurors and said De Vau was guilty if he advised Nelson and Mullen to commit the crime and had furnished to them the weapon with which they were to assault Lewis. After a conference of a little more than two hours the jurors returned with a verdict of guilty, only two ballots having been taken. Samuel Feldman's motion for a new trial was denied and the Recorder said he would impose sentence on Monday next.

ANOTHER MULLAH MAKING TROUBLE FOR BRITISH.

Troops Sent from Khartoum Under Col. Bryan T. Mahon to Disperse Malcontents

London, Nov. 27.—A new Mahdi, or Mad Mullah, is making trouble in the Soudan, and it has been found necessary to send troops from Khartoum to quell and disperse the malcontents. The man in command of this expeditionary force is the redoubtable Col Bryan T. Mahon, who won renown for leading the column that relieved Mafeking in the Boer war. The fact that Col. Mahon himself has taken command of the expedition shows that the uprising is considered serious.

TO END LABOR WAR

Suggest an Arbitration Clause in All Contracts

Toronto, November 28 — The Building Trades Council, a body representing practically all the building trades unions of Toronto, through its secretary, has written to the Toronto Chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, asking the members of this body to co-operate in securing the insertion of a clause in all building contracts, providing for the submission of all disputes to arbitration. The Council's action is an outcome of the labor troubles of last spring, when building was practically suspended because of the prevalence of strikes. Leading architects of the city declare themselves in favor of the Council's proposal.

NOT TOO OLD TO LEARN

Editor of the Morning Times:

Sir,—Recently an old man, somewhat the worse for liquor and smoking a short clay pipe, sat down on the front steps of the writer's domicile to rest. Along came two boys in their "teens" smoking cigarettes. "Trow them nasty things away, ye young divils, ye," said the old man. The boys' reply was very sarcastic and was accompanied by a polite invitation to the old man to take a back seat. Suddenly taking his pipe from his mouth he smashed it to smithereens on the side walk. "Be gobs!" said he, "whin lads like them take to tobaccy, it's time I gave it up." Perhaps the old man may reform in another direction before he ends his mortal career.

Please publish this in The Times and oblige.

NO C.P.R. STRIKE

It will be good news to the people of Peterborough, as well as elsewhere, to learn that the difficulties between the C.P.R engineers and the Company has been amicably arranged. The committee representing the men reached a working agreement with the management, an agreement which has now merely to be ratified by the president, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. The committee was in conference almost daily with Mr. D. McNichol, general manager, for several weeks.

Well Deserved

The immense value offered by The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal this season is meeting with the success the publishers deserve. Their pictures—"Heart Broken" and "Hard to Choose"—are beautiful, and their other premium coloured map of Canada is up-to-date. It is the biggest dollar's worth in Canada to-day. The Family Herald is securing thousands of new subscribers by their generous gifts this year; in fact, few homes will be found without that great paper and beautiful premiums when one dollar secures so much.

CANADA OVERTOPS AMERICAN RIVALS

Hon. Geo. E. Foster Tells the United States of Canadian Power

London, Nov. 27.—The Hon. George E. Foster, replying to the toast "Our Guests" at the American Thanksgiving banquet in the Hotel Cecil last night said that even after the Alaska decision Canada's square miles overtopped those of the Republic. A commission, composed of three Canadians, three Americans, and an umpire, should decide upon a proper name for the republic. The American eagle screamed for the pleasure of it, but as the centuries rolled by there would be a great power north of the 49th parallel.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, addressing a mass meeting at Cambridge yesterday, said the policy of the Government was to secure liberty to negotiate freely and back words with deeds if necessary. Before leaving London he had learned that a large order, placed with a German firm, had, owing to the New Zealand preference, been cancelled and given to an English firm instead.

Rude to Churchill.

Mr. Winston Churchill was boycotted again last night from a Conservative meeting at which he was announced to speak. He threatens to begin an agitation for a new organizatin.

A parody on "Onward, Christian Soldiers," beginning, "Onward, every Liberal, onward to the fight," sung at Lord Rosebery's meeting, is raising a storm of protest in religious circles.

The Monmouthshire steel and tinplate works at Pontymister, employing 1,000 hands, have been closed on account of the large amounts of German and American dumped steel. A sugar refinery at Bristol, which employed 1,000 hands, has been closed owing to the effect of the foreign bounty system.

Cecil Turned Down.

The naval and military experts of the Royal United Service Institute yesterday expressed enthusiastic support of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

Mr. Ritchie, speaking at Croydon yesterday, said the fiscal agitation had badly unsettled trade, and he wanted a decision as soon as possible.

Lord Cecil yesterday addressed several Conservative Associations composed of his own constituents. He opposed a resolution in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's plan, but it was carried.

CAN MAKE MEN SOUND AND STRONG.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave, Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

The Late Mr. Lean.

We regret to chronicle the death of Ernest Lean, eldest son of Mr. Isaac Lean, which occurred at the family residence on Saturday evening, Nov. 21st. Deceased had been suffering from lung trouble for about a year, and although every medical treatment proved of no avail, the young man endured his sufferings with Christian patience and cheerfulness. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, his kind nature and true manliness endeared him to all. The funeral was one of the largest ever known in that locality and was conducted by the Loyal True Blue Lodge, No. 74, of Apsley, of which deceased was a member. The remains were interred in St. George's Cemetery, Apsley. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives in their sad bereavement.

COLD STORAGE COMPANY

Objects of the Company and Its Success in Securing Support.

The Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Company are meeting with the greatest success in disposing of their stock. The Company will be engaged in the export trade of eggs, butter, cheese, poultry, live stock, lamb and hogs, and will carry on the business of cold storage and pork packing.

The trade in these articles is growing in this country in a really wonderful manner, and the farmers are fully alive to the large profits open to them in the export of these articles. They recognize the fact that companies of this character facilitate for them the carrying on of this trade, and place them in a position to reap the great benefits of the British market. Consequently, the stock is readily subscribed for in the agricultural districts.

So much is this trade growing that there is practically an unlimited field open to the Company. The chain of industries that will be carried on by it, places it in a most favorable position to meet the different demands and exigencies of the market from time to time. It is hard to imagine in this country any enterprise affording a more profitable investment for those having money to invest in commercial enterprises.

The directors, who are the following gentlemen, Messrs. James Middleton, M. Carton, Wm. Anderson, M.P.P., W. H. Jeffs, M.D., J. H. McClellan, Col. J. W. Miller, and the manager, Mr. George Carton, are to be congratulated on the success with which they are meeting.

The Sultan's Press Agent.

Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, believes that he needs a competent press agent, so he has engaged Joseph E. Morcombe of Cedar Rapids, Ia., to act in that capacity. Morcombe was picked up by Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, who was attracted by Morcombe's vigorous reports from Des Moines during the recent political convention. The Sultan thinks he is getting the worst of it in international diplomacy on account of the alert and complete methods of the Western nations in making their side of the story public. In view of the fact that American newspaper men are always at the front, Abdul Hamid sent instructions to Chekib Bey to select a good man and send him over. It will be Morcombe's duty to issue all official statements of affairs in the Turkish Empire, particularly troubles in which foreigners are involved. He will also censor all press matter sent from Turkey.

Sir James Watson

This eminent English physician is one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the respiratory organs

In a recent address Sir James Watson stated that the commonest of all disorders is Catarrh and that not one person in ten thousand passes this winter without an attack of some sort.

Sir James advises local treatment very strongly, and says it is all nonsense trying to treat Catarrhal diseases by stomach medicines, atomizers, douches and snuffs.

Local treatment is applied most scientifically by Catarrhozone, which is inhaled into the nose, throat and lungs, and drives the disease completely out of the system.

Catarrhozone is a rational, common-sense treatment; it clears the air passages, makes breathing easy, and relieves at once. Physicians prescribe Catarrhozone with gratifying results, and pronounce it a specific for Catarrh in any part of the system.

Mr. Thos. Cox, one of the most prominent citizens of Minden, Ont., says: "I want to recommend Catarrhozone. It is a nice, clean cure for Catarrh. Cured me perfectly, and is well deserving of a trial from everyone at all affected by Catarrh or throat trouble."

Mr. G. F. Fadden, of Royan, Que., writes: "In my opinion Catarrhozone is the only cure for Catarrh. I had the disease in its worst form, but only got relief from Catarrhozone. It cured me quickly and permanently, and I have no fear of the Catarrh ever returning."

The foregoing brief extracts, like thousands of others that the proprietors of Catarrhozone have received, prove that the proper remedy to use is Catarrhozone. It is quite different from the ordinary Catarrh preparation, and is warranted to prove entirely satisfactory. If it fails your money will be refunded, so if not benefited you won't be out of pocket.

All druggists sell Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, liquid for recharging, etc., costs $1.00; trial size, 25 cents. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

THE MAN IN THE STREET

Toronto, November 27th.

Mr. J. J. Dixon, Toronto, who is resident partner of A. J. Wright, of Buffalo and Toronto, member of the New York Stock Exchange and Chicago Board of Trade, was seen by the "Man in the Street," today in the palatial offices of the firm, which occupy half of an entire floor in the splendid building of the Canada Life Company on King street.

This firm represents the well known firm of Ladenburg Thalmann & Co., New York. Mr. Dixon, their representative here is a Toronto boy, and one of the brightest the city has ever produced, and there is no man in Toronto who has the good will and confidence of local investors to the same extent, than Mr Dixon. He has been in the stockbroking business for twenty-one years, and is very well liked by his numerous patrons. His advice is sought after very much. In fact, it is said on the Street that there has been more money made in the office of Mr. Dixon during the past year than in any other office in Canada. Mr. Dixon is conservative and is "bullish" only on the better class of New York stocks. His offices in the Canada Life Building are the largest and finest in Canada as to their appointments. They are well equipped with private wires to New York, Chicago, Boston, and other important stock-brokin centres. The office has a most complete local and long distance telephone service, composed of thirty phones. It may be surprising, but it is nevertheless fact, that this is the only Canadian firm which are members of the New York Stock Exchange. This is an important feature and one which is evidently very much appreciated by the firm's very large clientele.

Hurst & Wilkins is the name of a new stock-broking firm which will open for business in the "Mail and Empire" building on Monday next. Both members of the firm are bright, up-to-date, and thoroughly conversant with the stock and grain markets of the world. In conversation with the "Man in the Street" today, Mr Hurst said: "One cannot trade in the grain market successfully, unless one is conversant with the statistical side of the market. Close attention to the primary receipts and shipments, visible supply of the world, amount on passage, Argentine shipments, and condition of the cereal crops in all foreign wheat producing countries. These must be closely watched and compared with present years' statistics, all of which is concisely shown on the blackboard of this firm. The firm will also issue letters of credit to any part of the world and solicit the consignments of all cereals for which they will be at all times willing to pay market prices. A feature of this new office will be to post the grain markets direct from the wire by telegraph operator, thus overcoming the delay necessary in writing quotations

Their blackboard recording the arrangement of same is probably, without exception, the most complete and most concise, ever shown in Canada. One of the many inovations which the firm has introduced, is the placing of a large and handsomely designed trio of clocks—one large one, showing the local time and two smaller ones, showing the Chicago and London time respectively. Messrs. Porterfield & Co., whose agents the firm of Hurst & Wilkins are in Toronto have been established since 1852, and are members of all Eastern and Western Exchanges and considered one of the most conservative of houses. Mr. Hurst was for some years a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, and is consequently quite capable of securing good executions. His firm also offers unexceptional advantages for the trading in puts and calls on the grain markets This branch of the grain market is of great advantage in itself. The Rockford Morning Star in a recent edition said of Mr. Hurst: C. H. Hurst, who has recently left the Rockfort field in which he has been engaged for several years as a broker of grain and stocks, to locate in Toronto, Canada, has the distinction of being the oldest, in point of service of any broker who ever operated here He took charge of a business when it was badly run down and built it up to great institution. He was careful to get his traders on the right side of the market, one of his patrons making $11,500 in one month. Mr. Hurst also had the honor of leading a list of twenty offices in amount of business transacted He was a member of the 19th club, an Elk and has a host of personal friends who will regret his going away. The cause of Mr. Hurst's success here is due in large measure to his personal qualities. He won the confidence of the traders, and business came to him as a reward. His Rockford following will wish him good fortune in his new field where he should duplicate the success he earned here.

The Unpopularity of Whiskers.

Commenting on the fact that Governor Alexander Monroe Dockery has just divested his countenance of a celebrated and almost immortal set of whiskers, the New York "Sun" says: "The twentieth century is beginning somewhat as the nineteenth century began, though, of course, not so strictly and universally smooth, but it is doubtful if it will run parallel through all its quarters with its predecessor. There were no mustaches, no beards, when the nineteenth century dawned. Side whiskers began to curl and sprout before it had run far in its course, and they grew bolder after a time and encircled the throat and chin, leaving bare the upper lip. The lip was submerged about 1860, and in the later years of destruction was last to yield to the assaults of the barber. The human countenance began to exhibit itself again not long after the war, and from that time down to the very recent past the unsupported mustache was the prevailing mode. Now fashion is changing again, so that the young men are commonly completely shaved, and their fathers have covered lips. The youth of to-day have the weight of civilized precedent with them. An examination of the family albums of the last four centuries will demonstrate that the unwhiskered have had by far the better of it. For nearly two hundred years of that time the beard was not permitted to sprout. A great deal of encouragement for the shaven but ambitious young man may be found in the Presidency of the United States. From the beginning with Washington down to Lincoln's time whiskers found lodgment in the White House only three times, and in every case they were of the remote variety known as sideboards, which offered no considerable obstruction to the observation of the faces to which they were linked. John Quincy Adams presented a stubborn pair, Martin Van Buren's were amiable in their moods, and Zachary Taylor's were evidently the unobtrusive expression of a fancy for trimmings. Lincoln inaugurated the bearded era, which was carried on by Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur (with Dundrearys), and Harrison, though Harrison yielded not a little of his expanse before he retired from office. Cleveland was the first mustached President and Roosevelt the second, while McKinley preserved the tradition of the smooth face.

Already Provided.

A certain small village, far removed from the noise and bustle of commerce, boasts a female preacher, and the lady's duties are many. One day she may visit the sick, another attend a funeral, and the next baptize a baby. One afternoon she was preparing the sermon for the following Sabbath when she heard a timid knock at the parsonage door. Answering the summons she found a bashful young German standing on the step and twirling his straw hat in his hands.

"Good afternoon!" the preacheress remarked. "What do you wish?"

"Dey say der minister lifed in dis house, hey?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yess? Vell, I vant me to kit merriet."

"All right; I can marry you," she said

The lady's hair is beginning to silver and the German glanced at it. Then he jammed his hat on his head and hurried down the path. "What's the matter?" she called after him.

"You gits no chance mit me," he called back. "I don't vant you; I haf got me girl already."—"Modern Society."

A Lesson in Tact.

A few weeks ago, says James MacArthur in "Harper's Weekly," I quote some passages in these columns from a correspondence between the Brownings in the days of their early acquaintance on Carlyle's strong dislike of poetry. I have just heard of a new story on the same theme which is told by Professor Goldwin Smith. It appears that Professor Smith was once a visitor with Carlyle at Lady Ashburton's house when Tennyson was one of the circle at "The Grange." Tennyson was asked to read one of his own poems aloud, but, to the surprise and disappointment of his gentle hostess and her company, he refused—a thing he was never apt to do. Looking across the room, Professor Smith saw the cause of the difficulty. Close to Tennyson sat Carlyle, who was wont to make a universal sweep of poetry in its relation to common sense when aroused by the proximity of the Muse. Professor Smith, devoting himself to the public good, and, we may add, in courteous consideration of his hostess, crossed the room, and invited Carlyle to take a stroll in the grounds. The Sage accepted the invitation, and, during the stroll, the poet brought off his reading.

SULTAN ILL WITH CANCER

Rejects the Advice of a Doctor who Advises Operation

Vienna, Nov. 27—The sultan of Turkey has a cancer on his intestines, but there is no immediate danger, and he can drag on a painful existence for two or three years. His aggravated condition recently, brought on by extra exertions, caused him to call in a Munich doctor, who advised him to have an operation performed. Abdul Hamid refused to do so.

CHRISTMAS CANADIAN MAGAZINE

The coloured cover of special design, some seasonable stories and articles, many excellent drawings and coloured reproductions make the Christmas Canadian Magazine attractive. As a Canadian Souvenir to send abroad it is not equalled by any other Canadian publication. The Symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," by John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Walter C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin adds materially to its value as a souvenir to send to Great Britain. The two coloured plates of a Lake Huron Harbour by Moonlight, and an article on Toronto as a Typical Canadian City add to this value. With the exception of Sarah A. Tooley, who writes of Christmas at Sandringham, and Justin McCarthy, who contributes a story, all the contributors are Canadians. Price 25 cents; all booksellers.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure the gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Yankee Fishermen to be Rounded Up at Once

Vancouver, B.C., November 27—The Dominion Government cruiser Kestrel sailed yesterday at daybreak for Port Simpson to guard Canadian waters against poachers from the United States who fish for Halibut in Dundas Channel, and carry them to Katchikan. Thirty-three Seattle halibut fishing boats steamers and schooners are working out of Katchikan this winter, and half of them are illegally stealing fish out of Canadian waters.

By JETNA.

"FISHING! Why, yes, Jim. Heart and soul devoted to the gentle art. 'Twas a line and hook, with a fish at one end of it and a fool at the other, that secured me the dearest and sweetest of wives. Tell you about it? All right. Smoke up, old fellow! Oh, man, this log fire is cosy, but I would 'twere always summer!"

"That indicates otherwise," I interrupted, pointing to the luxuriant vine which thickly covered the fence outside the window, and was already showing some of its leaves tinged with red, though September was yet to come.

Yes, the "good old summer time" was going, with hurrying footsteps. Alas! 'tis with a pang most of us part with her, though winter has its attractions.

I was seated in the cheery smoking-room of my friend's house (such a pleasant home that is, by the way), watching the pale blue smoke, or rings, curl up from my favorite briar.

There were all manner of fishing rods and tackle in evidence; some valuable water-color sketches decorated the warmly-tinted walls; an exceedingly fine "cariboo head" mounted guard over the door; a few sporting prints flanked the wide, old-fashioned fireplace, with its dog-grate and blue and white tiling.

"What's that?" I asked, as I noticed a huge frilled pink cotton thing hanging from a peg in close proximity to the fishing rods. I was getting old, and it seemed to me that in the land of "long ago" I had seen such things—just the same—corded and puckered and frilled—a creel. No; they were of basket manufacture. I felt puzzled.

"That! Oh, that's my wife's gingham sunbonnet!" laughed Ned, and then I recollected in my boyish days we used to call them "kiss me if you can," for, faith! 'twould be a difficult task to get at rosy lips under the protection of that huge erection. I had a dim remembrance of trying—once—ah! she was a beauty! One doesn't meet that kind nowadays. The soft hair, guiltless of frizzing or pompadour puffs, the simply-made dress (the word "gown" was not used), the sensible "Have some soda water?" and my wits came back from their wool-gathering. I puffed out a volume of smoke. "Tell me about the sunbonnet, and the fish, and the girl, and—and everything," I said, leaning back contentedly in my armchair, for, you see, as I said before, I was getting old. It was time to forget my own by gone love affairs and take, or profess to take, the keenest interest in other people's. But (sotto voce) are they ever really forgotten? Some mind pictures the mist of years fails to dim. Better so; we would often be lonely enough if it were not thus.

"Well (puff! puff!), it all happened a year ago. We were holidaying on the Georgian Bay. I had come out to Canada with an Oxford chum (puff!), had had a nasty spill in the hunting field, and my broken bones didn't seem to knit properly, or something was wrong. A fellow hears so much nowadays of the Great Dominion—anyway, out we came, and after some touring found ourselves on an island in the Georgian Bay, enjoying its refreshing breezes.

"There were 'summer girls' there by the dozen—of course, all charming and pretty—but she—well, from the first minute I saw her it was all up with me (puff! puff!).

"She was balancing herself on the edge of a hammock, that pink thing tilted forward over her delicious little nose; then her eyes! Speak of 'divinely blue'! why, divine isn't in it as an adjective when used in describing her. Her voice—it thrilled like music to my heart."

I smiled, and told my friend not to waste precious time reciting poetry, which I already knew, for I was all anxiety to get to the "coup d'etat" of the story.

"Yes," he resumed, "I was awfully hard hit. There is a fatality in these things. Some men can stop and put on the 'drag' whenever they choose—back out of the field—but I—well! In spite of being formally betrothed since my boyhood to an English girl I liked in a lukewarm, sisterly way, I flung prudence, everything, to the winds and determined to lay my heart and hand at her feet. I say flung prudence, because a certain irascible old uncle whose heir I was supposed to be was set upon the match, Miss Conyers being a ward of his. Then she possessed a snug little fortune of her own, not the least of her attractions in his eyes. I notice moneyed folk love to attract more.

"What was she like? Oh! well, yes, beautiful in her 'splendidly null' way—cold, precise—why, man alive! she never made my heart jump into my mouth at her presence, however near. A glance from her pale blue eyes failed to make me feel anything except that maybe I wanted to throw an extra log on the fire. Finally, she had not made me 'fall in love with her.'"

"Just so," I murmured. "But it seems to me you found all that out pretty late in the day."

"Just so," he murmured between the whiffs of his cigar. "But a far-strained sense of honor wasn't going to make me miss the real thing, so—"

"So?" I queried.

"So I wrote to my uncle; told him how matters were with me. Touchingly begged him to remember he had had his day; that in all this wide world I'd found the one woman, 'and intended to hold her fast.' His answer? Oh! his answer was characteristic of himself. I was even a bigger fool than he deemed possible; that women were a mistake; he'd been wise to keep clear of them (he was jilted, poor old fellow!); that his jolliest friends were bachelors—a long rigmarole, winding up by affirming he would cut me off with a shilling if I committed the egregious folly of marrying a designing American."

"Ah!" I ejaculated, for the story was getting exciting, "but I take leave to differ from your uncle, worthy man. Women, I fancy, are a necessary evil—like one's liver. A mistake? Certainly not." (I felt myself smiling grimly; I was a jolly old bachelor, you see.) "But, go ahead."

"Well, we had some delightful weeks after that. We'd go off, whole parties of us, with Indian guides, to fish for bass—Crooked Lake, Gloucester Pool, Go-Home Bay—and get big hauls. The men of the party would often make a 'jackpot,' the lady who caught the largest fish getting the pool. The least experienced angler generally won, of course. Then we'd repair to a log cabin, where our guides cooked a ripping dinner for us, fresh fish being chiefly in evidence. Awfully good it tasted. There was a gasoline launch which puffed about, sometimes by moonlight—not alone."

"Umph! And had you popped the question?"

"No! Wait a bit. I had never been dubbed a coward, but somehow when it came to that I felt in a terrible funk. But she managed it."

"She!" I gasped. "Is that the way Americans have?"

"Listen! and learn. She knew by every word and sign and look that I adored her—trust a woman for that—and 'Shalleye' (that's my wife's name), like the plucky girl she is, for all her soft wiles and looks, was my helpmate in that as, bless her! she's been since we were married. Shalleye! Hasn't it a liquid, gurgling, musical sound? Something like the lapping, wish, swish of the water against the little Indian bark canoe? We have one in the attic—brought it over with us. Shalleye!"

I helped myself to another B. and S. I required it. Was it possible I should ever again advocate matrimony? "So she proposed to you?" I hazarded. "I have heard Americans——"

"My wife is a Southerner—from Virginia—and as sweet and modest as a Quakeress. It came about this way: We had been out in the launch in the twilight. They have little of that out there, by the way. All day my nerves had felt strung to their utmost tension. My uncle had taken it into his head to take a trip out to Canada, and would shortly shed the light of his countenance upon us. Our launch stuck in the bay—refused to move—which meant paddling, with difficulty, to shore and walking home through the woods. We scrambled along, quite an hilarious party in spite of our misfortunes. We, Shalleye and I, had lagged behind the others, and doubtless she had noticed my distrait manner. I had been telling her of my home-life, describing my uncle's fine old place, which, alas! thanks to that pig-headed old gentleman's unjust prejudice, was fated to fall into other hands than mine. My tongue seemed tied when I thought of that. I was a poor barrister, and in a 'mess' from which I felt there was no extrication. I was glad and sorry both when we reached the hotel. Shalleye sent me off to see if there were any letters. She saw, as clearly as if I had told her, just exactly how I felt. When I returned she was sitting on a rocking-chair, away by herself, on the verandah. The moon had vanished discreetly behind a cloud, but I could see the soft outline of her face. She stooped and whispered, oh! so softly, while she groped about, as if searching for something. 'Where can it be?' 'Have you lost anything?' I asked, stooping also. My hand touched hers. I wonder if she heard my heart beating like a steam engine. 'Please let me help you to look for it. Can't I?' I said.

"'I think so,' was the low reply. And then, more firmly, 'I've lost my heart.'

"'Lost—what?' I felt dazed, incredulous. Why, man, Ned! you can't have any idea of what I felt. And when she said again, 'My heart,' and looked up into my face, with the love-light shining in her dear eyes, I could not utter a word, but—it was all right—for weal or woe."

"Ah! beautiful!" I murmured. "But what about the fish, and the fool, and the pink sunbonnet, and—and everything?"

"Oh! that, of course—that's the postscript to the story. A good joke, too. As I told you, my worthy uncle came out to Canada. He blustered and used choice language when arguing matters over with me. Positively refused to be introduced to the 'designing American minx,' though I could see he was impressed by her beauty and attractiveness. So matters were at a standstill, when one fine morning a lot of us set off with rod and worm. He, being a keen fisher, could not refrain from joining us. While standing on a slippery rock, he hooked a huge bass, and at the very moment of playing it he was seized with his old enemy, lumbago. He dropped into about four feet of water, and got rather a ducking as well as a bad fright. Shalleye was near, and ran to his assistance, calling for help. He flung his rod to her, and she soon had the prize safely landed, for she had become quite an expert. It all happened by accident, but nothing could have been more effectual in melting the old fellow's heart. A carefully planned plot would probably not have been as successful. Then she was so sweet and kind to him that he fairly lost his heart to her there and then, and boldly kissed her, before us all, although the pink gingham sunbonnet was mounting guard. We hurried him off to get into dry togs, but not before he had confided to me that I might marry the minx and welcome, with his blessing, 'for Gad!' he added with a chuckle, 'she landed my fish for me. So I can't and won't stand in the way of her landing hers.'"

"All's well that ends well!" I said reverently.

"There's my wife's voice," said my host, "and the dressing-bell. Come along!"

Infant Marriages.

According to a recent census report, 143 boys and 187 girls under one year of age were married in India during a single year. The record during the same year for marriages of children under five years was 2,297 for boys, and 3,534 for girls. As a consequence of this state of affairs there were, at the time the census was taken, twenty-two widowers and twenty-seven widows less than a year old, and some 300 less than five years old. The evil results of this system have been so extreme and alarming among certain of the Hindu castes that a bill has lately been drafted in the Province of Baroda which limits the marriageable age at eighteen years for boys and fourteen for girls.

Fashionable Love.

Little Mary's big sister was engaged to Mr. Brown, who was away on an outing trip with Mary's brother. Her father was writing to his son and prospective son-in-law, and asked the little girl if she had a message to send to Mr. Brown.

"What shall I say, papa?" asked she.

"Why," said the father, "I believe it is the fashion to send your love."

Some minutes later her father enquired, "And what shall I say to Brother Tom?"

"Well," replied the little miss, with a sigh, "you may send my fashionable love to Mr. Brown and my real love to Brother Tom."—Philadelphia "Ledger."

HIGHBINDERS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Vancouver, Nov. 27.—Several important facts have been developed by the police investigation of the murder of Charley Sing at Steveston. The membership ticket of the deceased in the Chee Kung Tong, or Highbinder Society, has been found. It shows that Charley was a member and apparently in good standing of the society at whose meeting he declares he was threatened in Vancouver. Chief of Police Murchison of Steveston says that on a Wednesday Charley told him he expected men next day from Vancouver to kill him. He gave the names of Jo Hang, Young and Wong to the officer as the men, he said, amongst the Chinese by the nickname of "the hatchet boy" or the "axe-wielder." It was on the Friday morning following that Charley's throat was cut from ear to ear.

Charley Sing was killed at Steveston. The ticket is of pink cloth about seven by nine inches, and contains on its face the emblem of the society. This is a triangular figure, which is surmounted by characters apparently representing the association as being as everlasting as the sun and the mountains.

Sixteen years ago in Victoria this same Chee Kung Tong, or Highbinder Society, was described by Rev. J. V. Gardiner, a missionary to the Chinese, as an organization of blackmailers and murderers. The society was very strong in Victoria at that time. A Chinaman named Lum Hip was brought up charged with conspiring with the society to would or kill such persons as the society might name and order from time to time. Chief of Police Sheppard arrested the man, and a search of the latter's room resulted in the finding of a red document which was a warrant ordering his death of Rev. Mr. Gardiner, with a compensation of $500 to the murderer if the crime was carried out successfully. If the law overtook the murderer the latter's family was to get $5,000. This document was signed by the society which is today known as the Highbinders.

The attack has been organized against Mr. Gardiner because he had been instrumental in rescuing Chinese slave girls and the threatening letters sent to him recited that he had ruined the business of Chinese promoters of immoral houses in Victoria. The accused in the case was committed for trial, but at the assizes the prosecution failed to secure a verdict of guilty, although the presiding judge, the late Sir Matthew Begbie, charged strongly against the prisoner.

The Promised Diamond Dye Competition.

Open Only To Canadian Women and Girls.

A FOWL MATTER

The British Dealers Anxious for Canadian Poultry

Ottawa, November 27 — The Department of Agriculture has received a number of communications from British dealers who desire to purchase Canadian poultry. One of the dealers, Mr. Blackburn, wholesale fish market, Manchester, states that he would like to handle 2,000 cases of chickens per week. The prices offered, according to Mr. Hare, chief of the Dominion Poultry Division, offer substantial inducements to Canadian exporting firms to ship poultry to Great Britain.

Carlist Deputy Objects to Recognition of St Louis Expedition

Madrid, Nov. 27—In the chamber of deputies today a Carlist member interpellated the government in reference to the sending of the cruiser Rio de la Plata to New Orleans in connection with the St. Louis exposition, reminding the chamber of the "wrongs which Spain had suffered at the hands of the United States.

Senor Cobain, replying to the interpellation, said that the conclusion of a treaty of peace and amity had reestablished the diplomatic relations of the two countries, and as a friendly nation, the United States had invited Spain to participate in a festival instituted in the cause of civilization.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

"I th[illegible]

They were silent for a moment.

Outside, the wind moaned and shrieked.

A dense column of smoke was whirled against the window, then drifted upwards before it could be seen.

"I must have been mad, lately, but my illness has brought me to my senses at last."

She did not speak, only drew a quick breath; and he went on:

"You have been so kind to me, Lola, do not turn from me now; I love you!"

What could she say to him?

Was he speaking in earnest or in cruel mockery?

She was swayed by a wild conflict of feeling—her great love cried out to her to believe him, but she crushed back the passionate longing with a bitter thought that he spoke falsely.

He was making love to her only for idle pastime—to break the monotony of his present life.

He did not love her in reality.

"Won't you speak to me, Lola?" he said, trying to look into her face, that was averted from him. "Have I learnt to love you too late? Has my folly lost what I would now give the world to possess—your heart?"

"And Mademoiselle Rosalie?"

She scarcely spoke above a whisper but she could not stifle the sob that rose in her throat at the sound of the name of one who had caused her so much misery.

"She is nothing to me now. I was mad enough to dream I loved her, but you have taught me my folly. I was losing all life's sweetness in the vain grasping after what I could never reach."

"You love her still," she said, her tones vibrating with jealousy and pain.

"On my life, Lola, I do not."

He raised himself slightly, and gazed eagerly into her face.

"You have done so much for me, I cannot think you will be unjust now. Lola, my darling, you will not refuse me what I ask?"

"There is nothing I would refuse you, Dick. What is it you would have me give you?"

He lifted his arms, and drew her head down close to his.

"Darling," he whispered, "I ask you to give me what I cannot live without—your love."

"Do you really mean what you say?" she asked, joy transfiguring her features, while a happy, tremulous smile hovered on her lips.

"Yes—be my wife, Lola, my own sweet wife—will you?"

She bent down, until her lips met his, and that was answer enough.

After that, he lay very quiet and content, looking into her face with eyes beaming with love, while she talked to him with her voice trembling with a subdued happiness that made it wonderfully soft and winning.

"What is that?" Dick exclaimed, suddenly. "Look, Lola, look!"

She turned her face towards the window to which he was pointing, and, as she looked, all the laughter left her face, and her eyes dilated with terror.

"A fire!" she said, hoarsely. "Oh, Dick, Dick, my darling!"

A curling cloud of smoke and darting flames prevented her seeing into the street below; but the shrill shrieks of the women and children who were, no doubt, struggling to escape from a fearful death, rose above the roar of the fire.

Lola threw open the window, but recoiled as a mass of smoke and flame burst into the opened space, wreathing her in its searching clouds.

"They have forgotten us!" she cried. "Oh! Dick, what shall we do,"

In an agony of fear she ran back to him.

He was trying to rise, but the horrible smoke almost choked him, making him so weak he could hardly move.

"Don't wait for me," he said, "save yourself, Lola. Call out—make someone understand we are up here."

"I will not leave you, Dick. Besides, they must guess we are here; they all know you are ill."

With a frantic effort, he rose and opened the door.

There the same hot gusts were whirled into the room, but he knew this was their only way of escape, and he drew Lola to him.

"Go, Lola, my darling, make your way down the stairs, I will follow you."

"Hark!" she said, "they are calling us to the window. Quickly, quickly, Dick, come back!"

"It is too late!"

He folded his arms about her, as he uttered the despairing words, pressing her close to his breast as if to shield her from those hungry tongues of flame.

The fire had caught the little wooden table, and, as the oil in the lamp was ignited, all the room became one glare of shooting flames.

"Oh, my love, my love!" he cried, while the moisture gathered thickly on his brow, and his eyes sought hers with a wild terror in their depths. "My God! spare her this cruel torture! Poor little Lola—poor little love!"

Both knew the fearful fate that menaced them—no aid could reach them now—they must perish beneath the burning ruins which would soon fall on them, or, perhaps, die before that calamity happened; for they could not breathe long in this thick, scorching air.

"Come closer to me, my darling, lay your head on my breast," he murmured his voice sounding faint and stifled. "I would have died a thousand times to have saved you from this. But for me, you would never have been here. Forgive me, Lola."

She drew his face down and kissed him.

"Hush!" she said, her tones sweet and thrilling, even in that moment of horror. "I am quite happy, Dick. We are together. What is life or death to us—so that we be together still!"

Her voice died away in the whirl of flames and falling beams.

He bent over her and covered her face with kisses—he could not see her, his sight was blurred, but he felt the answering caresses she pressed on his lips.

He was growing dizzy and faint now, and only a great strength of will kept him from falling, and thus hastening his end and hers.

"As we are together now, so we shall be always, if God so wills it," he said, forcing the words through his blanched lips. "Can you hear me, Lola?"

"Yes, Dick."

"Yes, Dick."

The answer was spoken in a dying voice and borne vaguely to dying ears.

For one instant longer they stood there, amid the flames and the blinding smoke, then, locked together in a despairing embrace, both swayed and fell.

CHAPTER XXIII.

More than a week had passed since the murder of Sir Felix, and he had been laid to rest in the great marble vault near the church in which so short a time ago he had made Gretchen his wife.

At the time of the inquest, suspicion had fallen darkly upon Rosalie; but no evidence of guilt had been forthcoming, and the verdict was, "murdered by some person or persons unknown."

The deepest sympathy was expressed for Gretchen, who, in her trailing black robes, looked the very picture of despair and grief.

Since the tragedy had been enacted beneath that roof, she had not once left the house.

When, for the first time, she walked out on the terrace for a breath of fresh air, she was surprised to see Marc Wilberforce coming past the shrubbery towards her.

She went to meet him, her hand outstretched, her eyes seeking his with a strange eagerness.

One look into his face convinced her that, however much he had cared for her, he had quite mastered his feelings.

He was cold, almost indifferent, and his courteously-expressed sympathies failed to disguise the aversion with which her presence filled him.

"You must feel so bad, so lonely," he said, gently.

A mocking smile curved her lips.

"Yes, very sad," she returned, so softly that another than the man before her would not have noticed the irony which lay beneath her words.

"Have you seen the daughter, the girl of whom Sir Felix spoke?"

"No, nor do I believe in the existence of such a daughter. What right has this unknown circus-adventuress to claim kinship with Sir Felix? Do you know who she is, this Rosalie Errol?"

She spoke with rising passion, her eyes flashed with a sudden flame of wrath, and her hands clenched convulsively amongst the crape folds of her dress.

"No," he replied. "What is she?"

As he asked the question, there came into his mind the memory of the lovely girl, Rosy, who had sat for his pictures and whose sweet face had so strangely affected Sir Felix.

"Could that be the same Rosalie Errol?" he wondered.

"What is she!" Gretchen cried, through her clenched teeth. "What is she? You may well ask that. She is an adventuress—a circus rider—a girl who makes her fame by endangering her life in a den of lions; not knowing night by night, that the beasts will not feast upon her flesh!"

"Good God!" he exclaimed, a sudden horror seizing him. "Can it be that little Rosy has been driven to such a life?"

He remembered the girl's dauntless nature, her beauty, and her love of admiration, and thought it not improbable that she could have taken pay in Jim's circus.

Gretchen's voice, thrilling with suppressed anger, broke rudely upon his thoughts:

"They must all be mad!" she exclaimed. "Mad, to harbor, for a moment, the idea that this girl can have any claim upon Sir Felix. Can you not understand how impossible it is that she could be his daughter? What is there in her past life to give the faintest proof of her relationship to him?"

Marc made no answer.

The bitterness that sharpened her tones, and the fierce, glittering light in her eyes, made him almost recoil from her.

His heart was full of pity for the child who had been so long disowned, and Gretchen's outburst of unjust fury served but to heighten his sympathy for the innocent cause of her indignation.

Refusing Lady Errol's invitation to stay to lunch, he wended his way slowly towards the churchyard, where he knew the remains of the unfortunate Sir Felix had been placed.

He recalled his last parting from her, and the tender promises he had made during those hours they had spent together.

Her face, that, in spite of its youthfulness, had been so perfect in its beauty, rose before his eyes, and her voice, soft as silver chimes, seemed to ring on his ears.

"Poor little Rosy!" he murmured. "Poor girl! What a sad life your must have been! How you must have suffered since we last met!"

She had ceased to think of him, no doubt, by this time.

He lingered there for some moments more, then, with a sigh, turned from the tomb, and went quietly out of the churchyard.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions, or eczema:

January 29th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its recuperative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

Full information, descriptive matter, and all particulars may be had on application to G. T. BELL, G.P. & T.A. Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada. • R3

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,010,000, consisting of 2,010,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than the development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 100 to 650 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop our own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

$80,000,000 in Gold

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Dickens Holds His Own.

Does Dickens, it is often asked, really hold his own against the flood of modern stories which pours into the shops of the booksellers? Messrs. Chapman & Hall, his old London publishers, have been looking into their many years past these have averaged considerably over a quarter of a million copies annually, and that so far from there being any decline, the interest in Dickens and the consequent sales of his works are increasing every year. It would appear that the difference in the individual sales of Dickens's books is remarkably small, especially when one thinks of the long list of them. The least popular is the "Child's History of England," and, as might be supposed, the standing favorite is "Pickwick." During the past three years, however, there has been a great increase in the sale of the "Tale of Two Cities"—so much so that it would come first by many copies for those particular years. No doubt this is mostly due to the success of Mr. Martin Harvey's play, "The Only Way." While this piece—the story dramatised—was being performed in London there was a brisk demand daily for the book. Next to "Pickwick," the permanent favorite, judged by circulation, is "David Copperfield," and, indeed, there is not much to choose between the two. From them there is a rather considerable drop to "Oliver Twist" and the "Old Curiosity Shop," the sales of which have differed from each other only to the extent of three hundred copies.

Three other stories which may be ranked together are "Nicholas Nickleby," "Dombey and Son" and "Bleak House." "Little Dorrit" and "Our Mutual Friend" come along in company with "Martin Chuzzlewit," and the Christmas books not far behind. "Martin Chuzzlewit" is an illustration of the slightness of vicissitude that Dickens's books have shown. When it was published he declared that it was a hundred times the best thing he had done. But somehow the original sales were quite disappointing, and Dickens was really anxious as to whether the reading public was not forsaking him. Every year it improved its position, and if that were to be estimated on its whole sales—and not on those of the past three years only—it would probably come next to "Pickwick" and "David Copperfield." In his recent article on Dickens, Mr. Swinburne declared that "Great Expectations" was perhaps the best of his novels. On sales it comes fourteenth in the list, but the recent cheap edition has given it a very large vogue with the public. Generally speaking, the public demand for individual novels by Dickens is in harmony with the verdicts which literary opinion has pronounced upon them. In other words, the books of his which the literary critics have exalted are also most bought by the public.

Long Deferred Explanation.

Years afterward the man who refused the anesthetic and called for his violin, which he played without missing a note while the surgeons were sawing his leg off, was speaking of the incident to a friend.

"I got a good deal of a reputation for bravery out of the affair," he said, "and the papers all played me up as a hero, but I wasn't anything of the sort. I was afraid of chloroform, and at first I thought I'd keep the leg and take the chances. Then, all at once, I thought of my fiddle. You never heard me play the fiddle, did you?"

"No, I never did."

"Well, that made the surgical operation just nothing at all. Anybody that could stand my fiddling could stand any thing."—Chicago "Tribune."

King Rockefeller II.

An anonymous writer in the Boston "Transcript" declares that John D. Rockefeller's death would make no great difference as regards the future of his benefactions; for if ever a man had a son after his own pattern—mind and heart—he has. "John D. Rockefeller, jr., is a chip of the old block," continues the writer. "He is accessible. He has a pleasant manner. He goes to his office in the Standard Oil Building every day when he is in New York. He works hard and regularly. But there is the Rockefeller sphinx-like method in all that he does. He holds his father in great respect—in reverence, in fact. He has the same church creed. He maintains and conducts a large Bible class—with sincerity and a good deal of zeal. He keeps himself informed of the management of the great Rockefeller interests, benefactions, and all. He is a man of the most simple tastes and quiet life, and of few diversions. Yachts and great social display—he has none of them. He is the heir presumptive who is most seriously training himself for his great responsibilities and duties."

STOCK MARKETS

New York, 27—There was a strong tendency in the stock market at the opening. There was substantial buying for a crowd of shorts and the Pacifics Penna and S. P. acted quite satisfactorily. Leading bankers were practically unanimous in their ideas in this connection and the monetary situation was commented on favorably. The foreign advices were bullish. The Anth. stocks abroad were strong and higher. The railroad news continued favorable. Trade reports generally were regarded satisfactory. There was a lot of selling of Penna. and certain industrials by professional interests. The general market sought lower levels as the day wore on and there was considerable mixture in opinions. Many well informed traders were disposed to look for a traders' market the next few days. Outside stocks were quiet and steady.

New York, Nov. 27—We look for some improvement in prices this morning to reflect the continued buying for London account and rumored large gold engagements together with the feeling that the bear drive at the industrials was carried too far. Nothing unfavorable has developed over the holiday and labor troubles and the closing down of iron plants are now an old story. Probabilities that the call money rate will advance this afternoon will make traders conservative and should bring some reaction later in the day. There are strong bull points on U.P. S.P., S.R Sugar and Mo P., but on any advance in these this morning reasonable profits should be taken. We understand that the bears will temporarily refrain from aggressive operations against their stocks and will renew active operations against the market in the early part of next month. London continues bullish on Americans and the early market there was strong with prices 1-8 to 5-8 above parity with Wednesday's closing. Buy industrials on dips.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. Thus they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO., Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

BRAIN POWER

HOW IT MAY BE STRENGTHENED AND INCREASED

The brain is a great nerve battery that presides over all the powers and impulses of the human body.

Very frequently as a result of poor blood, it becomes enfeebled, and a general weakness of the entire system follows.

No remedy possesses the marvelous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases.

It contains an abundance of phosphates and iron which are essential to the formation of red, vitalizing blood; and in this way supplies the brain with extra power to perform its numerous and important duties.

Ferrozone is the best preparation for brain workers, and those inclined to a sedentary life. It improves the appetite, insures good digestion, regulates the bowels, and helps the stomach to do its work.

Lawyers, ministers, and those whose occupation entails much thinking and brain labor, will find Ferrozone of immense value, because of its power to stimulate mental activity. Students who take Ferrozone regularly, find it not only clears the brain and makes it more receptive, but makes them strong in body as well as mind.

A medical student of Toronto University, who has proved the good qualities of Ferrozone says: "On my study table there is always a place for Ferrozone. I find by keeping my digestion in perfect order, and maintaining a splendid appetite, it enables me to accomplish a great deal of hard work. I consider Ferrozone at the same time food for the brain, the blood and the nerves and can highly recommend it."

Very few are so strong and healthy that a course of Ferrozone would not benefit. It is good for the young and old alike, and is prepared in convenient tablet form, price per box 50cts, sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Managers will be held Monday at 3.30 p.m., and an interesting feature of the meeting will be the presentation of the report of the Triennial Convention held in Toronto last month.

The Late Mr. Lean

The Times extends its sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Lean, of North Burleigh, in the death of their son, Isaac Ernest, who passed away on the 20th inst., after a lingering illness. The deceased was not only esteemed but greatly beloved by all who knew him. He will live long in the remembrance of his many friends and acquaintances, who deeply mourn his demise. The particulars of Mr. Lean's death and obsequies will be found in another column.

LIVE LAKEFIELD LOCALS

Items of Interest From Our Pretty Northern Village.

—Great discussion is now going on as to the personnel of our Council for 1904.

—Miss Quinn entertained a number of her friends Tuesday evening.

—Mr. Patterson, of the Peterborough Cereal Works, was in the village on Saturday.

—The scholars of the different Sunday schools are now holding nightly practices for the Christmas entertainments.

—The work of putting in the stop-logs at No. 3 was completed Wednesday night. In doing this, a coffer-dam had to be constructed outside the weir.

—Mr James Dunn, an employe of the Cement Works, had the misfortune to have his right foot badly bruised last Thursday. A 300 pound casting, which he was assisting to elevate, slipped and fell, catching Mr. Dunn's foot. The injured member is doing nicely.

—Mr. W. L. Smythe left last Friday for his home at Pembroke, where he will spend the winter. Mr. Smythe was prominent in musical circles, and his many friends will look forward with considerable pleasure to his return in the spring.

—A special meeting of the Public School Board was held Wednesday evening. The members present were—Chairman, Dr. Duncan Fraser, Dr. J. R. Fraser, Messrs. R. Q. Dench, R. Stewart and Hilliard. The business before the trustees was the hiring of teachers for 1904. The present staff were re-engaged.

—The new wheel for Mr. Chas. Farrar's plant was placed by Mr. John Thompson last Thursday evening. Afterwards the water was let off the race and the rack enlarged by three feet, making it now ten feet in width. The representative of the News visited the power house last Wednesday and was greatly impressed by the many improvements. Power can now be furnished for double the number of lamps. The new light was turned on Wednesday evening and proved entirely satisfactory.

—Mr R. Finley, our local Chief of Police, served a summons at Peterborough last Friday on W. D. Edwards, of London, Ont., ordering him to appear at Lakefield, Monday, Nov. 23d, to answer the charge of peddling medicine about streets without having a license. The papers were issued by Police Magistrate Edmison, of Peterborough. Chief Finley had made several ineffectual attempts to see his man. But he hit upon a plan which he executed very cleverly. He went to the National Hotel, and inquired for Edwards. The landlord informed Mr. Finley that the medicine man would be in about 5 p.m. When Edwards came in from his rounds, the proprietor told him there was a gentleman in the house who wished some medicine. The peddler at once took his visitor upstairs to the bedroom. Edwards was rubbing his hands in great glee over a prospective sale, when the Chief abruptly told him that he had a summons for him. The vendor sprang into the air like a madman, exclaiming, "Ah! I recognize you now." The hearing took place in the Town Hall at the appointed time before Police Magistrate Edmison. Edwards admitted the sale of the medicine in question, but claimed that, as it was his own preparation and manufactured in Canada, he was quite within his right in acting as salesman of the same. The Magistrate reserved his decision till Tuesday, Dec. 1st.

MUSICAL ORGANIZATION

The Orchestra Under Mr. Gliddon Re-Organized

We congratulate Mr. Rupert Gliddon and the members of the newly organized orchestra on the splendid music furnished by the organization at the Pinafore performance last night and the night before. That the town possessed such an orchestra was a surprise to many.

Mr. Gliddon is busy preparing for the Albany Club dance, and will supply the most up-to-date music ever given at a function of this kind in Peterborough.

WILL LEAVE FOR THE WEST

Mr. Joseph Kidd Has Accepted a Responsible Position

Mr. Joseph Kidd, for many years traveller for Mr. B. F. Ackerman, town, has accepted a responsible and remunerative position with Messrs. Adams Bros., the well known harness manufacturers, Toronto, as their western representative, with headquarters probably in Calgary. Mr. Kidd will leave on Tuesday morning for Toronto and the west, and Mrs. Kidd will follow in the spring.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kidd will regret their departure from Peterborough, and will join The Times in wishing them every success in the future.

A CLOSE CALL

Mr. John Donnelly Nearly Killed at Grand Trunk Crossing

Mr. John Donnelly, who looks after the gates at the railway crossing on Simcoe street, met with an accident the other day that nearly cost him his life. He was attending to his duties at the crossing, when he was struck by an engine, and fell across the rail. The cowcatcher caught him and dragged him along the track for several yards. Only that the track was slippery he would have been killed, as he was pushed along on the rail.

Mr. Donnelly was fortunate enough to escape with a few bruises.

GAULT'S COMEDIANS COMING

Will Appear in the Opera House Here This Evening

Gault's comedians gave an entertainment at the Opera House Friday evening to a large and appreciative audience, and to say they gave complete satisfaction is putting it very mild, as the audience were in a roar from rise to fall of curtain. Special mention may be made of Mr. Gault, who does one of the most clever acts in ledgerdemain ever seen in his place. McDonald and Hoffman, the clever sketch artists, pleased everyone with their wit and songs. Mr. McDonald also made a decided hit with his coon shouting. New York's famous buck and wing dancer, won much applause. Taken all in all these people put up a fine entertainment, and are worthy of the patronage of everyone."—Chatham Banner

BIG BEND LUMBER COMPANY

Good Prospects for Concern in which Local Men are Interested

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder says: "Mr R. R. Hall, of Peterborough, who recently went to British Columbia to examine the Big Bend Lumber Company's property and prospects, has written to Mr. George Jordan of town, a director of the company, his impression of the proposition. Mr. Hall says that his best expectations have been exceeded by the property. He finds that the mill is the best in the mountains in that it is thoroughly up-to-date, of ample capacity, and located, as few mills there are, above high water, so that it can be operated all the year round. He finds, moreover, that the demand for lumber is very strong, at prices that yield a very handsome profit. Being 400 miles nearer the Canadian North-West, which is the chief customer for western lumber, than are the Coast mills, the Big Bend Company's mill will have a heavy advantage over them in freight rates. Besides that, the company's timber is not so large as that on the coast, and hence can be manufactured at from $2 to $5 less cost than that handled by the Coast mills. Mr. Hall has bought a very large block of the Big Bend stock. In his opinion Mr. Hall agrees with Mr. J. D. Flavelle, of town, who recently visited the mill, and since become a shareholder. Mr. W. Flavelle is a director in the company and a holder in it. Mr. Jordan is enthusiastic over the prospects of the Big Bend proposition."

Weather Notes

Fair and milder.

FORTUNE TELLING

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. There is many a woman whose future seems absolutely unclouded who is marked by her own condition for future disappointment and distress.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health may be retained or regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Dr. Pierce offers $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of the above diseases. His "Prescription" has been so successful in curing thousands of cases in the past third of a century that he makes this remarkable offer to show his confidence.

"I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes [illegible], of [illegible], Simcoe Co., Ontario, "and two vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets' as you advised for congestion of uterus, ovaries, and weakness, and can safely say that your medicine has been the means of restoring me to good health again, which I had not had for over three years, until taking your medicine. I thank you very much for your kind and prompt attention to my letter asking advice."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

MRS. COL. E. J. GRESHAM.

MRS. COL. E. J. GRESHAM, Treasurer Daughters of the Confederacy, and President Herndon Village Improvement Society, writes the following letter from Herndon, Fairfax county, Virginia:

Herndon, Va.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form, until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again.

"I noticed your advertisement and the splendid testimonials given by people who had been cured by Peruna, and determined to try a bottle. I felt but little better, but used a second and a third bottle and kept on improving slowly.

"It took six bottles to cure me, but they were worth a king's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth." —Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham.

Thousands of women owe their lives to Peruna. Tens of thousands owe their health to Peruna. Hundreds of thousands are praising Peruna in every state in the Union. We have on file a great multitude of letters, with written permission for use in public print, which can never be used for want of space.

Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for a book written especially for women, instructively illustrated, entitled "Health and Beauty." Sent free to women.

THE PROBLEM FOR THE EMPIRE NOT HOME, BUT FOREIGN DEFENCE

Says Premier Balfour, Colonies Must Aid--Is Bobs to Resign

The Empire Needs a Common Scheme of Defence in Which the Colonies Shall Share

London, Nov. 28.—Premier Balfour, at the United Service Club dinner last night, said the Empire defence problem was not the problem of home defence. The navy could deal with that. The problem was that of foreign defence. He did not think the people would "either shrink from sacrifices or be found inadequate to the greatest strain which patriotism may endure if only we can bring together the separate Government of which the Empire is composed, and have some common scheme of defence not depending on the War Office alone but drawing its strength from all the self-governing colonies."

Referring to conscription, Mr. Balfour declared against it. "In case the vast resources of great military powers were brought against this country we would have to depend not upon the army, but on the readiness of the population here or in the free colonies to join in opposing the aggressor.'

IS BOBS TO RESIGN?

London, Nov. 28.—Although no public announcement of the fact has yet been made, it is understood that Lord Roberts is about to resign as Commander-in-Chief. He has been much more ill than was generally known, is still abed and the condition of his health requires him to spend the winter in a southern climate, probably the Riviera.

The appointment of the Royal Commission to advise the Government concerning the creation of a board for the administrative business of the War Office, and the consequent changes involved, is generally regarded as foreshadowing the abolition of the post of Commander-in-Chief, or at least making the position largely ornamental, and Lord Roberts is understood to consider that his present ill-health offers an opportune excuse for his retirement, thus leaving the field clear for any changes which may be recommended for the King's approval by the commission. From the terms of the reference to the commission it is quite evident that it was appointed to find a practical mean of carrying into effect the recommendations of Lord Esher, a member of the War Commission, which were appended as a note, to the commission's report. Therein Lord Esher specifically urged the abolition of the post of Commander-in-Chief, and the appointment of a general officer to command the army, making him responsible to the Secretary for War for the efficiency of the military forces. His Lordship further recommended the establishment of an advisory and executive board, presided over by the Secretary of War, on the lines of the Admiralty Board.

Tokio Nov. 29.—It is stated in mandarin circles that the empress dowager is finding her days and nights harassed by the Manchurian question and the Kwang-Si crisis and has resorted to the gods for help. In fact, she has lately made a vow before the Buddha of Wan-Shou-Shan temple that if the affairs of the above-named provinces be satisfactorily settled by next November she will expend the entire money contributions remitted by the high officers of the crown at Pekin and the provinces—estimated at $8,000,000 in all—for the celebration of her seventieth birthday anniversary next year, upon building extra temples, beautifying the present ones and in doing other good works that may be pleasing to the gods.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—The flood which has caused so much damage here was the biggest since 1824. The intense [illegible] is causing much distress among the homeless and the dwellers in cellars. In the factory quarter 20,000 persons have been driven into the streets, many of them losing their all. The authorities are doing everything in their power to relieve the sufferers and there have been few fatalities. The destruction of property was heavy, especially at Cronstadt. The rafts and barges in the river were smashed and the live stock in the environs were drowned. In one cemetery the coffins were washed out of graves and floated away. Those which were recovered were reinterred haphazard.

The czar has donated 25,000 in aid of those who have been reduced to destitution by the floods.

Paterson, N.J., Nov. 28.—Samuel Dykstra, dead from a cat bite, was buried to-day from his home at 150 Franklin street, and the body was interred in Fairlawn cemetery.

Some days ago he shot in his yard a cat that had been bothering him for some time. The shot was from a rifle and the animal lay as if dead. To make sure, however, he walked over to it and gave the carcass a kick. He was startled when it jumped up and buried its teeth in the fleshy part of his leg.

Another charge from the rifle, however, ended its existence. He applied remedies to the wound. Sunday, however, he became so ill that he had to be taken to the hospital, where he died Monday night.

He was 31 years old, and leaves a widow and four children.

MARCH ON THIBET CHECK TO RUSSIA

London, Nov. 28.—The real object of the Thibet expedition is the frustration of Russian designs upon Thibet and India.

Russia, as is well known, is striving for political ascendancy at Lhassa, the capital, and any military favors granted her will open the door to a new line of invasion into India via the east border of Nepaul and Bengal.

Russia's recognized lines of advance from Samarkand and Bukhara to Cabul, and from Baku to Kandahar, are so well provided against that a third great possible line is the natural objective of Russia. Her military commanders have drawn up plans recording the possibilities of invasion through Thibet, north of Sikkim and Bhutan. The consent of China is a nominal matter.

For some time past Russian influence has been working in this direction. Lord Kitchener has stayed on at Simla beyond the ordinary duration of time and season to deal with the frontier problem.

With the expedition it is hoped at the outset to enforce the trade agreements made with India in 1890, which are now ignored by Thibet. These treaties were the result of the expedition in 1888 under Brig.-Gen. T. Graham, R.A.

When this matter has been satisfactorily adjusted, it is desired to rouse the Thibet Government to a sense of its own interests, and to secure the organization of the forces against aggression. Thibet would thus become an organized buffer State against an invasion of India.

MILITARY BASE.

The nearest military station, the base for the expedition, is Darjeeling, in the Bengal Presidency, which is part of Sir A. Gaselee's command. The Northern Bengal Mounted Rifles will be employed together with other native troops from Bengal. The Thibetans have no artillery, but possess a proportion of old rifles, and the peasants of the interior are bowmen.

The country through which the expedition will move is very difficult and hilly, and it has been decided to utilize the domestic yak as a transport animal. This beast is a short-legged, hairy-coated species of ox, and travels at the rate of twenty miles a day when used as a pack animal.

The Russian influence at Lhassa is said to have taken practical effect from 1890, when Col. Pevtsoff entered Thibet with an expedition and succeeded in upsetting the old ideas of Chinese domination. After that date our trade relations with Thibet became disturbed, and one caravan was completely cut up.

The discovery of the Russian plans has been a source of considerable anxiety. The Thibetans are nominally under the Chinese, and the latter being dominated by Russia, the influence reaches the lamas, or reigning priests in double form.

Thibet threatens to become another Afghanistan, with Lhassa as Cabul, unless the ascendancy of the Russians can be checked, and the native Government made to see that its best security lies in co-operative defence with India.

Russia Against Britain

Hong Kong, Nov. 29.—All the Hong Kong journals advocate the immediate building of the Hong Kong-Canton railway. In referring to the employment of Belgian capital to build the railway from Pekin to Canton, the China Mail says the Belgians are merely stalking horses for Russia, and when the Liuhan railway is finished, Russian influence will dominate central and southern China, while the French from Tonquin will push their railway along the West River Valley, and join the new line at Samshui, thus destroying the British claims of influence in Kwang Tung.

HUBBARD PARTY PROBABLY NOT LOST

Missionary at Missanable Scouts Idea sa Absurd

RELATIVES OF THE GUIDES

With the Habbard Expedition Believe They are Hunting in the Interior

Missanabie, Lake Superior, Ont., Nov. 29.—Rev. Fred. Swindlehurst, missionary in charge of the mission at Missanabie, is of the opinion that the expedition headed by Leonidas Hubbard, sub-editor of Outing, is not lost in the wilds of Labrador, as has been reported. He says that the relatives of one of the half-breeds, who accompanied the expedition have been here and though they have received no news from the young man they scout the idea that he and his party are lost. They are inclined to the opinion that they have gone to the Hudson Bay post at Nitchakewan, situated in the heart of Labrador.

"During the course of my missionary work," says Mr. Swindlehurst, "I have met Indians from this far away post. Should the expedition have gone there, it will be utterly impossible to hear from them until next June, unless they come out to the coast before that time. Mail for the post leaves Rupert's House in July, reaching its destination in September. The replies to these letters come out in the following June. It is very probable that these adventurers, who are supposed to be lost, are enjoying themselves hunting the game that is so plentiful in those regions. That the expedition is lost seems hardly probable, since the sub-editor of Outing must have taken guides, and to talk of these men losing themselves in the bush is very absurd. Unless cut off by famine we will, no doubt, hear from them next June."

Well Deserved

The immense value offered by The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal this season is meeting with the success the publishers deserve. Their pictures—"Heart Broken" and "Hard to Choose"—are beautiful, and their other premium coloured map of Canada is up-to-date. It is the biggest dollar's worth in Canada to-day. The Family Herald is securing thousands of new subscribers by their generous gifts this year; in fact, few homes will be found without that great paper and beautiful premiums when one dollar secures so much.

KING HONORS LORD MAYOR

London, Nov 28.—King Edward has conferred a baronetcy on Sir J. T. Ritchie, the new Lord Mayor of London, in commemoration of his recent entertainment of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy at the Guildhall.

NEW FISHING COMPANY

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—A company of Canadian and United States capitalists has entered into an agreement with the Government of Newfoundland whereby it will receive from the Government a bounty upon every ton of fish taken in Newfoundland and exported to the Dominion and the United States. The company will begin operations next summer. In addition to fresh fish, the company will deal in cured boneless fish and manufacture the refuse into by-products, such as of glue and fertilizer.

HUMAN LEG IN JUNK PILE

Boys Dig Up Murder Mystery for Kokomo Police to Solve

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 29.—Kokomo boys dug up in a junk pile to-day a human leg, apparently that of a 14-year-old girl. Near by was found the clothing of a young woman, including shoes, skirt, waist and coat.

Officers are investigating the case on the theory that it is a murder mystery.

TO COMMIT MURDER

Hemmingford, Nov. 29.—Frank Miller, a well known farmer, living five miles east of here has had a remarkable experience. A man knocked at the door of his house about seven o'clock on Wednesday night. Mr. Miller opened the door and was shot at. The unknown then ran to the back of the house and shot at Mrs. Miller through the window.

Fortunately the bullets missed them both. Not satisfied, he set fire to the outbuildings, burning two large barns and two stables, also ten head of cattle with a large quantity of hay and grain and farm implements.

AFTER FOUR TRIALS

Was Acquitted on the Charge of Manslaughter

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 29. — The fourth trial of Geo. Gillman Alberton for manslaughter in killing Archibald Graves on January 17th, 1902, resulted this morning in his acquittal. The case is perhaps unequalled in Canadian justice. On the first trial Alberton was found guilty and sent to Dorchester for seven years. In the course of a few weeks his counsel, Mr. McQuarry, had the conviction quashed on the ground that improper evidence had been introduced. In the second and third trials, the jury disagreed and in the fourth he has been acquitted.

COLOMBIA APPEALS FOR AID

President Marroquin Wants South Africa to Make Common Cause

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 30.—President Castro has received a long cable despatch from President Marroquin of Colombia, in which Marroquin asserts that the secession of the State of Panama was not inspired by "sacred sentiment," but was due to personal interests. It is pointed out that the cause of Colombia is the cause of all the South American republics and that Columbia expects the assistance of her sister republics.

President Marroquin asserts finally that the Columbian Government will resist by all possible means the separatist movement, regardless of the loss of life and the expense involved.

IS IN GREAT LUCK

Purchases Land in Texas for Little or Nothing

Austin, Texas, Nov. 29.—Jas Lane Allen, novelist, has suddenly become a millionaire, through a chance investment of four hundred dollars in the Texas oil fields. Some time ago he acquired a tract of 160 acres of land, situated in Southeast Texas. Land there was worth less than five dollars an acre, and was practically of no use except for pasturage. A few weeks ago a gusher oil well was brought in at Batson Prairie, within a mile of Allen's land. The new oil field has been the scene of the wildest excitement since then, and a town of a thousand people has sprung up at Batson Prairie. Land values are increasing daily. Allen could sell his entire tract at three thousand dollars per acre, but is holding it for four thousand dollars an acre.

NO REVOLUTIONARY SPIRIT

Dissatisfaction in Danish West Indies However

Copenhagen, Nov. 28.—The Government officials deny the reports published abroad of a revolutionary movement in the Danish West Indies in consequence of dissatisfaction with the commission's recommendation on the subject of improvements in the islands. That dissatisfaction exists is admitted, and the departure of the new Governor of St. Thomas for his post was hastened in hopes that fuller explanations of the commission's report might lessen the dissatisfaction, and so that the Government might, at the earliest possible moment, be in full possession of the situation. The Government fully realizes the great difficulty of legislation and of helping the islands to their satisfaction.

A CLEAR ADVANTAGE

Freight from Liverpool to Toronto Costs No More Than from Pittsburg

German Government is Discriminating Against Britain

London, Nov. 27.—As freight charges from Liverpool to Toronto are no higher than from Pittsburg to the same point, a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette urges British motor-makers to take advantage of the preferential duties and send motor cars to Canada.

EMIGRATION RESTRICTION.

London, Nov. 27.—It has been learned regarding the reported restrictions placed on emigrants by the German Government to throw the emigration business out of the hands of the British steamship companies and confine it to tickets were prepaid for Canada via

FOR CONSCIENCE SAKE.

London, Nov. 27.—On one of the leading morning papers have been compelled to leave because they refused to write in support of Mr. Chamberlain's policy.

Rome, Nov. 27.—Demonstrations against Austria, resulting from the prohibition by the Austrian Government of the institution of a free Italian University at Innsbruck, were continued throughout Rome today, but were at all points broken up by the police, who gathered in large numbers, especially around the Austrian Embassy and Austrian Consulate, against which the chief efforts of the [illegible] were directed. The crowds even invaded the public promenade in the gardens of the Pincio, and compelled the band to play the Royal March, which was greeted with applause.

At the university the students to the number of about 10,000 held an indignation meeting, and then decided to make a demonstration in the streets of the city. The police were prepared for this, however, and as soon as the students emerged, the police attacked them, compelling them to re-enter the university. The students showed their indignation by breaking the windows and furniture of the class-rooms. The authorities have decided to close the university until order has been restored.

An anti-Austrian demonstration was held at Turin, where the demonstrators rang the bells of the university, broke the windows and benches, and exploded firecrackers, producing a slight panic. Similar demonstrations were held at Milan, Parma, Padua, and Genoa.

The Government has determined to suppress these demonstrations at any cost, as it wishes to avoid complaint from the Austrian Government.

Later the demonstrations assumed a grave character, and the Government has stopped the delivery of all telegrams sent in cipher. All over Rome the cry is, "Down with Francis Joseph; let us break the Triple Alliance.'

At Genoa the demonstrators succeeded in reaching the Austrian Consulate, where they shouted the most hostile cries.

DISMISSED FOR BRUTALITY

Bavarian Officers Must Treat Their Men Better

Munich, Nov. 26.—The Bavarian Chamber of Representatives has unanimously voted a resolution requiring the dismissal from the service of all officers or non-commissioned officers found guilty of ill-treating soldiers, and the War Minister, General Baron von Asch, has approved the resolution, declaring that the Bavarian army authorities are already conforming with the spirit of the resolution, and have even dismissed two officers who did not exercise necessary watchfulness. The Minister approved summary treatment, especially in the case of brutal non-commissioned officers.

AGAINST ACETYLENE GAS

Jury Enquires into Death of A. B. Weir at Ridgetown

Ridgetown, Ont., Nov. 27.—The inquest into the death of A. B. Weir, who was killed by the explosion at the Lozar House on the 11th instant, was continued here yesterday afternoon.

Robert Howe, inspector of the Fire Underwriters Association, went fully into the tests made by the association before a machine was passed. He claimed the machine used in the Lozar House was different from the one passed for the firm by the underwriters.

After being out for three hours, the jury returned the following verdict:

"That the said Alex. B. Weir came to his death through the explosion at the Lozar House, Ridgetown, on Nov. 11, 1903, caused by an escape of acetylene gas through the 'U'-shaped water seal on the machine manufactured by Beattie and Whitman, and contributory negligence on the part of the attendants. We further find that the machine was not constructed in accordance with the plans, specifications and model of the original passed by the Canada Fire Underwriters Association. We strongly recommend the Government to pass an Act of Parliament to enforce the installation of acetylene gas machines in isolated buildings and place them under Government control.'

SENTENCED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 29.—Arthur Hewitt, Tom Kating and Gus Parker, the ringleaders of the mutiny at Leavenworth some time ago, have agreed to plead guilty to murder in the first degree on condition that they would not receive the death sentence. They were allowed to enter their pleas and were sentenced to life imprisonment.

COAL ON THE COAST

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 30.—J. B. Ferguson of Vancouver, says he has discovered a seam of anthracite coal in the southeast of Kootenay, 500 miles from Vancouver, 45 feet wide. Anthracite is now $15 a ton here. The find is alongside the railway track. Ample capital has been offered to develop the property.

A REDUCED CUT OF LUMBER

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Many of the sawmills of the Ottawa district have closed for the season. Notwithstanding the activity which has prevailed, it now appears that the cut of the season is quite below that of recent years. This reduction is estimated by experts to be at least 10 per cent. The output at Booth's mill at the Chaudiere is stated to be from 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 feet less than last year.

CANADIAN CLUB OF BUFFALO

Buffalo Nov. 29.—The first meeting of the season of the Canadian Club of Buffalo, was last night for the purpose of organization, and plans were discussed for the club's annual banquet, to be held some time in January. The following are the officers—President, Dr. McClellan Pomeroy; secretary, Gordon A. Matthews; treasurer, C. N. McMichael.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER FAILED TO MAKE REPLY

Senator Fairbank's Suggestion that the Joint High Commission Resume Its Sittings Was Not Even Acknowledged

Washington, Nov. 28.—Much interest was excited yesterday by Representative Payne's speech, in which he put the blame for the failure of the administration to make any move in the direction of Canadian reciprocity upon the Canadian Government. According to Mr. Payne, Senator Fairbanks, the chairman of the American members of the Joint High Commission, immediately after the decision of the Alaska Boundary Commission was announced, attempted to bring about another meeting of the Joint High Commission, for the purpose of discussing reciprocity and other matters on which no agreement could be reached as long as the boundary question was pending. Mr. Payne said that Mr. Fairbanks had written to Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggesting that a date be fixed for the meeting of the Joint High Commission, but no reply to this letter had ever been received. Mr. Payne attributed Sir Wilfrid Laurier's failure to answer this letter to "soreness" over the Alaskan boundary decision.

The matter became the subject of general conversation among the members of the House, and much surprise was expressed at the apparent rudeness of Sir Wilfrid in failing to take any notice of the letter from Senator Fairbanks. The general opinion seemed to be that there had been some mistake, and that the Canadian Premier had not intended to affront the American chairman.

Senator Fairbanks would not discuss the matter for publication.

MR. STRATTON ISSUES AN EDICT

The License Inspectors Must be More Careful Hereafter

Toronto, Nov. 24.—The Provincial Secretary's Department has issued to the License Inspectors of the Province an important circular with regard to thirty-day permits. Under the statute inspectors are permitted to issue such permits in case of a hotelkeeper desiring to immediately transfer his license to another party. Thus the latter is not obliged to wait until the monthly meeting of the License Commissioners before obtaining possession, although the transfer must be finally ratified by the Board. It has been found that undesirable persons obtain permits in this way, and by immediately spending money on the premises render it difficult for the Board to cancel the permit at the expiration of thirty days.

The circular advises more care in the public interest as to the character of those to whom transfers of licenses are made, and to that end it is suggested that it is inadvisable to continue the issue of thirty day permits, and that an application for a transfer should wait until the Board has had a full opportunity of considering the application and all the surrounding circumstances before he is allowed to exercise in any way the privileges of a license.

Moreover, when an application for a permit or provisional consent is made, the License Board should, in every case, be notified and in every case the reason fully reported before any such permit is given.

Make Full Enquiries

Inspectors are directed in every case to make the fullest enquiries as to the fitness of the applicants, and especially to obtain from the inspector of the district in which the person who is seeking the license or transfer resides, a written statement as to the fitness of any such applicant so far as known.

The Minister, it is stated, is extremely anxious in every way to improve the administration of the liquor laws, and to this end it is absolutely necessary that only the best class of men available for the purpose shall be entrusted with licenses, as it is only that class that can be relied upon not to violate the law.

Illegal Selling

The attention of Inspectors is also called to the fact that there is much complaint of Saturday night and Sunday selling. This practice is not only utterly illegal, but it is entirely opposed to the sentiments of the public and must be stamped out. Inspectors are urged to exercise the utmost vigilance to prevent violation of the law, and to prosecute those guilty of the infraction of it.

Death to African Slavery

The news from the Central Soudan last week shows that the European Powers are at last in effective possession of all areas in Africa which for many years supplied the markets of Turkey, Arabia, Persia, Morocco and Tripoli with slaves. Not until now have the whites been in a position entirely to suppress this export trade in slaves.

To-day, however, they command the entire field of supply and there is no doubt that this traffic has received its deathblow. The latest area of slave influences is that which furnished bondmen to Morocco and Tripoli.

Slave raiding for the benefit of outside markets has little to do with domestic slavery in Africa, which is likely to continue for many years. The Germans are the only people who, as yet, have taken any steps to abolish domestic slavery.

Less than two years ago regulations were adopted for German East Africa to enable slaves to purchase their freedom, to require masters to give all bondmen one-third of their time in which to work for themselves, and also to compel them to care for slaves in sickness and old age.

This is the first step in the policy adopted by Germany, whose ultimate object is the abolition of domestic slavery in German East Africa. The institution of domestic slavery is deepest rooted in the lives and the customs of the natives and many will doubtless be required to put an end to it.

The German explorer, Reichard, estimated that 10,000,000 blacks are held in bondage in Africa. This may be an exaggeration, but slavery certainly permeates every part of barbous Africa, and slaves are more numerous in many tribes than free men.

The redeeming feature is that it is the mildest type of bondage. As a rule, the slave is well treated. It has been said repeatedly that less work was required from the slaves on native plantations of the upper Congo than is usually done by the free natives.

These barbarous tribes cannot be judged by our standards. One of the most competent observers in East Africa says that if the slave "is well fed, well clothed, and is permitted to marry to his liking, he soon forgets that he has a father, mother, sisters or children."

It has been held that the Boers held many Kaffirs as slaves and that this was taken into account in the recent war. The Boers denied this, however, and said such statements were made to strengthen the weak position of the British.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 20th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Richard's Title.

The use of titles is becoming more and more common in the transaction of corporation business, says the "Electrical Review." One man of affairs had this brought to his notice the other day in an unusual manner.

He found on his desk a memorandum that a certain man had called to see him, and had left word that he would return later. The information was signed, "Richard Emerson, O.B."

"Richard Emerson? Richard—why, it's Dick."

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room —, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

6. That N. Payne be allowed $30 compensation for roadway through his property in Dummer while the new Paynes Bridge was under construction.

7. That Henry Crows be allowed a rebate of $15 on his current year peddler's license.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. A. PECK,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Mr G. W. Fitzgerald presented the following report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges—

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Roads and Bridges, recommends—

1. That Wm. Trennum be paid the additional sum of $11.38 for timber supplied by him and used in connection with the construction of the new Gannon's Narrows Bridge.

2. That the report of the Joint Committee meeting held at Pigeon Creek bridge on October 9th, 1903, be received and adopted.

3. That the report of the Joint Committee held on August 17th, 1903, in reference to the necessary repairs to the Wallace Point Bridge, be received and adopted.

4. That the communication from the County of Victoria in reference to the Kinmount Bridge, be received.

5. That the communication from the Canada Company in reference to the land on which the end of the Mud Lake Bridge rests be left in the hands of the warden to report on the matter at the January session of this council.

6. That the county acknowledge the receipt of $1,000 from the Ontario Government and $300 from the Township of Harvey to assist the county in the construction of the new bridge at Gannon's Narrows.

7. That the statement of expenditure on the new Payne's Bridge in Dummer be received and adopted.

8. That the pay sheet of $79.95 for repairs to the Buckhorn Bridge be paid.

9. That the account of $14.78 for gravel for approaches of Mud Lake Bridge be paid.

10. That a special grant of $100 be made to Wm. O'Leary for services on the new Gannon's Narrows Bridge.

11. That Mr. O'Leary be authorized to cut the Mud Lake Bridge in two or three places so as to guard against the breaking up of the bridge by the ice in the spring.

12. That J. H. Pallin's account for removing driftwood from Evans and Armstrong's bridges be paid.

13. That the account of Stephen Murphy for repairs to Indian River Bridge be paid when certified by Mr. Maloney.

14. That the account of W. Hamlie for repairs to Allandale Bridge be paid.

15. That the account of Mr. M. Weir for repairs to Keene Bridge be paid.

16. That the pay list for repairs to Evans and Keene station bridges be paid to the Township of Otonabee.

17. That the repairs to the approach to Buckhorn Bridge be left in the hands of Mr. Shaw with power to act.

18. That a reward of $10.00 be paid to any person or persons giving information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who stole the timber, etc., of Chemong Lake Bridge belonging to the county.

19. That the statement of expenditure on the floating bridge at Gannon's Narrows be received and adopted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

G. W. FITZGERALD,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

PETITIONS.

Mr. T. M. Hunter presented the following report on the Committee on Petitions —

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Petitions recommends—

That a petition be forwarded to the Ontario Government, asking that Section 14 of the Municipal Amendment Act, 1903, be rescinded, as it is the opinion of this council that the majority of the ratepayers throughout this county are in favor of the present system of county government as it is less expensive to the public and more advantageous to the several municipalities in the county than the system proposed by the above mentioned section.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

T. M. HUNTER,
Chairman.

By-laws were passed confirming the report of the Finance and the Road and Bridge Committees. A by-law authorizing the borrowing of $5,000 for current expenditure was passed.

SCHOOLS.

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Schools recommends—

1. That the petition from J. J. Ladley in reference to a new school section in the Township of Anstruther be referred to the county school inspector, he to report at the January session of this Council.

2. That the communication from the Campbellford Board of Education in reference to the fees of pupils attending the Campbellford High School be received.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

W. T. CURTIS,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald moved a vote of thanks to the Warden for the very partial and capable manner in which he had presided over the meetings. Mr. Johnston seconded the motion, which was heartily approved.

Warden Crowe expressed his appreciation of the motion. He hoped to be spared another year in the council. He had been pleased with the very harmonious way in which business had been conducted.

The council on motion adjourned.

The late discovery in strawberries of salicylic acid, a specific in acute rheumatism, has seemed to confirm the idea that these berries are a desirable article of food for rheumatics. The effect of the fruit cannot be due to the salicylic acid, however, as less than the hundredth of a grain per pound is found.

"I don't understand how E. H. Harriman got up about two weeks after his operation for appendicitis," said one of a group at the club, "when it took me six weeks to get on my feet."

"Oh, well, your time was not so valuable," etc., from the crowd. Meanwhile the doctor in the group had been silent.

"You heard, of course, what they found?" he ventured. General interest—

"Why, the appendix was full of undigested securities, and all they had to do was to cut the coupons off."

WERE NOT DREAMERS

Interesting Announcement by Sir Wm. Ramsay

Theory Proven That One Element Can be Transmitted Into Another

London, Nov. 23.—The theory of ancient alchemists that one element could be transmuted into another, at which they painfully worked in clumsy efforts to turn baser metals into gold was no dream after all. Sir Wm. Ramsay, the well known scientist and professor of chemistry at University College, London, in a lecture before the London institution, made the sensationally interesting announcement that his experiments with radium had shown that that mysterious element has the power of changing by some subtle process into another element, namely helium. He described how a long search into the problem of what becomes of the minute particles with which radium is always parting was quite lately rewarded. Besides its other manifestations, radium constantly gives off an emanation, which seems to behave in all respects like a heavy gas. It can be collected in tiny flasks, measured, weighed and used to display the characteristic properties of radium but it is not permanent. In about a month it entirely disappears. The question is What becomes of it? Sir William has caught this emanation in the act of vanishing. He found that after it had been collected a couple of days its spectrum, which previously was entirely unlike any yet studied, began to display the typical yellow line of helium. In four or five days the helium lines grow brighter, and in another week the spectrum of the helium was positively blazing in the hermetically sealed tubes that had been filled with the pure emanations or gaseous output of radium. In other words, one element had been literally seen to change into another. This realization of one of the oldest of human dreams was, says Professor very suggestive of the transmutation. The problem might not be actually solved, but it was by no means absurd.

Prof. Ramsay calculated that if radium turned into helium and nothing else it would take two million years to dissolve into gas, but if helium is only one of the substances given off the transmutation would be proportionately shorter. He is now investigating to learn precisely how much helium was produced from the radium, what happened in the change, and how long it took.

He pointed out that several groups of elements linked together by Mendeleff's periodic law, showed a remarkable similarity of properties, tending to suggest that the accepted elements were not the final forms of matter, and that they were ultimately reduced into a few simpler forms. He asked if the world was on the verge of some great generalization, showing that all the so-called elements were merely aliquative forms of one or two fundamental kinds of matter.

Prof. Ramsay said that Professor Rutherford and Soddy were co-operating with him in his investigations. He incidentally remarked that the price of radium had increased tenfold in the last six months owing to the action of the Austrian Government, which had created a corner therein by refusing to allow further exports of refuse from the Uranium Oxide Works at Joachimthal. As a result the nominal price of radium is about $350,000 for one-fifteenth of an ounce.

Among a number of other interesting points the lecturer showed the power of radium to make certain minerals and chemical compounds luminous. Prof. Ramsay subjected a piece of the mineral willemite to the "bombardment" of radium particles, whereupon it shone brightly.

Creeps Like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh and prevents the disease from spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a common-sense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession and all intelligent pharmacists.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone, $1.00. Trial size, 25 cts. Sold by druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

BITE OF CAT PROVES FATAL

Attacked Man When he Kicked it to See if it was Dead

Paterson, N.J., Nov. 24.—Samuel Dykstra, dead from a cat bite, was buried today from his home at 150 Franklin street, and the body was interred in Fairlawn cemetery.

Some days ago he shot in his yard a cat that had been bothering him for some time. The shot was from a rifle, and the animal lay as if dead. To make sure, however, he walked over to it and gave the carcass a kick. He was startled when it jumped up and buried its teeth in the fleshy part of his leg.

Another charge from the rifle, however, ended its existence. He applied remedies to the would. Sunday, however, he became so ill that he had to be taken to the hospital, where he died Monday night.

He was 31 years old, and leaves a widow and four children.

Butter Act o 1903.

Circulars from the Department of Agriculture call attention to the fact that the butter act of 1903 prohibiting the manufacture, importation or sale of oleomargarine, butterine, adulterated butter or process butter, prohibiting the improper marking of butter and a greater percentage of water than 16 per cent., is now in force. The penalties for violations of the act range from ten dollars to four hundred, according to the gravity of the offence.

The department points out the following pressing needs of the Canadian creamery buttermaking industry :—

(1) Better constructed and more sanitary creamery buildings.

(2) Improved refrigerators at the creameries where the temperature can be kept at least below 36 degrees Fahr.

(3) Delivery of the cream in a fresher and sweeter condition where the cream gathering system has been adopted.

(4) Stronger and neater finished packages for export butter.

(5) Heavier and purer vegetable parchment paper for lining packages.

(6) Frequent and regular shipment of butter from the creamery to a cold-storage warehouse where lower temperature can be secured.

(7) Greater precaution in transferring butter from the creamery to the cars to prevent it from becoming unnecessarily heated.

Cream That Will Keep.

I will give our method of making a fancy cream, which will keep for weeks without souring, in a very few words, as the whole secret of our success lies in absolute purity and cleanliness in everything, from beginning to end. It requires much more care to produce clean milk than any other food product, and were the consumers aware of the impurities in the larger part of the dairy products on the market, there would be a small sale for the same. The consumer is much to blame for this condition of things. If the people would demand a better article, and will be willing to pay for the extra cost, there are many dairymen who would be willing to take the pains required to furnish clean milk and cream.

Our first aim is to keep the stables and cows as clean as possible. The cows are brushed and the udders washed before milking. No hay is fed at this time, as the dust in falling will carry into the milk the germs which are found floating in all cow-stables. The bacteria thus introduced will give to the milk the same disagreeable flavor as the filth from the cow. To keep the dust and dirt from the milk we use a pail covered with two thicknesses of cheesecloth, between the folds of which is placed a layer of absorbent cotton. In this way the milk comes to the dairy house nearly free from all impurities. The greatest care is taken to have every utensil in the dairy thoroughly cleansed and scalded every time it is used. No half-way work will answer here. No sour germ can lurk in the can or strainer without affecting the cream. In fact, no odor or germ must be allowed in or around the dairy house.

After separating, the cream is cooled quickly and kept in a tank of ice water until bottled for shipment. You will see from my description of our methods that it is simply keeping the milk absolutely clean, and cooling as soon as possible after milking, that give our cream its fine flavor and keeping qualities. Choice cream and butter cannot be made from filthy milk, and our dairy inspector will have filled an important part of his mission, and rendered to the public a most commendable service when he shall have awakened the dairy farmer to the importance of producing a pure, clean milk.—C. S. Pope, Manchester, Me., in American Cultivator.

CHRISTMAS CANADIAN MAGAZINE

The coloured cover of special design, some seasonable stories and articles, many excellent drawings and coloured reproductions make the Christmas Canadian Magazine attractive. As a Canadian Souvenir to send abroad it is not equalled by any other Canadian publication. The Symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," by John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Walter C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin adds materially to its value as a souvenir to send to Great Britain. The two coloured plates of a Lake Huron Harbour by Moonlight, and an article on Toronto as a Typical Canadian City add to this value. With the exception of Sarah A. Tooley, who writes of Christmas at Sandringham, and Justin McCarthy, who contributes a story, all the contributors are Canadians. Price 25 cents; all booksellers.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by night losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. Uncle Giles' Glass Eye.

BY C. LANGTON CLARKE.

As I stood by his bedside and looked down on his gaunt limbs and hard-bitten features, I forgave him his part in the quarrel which had estranged us five years before.

Uncle Giles was a miser—a real, genuine miser. Money was his god, and when I outraged his religion by marrying a penniless girl, he excommunicated me forthwith. He placed his anathema upon me, and he did it with so many carefully chosen adjectives that I swore I would never speak to him again, were he as rich as Croesus.

I should have kept my word, too, only Uncle Giles had sent for me, and it seemed a pity not to make up when self-interest added its voice to that of religion, and cried "Forgive your enemies."

My Uncle Giles was popularly supposed to be a very rich man—how rich no one but he himself knew. A few years prior to our falling out he narrowly escaped ruin through the suspension of a financial concern in which he was largely interested. He was shrewd enough to get out in time, however, and the shock seemed to paralyze all his enterprise. He gathered in the money which he had invested, and became a miser of the most pronounced type, secreting his hoards and pinching and scraping from day to day to add to them.

On two occasions attempts had been made to rob his house, but Uncle Giles was an old soldier of the Civil War and the frontier, and he slept light with a pistol under his pillow. There was a simple funeral a few days after each attempt, and the coroner's juries said that Uncle Giles was quite within his rights.

I attended the last inquest, as a spectator, and heard my uncle give his evidence. I had not seen him for some time, and when he stood up I could not but think what a striking figure he presented—six feet two inches in height big-boned and angular, his harsh features seamed from eye to lip by a puckered purple scar, bitten in by a Confederate cavalryman's sabre.

But more startling than the grotesque cast of his features was the expression imparted by the great glass eye which filled the left socket. Steadfast, immovable, slightly larger than its fellow it fascinated by its basiliskian glare.

As a child I had quailed before that dreadful eye, and once had asked my mother, in a too audible whisper, whether, when Uncle Giles died, he would take his glass eye with him to heaven.

My uncle heard and laughed grimly.

"I will leave it to you in my will, Younker," he said, and I thanked him with perfunctory politeness, which made him laugh more. I thought he had forgotten the incident, but Uncle Giles had a good memory. A few months after the inquest Uncle Giles disappeared. One day when passing the little store where he pursued his trade—he was a skilful mender of broken china—I saw that it was closed. I made enquiries next door, and learned that he had left New York and had failed to give his future address. The old woman who answered my questions said she thought he had gone for a sea voyage. He had let fall a few words which indicated such a purpose.

Six weeks later, on again passing the shop, I saw through the dirty little panes the harsh, seamed features and the glare of the glass eye, and knew that my uncle had returned. If he saw me he made no sign, and I went on my way, my bitterness against him, if anything intensified.

Now Uncle Giles had held out the right hand of reconciliation, and there was no reason why I should not grasp it. There was every reason, in fact, why I should. I was hard up. My salary in the big wholesale house of Armbrust & Mathison was altogether inadequate for the support of a wife and three voracious children, and there were bills on the horizon which would have to be met somehow. Uncle Giles was rich and I was his only living relative, for my parents had died many years ago.

As I stood by that ragged bed in the bare, miserably furnished room, and looked down on that desperate battle with death, I could not but wonder how any man with money at command could end his life in such unutterable squalor. A ragged strip of carpet lay on the grimy boards, a cracked basin stood on an upended soap box in one corner, a huddle of patched and threadbare garments lay on a chair in another corner, and the only attempt at decoration was a photograph of my uncle, taken God knows when, which glowered out of a tarnished copper frame on the dusty mantelshelf.

The hoarse rattle of the dying man's breath was punctuated at intervals by the clink of pots and pans from the adjoining kitchen, where an old woman ragged, unkempt, and thoroughly in keeping with the surroundings, was busy preparing some decoction.

By the head of the bed stood a rickety table, and on it, in a tumbler of water was my uncle's glass eye.

Large and round as a marble, it looked at me through the side of the glass, the convexity lending to it a grotesque distortion. There was something almost satanic in its expression—a disembodied power which riveted my gaze. When I looked away I was painfully conscious of its presence, and gladly would I have plucked it forth and flung it away.

"Robert." It was my uncle's voice, gasping horribly. "Nearer—I have something to say to you."

I bent my ear to the dry, foam-flecked lips.

"My will, Robert—it is in the hands of my lawyer—my executor—I have forgiven you. Under the boards yonder is a tin cash-box. It contains all the money I possess—a little over two thousand dollars."

I could not repress a start of surprise—surely Uncle Giles had more money than that. "I have left it to a hospital for veterans—and to you." I bent lower. "I have left—my photograph—and—" He fought wildly for breath, while I propped him higher on his pillows, and waited in an agony of expectation. The paroxysm passed. "And my—glass eye—" he gasped. "I—promised it—to you. It—is—" A horrible grin distorted his features, a grin as I fancied of diabolical malevolence, and he fell back dead.

"Curse you!" Even as the spirit slipped from its ungainly envelope I saw my airy castles crash into ruin, and so furious was I at the refined cruelty of the old man's revenge, that my resentment might have carried me to indecent lengths, but for the hurried entrance of the old servant.

"He is dead," she screeched, in a thin, cracked voice.

"Yes," I answered, "he is dead. Let him rot!"

As I flung round from the bed my eye fell on my legacy, peering at me through the tumbler. To my disordered senses it seemed as though it were laughing at me, and I raised my hand to dash it to the floor. I restrained the impulse, however, and, without a look to left or right, strode from the chamber of death.

It was hard to break the news at home, for our hopes had risen high, but my wife accepted the situation philosophically, and even tried to persuade me to attend the funeral. I returned a curt refusal, however, to the lawyer who sent me the intimation, and having informed him of the secret hoard, I dismissed the whole subject as far as possible from my mind, and settled down to fight the never-ending battle of the man with an income too small for his necessities.

Some three months after my uncle's death, on my birthday as it chanced, a small parcel was delivered at my door by special messenger. My wife and I opened it with pleased expectancy, wondering who had remembered me. The first thing which met our eyes was the faded photograph of my uncle. Then I knew what that little square box contained. The executor of my uncle's will had religiously carried out his instructions. I tore off the lid, took one look at the baleful contents, and then, opening a drawer full of odds and ends, flung in box and all. The eye rolled out, and as I closed the drawer with a bang I could have sworn I saw it wink.

Three days later my eldest boy came to me with something clutched in his chubby fist.

"Look at the nice alley I found," he said. He opened his fingers, and there, lying on the pink palm, was that detestable eye.

I substituted a stick of peppermint candy, and, carrying my legacy out into my little back yard, I turned up a spadeful of earth in a corner, flung it into the grave, and stamped the soil down on the top of it.

"There," I cried, "is an end of you! You shall trouble me no more!"

"Lawlor!"

I looked up from my ledger, and saw the senior partner's secretary standing in the doorway of the outer office.

"Mr. Armbrust wishes to see you."

Such a summons was so unusual that I felt a sudden sinking of the heart, and fell to wondering whether I had in any way neglected my duty.

"Don't look so scared," added the secretary, kindly, "he's not going to fire you."

When I entered Mr. Armbrust's private office I saw that he was not alone. Seated in one of the deep leather arm chairs was an elderly man, with a keen, clean-shaven face. He looked like an American, and yet there was something undefinably foreign about him.

"Sit down, Mr. Lawlor," said my employer. "I am about to entrust a somewhat difficult task to you. This is Mr. Allsopp, head of the Amsterdam diamond house of that name. Perhaps you will explain matters, Mr. Allsopp. I think you will find Mr. Lawlor entirely trustworthy."

I blushed at the unexpected compliment.

"The matter can be explained in a few words, Mr. Lawlor," said the stranger. "You have heard of the Eisselburg diamonds? No? You surprise me. They are a pair of large blue stones, quite matchless, belonging to the reigning house of that little principality.

"About a year ago the Archduke, being pressed for money, commissioned us to sell one of the gems privately. He stipulated for $200,000 and that the purchaser should not divulge the identity of the stone. The price was reasonable, but the other condition made a sale a matter of some difficulty. At last I got a customer, an American, a most remarkable looking man. He was willing to comply with the conditions—in fact, he was as anxious as we were that strict secrecy should be preserved. He paid the price demanded, and between you and me he got something of a bargain.

"Not long ago the Archduke, as you may have seen in the papers, acquired a wife and a large fortune. He is anxious to recover the stone, and has commissioned me to act for him. I have ascertained that a blue diamond, answering the description in every respect, was passed through the customs, great secrecy being urged by the proprietor, evidently the same man who purchased it from us. He gave a wrong name and address, however, and I have lost trace of him. I am unwilling to entrust the matter to a private detective agency; it is most important that it should not leak into the papers—and Mr. Armbrust has kindly suggested that you should undertake the task."

I bowed my willingness.

"We are prepared to pay well for the jewel," Mr. Allsopp continued. "The Archduke has commissioned me to offer three hundred thousand dollars. That will cover the amount of the duty paid, and give the purchaser a considerable advance on the price he paid."

"That is a matter for the future, however," interrupted Mr. Armbrust. "You understand, Mr. Lawlor, that your duties will be confined to discovering the original purchaser."

"Certainly. And the description of the man who bought the stone?"

"He should be easily identified," replied the diamond merchant. "He was a tall man—unusually tall—well over six feet. About sixty years of age, and dressed in very old clothes. He had a protruding nose, like the beak on an eagle, and angular features, with a deep scar on the right side of the face, running up and down. The most noticeable feature about him, however, was his left eye, a false one I should judge, light gray in color, and slightly larger than the right."

I sprang from my chair with an irrepressible cry of astonishment, and the two gentlemen stared at me.

"You appear surprised, Mr. Lawlor," said my employer.

"I am," I replied abruptly. "I think I know the man in question. Can you spare me for an hour or two, Mr. Armbrust, that I may make sure of the identification?"

"Sharp work," interrupted Mr. Allsopp.

"Go, by all means," said Mr. Armbrust, and without another word I rushed from the room, seized my hat, and started for home. Things were getting decidedly interesting.

Two hours later I placed the photograph of Uncle Giles in Mr. Allsopp's hand.

"That is the man," he cried. "Unmistakable! Where is he to be found?"

I shrugged my shoulders. "God knows," I said. "He died several months ago. He was my uncle."

"Your uncle? We have been fortunate in our selection of an agent. And the diamond?"

"God knows," I said again. "I stood at his dying bedside—I was his only living relative—and he told me how he had left his money. It seemed to me at the time an absurdly small sum, not much more than a couple of thousand. The story of the diamond explains the mystery, but he never spoke of it."

"And did you inherit?" enquired Mr. Allsopp.

I laughed bitterly. "Oh, yes, I inherited," I said, "but neither money nor diamonds. My uncle was good enough to leave me his photograph, which you hold in your hand, and his glass eye. We had quarreled, and I suppose that was his way of revenging himself at the last. He made a grim joke, when I was a child, about leaving me the eye. I had remarked on its peculiarities, and he kept his word."

"An odd fancy," said Mr. Allsopp, musingly. "And he said nothing of the stone? You are positive?"

"Not a word. He was a miser, and two attempts had been made to rob him. I suppose he converted his money into a valuable diamond so that he could easily carry it about with him or conceal it. It may be hidden in the house."

"It was not mentioned in the will?"

"No. I received a copy from the executor."

"And you are the next of kin?"

I stared at Mr. Allsopp, open-mouthed. This was a new light with a vengeance. Why—if that diamond could be found it was mine. To think that three hundred thousand dollars, belonging to me by law, was lying hidden somewhere! Three hundred thousand dollars—and I almost a pauper! And oh! the hopelessness of finding it! I went white with emotion. Uncle Giles' revenge was more complete than he had wotted of.

"We must tear the house to pieces," I cried excitedly. "We must search every—" I stopped. "It would be useless," I added. "My uncle was not the man to die and leave a jewel of such a fabulous value hidden in a rented house."

We sat and looked at one another. In Mr. Armbrust's eyes I detected a certain respect. I was no longer a mere clerk in his office—I was a man worth three hundred thousand dollars, if—if he could only find it.

"He may have buried it," suggested Mr Allsopp, after a long silence.

"As I did his glass eye, in my back yard," I returned, with a bitter laugh.

"Buried it? And why?"

"I found one of my children playing marbles with it."

"Marbles? Mar—good heavens, man—do you mean to say it is round like a marble?"

"Yes," I said gruffly—how I hated any mention of that eye!—"like a very large marble."

"Did you ever see another glass eye?"

"No," I said, "and I hope to heaven I never shall!"

I stared at Mr. Allsopp in astonishment. I never saw a man so excited.

He snatched up a hat—it happened to be mine—clapped it on my head, caught up his own, and seizing me by the arm, fairly dragged me from the room.

As we passed out I looked back, and saw Mr. Armbrust staring after us, his eyes almost starting from his head.

"So—this is the corner? Be careful now."

Mr. Allsopp and I were standing in my back yard, and I was poising a spade. My hand shook so that I could hardly hold it. I threw out a shovelful of mold, and Mr. Allsopp dropped to his knees and sifted it carefully through his fingers.

"Not here," he said. "Another."

I repeated the operation.

There was no need to search this time. The clod split, and out of the heart of it rolled Uncle Giles' glass eye.

Mr. Allsopp pounced on it and made a dash for the house, I following at his heels. Straight through the kitchen he ran, regardless of my wife's disconcerted look, and into the dining-room.

"A bowl of hot water—quick!" he cried, as though giving an impatient order in a restaurant.

Wide-eyed, my wife brought it, and stood looking on.

Mr. Allsopp dropped the eye into the water, and carefully wiped away the streaks of mold with his silk pocket-handkerchief. Then taking a small magnifying glass from his pocket, he examined it carefully.

"Ha-h!" he said. "It is as I suspected It has been made for the purpose. Look!"

The sweat stood out in great beads on his forehead, and my hand trembled as I took the magnifier and examined the eye.

Around the center was a line, like a fine hair, showing where the two halves were joined together.

Mr. Allsopp cut my inspection short. Enveloping the eye in his handkerchief, he twisted hard on it. I noticed how the sinews on the back of the upper hand stood out. Then there followed a swift movement of his fingers, and the next moment he threw aside the handkerchief and tilted out upon the table something which caused my wife to reel back, and me to shade my eyes with my hand.

It was the Eisselburg diamond.

And such a diamond! I have spent many years among precious stones, but never did I see another like it. It seemed to fill the whole room with blue flame. From every one of its perfect facets a heart of fire seemed to break forth.

"I have mentioned the price." It was Mr. Allsopp's voice, cool and collected now. "Are you prepared to sell?"

"What does it mean?" whispered my wife.

I put my arm about her waist, and drew her to me.

"It means," I said, "that Uncle Giles was not such a bad fellow after all. It means that I am going to sell his glass eye for three hundred thousand dollars."

She burst into tears, and laid her head on my shoulder.

"Oh," she cried, "God bless Uncle Giles and his glass eye!"

"Amen!" I said.

• • • • • •

In the Archducal crown of Eisselburg two matchless blue diamonds glitter side by side, once more united, and over the mantel of our bedroom in our new house on upper Fifth Avenue hangs a faded photograph in a cheap copper frame.

Grim and sardonic that face may look to others, but as I glance at it it seems to me that a kindly look now beams from Uncle Giles' glass eye.

While in Canada, Lord and Lady Lansdowne pleased the Canadian people by their friendly and unassuming manners, which were in marked contrast to those of former Governors-General and their wives. It is related that at a garrison ball at Halifax the Colonel of the regiment that was giving the dance came up to Lady Lansdowne and said: "Lady Lansdowne, won't you give me a dance, please? I'm tired of dancing with these silly little colonial girls. They have no style. I believe I'm engaged to one of them for the next dance, but you might be kind enough to rescue me." Lady Lansdowne replied, in tones loud enough for everybody to hear, that the Colonel was unfit to associate with any decent people, colonial or otherwise, and concluded: "If this is the way you treat your guests I will relieve you of the presence of one of them at once." Then she ordered her carriage and left the ball.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

The change she had noticed in his manner towards her had roused her to a sense of bitter humiliation.

She had never cared for him.

He was less to her than any stranger who passed her in the streets.

But her vanity could not endure the slight his indifference had offered.

She could not bear the thought that any man could outlive his love for her.

Then her thoughts went to Frank, the only man she had ever loved, for whose sake she would imperil body and soul.

The knowledge that she was free sent mad fires leaping through her veins, and memories, hot and fierce as flames, were forced back upon her.

Instinctively she looked down at her hand, that lay on her lap—the right hand, so small, so slender, and yet——!

She rose, and clenched her fair hands one within the other, and, for the first time since the murder of Sir Felix, a nameless horror swept over her.

What if all should have been in vain? Gretchen asked herself.

What if, after all, she should fail to bring Frank Stanford to her side—fail to call back the love he had once given her?

She had now all that he had craved—wealth, title.

There was nothing that could keep him from her.

What, then, was this unaccountable dread that seemed to tighten her heart, and fill her mind with horrible misgiving?

Why did she feel this strange fear that swept over her with an icy chill, numbing all her senses, and weighting her with a dull, heavy pain?

With an impatient sigh, that was almost a moan, she seated herself at her table, and wrote to Frank, summoning him to her side.

Her letter was short and imperious but it brought no answer.

She waited day after day for the reply that came not, and, as each hour passed without bringing her news of him, a wild despair seized her.

She wrote again, after a while, with the same fruitless result.

Despair gave way to passion and her wrath was terrible; spent itself at last, and she felt only a bitter sense of misery.

In the loneliness of her room her heart cried out in piteous anguish, and her whole being revolted against the scorn with which Frank treated her.

None knew what she suffered.

Her brain was haunted by a whirl of thoughts whose horror was beyond description, and her heart was crushed beneath the burning agony which would not be appeased—the thought that Frank might have ceased to love her.

"I will go to him," she cried; "I will follow him and make him take me back."

She paced her room like a wild tigress—a longing seized her to see Frank, to look again upon his face and hear his voice once more—his voice that she had so loved to hear.

"I am coming to you, Frank," she repeated again and again, while her eyes grew wide with wistful yearning. "I am coming to you, my love, my love! Will you send me away? Will you send me from you, Frank, my darling?—surely not—ah, surely not!"

She started from where she leaned against the window, and a shiver shook her from head to foot.

A frenzied horror passed over her—she crouched back, and, as the branches of the trees were swayed against the window, she seemed to hear more than the boughs tapping on the panes—the voice of Sir Felix mingled with the wind outside.

With a terrified shriek, she flung herself on her bed, and remained motionless, as though smitten suddenly with death.

It had seemed to her that she had seen the face of her murdered husband peering from the darkness—a white ghastly face with the horror of death upon it; a face which haunted and mocked at her, even while she was prostrate, with shaking hands clasped before her eyes.

She was afraid to move; afraid to look up.

She knew the face was there—the face of the feeble man she had hated, and whom she had gazed upon in death without a qualm of remorse.

The wind moaned drearily through the bare branches of the trees, and the tapping against the window sounded like skeleton hands beckoning from the gloom.

When at last she dragged herself from the bed, there were hollow rings about her eyes, and her face looked grey and shaken as though the beauty of life had gone for ever from it.

She could no longer bear the solitude of her room.

She longed for companionship—for the sound of any voice but that which had seemed to echo to her from the darkness.

Where was Frank all this time? would he never come to her?

His silence filled her with agony, and as she went down the great dark stairway, a shuddering groan broke from her lips.

"I have done so much—so much to win back his love!" she cried; "his love, the loss of which drove me mad! —horribly, horribly mad!

"What have I made of myself—I, who would not stoop to live a life of degradation with the man I worshipped? I, who scorned the insult offered me, and cast aside what made life sweet!"

She went into a room near the passage that led to the servants' quarters.

In her present mood, it was much to her to be able to hear the sounds from the kitchens—human sounds that seemed to connect her with the living world—to keep her mind from contemplation of her own thoughts.

Such thoughts they were—black, burning, terrible!

There was a table with writing materials on it. She sat down in the lamplight and wrote another letter to Frank—a letter full of impassioned love, of heart-wrung pleading.

"Surely he will come!" she thought as she placed it in the envelope; and fastened it with a large black seal—the seal that bore the arms and motto of the Sevois.

"If he does not come to me, I shall die—the horror of this life is more than I can bear."

To prevent delay, she ordered a carriage, and, driving to the village, posted the letter.

With what feverish impatience she waited for a reply! But none came.

The days dragged on, and no word came from Frank to say he had been touched by her appeal.

The knowledge that he would not return to her seemed to upset her reason; she neither slept nor took nourishment of any kind.

Gradually a new resolution took possession of her.

She would go to Frank—see him face to face, and plead to him all her love.

One cold, dark morning, she left Drayton Court and traveled to London.

She went unattended, stating no definite time for her return.

Some important arrangements with her solicitors might keep her in town for a few days.

She had said to her maid, if she did not return on the following evening, no surprise was to be felt at her absence.

CHAPTER XXIV.

As he entered the room, she started to her feet, letting the papers drop to the floor.

"Frank!" she cried, going towards him with her hands outstretched, "Frank! oh, my beloved—my beloved why have you left me all this time?"

She had flung back her vail, and he saw the wild, haggard face of the woman he had cast from him, at a time when her love for him had been pure and true—when she had shrunk from sin and shame with loathing and horror.

"Gretchen!" he exclaimed, coming to a standstill, while he held the handle of the door, "I did not expect to see you here!"

His voice was harsh and cold; no gleam of tenderness came to his eyes; he was angered by her presence.

TO THE SUFFERING.

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 15 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Parker Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its recuperative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

Full information, descriptive matter, and all particulars may be had on application to G. T. BELL, G.P. & T.A. Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada.

WILL BUILD THROUGH LINDSAY

The Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway has obtained the approval of the Department of Railways to location of the company's line through the town of Lindsay, the route being followed being between the Grand Trunk spur line, and the Scugog River. The company's original intention was to cross the Grand Trunk east of the [illegible] yard limits, and then by a spur line to reach somewhere near the centre of the town, but the Grand Trunk opposed the proposed crossing.

Mark Twain tells of a man who, when he came home drunk, explained to his wife that his condition was due to the fact that he had mixed his drinks. "John," his wife advised, "when you have drunk all the whisky you want, you ought to ask for sarsaparilla." "Yes," retorted her husband, "but when I have drunk all the whisky I want I can't say sarsaparilla."

A well-known English surgeon was imparting some clinical instruction to half a dozen students, who accompanied him in his rounds, the other day. Pausing at the bedside of a doubtful case, he said: "Now, gentlemen, do you think this is, or is not, a case for operation?" One by one the students made their diagnosis, and all of them answered in the negative. "Well, gentlemen, you are all wrong," said the wielder of the free and flashing scalpel, "and I shall operate to-morrow." "No, you won't," said the patient, as he rose in his bed; "six to one is a good majority; gimme my clothes."

Thiers, the French statesman, was a victim of many whimsies. None had stronger hold on him, says Mons. Gabriel Hanotaux in "Contemporary France," than his desire to get everybody to recognize his universal competency. Of an applicant for the post of director at the Sevres manufactory, Thiers said:—"He is no more made for that part than I for —" and then he stopped. "Ah, oh! Monsieur Thiers," said his interlocutor, "you find it hard to say what you could not do." "That's the truth! That's the truth!" cried the statesman, gleefully. One day Thiers said, speaking of a man who had been raised to a high function:—"He is no more suited for that office than I am to be a druggist; and yet," he added, catching himself up, "I do know chemistry!"

Chekib Bey, the Turkish Minister to Washington, attended in Philadelphia the recent launching of the Turkish warship "Medjidia" at the Cramps' shipyard. During the luncheon following the launch, Chekib Bey animadverted for a moment on the beggars of Philadelphia. "You have here," he said, "an enterprising and intelligent collection of beggars. One of them approached me this morning. He told a moving tale of misfortune; then he asked me for a little money. I put my hand in my pocket to find that I was altogether out of change. 'My man,' I said, 'I have nothing for you now, but in an hour I shall be passing this way again. Then, I promise you, you shall get something from me.' 'All right, sir,' said the beggar; 'but all the same,' he added, fretfully, 'you wouldn't believe the amount of credit I give in this way.'"

A remarkable figure in Oxford University was Dr. W. Jacobson, Michell's predecessor as vice-principal of Magdalene Hall, subsequently Regius Professor of Divinity, and finally Bishop of Chester. Jacobson was a good scholar and a well-read divine, always able to set forth the various forms which Christian doctrine had assumed in the various Christian communions. But it was hardly ever possible (so it was said and believed) to get at his own opinions. Michell used to tell a story in illustration of Jacobson's reputation in this respect. Meeting one day a member of the university, he was asked by him what he thought of the weather. "Well," said Michell, "I have just met Jacobson, and he said he thought it was going to rain." "What?" was the reply; "you don't mean to say that Jacobson committed himself to any opinion so definite as that?"

The artist Whistler's laxity in the matter of engagements was notorious. No one ever knew if he were coming or not to affairs. But his point of view is explained in his answer to a friend of his, who knew that he had an engagement to dine with some swells in a distant part of London, and who felt that it was most impolitic for Whistler to offend them. It was growing late, and yet Whistler was painting away, madly, intently. "My dear fellow," he said to him at last, "it is frightfully late, and you have to dine with Lady Such-a-One. Don't you think you'd better stop?" "Stop!" fairly shrieked Whistler. "Stop, when everything is going so beautifully? Go and stuff myself with disgusting food when I can paint like this! Never! Never! Besides, they won't do anything until I get there—they never do!" And the entire speech is most characteristic of the man.

When the present King of Spain was little more than five years of age, a famous sculptor was engaged to make a statue of his majesty. The sculptor had difficulty in finding a pose for his subject which should be at once spirited and natural, and sat one day in a brown study, regarding the boy as he looked out of the window. All at once the sound of a band of music was heard in the street. The King sprang up and brought his hand to his forehead in the military salute. "The flag, sir! the flag!" the boy exclaimed. "Salute it." The sculptor had found the pose he sought, and made the statue represent the King in the act of saluting his country's flag. As he was at work the boy asked the artist, "Are you going to make me big?" "The statue will represent your Majesty a little larger than you are," said the sculptor. "Well," said the royal youngster, "I want you to make me very big with a long mustache."

Half-Way Up the Heights.

I deeply sympathize with him
 Who's toilsome climbed to reach the top
Of Mount Success, and then by whim
 Of circumstance been forced to stop

But then, since half the height he's scaled,
 I'd fain this altered phrase let fall;
'Tis better to have tried and failed
 Than never to have tried at all!
—Roy Farrell Greene.

A statistician connected with the "Hachette Almanac" in Paris has been computing the "wages" which European sovereigns receive, with the following result: The Czar of Russia gets $81 a minute; the Emperor of Austria, $33; the King of Italy, $22; Kaiser Wilhelm, $18; King Edward, $15; the King of Spain, $14; the King of the Belgians, $5; the King of Denmark, $2.50; while Peter, the new sovereign of Servia, receives the mere pittance of $1.55 a minute. These "wages" are reckoned on the basis that each monarch in question works for six hours a day, six days in the week.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000

PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,010,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 100 to 400 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock!

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission.

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order payable to the order of Curious Bits of News.

Paris's Eiffel Tower will stand for only a few years longer. A commission appointed to decide on the uses to which the Champ de Mars shall be put has ordered that the tower be torn down at the end of the concession, which expires in 1910.

Carrie Nation, following the example of John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett and others of her predecessors in the strenuous life, is going on the stage. She is to appear in a new version of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," and one of the scenes will represent her using her famous hatchet to advantage.

The De Pierrecourt's fortune of $600,000 left to the city of Rouen for the propagation of a race of giants, is to be diverted from this purpose, and $160,000 will be retained by the Rouen foundation for a philanthropic institution, the rest to go to the natural heirs, who contested the will on the ground of immorality.

What is said to be a new world's record in long-distance train running has just been made on the Baltimore and Ohio road out in Ohio and Indiana, where 128 miles were covered without stops in 126 minutes. In the course of the run a speed of 86 miles an hour was reached, and much of the distance was run at the rate of 70 and 75 miles an hour.

Shortly after he was elected President of France, M. Loubet offered a large sum for the Castle of Mezenc, which once belonged to Diana of Poitiers, the favorite of Henry II. His offer was refused at the time, but recently he succeeded in getting the chateau, which is most picturesquely situated, near Montelimar, and has a waterfall, three ponds filled with trout, and a large park with plenty of game. The price paid was one hundred and seventy thousand francs. From his tower the President can now see his birthplace, Marsanne, where his mother still lives.

When the North German Lloyd steamship "Kaiser Wilhelm II." reached New York recently and disembarked her cabin passengers at Hoboken, one of them, a United States citizen, addressing himself to a policeman on the pier, caused him to arrest a fellow-traveler, also a United States citizen, on a charge of swindling, the fraud, according to the accusation, having been perpetrated by means of unfair play at cards during the voyage across the Atlantic. The officer, after having conveyed his prisoner to police headquarters, subsequently arraigned him before the acting recorder. The latter informed both the plaintiff and the police that his court had no jurisdiction in the matter, and referred him to the United States commissioner, who also declined to deal with the case, on the ground that it was beyond the competence of the federal authorities. The Hoboken police thereupon communicated with the German consul-general at the port of New York, and on receiving from him an intimation that he knew of no law under which they could hold the prisoner, were obliged to set the latter at liberty, much to the disgust of the plaintiff, who complained that he and some of his friends had been victimized to the tune of some ten thousand dollars.

A Story of Pius X.

In Tombolo an amusing story is told of the present Pope and the mourners' candles. A wealthy resident of Tombolo died, and his funeral ceremonies were the most elaborate ever known in that humble village. A great many mourners were hired, whose office was to bear the lighted candles beside the catafalque in its progress to the cemetery. The candles were of the clearest wax and immense in size, having been specially brought from Venice for the occasion. The like had never been seen in Tombolo, their size exceeding even the large candles on the church altar. During the solemn procession the Don Giuseppe, now Pius X., noted how often the candles were extinguished. He could not account for it, as the day was a still one. He watched an old woman nearest to him and saw her furtively blow out the candle which her right arm could scarcely carry. "How did you come to put out that candle, Giacomma?" he queried sternly. The crone turned a properly sorrowful face to him, replying: "My tears have put it out—they fell so freely." The excuse caught Don Giuseppe's sense of humor. "Well," said he, relighting the fine taper, "see that your tears fall to the left of you after this." The old woman's light held out to the grave, though no doubt it seemed a pity not to save so much of the candle as she could use in her home.

STOCK MARKETS

New York, Nov. 28.—There was good buying of securities in the Stock market at the lower prices yesterday and with a firm closing sentiment is naturally quite favorably inclined. The firmness of interest rates may be expected to pass in the near future. The railroad news continues quite favorable. The industrial news continues rather mixed, but all things considered, it is likely that forced selling has had more to do with the declines than anything else. Under the circumstances there are many who are confident that the industrial stocks will, sooner or later, seek a better level. Business reports generally show some improvement in conditions in the interior.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Hogs, 12,000; holdovers 2,250. Light $4.00 and $4.50; mixed mixed $4.00 and $4.46; heavy $4.00 and $4.40; ruffs, $4.00 and $4.20. Kansas City—Hogs, 23,000. South Omaha—Hogs, 6,000.

New York, Nov. 28.—London firm, 1-8 to 1-2 above parity. Good bank statement indicated. Banks gained on currency movement $2,050,000.

Football Tactics in the Ballroom.

The American Society of Professors of Dancing, which recently met in New York, has decreed that football tactics on the ballroom floor must stop. There must be no more "Yale glides," nor "Harvard dips," nor distorted attempts to tread a measure in two-four time when the music calls for three beats in a bar. The dancing of the two-step to waltz time and the grotesque positions assumed by the dancers are evils attributed to the college fads that have vitiated the public taste. "Some of these students" said one professor, "invent a series of Simian contortions and football tactics and give it a college name, and the public thinks it is all right because the college men do it. Now, we want to stop all this, and bring dancing back to the old style of graceful carriage that enabled the dancers to express the beauty of motion to music. A majority of the people now seem to dance a two-step to waltz music. This is not right. The two-step is easier to teach, as it is in common time, and dancing it to waltz music is not a correct movement." Attention was also drawn to the neglect in the large cities of the old square dances, which are still taught in the smaller cities.

Dowie's Descent on New York.

Eight special trains, over as many railroads, have been engaged to carry John Alexander Dowie and his "Restoration Host" to New York City next month. A "great mission" is to be held in Madison Square Garden from October 18 to November 1. Dowie will be accompanied, according to advance notices, by the "Zion White-Robed Choir of Hundreds of Voices, Zion City Brass Band, Hundreds of Officers of the Church, and at least Four Thousand Members of Zion Restoration Host."

A man who knows himself to be in the wrong generally tries to end the conversation; whereas, a woman—is never in the wrong.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore, There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

A Woman's Friend

It's Because Ferrozone Brings Good Health That it Brings Good Looks and is Counted an Invaluable Friend by Millions of Women on this Account

Many women look old and lose their beauty, not through age, but through disease, ill health and suffering.

If you don't feel your best, of course you won't look your best and so long as your blood remains impure, your nerves unsteady, don't expect to feel tip-top.

If you have no appetite, poor digestion, are bilious and constipated, your skin will be sallow and pimply with an unnatural pallor about the cheeks.

Women without number who have suffered the mortifications of this run down condition, have made themselves healthy and well by taking Ferrozone. It is a wonderful remedy for the blood and nerves, and brings good looks because it brings good health.

Take Ferrozone for your beauty. It is a wonderful restorative, and strengthener for weak women, purifies and enriches the blood, and sends it circulating to all parts of the body. Then it builds up muscle and tissue, puts on fat and makes the action of the heart regular and strong.

Nothing can possibly do you so much lasting good as Ferrozone. It will enable you to go through life with pleasure and assurance, free from sickness and worry. We are quite sure you need Ferrozone, and know it will do you immeasurable good.

Three weeks treatment costs 50c, or three times that much for $1.25. At all druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Saturday's Matinee

Another large audience assembled at the Opera House on Saturday afternoon, when H.M.S. Pinafore was repeated. At the conclusion of the entertainment the children were photographed by Mr. R. M. Roy.

Officers in Uniform

The Times has been requested to state that through the kindness of Lieut.-Col. Millar the officers of the 57th Regiment will be permitted to appear in uniform at the grand ball to take place in the Opera House on Monday evening next, under the auspices of the Alban Club.

The Late Dr. Speers

Dr. Hugh Speers, aged 69 years, a well known figure in the East End, Toronto, was found dead in bed at 15 Hamilton street on Friday morning. Dr. Speers was a druggist, and at one time conducted a business in Peterborough, his store being situated near what is now the City Hotel. At one time he also had a drug store in Ashburnham.

Not So Handy

The other day a lady entered Mr. R. M. Roy's studio. "Are you the photographer?" she enquired of Mr. Fred Roy. "Yes, madam," was the modest reply. "Do you take childrens pictures?" "Yes, certainly." "How much do you charge?" "Four dollars a dozen" "Well," said the visitor, "I will have to see you again. I have only got eleven." And now Fred thinks she came from Lindsay.

Railway Employee Injured

Mr. Joseph McGinty, a G.T.R. employee, had the misfortune to sustain a fracture of the left leg at McBurney's I'l, near Port Hope, Friday morning. He was engaged in wheel tapping, and was descending from a car when he slipped and fell on the ground, breaking his leg below the knee. McGinty resides in Lindsay, and is well known along the line.

Objectionable School Methods

"I believe there is too much asked of pupils in some of the public schools," said a parent to the Times yesterday. "My little boy is in the fourth grade this term, and he tells me that the teacher writes on the blackboard twenty words which the pupils are required to copy on paper ten times in half or three-quarters of an hour. This pupil, in other words, is asked to write two hundred words at the rate of from four and one-half to seven words a minute. Many of them are unable to accomplish the task in the required time. My opinion is that such rapid work is not calculated to make the pupils good penmen."

The People's Jimmy is Mum

Montreal Star of Friday: Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary of Ontario, reached the city to-day from Peterborough and is staying at the Windsor. Mr. Stratton had many callers in Room 42, but all efforts to get an expression of opinion from him as to the political situation in Ontario and the probable retirement from the Cabinet of the Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture with the Hon. E. J. Davis, Minister of Crown Lands, were met with a polite but firm refusal from Ontario's provincial secretary. An attempt to draw a statement regarding the Callaghan affair elicited from Mr. Stratton an abstruse criticism regarding the weather and a similar effort in regard to North Renfrew met with even less success.

Christmas Canadian Magazine

The coloured cover of the Christmas Canadian Magazine is emblematic of the season and of the contents. There are several Christmas stories and an article by Sarah A. Tooley on Sandringham House, where the King and Queen have spent Christmas for each of the last forty years. The coloured illustrations for this article, the two full-page pictures of a Lake Huron Harbor by Moonlight, the coloured portrait of Sir William Mulock, and the tinted illustrations for the closing chapters of the War of 1812 give a brightness to the number. The story illustrations by C. H. Warren and J. E. McBurney are above the average. The illustrated article on Toronto, "A Typical Canadian City," is a splendid feature. The symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," to which John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, W. C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin contribute, is informing in that different views of the question are freely given. Mr. Gadsby's brief character sketch of Sir William Mulock will be read with interest. In "Woman's Sphere," Miss Helliwell describes the origin of many Christmas customs. In "People and Affairs" Mr. Cooper deals with Canada's demand for greater self governing powers, with Imperial postage and the flow of Canadian graduates to the United States. The other department are decidedly interesting. Undoubtedly this is a brilliant number.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—This is St. Andrew's day.

—The Percy Council has passed a resolution concerning the composition of the county council—favoring the reeves, as formerly.

—A scow load of apples, about four hundred barrels, is froze up in Rice Lake. The intentions of the owners was to bring the apples to Hastings to store for the winter.

—The regular public meeting of the East Peterborough Farmers Institute will be held in Norwood on Monday, Nov. 30th, and at Keene on Tuesday, Dec. 1st.

—Five tickets for the lecture on "Liquid Air," to be given under the auspices of All Saints Guild, have been lost. They are the only five tickets that have been marked, so if used they will not be accepted. They may be returned to Rev W. L. Armitage.

—Campbellford Herald: We learn on good authority that a party of men who camped near Burnt River, last week slaughtered twenty-one deer, some of which they cut off the hind quarters and left the remainder of the carcass in the woods where the animals fell. The matter was reported by a man residing near Tongamong Lake, North Hastings, who accidentally came upon the party while the deer were lying dead about their camp. It will doubtless come to the ear of the game warden, who will not be slow in discovering the guilty parties.

—Our esteemed contemporary, Mr. Smiff, Bobcaygeon, is not partial to corsets, judging from the following, which appeared in the Independent—A hot crusade is being waged in England, against the wearing of corsets. The gentleman who writes the leading articles for this great journal, whose name is Smiff, warmly approves of the movement. He says that when in an occasional moment of weakness he may be tempted to do a little embracing, he likes to know that he has within his arms the female form divine. Hugging a corset is about as soul-stirring as cuddling a flour barrel.

SABBATH SCHOOL CENSUS

HOUSE TO HOUSE VISITATION COMMITTEE REPORT

With Reference to Denominational Preference—The Methodist Church is in the Lead with Roman Catholic Church a Close Second

At a meeting of the Sabbath School Association, the Committee on House to House Visitation reported in regard to the work of the taking of a Church and Sabbath School census. Below is a report setting forth the denominational preferences of the people interviewed and reported, as to Church alone:

Seventh Day Adventists, Christian Science, Brethren	141
Bethany Tabernacle	29
Salvation Army	18
Baptists	86
Methodists	3,729
Roman Catholics	3,56
Presbyterians	2,500
Church of England	3,01
Unclassified	123
Census total	14,430

The above total includes 631 belonging to outlying districts, which deducted would give the total town population as returned by the house to house visitors as 13,799. This includes Ashburnham also, and is better by 211 than the assessors return. Following are the figures for outlying districts:

Douro, east of boundary	117
Smith, north of town and east of Chemong Road	116
Smith, west of Chemong Road	135
Monaghan, west of boundary	106
Monaghan, south of boundary	13

The unclassified list includes boarders at hotels and other places whose church preference could not very well be ascertained. In a few days the committee expect to make return with reference to attendance at Sabbath school.

At last evening's meeting it was moved by Rev. J. G. Potter and seconded by Rev. J. P. Wilson, that this association place on record its most hearty appreciation of the work done by the visitors in the house to house visitation implying as it did much sacrifice and patience; that we express our gratitude to the Press for the favor shown, to the Y.M.C.A. Board and secretaries for their great help and to the town officials for the necessary information and help received.—Carried.

Moved by Rev. J. G. Potter, seconded by Rev. J. P. Wilson, that we receive the report of the committee as presented by the president, and in relieving the members from their arduous task desire to thank them most heartily for the very efficient manner in which the many tedious tedious details were carried out, for the magnificent enthusiasm aroused, as displayed in the mass meeting of the workers; and for the completeness of the returns, due, to a large extent to the definite and wise arrangements made, and under the direction of the various chairmen carried out. In relieving the committee he would direct the secretary to give in detail the total Sunday school population, dividing the ages as arranged in the forms.—Carried

THE LAWYER FLOORED

A Scene in a Peterborough Court Years Ago

"I shall never forget a curious scene that took place twenty-five years ago in our county court," said a Peterborough lawyer Saturday. "A trial was in progress before the judge. I do not recall who the prisoner was or what his offence was, but I remember that he was a man of some respectability, so that a reflection on his moral character was something of a shock to the judge and jury.

"Judge Weller was the Crown Attorney, but some other lawyer had been hired to assist in the prosecution and was examining the witness. Last of all the defendant, whom I will call Jones came on the stand in his own defense. After the prosecuting lawyer had questioned him at great length he brought his cross-examination to a climax as follows:—

"'Now, Mr. Jones, I will ask you if there has not been a woman named Jones living at your house for the last five years?'

"'There has,' said Jones.

"'And have you supported her all the time?'

"'I have,' said Jones.

"'And have you ever been legally married to her?'

"'I have not,' said Jones.

"'That is all,' said the prosecutor vehemently, turning his face in the other direction, as if he had the defendant annihilated.

"The effect on the court was visible and the spectators gave up Jones for lost.

"'Wait a minute,' said Jones' counsel. 'Is that woman at your house your mother?'

"'She is,' said Jones.

"And immediately there was a suppressed titter, and Jones was as good as acquitted. How it all happened I never knew."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Hon. J. R. Stratton was in town over Sunday.

—Mr. E. Hart, of Lindsay, is in town visiting friends.

—Mr. L. H. Newman, of Ottawa, is a guest at the Snowden House.

—Mr. A. C. McCallum, of the Canada Foundry Co., Toronto, was in town on Saturday.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McAllister will entertain Dr. Drummond, of "Hibitant" fame, on the occasion of his visit to Peterborough to-day.

—Dr. and Mrs. MacAlpine, of Lindsay held their daughter's marriage reception, which was postponed on account of the serious illness of Mr. McClellan.

—Mr. Geo. S. Matthews has been appointed manager of the branch of the George Matthews Company at Brantford. The departure from Peterborough of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews will be sincerely regretted by a very large circle of friends.

—The Times had a pleasant call on Saturday for Mr. Wm. Macfarlane, the efficient lockmaster at Lovesick. Mr. Macfarlane is a guest at the Southern Hotel, and will leave this morning for Bobcaygeon, where he will spend the winter.

JUMPING UP

Is a great deal harder than jumping down. And yet people who have been for years running down in health expect to jump back at once. It takes years generally to make a man a confirmed dyspeptic, and he cannot expect to be cured in a few days.

There is no quicker means of cure for dyspepsia or other forms of stomach trouble than by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

"I was taken sick two years ago," writes Rev. W. H. Patterson, of White Cloud, Ala., "with what the doctors thought was gastric trouble, indigestion or nervous dyspepsia, also constipation and inactive liver. I was in a dreadful condition. Tried several different doctors with but little result. I had gotten so feeble that I was almost past traveling about; had got down to 114 pounds. I went and bought six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and got the 'Pellets' and began following directions. When I had taken about five bottles I felt very much better and was greatly improved, and weighed one hundred and thirty-eight pounds. I will say that Dr. Pierce's medicines are a Godsend to poor suffering humanity, and I advise any and all chronic sufferers to give them a fair trial and they will be satisfied."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

St. Catharines Well

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its regenerative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

Full information, descriptive matter, and all particulars may be had on application to G. T. BELL, G.P. & T.A., Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada.

ANARCHY IN COLORADO TO BLOW UP CAPITAL

Union Miners in the State Threaten to Dynamite the Governor and State House

THE WHOLE STATE MILITIA CALLED OUT

General Bell's Life is Menaced for Energy in Strike—Officials Ignore Letters and Prepare to Crush Conspiracters

Denver, Col., Dec. 1 —Union strikers have formed a plot to blow up one wing of the capitol with dynamite and kill Gov. Peabody and Adjutant General Sherman Bell because of their determination to keep order at Colorado's mines, according to warning and threatening letters received today by the governor. The warning letters have been turned over to detectives who are trying to ferret out the plot, while the governor and general are taking more vigorous repressive measures for the strike regions.

The adjutant general this afternoon received 1,000 rifles and 100,000 rounds of ball cartridges from the United States arsenal at Rock Island, Ill. These will be used to equip two new regiments of the national guard, which General Bell is forming to send to the mines.

Meanwhile the state officers and detectives at Cripple Creek are obtaining additional proof of the union plot to wreck half a dozen gold mines and additional evidence against the sixteen men held for the fatal explosion in the Vindicator mine.

General Bell received a threatening letter which said, "You will be popped off if you ever come to Cripple Creek." He was not scared, however, but gave out a defiance as follows:

"We will fight it out in Colorado if it takes every ablebodied man in the state and some who are disabled, to the end that order is maintained and socialism, anarchy and Moyerism are wiped off the earth and there is not a grease spot left to assassinate, dynamite, molest, disturb or in any manner interfere with the commercial conditions and the peace of illustrious Colorado."

Startling discoveries have resulted from the investigation into the blowing up of the Vindicator Mine in the Cripple Creek district. General Bell says those who caused the explosion which killed Superintendent McCormack and Melvin Beck also plotted to blow up the Gold Coin, Findlay, Golden Cycle, Stratton' Independence and several other mines. He is certain that all those concerned in the Vindicator affair, with one exception are in custody. One of the men got out of the district before a cordon of soldier was thrown around the camp and is on his way to Seattle.

Of the sixteen men being held at Camp Goldfield about a dozen are charged with being principals or accessories in the Vindicator affair. The remainder are held in connection with the attempt to wreck a Florence and Cripple Creek train a few days ago.

It is generally believed that Charles McKinney, the alleged train wrecker who was spirited out of the district to the penitentiary for safe-keeping, is the person from whom the authorities have secured much incriminating evidence.

Cripple Creek, Col. Nov. 30 — Three more companies of the Colorado National guard from Lamar, Rockford and Pueblo arrived in Camp Goldfield today. Col. A. W. Hogle said he believed conditions were more dangerous than at any time since the strike began.

Joseph Virgil, a union miner, who had been heard to say that he knew some facts about the Winchester explosion, has been arrested. He refused to explain his remarks. He recently gave up a good position at the Portland mine to accept work at the Vindicator.

Telluride, Col., Dec. 1— With 500 soldiers at the various mines in this district, success or failure of the attempts at resumption of mining depends almost solely on the ability of the mine managers to find men. There is no indication of a break in the ranks of the union men here and the majority of the strikers have departed for other districts.

Major General John C. Bates carefully investigated conditions during the day. He said the state appeared to have matters well in hand. He will report to the president upon his arrival in Chicago.

Coalville, Utah, Dec. 1—Lieutenant Sorenson and a squad of seventeen men with fixed bayonets, took Charles Demolli, state organizer for the Western Federation of Miners, out of a crowd of 200 striking Italian miners this afternoon and arrested him on a charge of disturbing the peace. Demolli was taken to the court house, where a heavy guard was thrown round the building, found guilty, and sentenced to thirty days in jail. Demolli was taken to Price later in the custody of a detail of troops.

Washington, Dec. 1—The War department has honored the requisition of the governor of Colorado for 1,000 rifles and clothing, supplies, and other equipment for 1,000 men. The supplies were regularly issued under the provisions of the Dick law for the arming and equipment of the organized militia of the state and territories.

A LETTER FROM LONDON

Cause for Reforms in the Society of To-Day

Even Society Convulsed by the Tariff Controversy

London, Nov. 15.—"Is it Marconi or sun spots?" Everyone is asking just at this moment, as the electric disturbances across several continents is playing havoc with telegraphic communication, and making hitherto inoffensive wires sources of danger to mankind in general. There is really a very widespread belief that the Marconi installations are disturbing electric currents the world over, and there are others who actually suggest that the sun spots are also the indirect result of the revolution which Marconi's inventive genius has occasioned in the upper strata of atmosphere which never before has been meddled with by man. Of course, this may, or may not be. Some of the "Free Fooders" put all the atmospheric disturbance down to the revolutionary speeches of Mr. Chamberlain, not to sun spots and affirm, with the greatest gravity that such wholesale reform as he proposes is sure to bring about electrical storms.

Some Causes to Reform.

It is rumored that a new society is being started in London, and that one of the chief reasons of its being is the suppression of "grumbles" about the weather. Those who believed in the influence of mind upon matter insist that by ignoring uncomfortable physical sensations, such as cold, dampness, and the depression consequent upon a week of fog and rain, you can create an atmosphere of sunlight about you, which makes you impervious to all "ills." Certainly, the old-fashioned English gentleman, who always came into the breakfast table with a record of the falling of the barometer, and entertained on with the metereological report from the morning paper as to the number of showers to be expected during the day, the velocity of the wind, and the direction—which was invariably east—was not a man calculated to bring cheeriness in the household. Of course, the average Britisher takes his pleasure in the open air and in this way the importance of the weather is made to assume possibly an undue place in the lives of the inhabitants of the British Isles, but it has been carried to such an excess that it is really necessary to bring together a group of people who refuse to suffer from fog and chilliness, by anticipation, as well as in reality.

Next to suppression of weather topic comes a society for the extinction of the word "fiscal" in society chat. It is said that "fiscalitis" is become a jargon in the smart set, and that the various brands of bread, "the big loaves and the little loaves," are discussed until no one has any appetite for what Mr. Chamberlain does not regard as the "staff of life." Certainly, in the "smart set" that "staff of life" is made to assume every possible form which would suggest that it is no longer a "staff," but a little dried piece of "cracklingness" which has not the slightest resemblance to the cottage loaf upon which the British workingmen are supposed to exist. No one can be very long in London without doubts arising as to what the working classes really consider the "staff of life." "Is it bread, or is it beer?" If they took a few pence per week from their beer bill, and put it into the bread account, without doubt the race would benefit. Mr. Chamberlain has again and again asserted that the "so-called" prosperity of Great Britain is not entirely due to Free trade, as the "Free Fooders" insist, and certainly to the calculated "free beer" had a good deal to do with the difficulty of obtaining employment, rather than Free Trade. The number of heavy, slow-moving, devitalized and "beeralized" men that one sees crawling over the immense carcasses of the old buildings in process of demolition in London give one some idea of the difficulties of contractors in this country, where people "blunder through"—to quote Lord Rosebery, who, by the way, is in these days resembling nothing so much as a "quotation mark"—to so splendid a result. For the marvel is, that the result is nearly always splendid. The buildings of London, like those erected at the "Soo" by Mr. Clergue, seem to be designed by those who think in "centuries" not years. The "impermanence of things" which Lafcadio Hearn consider the distinguishing mark of Japanese business quarters, is entirely wanting in England, and as the builders are slow footed and ponderous, so the great buildings are massive, and grow as if by some process of nature, rather than the hand of man, but they certainly look as if they had come "to stay."

Reforms and Upheavals.

This is an age of so-called "reforms" and upheavals. The fiat has gone forth condemning the excessive use of the bath-tub and "lashings" of soapy lather. One of the writers in a well known weekly paper suggests that we may have been for a half a century a "soap-ridden and over-washed nation," but they forget that the early part of the eighteenth century saw a race all unwashed, and with, in many cases, heads of hair so arranged that a comb or brush only was in use once or twice a week; that even today the great mass of the British people, with all their vaunted love of personal cleanliness, do not indulge in the daily bath, and that in Germany the great public baths are much more regularly frequented, and a much more thorough process of cleansing indulged in by the rank and file of the populace, than in this country.

One of the marvels, to those who look ordinary householders in London can obtain life in England, is the fact that the tain any female help in the household. Of course, the large establishments have their servants' quarters fairly well arranged, and their sleeping rooms as comfortable as they would occupy in their own homes. But in the small loding house—and the small lodging houses can be counted by thousands, if not millions—the lot of some of the women servants is unspeakably trying. Basement bedrooms, often damp, and without any but artificial light; three or four pair of stairs to climb with heavy hot water cans and coal scuttles too heavy for the ordinary man to carry with comfort; grates by the score to keep clean and attend to; poor food, served in the airless damp basement, and a constant ringing of bells for trivial matters which the guests could easily attend to themselves. And yet these women would rather live in this way than go the colonies, or return to the "dulness" of their country situations or homes! The marvel to the colonial mind is as to the quality of that "dulness" which can exceed that of the ordinary London lodging house!

"Smelling Competitions."

Who wants a new form of amusement devised to while away the wet days in a country house? It is nothing less than a "smelling competition." The people taking part are blindfolded, and a prize for the one who guesses the greatest number of objects submitted to their olfactory nerves is provided. Medicine chests, wine cellars, are ransacked; snaps essences, flavorings and different leaves, lethers, etc., are all presented, and the sight of the "sniffing" competitors is said to be such as to excite to laughter the dullest of mankind. It is quite to be commended on the score of training a sense too often well-nigh extinct.

RECEIVED DEPUTATION

Quebec, December 1—Yesterday a deputation from the working girls in the shoe factories waited upon the manufacturers and men to request that matters be settled as soon as possible. The manufacturers informed the deputation that no ill-will existed between the employes, and that they would be pleased to talk over matters at any time with their former employes in the factories and not through any union.

The factories closed down two weeks ago, and since then not one of the hands has returned to the factories to sign new engagements. The manufacturers want to deal directly with the men, and if this cannot be agreed upon it is likely that the manufacturers will remain closed down for some time.

Yesterday afternoon about 250 men marched along St. Valier street to the rooms of the Manufacturers' Association and after cheering for a few minutes, proceeded to the factory of F. Schuyburt & Co., where they again cheered.

THE LARGEST CITY IN ALL CANADA.

Sir William Van Horne's Opinion of Destiny of Winnipeg

HIS MIND NOT CHANGED

Place is Still in Its Infancy, But Its Future is Entirely Secure

Winnipeg, Dec. 1—Sir William Van Horne is at present in the West, having gone to East Selkirk to look after a stock farm which he owns in that neighborhood. During a recent visit to Winnipeg, Sir William was interviewed and stated that he had come to the city on private business.

"It is rumored that you were in Winnipeg in regard to a rate cutting winter tariff on the line," Sir William Van Horne was asked.

"I have nothing to do with that. I know nothing about it." he replied. I am here only on private business and have nothing to give out to the public."

Asked as to the difficulties between the city and the company in regard to the subway agreement, and in respect to the much talked of proposition to shorten the main line of the C.P.R. by building a new road from East Selkirk to Reaburn, or from Winnipeg to Molson. Sir William stated that he knew nothing of these affairs at all, as he was entirely out of such matters.

"I know nothing at all about them," he said.

SIR WM. VAN HORNE

Sir William had nothing new to give out regarding his stock farm at East Selkirk, which he visited recently. Things were extremely satisfactory there, and other than this he had no statement to make.

Regarding Winnipeg he was in a better position to speak.

"I still think it will be the largest city in Canada." said he. "It is still in its infancy, thought it is going ahead at a remarkable pace. It is my opinion that it is only a matter of years when it will be the banner city of the Dominion."

Sir William is now on his way to Montreal.

WILL TAKE ACTION

Ottawa, December 1— The Department of Justice has received instructions to immediately take action against the J. M. Wilson Cordage Company, of Chatham, Ont., for selling short weight and short lengths of binder twine. Some days ago Inspector Haycock made a large seizure of the product of this company, which made the excuse that this particular twine was being manufactured for a firm in the United States, which desired to convert it into rope. This excuse might have been accepted had not the inspector discovered twine made by this company short in weight and short in length on sale at Blenheim and other points in western Ontario. The penalty varies all the way from $20,000 to $150,000.

THE AMERICAN BOOM SAVED GREAT BRITAIN

Provided Market for Canadian Iron and Steel and Saved British Producer

London, Nov. 30.—Competition by Canada's bounty-fed iron is being viewed here with some misgiving. A large manufacturer says that only the boom in the United States has saved the British producer from the most severe competition on the part of Canadian iron and steel.

MONTREAL HARD HIT.

London, Nov. 30.—A Canadian Associated Press cable despatch published in Canada on the 18th of November reports Montreal being charged with being the most depraved city in the world. The original words were "worse paved," and the mistake was made in transmission. The corrected despatch reads: "Edgar Wallace, writing to the London Daily Mail, compares Montreal to a beautiful woman down at the heels. He says it is the worst paved city in the world."

PERFECT HARMONY.

London, Nov. 30.—At a luncheon given at Versailles to the members of the British Parliamentary party now visiting France, the Agent-General of New Brunswick, speaking on behalf of Canada, bore testimony to the perfect harmony and equity existing between the French and British descendants living in the Dominion of Canada.

ANOTHER FREE TRADE.

London, Nov. 30.—The Manchester Courier, writing on "Suggestions for Imperialists," says interfiscal reform can perhaps be more quickly secured by free trade in members of Parliament as between themselves and the colonies than by any revision of tariffs by statesmen representing people whose union may be real as well as sentimental, but not organic in any representative sense.

BECOMING ALARMED.

London, Nov. 30.—English insurance companies are becoming alarmed at the shrinkage in their Canadian business. Local Dominion life insurance companies are rapidly increasing their business, while the branches of the English companies record steadily diminishing receipts. The protective measures adopted by the colonies in respect to the insurance business the British companies give as the cause for their operations becoming every year reduced.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—There was a record attendance at the Canadian Club uncheon today, when Hon. George W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, delivered an address on Preferential Trade. The banqueting hall, with a capacity of nearly 350 was filled, and numerous late-coming parties had to take luncheon in the other rooms, and came in later for the speech-making, filling up the gallery and all vacant spaces in the dining-room.

The Premier's speech was decidedly imperialistic, as well as Canadian, in tone, and contained some important pronouncement. Applause was frequent.

Mr Ross first dealt with the proposals of Mr. Chamberlain and the advantage they would be to Canada. The preference on Canadian wheat proposed by Mr. Chamberlain would amount to about six cents a bushel, a very substantial bonus.

England imports for consumption 400,000,000 bushels of wheat, and we now supply 30,000,000 bushels. This is an attractive market, not only because of its great opportunities of extension of trade and the exchange of wheat for gold, but because it will place Canada in advantageous positions in English markets It would stimulate immigration into Canada, and would benefit every Province. Stalwart immigrants accustomed to British institutions and in sympathy with British sentiments are the best capital than can be brought into the country.

Effect of The Policy.

It would increase the home market for our manufactures and this would increase the employment for labor. We would not, as in the past, need to send our skilled laborers abroad to the manufacturers. It would increase our transportation, the dividend on capital invested in means of transportation, and in this way indirectly cheapen freight rates.

Fourthly, it will build up our cities.

By creating a direct trade with Great Britain our merchant marine would be increased and our seaports would equal American seaports in importance. By control of the trans-continental trade of Canada the seaport of Montreal has this year, for the first time, handled more wheat exports than Buffalo.

A preference of 5 per cent. on meats would be also a benefit to Canada. Three million pounds of fresh meat are consumed in Great Britain, of which Canada supplies three days' fare. The market is so great that we need not fear that we shall overflood it. The market for dairy products is also very extensive. In the matter of cheese, although we command the British market without a preference a little preference would do us no harm.

In the matter of butter we do not command the market, but a preference would materially assist us in doing so.

A preference of 10 per cent. on colonial manufactures is not a thing to be rejected. England imports $450,000,000 worth of manufactured goods. We exported last year $20,000,000 of manufactured goods. At present Canadian manufacturers have to work under great disadvantages as to distance and cost of transportation, and such a preference as that offered would help to counterbalance this.

A Rosy Prophecy.

Canadian manufactures are increasing and will soon be ten times as great as they are. We will soon need an increased market, and for this purpose England offers the most attractive field.

The first object of Mr. Chamberlain is to increase trade within the Empire. We imported from the United States 109,000,000 worth of manufactured goods. It would be a patriotic thing to import them from Britain rather than from the United States, which is practically a foreign country to us politically.

Here Mr. Ross was interrupted by cries of "No! No!" but repeated his assertion that the United States was a country foreign to us politically.

The Empire had within her practically all the things she required for her own industries. She could soon grow all her cotton, climatic conditions being favorable. And it would be well if the Empire was independent of foreign countries, and thus prevent such a collapse as occurred to the Lancashire cotton mills at the time of the American civil war.

Not a Sordid Object.

Mr. Chamberlain's second aim was to secure the unity of the Empire by commercial advantages. Sordid, some one said? The speaker thought not. Commercialism made for peace. Was not the American civil war largely a commercial war? Had not the German States been formed for the commercial advantage of all?

The attitude of the true Imperialist, not the mere Jingoist, was to make the Empire self-contained, commercially as well as sentimentally. We might be good friends with our neighbor, but we would not like him any less if he brought $500 or $1000 business to our store.

Against Reciprocal Treaty.

Mr. Chamberlain's third object, he thought—although this had not been formally or clearly advanced—was to prevent entangling alliances with the United States. We could not afford to quarrel with the United States, and he did not think the United States could afford to quarrel with us.

The most entangling alliance that could be entered into with the American people would be a treaty of reciprocity.

Mr. Ross recalled the history of former reciprocity, broken off by the States just as soon as it suited them. A new treaty would soon place us in the same position. Supposing we had reciprocity. It might go on for 20 years, say. And then some whim, dear knows what whim might strike the American people in 20 years, and Congress would repeal the treaty.

On Our Own Hook.

"I prefer that we be not at the mercy of any foreign congress or State," said the Premier. "Let us develop our trade along the lines—lines which I believe

THE FEDERAL ELECTIONS TAKE PLACE IN MARCH

General Election Will be Delayed Until After Quebec Has Spoken

LATEST GRIST OF NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL.

Every Indication That Sir Wilfrid will Appeal to the Country in February or March at Latest

From our own Correspondent.

Ottawa, Dec. 1—It is a fact that the elections will be held in March or possibly the end of February. Your correspondent has it from unquestionable authority that Parliament will be dissolved soon after the new year. It is also understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will try to get the Quebec Provincial government to hold its elections first, so as to get an idea of the feling of the French Canadian element.

THE FRENCH-CANADIANS.

This consideration of the French-Canadian element crops up always. That influence is both feared and valued. Rev. W. B. Halpenny, minister of a French Methodist church, has called attention to the fact that in 1851 in the city of Quebec alone the French formed 68 per cent of the population, while in 1901 they formed 84 per cent.

In Quebec country the French count 90 per cent and in the eastern townships of Quebec province, which has always been looked upon as almost an English oasis in a French desert the French are replacing the English to such an extent that one Protestant country church which once had sixty English families in its congregation, now has only four. In Stanstead country the French population used to be only 9 per cent and at present is 40 per cent.

In winding up his remarks this up-to-date minister stated that in parts of Canada outside of the province of Quebec, the English-speaking Canadians looked upon the French as foreigners. The number of real foreigners, however, is becoming bewildering and new facts about the manner in which these people are helping the United States to monopolize the northwest are being published daily.

QUESTION OF LEGAL MARRIAGE.

There is another marriage muddle being investigated in the counties of Essex and Kent, Ontario, and the fear is that the law of the land may not stand for certain marriages performed by a Methodist minister who was ordained in the United States and never ordained in Canada. The minister is Rev. Mr. Chittick and the circuit under his administration is a large one, with a place called Gesto as its hub. It appears that Mr. Chittick's predecessor on the circuit is the one who has claimed the invalidity of the marriages performed by Rev. Mr Chittick. The many couples who have been married by Mr. Chittick are being kept in most uncomfortable positions. Even if the conference finally decides that the marriages are legal it is understood that the parents of one bride, who were not pleased with her selection of a husband, intend to bring the matter before the Ontario courts in the hope of being able to dissolve the marriage.

EAGER TO SEEK THE POLE.

There will be an opportunity for some United States millionaire interested in geographical matters to secure a first-rate polar navigator at a very reasonable price. Captain Bernier, who for the last four years has been trying to get together sufficient money to launch his expedition, has announced that he is on the point of giving it up because the Canadian government will not subsidize his undertaking.

BEEN GRANTED WARRANT RANK

The Minister of Militia has granted warrant rank as follows — Subordinate staff, Canadian School of Musketry, No. 610, Sergt.-Major John Collins; 31st Regiment, Sergt.-Major Jas. P. Smith, bandmaster Adolph Ruthen; No. 5 Bearer Company, A.M.C. Sergt.-Major James Kuhring.

MESSAGE FROM CHAMBERLAIN

"I am desired by Mr. Chamberlain to acknowledge with many thanks the receipt of your telegram of today's date, forwarding a kind message from the Sons of England of the Ottawa district, which he has received with much satisfaction."

The above message was received by Mr. Walter Hunt, District Deputy of the Sons of England for the Ottawa district from the private secretary of the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in reply to a message of congratulation and encouragement sent on the suggestion of Major Maynard Rogers from the Sons of England gathering on the evening of the King's birthday.

SEVERE TREATMENT.

Mrs. Clifford Sifton, wife of the Minister of the Interior, is in New York with her fourteen-year-old son who is to be treated by a London specialist, John H. Atkinson, for his trouble. Mr. Atkinson has been in Ottawa for some time during the last fortnight, and will give Master Sifton a complete treatment in New York.

LIBEL SUITS FROM THE GAMEY TRIAL

Barrister McEvoy Brings Three Suits for $10,000 Each for Alleged Accusations.

London, Nov. 30.—Mr. John M. McEvoy, barrister, of this city, who was one of the counsel of the Government in the Gamey investigation, is the plaintiff in three libel suits for damages arising out of the famous case, and the amount claimed in each instance in $10,000.

The London Free Press Printing Company is named as defendant in one of the actions, notice of which has been served. It is alleged that the Free Press of a recent date contained a telegraphic report throwing suspicion on Mr. McEvoy in connection with the disappearance of the leaves of the Crossin cash book at the time of the investigation.

R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., is the defendant in another of the cases, and Alex. Wright, the organizer for the Conservative party in the Province, is the defendant in the third. The actions against these parties are based on statements made by them implicating Mr. McEvoy in the mutilation of cash book.

SENT TO CENTRAL TO REFORM

Windsor, Ont., December 1 — Russell Hurt, the 20-year-old thief who has caused the Windsor police so much trouble during the last few months has been sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, Toronto. Hurt had pleaded guilty to the charge of highway robbery and assault on Miss Gertie Benson, of Sandwich in March last. "Under the statute I could sentence you for this offence to life imprisonment in the Kingston prison," said the court, "but because of your youth, and your mother and sister, I will let you off with but one year in the reformatory at Toronto. There are no hardened criminals there, and you should reform."

OUR WHISKEY PURE

Ottawa, November 30— The Inland Revenue Department has recently concluded the analysis of whiskeys and brandies sold throughout Canada, and the examination failed to show the presence of any poisonous adulteration. The analyst looked especially for alkaloids, like morphine and quinine, but have not found that these are used in the liquors either of domestic manufacture or imported from abroad that are consumed in this country. In the collection of samples the department officials were instructed to be sure to take those of which they had any suspicion, so the tests include practically all the brands the quality of which might be questioned.

A REDUCED CUT OF LUMBER

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—Many of the sawmills of the Ottawa district have closed for the season. Notwithstanding the activity which has prevailed, it now appears that the cut of the season is quite below that of recent years. This reduction is estimated by experts to be at least 1[illegible] per cent. The output at Booth's mill at the Chaudiere is stated to be from 1[illegible] to 15,000,000 feet less than last year.

A New Book

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible] Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

REVELATION IN RELIGION

The New York Tribune has been interesting itself in the Sunday question. It selected a day when the weather was fine, when there was no reason on its account for a poor church attendance, and then took a census. It had the churches lying between Manhattan and the Central Park visited and the congregations counted. There were eighty-seven Protestant and nineteen Catholic churches with a total attendance of 100,901. This represented one in four hundred of the population.

The percentage of church-goers among the Catholics was higher than among the Protestants, namely 61 to 39, and the Protestants outnumber the Catholics in the district two to one. The revelation has had its disturbing effects. The question is whether the relations of the sects and the churches are the same in the larger New York and whether the showing is indicative of the condition of the churches generally in other cities.

One thing is self-evident—that the Catholics are the more faithful to church duties and church obligations. The weather does not affect them materially and does not keep them away from the services of the sanctuary. Through rain or sunshine, at early hours or at late hours they seem to be eager to pay their vows, and their example in this respect is worthy of all praise. Why the Protestants shoul not be equally zealous no one can say, but as a matter of fact they are not.

The indifference of the Protestants towards the churches, is not so much however, of a marvel, when it is remembered that they are weakest where they should be strongest, in the nurture, education, and care of the young.

A MODEST REQUEST

The Federated Trades Council of Milwaukee is composed of even more logical advanced thinkers than are most similar conventicles of mind. Conscious of its importance in the scheme of things and its just claims upon the city, it asks the city to do a little something in return. Some genius has composed, and the council has passed, a set of resolutions whose many whereases modestly mention the labor unions as "instruments for the social welfare and in the interests of a better civilization"; recount the readiness of Milwaukee to "grant bonuses to capitalists to help their business interests"; lament that the poverty of the unions forces them to meet in poorly ventilated halls; insist that "it is the interest of public policy that the trades unions be encouraged by the community," and resolve:

"That the Federated Trades Council, the official representative of the wage workers of Milwaukee, hereby demands that the city of Milwaukee set aside a sufficient sum to buy the real estate for and to build a centrally located labor temple, to be the property of organized labor in Milwaukee, and to supply the unions with high ceilinged, well ventilated and well lighted meeting rooms and business offices, and to also include a large assembly hall to be used for mass meetings of citizens as well as union purposes.

"That in the time intervening before such a building could be built and furnished the city be asked to grant the main union bodies of the city the use of either or both the Common Council chamber of the School Board hall in the City Hall, for the purposes of their meetings, upon stated evenings in each month

Here is the opportunity of the Milwaukee politicians. Presumably they are as eager as members of their class elsewhere to show their fondness for the unions and to hunt the "labor vote," wherever that elusive and unbaggable game conceals itself. Like sensible men the members of the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council propose to make the municipal government demonstrate how much the politicians sympathetic heart will prompt him to do for his "labor friends."

If there are legal or constitutional obstacles to the granting of part of the request, and the erection of the labor temple at the expense of the taxpayers has to be postponed for the present, there can be no such objections toht e use of the Common Council chamber as a labor temple. Whatever the law, there can be no doubt about the facts. The Federated Trades Council has prerogatives and powers in excess of those of the other council. It ought to have a capitol worthy of its functions.

A ROAST FOR FOSTER

Emmott M. P. Says His Mission is Gross Impertinence

London, Nov. 28.—Member of Parliament Emmott, speaking at Oldham, and referring to Hon. Geo. E. Foster's visit, said he thought it would be gross impertinence for any party politician from this country to go to Canada to tell her what she ought to do. If Mr. Foster has been a man of prominence, Mr. Emmott said, he would strongly resent his coming to Oldham to take part in British party politics. "Mr. Foster is a Tory protectionist to the backbone," declared Mr. Emmott, "and he came here to pose as a friend of Canadian preferential treatment to Great Britain. When a man like Mr. Foster, not only out of office but out of Parliament, who had fought two bye-elections and had failed in both, comes here to instruct us what our fiscal policy should be, I am inclined to inquire for his credentials and ask, whom does this man represent?"

A SHAMEFUL AFFAIR

New York Society Woman Divorced and Re-married Within an Hour

Newport, R. I., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Arthur T. Kemp was granted a decree of divorce at a special session of the Supreme Court yesterday by Judge Dubois, andless than hour later the same Justice married Mrs. Kemp to Hollis H. Hunnewell, of Boston. The decree was entered without objection, and as soon as they were notified Mr. Hunnewell at City Hall. When court adjourned Judge Dubois was invited to the Greer cottage, where the two named and a few friends, ncluding Reginald C Vanderbilt, brother-in-law of Mrs. Kemp were assembled. The judge complied with a request to unite Mr. Hunnewell and Mrs. Kemp, the ceremony occupying but a few moments.

Hobbled Six Years

Cured in Six Weeks of Chronic Rheumatism By Ferrozone

Hundreds, aye thousands of cures have been put on the market for Rheumatism during the past few years, but a remedy with power to cure Chronic Rheumatism, Ferrozone excepted, in the estimation of Mr. Cullen, of Sturgeon Bay, does not exist.

Mr. Cullen says: "As everyone knows I have been simply tortured for years with Muscular Rheumatism, not the ordinary kind that bothers most people, but the kind that ties one up so that they can't move.

"For six years I hobbled about like a cripple, unable to move without artificial aid canes. I used quantities of liniments, special baths and so forth, but they didn't help me very much.

"On the advice of a Presbyterian minister I used Ferrozone, gave it a good trial at first and when I saw it was helping, I bought six boxes and took one tablet at the close of each meal. I am perfectly cured and am today as spry as a youngster of ten. I am convinced that my recovery is entirely due to the marvellous action of Ferrozone."

Mr. Cullen's case is a fair example of the kind of cures that Ferrozone is effecting every day. In severe cases of Neuralgia, Sciatica, Rheumatism, and Lumbago, it acts with surprising alacrity, and no case is recorded where it failed.

Ferrozone cures these diseases because it is a solvent for uric acid in the blood. It removes all traces of it and other poisons from the blood in from two to ten days. Then it builds up and invigorates the system, and makes weak, sickly people strong and well enough to resist and ward off disease.

The best Rheumatism remedy that one can buy is Ferrozone. It relieves quickly and cures so perfectly that the disease never again returns. After all other remedies fail, it cures, and that is the sort of medicine you want. Ferrozone price 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

GIANT CROSS ERECTED

St. Jean Baptiste Society to Erect One at Montreal

The Old Protest Against Religious Emblems on Mount Royal Recalled

Montreal, Nov. 28.— proposition which is likely once more to throw the city into the ferment of a religious controversy will shortly be made to the City Council, involving, as it does, the erection of a huge cross in no less conspicuous a place than Mount Royal Park.

A previous effort in this direction, made now over a decade ago—the erection of a statue to the Blessed Virgin—met with such strong opposition from the Protestant element in the community that the project was finally abandoned.

The promoters of the new undertaking are, however, more sanguine as to a satisfactory outcome. Whereas a statue to the Virgin Mary would appeal to merely the Roman Catholics of the city—being exclusively emblematic of that faith—it is felt by the officials of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, who are behind the proposal, that the cross typifies thegreatest event in the whole Catholic world, and should consequently be inoffensive to Catholics of both Roman and Protestant extraction.

That there is not a little to support this contention is obvious from a conversation which a press representative had with the gentleman who is by way of pre-eminence known as the leading Protestant clergyman in the city. "The erection of a cross in Mount Royal Park, said he, "would not cause me the loss of an hour's sleep. While I am free to admit that there may be some Protestants who will have conscientious objections, I would not myself move a finger to oppose the suggestion. There can, at any event, be no such difficulty as was presented when the proposal was one to erect a statue to the Virgin Mary."

But the members of the St. Jean Baptiste Society—names, as Canadians are mostly aware, after the patron saint of the French-Canadian race—do not desire that this particular cross shall haev any peculiarly religious significance. They are erecting it to commemorate the cross which Jacques Cartier the discoverer of Canada, placed upon the summit of Mount Royal when first he set foot upon the island. Those who have read the memoirs of Jacques Cartier will remember that, upon the occasion in question, he traversed the then pathless forests from the margin of the river, andscaling the height of land set a wooden cross upon the highest point. The cross remained in place for mnya years. It is now proposed to perpetuate it with one more endurable.

Will Be a Money-Maker.

The cross will be constructed in skeleton steel, set upon a foundation of stone. This base will be fourteen feet square, and above the superstructure will rise to an altitude of 140 feet. Each of the arms of the cross will stretch out forty feet on either side. At night the cross will be lit by electricity, illuminating the whole in outline. tA the apex will be an observatory, from the platform of which a most commanding view of the surrounding country may be obtained. The cost isestimated at between $15,000 and $20,000, and, through charging a small admission fee, it is hoped that a return of five per cent. on the capital invested may be obtained. The cross, if erected, will be first opened on the 23rd of next June—the seventeenth anniversary of the founding of the St. Jean Baptiste Society.

Seaside Talk.

She—I feel so sad—we're going back home to-morrow.

He—By Jove! So are we.

She—Oh, I am glad. What train are you going by?

The Major's Discomfiture.

She was more than beautiful, and as she stood in the garden surrounded by a crowd of adoring victims, a subtle essence seemed to distil from her which rendered her perfectly irresistible.

"Isn't that Major Tuffin?" she enquired, indicating a middle-aged masher who was posing on the other side of the lawn.

"Yes, that's Jack," replied the man she had addressed. "I didn't know he was in town."

"Would you mind telling him that I should like to speak to him for a minute?"

"With pleasure," and he made the best of his way between the various groups of well-dressed people, until he found the object of his search.

"How d'you do, Jack?" he observed. "You're in luck, you old bounder!"

"Eh, what? What's up, then?"

"Way, the Diva has sent me to fetch you."

"The d——! Oh, well, it's a beastly nuisance having to move about this hot weather—but, of course, a lady's commands must be obeyed."

And putting on as much side as though he was accustomed to reigning beauties sending for him every hour of the day, the major swaggered over to where the belle was holding her court.

"So glad to see you, major," she observed, smiling most sweetly as she spoke. "I want to ask you to do me a favor."

"Why, certainly," answered the gallant officer, pulling himself up, until he felt inches taller. "Anything in my power."

"Would you mind taking this," and she handed him a little lace wisp of a handkerchief, "and rubbing the paint off my face that you told everyone at Ranelagh last Saturday you knew I put on?"

A moment's silence, a roar of laughter from the admiring crowd, and the major bolted.

Poor major.—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

Unkind.

Algy—Gwace has a hahwid father. When I awaked him for her hand I said: "Love for your daughter has dwiven me hawf cwazy."

Cholly—And then, deah boy?

"Then the old bwute said: 'Has, eh? Well, who completed the job?'"

Maud—I drove 'way over there to get him and then he was gone!

Alice—He couldn't have seen you coming, could he, dear?

OUTING FOR DECEMBER

When Caspar Whitney became editor of Outing, he promised a magazine that should reflect in text and pictures, the human side of outdoor life, in addition to being ahtuorative. In the December number he seems to have made good his promise, for, from cover to cover, the magazine teems with human interest and living photographs. There is a study of the Paris Cabman, that queer type of cabby, whose life is perhaps most picturesque of all drivers of carriages for hire. Mr. Davis has written an interesting paper in the Americans at Play, and Henry Watson, in his illustrations has caught the spirit of Mr. Davis's semi-humorous always entertaining view point. Of a different kind, but none the less interesting, is the Indian Festival at Taos, with photographs especially taken and full of action, and of the atmosphere of the scene. Still another human type is found in the Fox Hunting About Rome article which has the most startling photographs yet published of men and women and horses in the hunting field. Nearly every one has wondered at one time or another how famous pugilists became fighters and Robert Edgren in his Fighters by Nature tells us of the boyhood of celebrated pugilists and of the impelling force that put them in the rope arena. Memories of a Boy-Time Winter is a delightful bit of humor and human nature quaintly illustrated by B. Cory Kilvert. Perhaps not many know that in New York there are hospitals and doctors maintained solely to attend to the ills of pet dogs and cats and other animals. Mr. Ashley's interesting story on the subject will rather open the eyes of the average reader. In these days of automobile popularity much has been said and written of the possibilities of the motor car for the Army. Captain T. Bently Mott, the American Military Attache in Paris, has made for Outing an extensive study of the subject, and has taken a series of important photographs showing the uses to which the automobile has been put by Continental Armies. His article, the Automobile in War, will attract a great deal of attention, especially since the suggestion of General Miles to replace cavalry to some extent with automobiles.

In fiction, the December Outing is strong with the second installment of Stewart Edward White's Trail of Jingoes which is the most mature and most thrilling piece of adventure this talented young novelist has yet written, and with Eden Philpotts's very human story of Three Birds With One Stone, For sportsmen, there is an important article on Modern English Gun Dogs; a very entertaining story in duck shooting by Sandys. Caspar Whitney recounts the killing of his first musk-ox, for which he had travelled 1,200 miles on snow-shoes. There are the usual helpful departments for sportsmen, touching shooting, fishing, etc., and Mr. Whitney's comment on current matters of the outdoor world. Altogether, with its frontispiece in color, its profuse illustrations, and its entertaining text, it is one of the most inviting of the month's magazines. Outing, in a word, is a living magazine.

The Origin of Coffee.

As to the history of coffee, the legend runs that it was first found growing wild in Arabia. Hadji Omar, a dervish, discovered it in 1285, six hundred and seventeen years ago. He was dying of hunger in the wilderness, when, finding some small round berries, he tried to eat them, but they were bitter. He tried roasting them, and these he finally steeped in some water held in the hollow of his hand, and found the decoction as refreshing as if he had partaken of solid food. He hurried back to Mocha, from which he had been banished, and, inviting the wise men to partake of his discovery, they were so well pleased with it that they made him a saint.

The story is told, writes Thomas R. Dawley, jr., in "Success," that coffee was introduced into the West Indies in 1723, by Chirac, a French physician, who gave a Norman gentleman by the name of De Clieux, a captain of infantry on his way to Martinique, a single plant. The sea voyage was a stormy one, the vessel was driven out of her course, and drinking water became so scarce that it was distributed in rations. De Clieux, with an affection for his coffee plant, divided his portion of water with it, and succeeded in bringing it to Martinique, although weak, not in a hopeless condition. There he planted it in his garden, protected it with a fence of thorns, and watched it daily until the end of the year, when he gathered two pounds of coffee, which he distributed among the inhabitants of the island to be planted by them. From Martinique coffee trees in turn were sent to Santo Domingo, Guadaloupe and othe neighboring islands.

The coffee tree is an evergreen shrub, growing, in its natural state, to a height of fourteen to eighteen feet. It is usually kept trimmed, however, for convenience in picking the berries, which grow along the branches close to the leaves and resemble in shape and color ordinary cherries. The tree cannot be grown above the frost line, neither can it be successfully grown in the tropics. The most successful climate for production is that found at an altitude of about four thousand feet. Anything much above this is in danger of frost, which is fatal to the tree; and, when coffee is grown much below this, it requires artificial shade, which materially increases the cost of production and does not produce as marketable berries. It is owing to this particular requirement that coffee has never been successfully produced north of the Mexican boundary.

A Gentle Reminder.

The following style of typewritten letter is suggested for use when you don't care to say it right out:

"Dear $ir—You will plea$e excu$e thi$, but I am $orry to $ay that the letter $ i$ mi$$ing from thi$ typewriter, wherea$ I cannot do better. I wi$h to $ay, however, that if you $hould happen up $treet $ome day $oon, I would con$ider it a $ource of great plea$ure if you would $top in and $ee u$ about a certain $mall matter that $hould be $ettled. Your $incere $ervant," etc.—Columbia "Dispatch."

Reversing Things.

We understand that there is a growing fashion among men to wear wedding rings. This is a healthy sign that the fair sex is to be fought with its own weapons. The girls have taken to wearing our collars and neckties and shirt-fronts, so that a moderate course of reprisal seems justifiable. By and by when the change over is a little more developed, we shall see the good wife starting for the city, while her husband in a housekeeper's apron, will stand at the garden gate waving an affectionate good-bye with a soft-haired broom.

WHO OR WHAT IS YOUR MASTER?

No man can serve two masters.—St. Mat., vi., 24.

It is always impressive and helpful to have a statement intended as a rule of life uttered with authority and in language so simple and direct that it cannot be misunderstood.

Jesus Christ, whose words these are, was not only the "Lord of Life," but the Master of living. He spoke not only as one having authority, but out of an experience that had tested in His own life the rules He gave for guidance of others.

That He exemplified both in letter and spirit the principle expressed in the text is so clearly a matter of history that even His most persistent critics have not been able to gainsay. Nor should anyone fail to understand the force of the axiom:—"No man can serve two masters." It is a universal negative and asserts an impossible condition of service. It does not destroy the free exercise of the human will, but it places a limitation upon the functions of that will.

We are so constituted that, though one may boast of his independence in thought and action, nevertheless there is a mastery to which every one is ever rendering an obedient service. We must serve some master, but "no man can serve two masters." Nevertheless we are confronted with the fact that the great majority of men are endeavoring to do the very thing which is here pronounced impossible and proved to be so by all experience. Alas! how many have fallen victims to this vain endeavor; how many are still engaged in the hopeless task of a dual service!

The proposition is as true in the affairs of everyday life, in the questions affecting political, civic, ethical, commercial and social relations and the numerous situations in which we are called upon to assume an attitude of service, as in the realm of religion and morals. The tendency of the age is to be non-committal, to straddle, to be on the fence, to serve two masters, when, as a matter of fact, such an effort is a delusion and a snare, and in the end subverts the best interests of the individual and of the common weal. Compromise is always a sign of weakness. Conservatism is a sort of fetich of the day. In questions of honor and dishonor, of good report and evil report, of right and wrong, there is no middle ground upon which honest men can afford to stand. In such we are at the "parting of the ways," and we must follow one or the other.

Especially is this true in matters of religion. Here the line of separation is so clearly defined that it cannot honestly be escaped. The Great Teacher gives a concrete example:—"Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." God, as representing the very highest, because most perfect, mastery, and Mammon, as demanding the very lowest, because the most degrading, service—each is an imperious and exacting master, and no man can be loyal to both. Their wills are so different, their commands so opposite and their ends so antagonistic that the occasion must frequently rise when one or the other will have to be despised and disobeyed if the other be honored and served. Try as we may to elude the difficulty of the situation, we are forced to enlist in the service of the one or the other. Beyond a doubt Mammon rule—Mammon worship—is one of the distinctive features of the day, and few realize how deep is the impress upon life and character.

There is an expression about "every man" or "everything" having its price, and the fact that it calls forth a resentment that steadily grows less as pronounced indicates how far we have gone in this direction. However, there is no necessary conflict between God and Mammon, between the acquisition of wealth and the highest duty of life, but there is a necessary conflict between the mastership of wealth and the mastership of God. When men are so dominated by the love of gain that it becomes an absorbing passion and the higher claims of duty are made secondary they should at least be honest with themselves and know in what service they are enlisted, and not be deluded by the thought that they can "hold to the one" and not "despise the other." Unworthy service assumes other forms. Society, fashion, pleasure may be substituted for "Mammon," and we have identically the same situation. It is not a question of inconsistency or incongruity. It is not "ye ought," but "ye cannot."

If, therefore, every man must serve some master, and "no man can serve two masters," and every man really does serve one master, ought not each one to deal honestly and fairly with himself, and as an intelligent and responsible being demand an answer to this very pertinent question, "Who or what is my master?"

At the Rothamstead, England, Experimental Farm, conducted so long by Lawes and Gilbert, a field is this year carrying its sixteenth successive crop of wheat.

In estimating the profit from a butter cow something is due the cow for the skim milk and butter milk furnished the pigs. A lot of pigs should always be kept where cream is sold or butter sent to market. The pigs provide a source for the disposal of refuse milk, and a portion of the profit should be credited to the cow.

If I Die Shall I Live Again?

"No, and I Don't Want To," answers Frederic Harrison.

Aroused by Mr. Myer's remarkable book on the survival of human personality after death, the Positivists or freethinkers of England are giving vent to their ridicule and contempt, and the chief of them, the eminent critic, Frederic Harrison, in the "Nineteenth Century" gives a brilliant description of his dream of the future life. He tells how he dreamed, and having cast aside his mortal body, passed into the Infinite, where, in his dream, he seemed to revel in the tornadoes of astral volcanoes, and to find rest in icy regions where the very ether had frozen into a liquid:—

"One seemed? who seemed? who felt? who saw? who passed? What, or who, was I? Individuality, personality, subjectivity, had slipped off as easily as the dried husk they were now laying out for burial. How childish, how brutish, how selfish did it seem now to conceive of any me! There was an end of Me, with its outlook of blind kitten or wriggling earth-worm. Should it be rather We—was I now a Gas, a Force, an Emanation? Should it be rather They?—was I an indefinite unit of a limitless Power extended in Space, and contemporaneous with all Time? The pettiness, the feebleness, the squalor of the sense of being Me was too evident. A more glorious We took the place of Me; and We in turn became They; and They in a flash became All.

"What a miserable insect should I have been in this immeasurable Universe if, by miracle hardly conceivable of Omnipotence, the individual Me had survived! Personality was all very well in the muddy speck men call Earth; dust to dust, ashes to ashes. But in the blaze of an Infinite Universe, scintillating in its every atom with unquenchable light, throbbing not with momentary sensations, but with ideas, ideas intercommunicable from one point in the boundless All to every other point, without need of language, and without effort, act, or delay—to drag up into this Immensity the soiled rags of 'human personality'—'twould be better to be the parasite of the anopheles gnat, spreading death and disease in its passion for blood. When the entire Universe is continuously and eternally apparent as a whole; when all its infinite and interminable ideas are simultaneously cognizable throughout its limitless field; when Motion is extinct, by reason that everything is everywhere, and Sound is swallowed up in one endless circumambient Harmony, then, assuredly, there is no place left for Sight, Hearing, Speech or Thought. The wretched makeshifts of human sensation are as meaningless and sterile as the eyes of a mole. In this new world the craving for Personality is seen to be a sordid lust of the flesh.

"The transition from the dusty, cribbed and fetid prison of the Body to the radiant immensity of the Universe, wherein all the uses of bodily sense, and all the notions of terrestrial mind are meaningless and void, was a change so sudden and tremendous that it could not become familiar at first. Remnants of ideas and instincts belonging to the old world of sense still lingered in the new world of transcendence. On earth one had played with conundrums of a geometry of four dimensions. The new world presented dimensions at once infinite in number, at once infinite and infinitesimal in quantity; rather it had no dimensions at all; for everything was everything else; and also was nothing. And so, too, in the world numeration was infinite—all numbers were at once infinity and zero. Two plus two now added up x millions raised to the nth power, and instantaneously flashed back into minus 0. Had shame been possible in the world of the Absolute, it would have been fit to mark this absurd attempt to count—this survival of gross materialism from the world of Relation and Matter.

"The dregs of consciousness, of some flickering sensation of an individual Me, would now and then break out, like a forgotten weed in a well-tended garden. I tried to think of myself as Me. . . . Such petty egoisms belong only to a world of limitations, of parts, of relations, of organisms. They drop off like dead leaves in winter in a world of infinites, of absolutes, a world which knows neither structures, nor parts, nor limits, nor substances, nor organs.

"Once, whilst the sound of human voices had hardly faded from my memory, I essayed to communicate some vague idea to the world around me. The stupidity of such a wish, its wild absurdity and gross animalism, was beamed forth in the myriad flashes of a circumambient Lightning. Millions after millions of electric welkins pulsated across the Heaven, amidst the joyous peal of infinite Thunder claps. They had recognized my wish before it had been expressed; nay, before it had been formed. They were Me; I was They; We were It. The All now absorbed the Many; it had engulfed all individual entities, so that personality had ceased to have existence or meaning."

The Automobile and The Cart Horse.

"Hello, Old Stick-in-the-Mud!" it called, tauntingly. "Back to the Boneyard, you Dead One!" So saying, it disappeared in a Cloud of Steam.

A little farther down the Pike, the Tired Cart Horse came upon the Swift Automobile, now Busted.

"Aha!" said the Steed, with a Horse Laugh, "who is Stick-in-the-Mud now? You are indeed far from your Happy Home."

While the Cart Horse was thinking up other Biting Sarcasms of this Nature, they hitched him up to the Damaged Vehicle, and he was compelled to yank it laboriously to the stable, fourteen miles away on an Up Grade.

This fable teaches us that it is Wrong to gloat over the Downfall of our Enemies, until we are sure they can no longer injure us.—Ex.

The Unweaker Vessel.

"You are accused of mashing women," said the stranger.

"I know it," replied the street car conductor. "But 'tain't the women that gits mashed, so much as 'tis the small kids and old men, I s'pose on account of the women mostly wearin' corsets."

"Was his marriage a success?" "I should say it was. He has tried to secure a divorce in South Dakota, New York, Oklahoma, and England, and his marriage still holds."—Brooklyn "Life."

Many are prone to allow their horses to run out through all kinds of weather until late in the fall, and until their coats become rough and shaggy. This is wrong. Frosty grass is not good for horses that have been used to dry feed and must yet do hard work. They should be stabled as soon as the nights become uncomfortably cool, and then they may be turned out to grass again after the sun has dispelled the frost.

Anecdotal.

It is said that Mark Twain was standing in a crowded street car, hanging to a strap, the other day. As the car swung around a corner the strap broke, dumping him into the lap of a well-dressed woman. The humorist arose and bowed. "Madam," said he, "this is the first time the street car company ever conferred a favor on me."

A missionary in China was endeavoring to convert one of the natives. "Suppose me Christian, me go to heaven?" remarked Ah Sin. "Yes," replied the missionary. "All lite," retorted the heathen, "but what for you no let Chinaman into Amellica when you let him into heaven?" "Ah," said the missionary with fervor, "there's no labor party in heaven."

Abraham Benedict of the New York bar tells the story of a young man who entered a street car with a dog and attracted the attention of an Irishman, who enquired what kind of a dog it was. The young man replied: "It is a cross between an ape and an Irishman." "Then we are both related to it," responded the Irishman.

The teacher of a country school asked his pupils one day if any of them could tell him who Joan of Arc was. The question was followed by profound silence. Some of the pupils stared at the teacher, and some turned and stared at one another, as if seeking information in the faces around them. Finally a boy burst out with: "Oh, yes, I know; she was Noah's wife."

Once, when they were talking literature, Mrs. Isobel Strong said to Robert Louis Stevenson: "At least you have no mannerisms." Whereupon Stevenson took a copy of his own "Merry Men," which she was reading, out of her hands, and read, "It was a wonderful clear night of stars." "Oh," he said, "how many, many times I have written 'a wonderful clear night of stars.'"

In 1[illegible] an Englishman and his wife were being driven about Ireland by a rather melancholy jarvey, who could see no silver lining to the cloud overshadowing his country and his own particular trade. "Never mind, Pat," said the Englishman, "you'll have a grand time when they give you Home Rule." "Bedad, yer honner, and we will—for a week." "Why for a week?" "Drivin' all the gintry to the boat," answered Pat.

A good story is told of Professor Jebb of Oxford. In the classroom immediately above his own Professor Veitch lectured on logic. One day the peroration of the professor of logic was greeted with such rapturous applause that it brought down some pieces of ceiling in the room below. As the bits of plaster dropped about his room Professor Jebb quietly remarked, "Gentlemen, our premises will not support the conclusion of the professor of logic."

Congressman Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey tells a story of a small boy who was over supplied with green apples. "I had gone to see one of my constituents down in Union County," said the Congressman, "and found him trying to give some medicine to a young son who had eaten too many green apples, while a Christian Science neighbor was assuring the boy that there was nothing at all the matter with him. 'I think I ought to know,' groaned the boy. 'I guess I've got inside information.'"

At a banquet after the overwhelming defeat of "Shamrock III." Sir Thomas Lipton said: "You Americans are herd to beat. You remind me of the Scotchman who came up to London and was set upon by two highwaymen, whom he so unmercifully mauled that by the time they had overcome him they were about ready to go to the hospital themselves. And they only found tuppence in his pocket, whereat one of them said: 'It's lucky, Bill, he didn't 'ave sixpence. If he 'ad, 'e'd a killed both of us.'"

A well-known churchman of Memphis—the late Dr. Patterson—used to take pleasure in relating several good ones on himself. One of his favorites concerned a generous-hearted but rather wild young friend in whom the reverend gentleman took a special interest. The climax was reached one day when the doctor was walking along the street and suddenly came upon the young man as he staggered out of a cafe. "George, George, drunk again," sighed the scandalized priest. The answer was quite as unexpected as it was unsteady. "Thash all right, doctor; so'm I."

An anecdote which has lately been going the rounds in British official circles concerns the memorable experience of a certain member of Parliament during the last year of Queen Victoria's reign. The statesman in question is not one of those who are most firmly convinced of the benefits of total abstinence, and the evening of a certain public function at which royalty was to be present found him in a condition which would not have been edifying to the supporters of that movement. The late Queen was receiving the guests of honor, and it was necessary that the convivial M.P. should be presented with the rest. As he approached his sovereign, Victoria extended her hand for him to kiss. But he did not kiss it; instead, he grasped and shook it with vigorous enthusiasm, while he scrutinized her face with grave perplexity. "Your face, madam," he observed, "is perfectly familiar to me, but I'm blowed if I can remember your name!"

An amusing story is told of Phil May, the late famous cartoonist of the London "Punch," and an English conjurer at a fair at Stratford-on-Avon. Phil was watching the very clever gentleman who was wrapping up sovereigns and half-crowns in pieces of paper and selling them for two shillings. The "sharp" had a beautiful face—such a face as Phil May loved to draw. So he sketched him furtively. But the gentleman saw him, and made a speech forthwith. "If that there celebrited portrit painter with the tight breeches on will 'and up the pictor, the equally celebrited benefactor to 'oomanity wot is givin' away quids for coppers will reward 'im accordingly!" he shouted. Phil, with a twinkle in his eye, handed up the drawing. The conjurer was delighted with the sketch and pinned it to the tail-board of his cart. With another preliminary speech he threw three sovereigns, three half-sovereigns and several half-crowns into a piece of paper, screwed it up and handed it to the artist. "You'll be president of the bloomin' R'yal Academy some dye, young man," said he. "Here, catch!" "A bargain's a bargain," said Phil, walking off with the packet of gold and silver, which when opened proved to contain two pennies and a half-penny; but Phil said that it was the most entertaining commission he had ever been paid for.

A REDUCED CUT OF LUMBER

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Many of the sawmills of the Ottawa district have closed for the season. Notwithstanding the activity which has prevailed, it now appears that the cut of the season is quite below that of recent years. This reduction is estimated by experts to be at least 10 per cent. The output at Booth's mill at the Chaudiere is stated to be from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 feet less than last year.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

CHRISTMAS CANADIAN MAGAZINE

The coloured cover of special design, some seasonable stories and articles, many excellent drawings and coloured reproductions make the Christmas Canadian Magazine attractive. As a Canadian Souvenir to send abroad it is not equalled by any other Canadian publication. The Symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," by John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Walter C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin adds materially to its value as a souvenir to send to Great Britain. The two coloured plates of a Lake Huron Harbour by Moonlight, and an article on Toronto as a Typical Canadian City add to this value. With the exception of Sarah A. Tooley, who writes of Christmas at Sandringham, and Justin McCarthy, who contributes a story, all the contributors are Canadians. Price 25 cents; all booksellers.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

"Are you not glad to see me?" she said, devouring his face with her dark eyes. "I have so hungered for the sound of your voice—for a sight of your face. These months have been months of torture! There has not been an hour in which I have not longed for you—you, my husband—my love!"

He closed the door with a savage gesture, not advancing a step towards her.

"This is nonsense!" he exclaimed. "You must have been very sure that our marriage stood for nothing, or you would hardly have become the wife of Sir Felix Errol."

"But now," she cried, lifting her clasped hands to him in supplication, "I am free, and I have wealth—the wealth you so sorely needed—the wealth for which you would so gladly have sacrificed love. All that I have is yours—money, estate, position. In return I ask you to make Lady Errol your wife."

He started and frowned, then drew himself up with a sneering laugh.

"I cannot agree to the arrangement," he said, contempt ringing in his voice; "I have no desire to become rich—at such a sacrifice."

"I ask no sacrifice," she replied. "Poverty divided us, riches may bring us together; with you love does not count for all in all."

"It may do so in the present instance," he retorted, with a mocking smile. "You made good use of your time to become the wife of Sir Felix. How do you know I also have not thought of contracting a profitable marriage?"

She could not mistake his meaning. He loved somebody else.

Another was to bear the name that should have been hers, and the hope of winning back his love was dashed from her life for ever.

She went nearer to him, and caught his arm in a passionate grasp.

"You cannot give another the name that should be mine—the ring that should be on my hand! Oh, Frank—Frank, for the sake of my great love for you—for the sake of what I have suffered, be true to me now—now, when there is no obstacle in our way—now, when I can lay at your feet the wealth you have always coveted! It is yours, Frank—were it a million times as much, it should be yours. My love—my love, take me back to your heart, I, who should have no place but at your side!"

"You speak strangely," he said, trying to shake off her hold. "You did not let love for me stand in the way of your marriage with Sir Felix."

"I allowed nothing to stand in the way of my marriage with Sir Felix," she answered, her hands tightening convulsively on Frank's arm. "You wanted wealth, and I grasped the riches that came within my power. You had left me nameless; in bitterness and despair I sought the refuge of his name. Yet, through it all, I thought only of you, and longed for the time of my release to come, that I might call you back to me, and lay my life at your feet."

"You would have done better to have forgotten me," he retorted. "The ties that once existed between us can never be renewed."

She gazed into his face with wild, agonized eyes.

"You must—you must have some love left for me!" she exclaimed, passionately. "Frank, think of what I have suffered, and remember it is no outcast, craving the protection of a husband's name, who comes to you; but a woman of rank and fortune, who wants to raise you to her level—to give you your heart's best desire."

He attempted to shake her off.

"This scene must end," he said, his face white and set. "I might have told you just now that I had no love left for you; I will tell you more; I care for somebody else; another will soon be my wife."

She clung to him in a frenzy of despair and love.

"No! no!" she moaned, "you cannot be so cruel! you cannot ignore the ties that bound us—the ties that should still hold us together. Be merciful, Frank—do not bind me to lifelong desolation—to endless torture! I love you—I love you—and you were once my husband!"

"I was never your husband," he answered, flinging her from him. "I gave you the choice once; you could have had my love. That offer you spurned, and I left you. We have no further claim upon each other; it would have been better if we had never again met."

His words seemed to pierce her heart. She would have gone through seething fires for his sake, enduring the fiercest tortures, that his love might be won back to her—and he could only thrust her from him with cold, bitter contempt.

With a forlorn cry, she fell on her knees, and clasped her hands about him, her face upraised in pitiful pleading.

"Is your heart stone?" she wailed, "is all love in vain? Does no pulse stir with the old sweet tenderness? I have passed through bitter torment that I might lay my love at your feet, that I might look in your eyes, and feel your kisses on my lips. Must I go away more despairing than I came?—must all my love be wasted?"

There was an abandonment of passion in her attitude, in her voice; an intense agony was depicted on the fair features.

But Frank gazed at her unmoved.

Whatever love he had borne her in the past had died out from his heart. Her presence annoyed him. Why had she come, thinking to draw him back to that old life? Her love was powerless to awaken any tender memory within him, and he turned with impatience from her pleading eyes.

"There can be no love between us," he exclaimed. "I beg you to pay yourself this much respect, Lady Errol—not to further compromise yourself and me by prolonging this interview."

She clung to him more wildly—unwilling to relinquish her idol—the man whose love, to her, was more than life itself.

"You cannot—you cannot forget all—all," she cried. "Frank! Frank! take me back! I love you so dearly—so dearly!"

"This scene must end," he said again, his voice stern in its composure. "Rise Lady Errol! your place is not at my feet."

His coldness stung her. She might as well have flung herself at the feet of a statue and pleaded for love to stir the marble breast, as to ask tenderness of this man, whose heart to her was stone.

"My place would not be at your feet, if I had all a woman's pride," she answered, bitterly. "What is pride compared with my love? There is nothing of my womanhood that I would not sacrifice for you—nothing that I have not sacrificed for you—and yet you give me no return. Oh, my love—my love! What can I say to move you—to make you understand the passion of my heart!"

"Nothing," he replied, "I understand enough. Rise! Do not forget the position you hold as the widow of Sir Felix Errol."

She recoiled at his words, and the old, haunting horror swept over her face.

"Hush!" she cried, "you do not know what that name is to me! Never speak of him to me; only remember I love you—that through all, I have loved none but you!"

"Yet you were his wife!"

"For what purpose?" she exclaimed, her lips white and dry. "Have you never thought how you left me? You made poverty the excuse for casting me aside, and I did my best to secure wealth and a title. With these I come back to you, and ask you to take me—salam."

A slow subtle smile flitted across his features; he leaned forward until his eyes were just above Lady Errol's.

"You do not say what you are!" he said, his voice full of sinister meaning. "It's strange none should have guessed the motive of that murder; stranger still that you should come to me with the wealth of which you have despoiled the dead!"

He saw the shuddering start she gave, the terror that leapt to her wan face—the sudden dropping of her hands, as though all vitality had left her frame.

"My words seem to have caused you alarm," he remarked, "yet I spoke only of what must have been in your mind."

AFTER FOUR TRIALS

Was Acquitted on the Charge of Manslaughter

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 29. — The fourth trial of Geo. Gillman Alberton for manslaughter in killing Archibald Graves on January 17th, 1902, resulted this morning in his acquittal. The case is perhaps unequalled in Canadian justice. On the first trial Alberton was found guilty and sent to Dorchester for seven years. In the course of a few weeks his counsel, Mr. McQuarry, had the conviction quashed on the ground that improper evidence had been introduced. In the second and third trials, the jury disagreed and in the fourth he has been acquitted.

Hemmingford, Nov. 29.—Frank Miller, a well known farmer, living five miles east of here has had a remarkable experience. A man knocked at the door of his house about seven o'clock on Wednesday night. Mr. Miller opened the door and was shot at. The unknown then ran to the back of the house and shot at Mrs. Miller through the window.

Fortunately the bullets missed them both. Not satisfied, he set fire to the outbuildings, burning two large barns and two stables, also ten head of cattle with a large quantity of hay and grain and farm implements.

—Mr. Geo. S. Matthews has been appointed manager of the branch of the George Matthews Company at Brantford. The departure from Peterborough of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews will be sincerely regretted by a very large circle of friends.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. [illegible]c. per box, or 5 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Black Hills Copper Company
LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 600 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 25 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of Dickens Holds His Own.

Does Dickens, it is often asked, really hold his own against the flood of modern stories which pours into the shops of the booksellers? Messrs. Chapman & Hall, his old London publishers, have been looking into their many years past these have averaged considerably over a quarter of a million copies annually, and that so far from there being any decline, the interest in Dickens and the consequent sales of his works are increasing every year. It would appear that the difference in the individual sales of Dickens's books is remarkably small, especially when one thinks of the long list of them. The least popular is the "Child's History of England," and, as might be supposed, the standing favorite is "Pickwick." During the past three years, however, there has been a great increase in the sale of the "Tale of Two Cities"—so much so that it would come first by many copies for these particular years. No doubt this is mostly due to the success of Mr. Martin Harvey's play, "The Only Way." While this piece—the story dramatised—was being performed in London there was a brisk demand daily for the book. Next to "Pickwick," the permanent favorite, judged by circulation, is "David Copperfield," and, indeed, there is not much to choose between the two. From them there is a rather considerable drop to "Oliver Twist" and the "Old Curiosity Shop," the sales of which have differed from each other only to the extent of three hundred copies.

Three other stories which may be ranked together are "Nicholas Nickleby," "Dombey and Son" and "Bleak House." "Little Dorrit" and "Our Mutual Friend" come along in company with "Martin Chuzzlewit," and the Christmas books not far behind. "Martin Chuzzlewit" is an illustration of the slightness of vicissitude that Dickens's books have shown. When it was published he declared that it was a hundred times the best thing he had done. But somehow the original sales were quite disappointing, and Dickens was really anxious as to whether the reading public was not forsaking him. Every year it improved its position, and if that were to be estimated on its whole sales—and not on those of the past three years only—it would probably come next to "Pickwick" and "David Copperfield." In his recent article on Dickens, Mr. Swinburne declared that "Great Expectations" was perhaps the best of his novels. On sales it comes fourteenth in the list, but the recent cheap edition has given it a very large vogue with the public. Generally speaking, the public demand for individual novels by Dickens is in harmony with the verdicts which literary opinion has pronounced upon them. In other words, the books of his which the literary critics have exalted are also most bought by the public.

Long Deferred Explanation.

Years afterward the man who refused the anesthetic and called for his violin, which he played without missing a note while the surgeons were sawing his leg off, was speaking of the incident to a friend.

"I got a good deal of a reputation for bravery out of the affair," he said, "and the papers all played me up as a hero, but I wasn't anything of the sort. I was afraid of chloroform, and at first I thought I'd keep the leg and take the chances. Then, all at once, I thought of my fiddle. You never heard me play the fiddle, did you?"

"No, I never did."

"Well, that made the surgical operation just nothing at all. Anybody that could stand my fiddling could stand any thing."—Chicago "Tribune."

King Rockefeller II.

An anonymous writer in the Boston "Transcript" declares that John D. Rockefeller's death would make no great difference as regards the future of his benefactions; for if ever a man had a son after his own pattern—mind and heart—he has. "John D. Rockefeller, jr., is a chip of the old block," continues the writer. "He is accessible. He has a pleasant manner. He goes to his office in the Standard Oil Building every day when he is in New York. He works hard and regularly. But there is the Rockefeller sphinx-like method in all that he does. He holds his father in great respect—in reverence, in fact. He has the same church creed. He maintains and conducts a large Bible class—with sincerity and a good deal of zeal. He keeps himself informed of the management of the great Rockefeller interests, benefactions, and all. He is a man of the most simple tastes and quiet life, and of few diversions. Yachts and great social display—he has none of them. He is the heir presumptive who is most seriously training himself for his great responsibilities and duties."

STOCK MARKETS

New York, Nov. 30—Those of our subscribers who according to our advices, sold Pa. around 115 or St. Paul above 139 or R.G. around 42 or Copper abound 339, have still got a fair profit of from one to 2 points. The bear market has not yet culminated and much lower prices than any we have seen will be reached ultimately. But there is still a large short interest in many stocks by people who were rampant bulls a year ago and who laughed at our advices to sell. These people become convinced when they saw St. Paul selling at 135 etc., that this was not a bear market and they forthwith went short to the full extent of their ability. These people have not yet covered and it is as hard to find a bull now as it was to find a bear a year ago. We still look for St. Paul to go to 115 and U.P. to sell at 60 but there is quite a short interest in the market, and they will have to cover before this decline is resumed. Our advice therefore is this—people with the usual stock exchange margins and who do not try to catch the daily fluctuations can afford to commence selling around the present prices and sell more every two points up; people who try to catch the daily fluctuations might buy a little St. P. around 135, Erie around 48, S.P. 45 or W. around 84; sugar advanced close to 123 and will probably keep strong until a reciprocity bill is passed. There is still a big short interest in it. We repeat that we look for a traders market with a moderately advancing tendency. There is still considerable more room for declines than for advances. When the real top is reached you may rest assured that we will give it to you. Just as we gave it to you last Sep.—a year ago—if you do not take my advice it will not be our fault. May wheat is a purchase on all reactions.

New York, Nov. 30—The bank statement Saturday was quiet and favorable. The various averages were of a character to encourage belief in an improvement in the monetary situation and many interest were inclined to look for an early return to lower interest rates in the loan market. The railroad situation om the surface is quite favorable but the conditions in a few instances are rather uncertain. The rumors of serious differences among various railroads in the southwest are attracting considerable attention and there is some uncertainty as to the outlook. The labor outlook continues without feature although the fact that many laboring classes are accepting reduced wages without serious opposition is an indication that the laboring classes are of the belief that business is going backward.

Importance of Cleanliness.

We do not intend to repeat any further how essential a feature of successful dairying is the observance of proper cleanliness, but at the last meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen Dr. Connell gave forth some fresh figures on the question which afford further confirmation of the position held by all progressive dairy workers.

The doctor gave the results of analysis of milk taken from cows under the different conditions as to cleanliness. In one case—where the cow was brushed before milking, the udders wiped, the stable kept in a thoroughly sanitary condition, and the person of the milker was also clean—the milk still showed 4,300 bacteria to sixteen drops of milk. In another case milk was taken from cows the udders of which had been wiped, which were kept in a fairly clean barn, that were milked into clean pails (but pails that had not been scalded), and by men whose hands had been wiped, but not washed. In this case the number of bacteria was 15,500. In another case, where cows were milked under ordinary conditions which prevailed on the ordinary farm, the number of bacteria was 30,000 to sixteen drops. The bacteria found in the milk taken from cows under the best possible conditions as to cleanliness were, it is believed, for the most part just inside the teat before milking began. The old practice of squirting the first stream of milk outside the pail has a scientific basis to rest upon.

Absolute cleanliness in the stable, cooling of the milk after milking, sterilization of utensils by scalding, cool curing of cheese, and no more sending home of whey in milk cans, are pointers which may also be strongly insisted upon.

In touching on the question of water supply, it was stated that no factory should be considered properly equipped that is without pure water.—The Maritime Farmer.

Wife—Before we were married you pretended that you liked to have me sit on your knee.

Husband—Well, you were a pretty good pretender yourself. You pretended that you preferred to sit on a chair.—Chicago News.

Prospectus
—OF THE—
BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

Primary and Junior Union

The first meeting of the Primary and Junior Union, which was organized on Monday evening last, will be held in the Y.M.C.A. this evening at eight o'clock. The lesson for the following Sabbath will be taught, plans for work discussed, and time for regular meetings decided upon. All interested are invited to be present, especially teachers in the primary and junior grades of our Sunday schools.

A Coroner's Inquest

Coroner Gray has considered an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. John Donnelly necessary, and accordingly empannelled a jury yesterday, before whom evidence will be taken at 7.30 this evening in the Council Chamber. The following are the jury: C. N. Brown, foreman; F. M. Cobb, J. Mongraw, J. McPherson, M. L. Henry, W. H. Dayman, D. W. Little, B. R. Poole, F. Burdette, W. H. Isaac, J. D. Hardill, J. Irwin, D. Menzies and S. A. Oke.

An Early Winter

As a rule, which we often hear quoted "winter does not set in until the swamps are full of water," but to this rule, as to all others, there are exceptions, and this winter appears likely to be one of them. Already the sleighing is so good that scarcely a wheeled vehicle is to be seen; on Tuesday night the temprature dropped to within ten degrees of zero and the river was frozen over. Perhaps we are to have a series of early winters, as sleighing commenced last year on November 28th, and on the 27th in 1901. A moderately early winter is all right if preceded by plenty of rain but there has been so little of late that many wells have already gone nearly o quite dry, and, unless there comes a thaw, some of our country friends may have to drive their cattle long distances to water.

The Next Canal Section

The next section of the Trent Valley Canal to be built will be between Healey Falls and Trenton, which is without doubt the route which will be decided upon. At Healey Falls the canal will divert from the river inland a short distance and follow its course until it connects with it again a few miles south-east of Campbellford. The total cost of the Trent waterway, as per Government estimates, will be eight millions of dollars, and four millions have already been spent. The middle section, which is about completed, opens up one hundred and sixty miles of inland navigation between Lakes Couching and Simcoe on the north, and Rice Lake on the south. About two-thirds of this great waterway is now about completed, but it is not known when work will commence on the section between Healey Falls and Trenton.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Charity Board meets tonight.

—The Brock street rink is being flooded.

—Hastings Star: A flock of twelve wild geese flew over Campbellford last week, and settled below the town in the river. A resident of that place shot one which tipped the scales at 19 pounds.

—The "Never-Learn" Club will hold their fortnightly dance tonight instead of Wednesday as usual on account of the St. Andrew's concert on that evening.

—We notice by the Brockville Times that Master Harry Smith, son of Mr. A. St. A. Smith, Manager of the Bank of Toronto, Millbrook, who is a student at St. Alban's College, has taken a most creditable standing for the half term just ended. Out of a maximum of 1000 marks, Harry took 900, coming out third on the list. Harry also played in the College Eleven football match against St. George Cathedral, Kingston, in which they were winners.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. T. A. Coughlin, of Minnesota, is visiting Miss Perrin, Concession street Ashburnham.

—Mr. John Whyte, Campbellford, is spending a few weeks in town, the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James Whyte.

—The many friends of Mr. W. H. Meldrum will regret to learn that he was taken ill yesterday morning. He felt all right when arising, but was suddenly seized with illness, and had to return to bed. He is now recovering, although not yet able to be out.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done great work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 35c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

THE LOVESICK LOCK

Report of the Efficient Lockmaster for the Season of 1903

The Times is indebted to Mr. Wm. Macfarlane the efficient lockmaster at Lovesick, for the following full report of the business done at this lock last year. Mr. Macfarlane not only kept a record of the number of lockages, but also give us full information regarding the logs which passed over the dam this year. Some idea of the great increase in the traffic of the waterway may be had from the fact that in 1892 there were but 175 lockages, which has increased to 600 last year. Nothing could afford a stronger proof of the utility of the canal than this, and its completion will doubtless increase the business a hundred fold.

The following are the number of lockages of steamers, barges and rafts:

Mth.	S	B	R	Tota

DRIVES OF LOGS.

There were thirteen drives of logs passed over the slide during 1903, averaging 40,000 pieces to each drive, or a total of 520,000 pieces. These were as follows: Alf. Macdonald, 2 drives; Dickson Co, 5 drives; Gilmour Co., 2 drives, the Rathbun Co, 4 drives.

THE LATE JOHN DONNELLY

Passed Away on Sunday Evening from Effects of Injury

Mr. John Donnelly, who was injured at the Grand Trunk crossing on Charlotte street on Tuesday last, the particulars of which appeared in The Times a day or two later, passed away on Sunday evening, from the effects of his injuries. It was not thought at first that serious injury had been inflicted, but evidently the deceased had been hurt internally about the chest. Everything possible was done for him, but he gradually sank until the end came as above.

The late John Donnelly had been a resident of Peterborough for 60 years. He was born in Smith, was 68 years of age, and was in the employ of the railway company for 25 years. The surviving children are two sons, Harry, of town, and Duncan, of British Columbia, and one daughter, Mrs. Buckhall of Chicago. His brothers are Thomas of Detroit; George, in the North-West; Henry, of Manitoba, and William, of British Columbia. His sisters are Mrs. W. Stabler, of town, Mrs. T. Coulter, of Port Perry, and Miss Jane Donnelly, of town.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 to Little Lake cemetery.

DR. DRUMMOND'S LECTURE

The Author of "The Habitant" is Warmly Greeted

Dr. Drummond, of Montreal, the author of "The Habitant," delivered a lecture last night under the auspices of the Young Men's Guild of George street Methodist church. There was a large audience present to greet the distinguished speaker.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor, occupied the chair, and introduced the lecturer in a well worded speech.

For about two hours Dr. Drummond kept the large audience in good humor, while "The Habitant" was discussed in all phases of his character.

At the conclusion of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer for the great treat afforded.

NO USE FOR A UNITED STATES TREATY

will be permanent—of the British Empire."

At this the club broke into the most enthusiastic applause, the hand-clapping and cheering lasting for several minutes.

"And," added Mr. Ross, "where the treasure is there the heart will be also." (Renewed applause and laughter.)

Uncle Sam Unfair.

Mr. Ross quoted some figures to show how remarkable was the present friendship (save the mark!) of the United States of Canada. He instanced typewriters and bicycles. We make as good as any in the world. But the United States did not buy them. Australia and Britain bought them, but not the United States. If the United States loves them with such a great love, why do they not take down their tariff wall against us?

There was a better way to promote trade between the two countries than by any reciprocity treaty. If the United States wanted our barley, let them take off their 30 cents a bushel duty. If there was anything of theirs we wanted, we could take off the duty quickly enough, as we had already done on anthracite coal and corn. But as for making Canadian trade dependent on a treaty with Congress, while we had something like preferential trade within the Empire offered us, it would not do.

The Premier was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his speech.

The Premier said that Canada's preference had caused only one complaint, that of the woolen manufacturers. Their problem was a small one compared with the great issue, and compared with other issues that Canada had settled, and would surely admit of some satisfactory adjustment.

—A meeting of the Hockey Club will be held in the Council Chamber tonight.

"I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health."

"Three years of delicate health trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines" without benefit might well sap the courage of any woman. And yet Mrs. Bryant proved that the question of the cure of womanly disease is only a question of using the right remedy. A few doses of 'Favorite Prescription' restored her courage and revived her hope, because she could see "a decided change from the first." Three months' use of the medicine restored her to perfect health.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Sarah Bryant, President of Memphis Social Science Club, residing at 271 Atkinson Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I suffered with delicate health for three years, trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines until I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health; but a few doses of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me change my mind. Could see a decided change from the first, so I kept on taking it for three months faithfully and am now in perfect health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

The Emperor's Hand.

Napoleon had seven or eight theories to account for his defeat at Waterloo; but he failed to mention one which was concocted by Alexandre Dumas, who says that Napoleon lost the battles which did go against him because he wrote such an illegible hand.

His generals could not read his notes, and trembling marshals, afraid of disobeying and yet unable to decipher directions, went wavering about, and failed to rule the issue.

He would have been a bold man who ventured to criticise the Emperor's handwriting by asking to have it explained. The imperial temper was worse than peppery. The great man one day drew his pistol to shoot a little dog which had barked at his horse. A marshal might have fared still worse.

No one could emulate the daring of that Danish officer who "spoke up" to Nelson, at Copenhagen. He had been sent in before the fight with a flag of truce, and was asked to put his message in writing.

"If your guns are not better than your pens," said he, trying the assortment offered him, "you had better retire."

Characteristic of Chicago.

The patent medicine style of university advertising is characteristic of Chicago, remarks the Detroit "Free Press." Harperesque—in short, to the last, least detail. Only in the Rockefeller institution of learning and applied faking would it be possible. A professor from the University of Michigan goes to the University of Chicago and immediately a prize heifer advertising campaign is inaugurated to entice his students to follow him. One wonders only that the Harper university contented itself with merely offering Professor Mechem's post-graduate courses to the Ann Arbor seniors. What was the matter with Chicago's premium department? Could no business alliance be formed with one of Chicago's famed industries by which the Michigan student who presented so many wrappers of So-and-So's laundry soap should receive a post-graduate course free of cost? Are there no additional inducements to be offered to the Michigan student who forms the greatest number of words out of the letters of Dr. Harper's name?

THOUSANDS OF MEN ARE OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

Period of Industrial Depression Has Set in in the United States

MECHANICS ARE NOW FLOCKING TO CANADA

Conditions of Labor in Canada will be Effected by the Trouble in the States

Montreal, Dec. 2—The industrial depression in the United States is making itself felt in Canada already. Reports from various points state that hundreds and perhaps thousands of mechanics will seek employment in this country during the coming winter.

Chicago, Dec. 2—Following its announced policy of centralization, the International Harvester Company has decided to lay off 7,000 of its 18,000 employes and thus effect a saving of $5,000,000 a year. Fifteen hundred employes of the Deering division have been notified that their services are no longer required. These men were employed in the factories at Irondale. Of the 7,000 workers in the Deering division, 3,000 in all are to be laid off. The McCormick division will not discharge so many, only 1,500 of its 7,000 employes being slated for dismissal. The other 3,000 workers to lose positions are those employed in the mills in Milwaukee, Springfield, Ohio, and Plano.

The Cut in the Cotton Trade.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 2 — The wages of about 22,000 cotton textile operatives were reduced to-day. To-day's addition brings the total number in New England who have had their pay cut down this fall to about 64,000, and the cut which takes effect in New Bedford next Monday will swell the total to about 75,000. This cut in the majority of factories averages 10 per cent. To-day practically every cotton mill in Rhode Island, in which State there is about 2,300,000 spindles, adopted the new schedule. In that State nearly 20,000 operatives are affected, and the new order of things will mean a loss of fully $20,000 weekly in wages. The cut also became operative in mills in Massachusetts and Connecticut controlled by Rhode Island capital, and employing about 7,000 additional hands. The reports from the mills district indicate that the new schedule was received without any serious protest on the part of the operatives.

THE WORKS AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 2—In reference to the report from Chicago in which it is stated that the International Harvester Company would reduce the number of their hands by 7,000, enquiries from the management of the Deering division in this city as to whether the action referred to would affect the employes here. In reply the manager stated most emphatically that it would not. The local branch is not nearly up to its full quota of employes, and the anxiety of the local concern is to enlarge and increase, in order to be ready to get its arms around the Canadian trade. To do this the very opposite of a decrease in the working capacity is the aim of the management. Questioned as to whether a depression in the United States trade was apparent, the Deering representative could not say, but admitted that none was in evidence as far as Canadian trade was concerned.

DOWIE WANTS MONEY

Pay Up or Get Out says Self Styled Elijah III.

Chicago, Ills., Dec. 2—Dr. Dowie's entire sermon at Zion City yesterday was devoted to discussing the financial conditions there. He said: "We need a little more money and I want every person who has not deposited in the Zion Bank to march up to me to-morrow between 2 and 5.30 o'clock. I will be in my office at the Administration building. I have a list of all persons in Zion who have made no deposits since I sent out the command and I tell you we have no use for them. If they don't show down to-morrow they will be expelled from Zion." With this, Dowie made the most urgent appeal for funds ever heard in Shiloh Tabernacle

SAYS THAT DYING WELCOME THE END

Physician Proves This Assertion by a Record of Cases.

DEATH ALWAYS PAINLESS

Interesting Observations by a Very Prominent Scientist

Chicago, Dec. 1—That death has no terror for those who know it is only a few hours away, and dying is not an unpleasant sensation, is the conclusion drawn from the observation of 200 cases by Dr. Benjamin Reicman, a young physician who has practiced in several Chicago hospitals. Why this is true, he says, is something that cannot be explained.

Since he became a medical student Dr Reicman has kept a record of the persons he has seen die, noting carefully each time the impression which the approach of death made on the mind. He observed his two-hundredth case a few days ago and then announced the conclusion he had reached.

"Persons in sound mind and body fear death," said Dr. Reicman. "At least the most of them do, but it is a foolish fear. Besides the shrinking from whatever they may conceive to be the hereafter, they fear the act of dying as it were some shocking sensation or torture. But I have yet to see a case where a dying person, even one whose faculties were alert and who was not suffering great bodily pain, was overwhelmed by the knowledge that he had only a few more hours to live.

Death Greeted with Joke.

"There may be persons whose dying hours are clouded by the thought that they are leaving someone dependent on them or someone dear to them, for death itself they do not care. I have even known cases where it was pleasant, apparently, and several persons I have seen die, laughed and joked in their last hours."

Pointing to specific cases, Dr. Reicman showed that the death bed was times a cheerful place and that intense sorrow and horror really had no place there.

"It is not only great men who die heroic deaths," he said. "Those things sound dramatic when they are recorded in biography, but they are commonplace enough. I know in the case of a young man, a carpenter, who fell from a high building and was so severely injured that he could live only a few hours. He regained consciousness and when told he could not live, said: 'All right. I would have liked to have finished that job before my end came.' He spoke in a semijocular way and then lay back in the bed awaiting death as coolly as though he were waiting for coffee at the breakfast table.

"Another case I remember was that of a switchman who had both legs cut off in a railroad accident. He was brought to the hospital and told he had about an hour to live. He was not in great pain at the time, and yet he asked me if I could not hurry it along. He had absolutely no fear of death.

"In cases of death from natural causes there is no difference. Nearly everyone is sorry to give up this life, but they are seldom overwhelmed when told they can not live. It is a peculiar psychological fact that people living and enjoying life shrink from death, and yet when the same persons are near it, they have not the slightest fear."

Of the 200 people Dr. Reicman has seen die, according to the figures that he has kept, only two feared death. A third wanted it hastened, while the remainder were not moved, being willing to meet it whenever it came.

REGULATING BARBER SHOPS

Hygienic Regulations Adopted by Provincial Board of Health

On the suggestion of Dr. J. J. Cassidy, chairman of the Committee on Epidemics, the Provincial Board of Health adopted the following set of hygienic regulations for barber shops:

No person suffering from any disease of the skin, scalp, or hair, should be allowed to act as a barber.

If any contagious disease exists in a barber's family he should temporarily change his residence.

A person suffering from any disease of the skin, scalp, or hair, or who has recently recovered from any contagious disease, should not go to a barber shop.

The floor of the barber shop should be of hardwood or else covered with sound oilcloth, or some other impermeable material.

The powder puff should be replaced by the powder blower, and a piece of alum once used to stop the flow of blood should be thrown away. An astringent pencil should be disinfected every time it is used.

Sponges should not be used at all, and each customer should have his own toilet wax. Vaseline in collapsible tubes should be used

ONE HUNDRED LIVES LOST

Berlin, December 2—It is estimated that 102 persons lost their lives in the recent storm on the North Sea. All vessels arriving in the Weser and Elbe report seeing much wreckage and many corpses drifting about. They were unable, however, to pick up any of the bodies, owing to the high seas which were running.

WHALERS WERE NOT SEIZED

Ottawa, December 2— A report was current in the city yesterday and was telegraphed all over the country that three United States whalers have been seized by the Government cruiser Neptune in Hudson's Bay. Enquiries in official circles failed to elicit any information on the subject. Both at the Marine and Mounted Police depots here the report was discredited.

LEAGUE THANKS HON. GEO. E. FOSTER

For Clear and Convincing Campaign for Tariff Reform

HOPE FOR ANOTHER VISIT

From Him If Campaign Continues Long—Mr. Chamberlain Not Coming to Canada

London, December 2 — The management committee of Mr. Chamberlain's Tariff Reform League has unanimously passed a cordial vote of thanks to Hon. Geo. E. Foster. Addressing Mr. Foster, the League says:

"Your unfailingly cordial reception by audiences in all parts of the country has been supplemented by many letters of praise of your clear and convincing oratory. The League trust that if the campaign is a prolonged one, they may persuade you to undertake another tour."

The resolution concludes with hearty thanks for his brilliant exposition of the policy of tariff reform.

CHAMBERLAIN NOT COMING.

I am able to deny, on Mr. Chamberlains authority, the renewed report that he is contemplating an early visit to Canada. He has his hands more than full to complete the conviction of Britain and believes that Canada needs no convincing.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

Delinquent youngsters in Denver are having a fine time of it. The juvenile court law permits the judge to hold parents responsible for the behavior of their children, and the result is that frequently the parent is fined or otherwise punished instead of the child. There is a certain amount of justice in this, but what if the child has inherited his sin, not from his parent but from some remote ancestor over whom the parent had no control? It is hoped in such cases the judge will not be too severe. Some children have inherited their propensities straight from Adam.

Chicago, December 2 — Previous to his career as a hold-up man and murderer in Chicago, Peter Niedermeier was already a murderer, according to a story he told in the Harrison street police station. According to his story, his first victim was a trainman in Canada. To the police officers and railway detectives who were questioning him, he related the circumstances as follows: "In 1896 I was beating my way west on a freight train loaded with coal bound from Rat Portage, Ont. When riding on top of the train I was ordered to get off by a man who they called 'Captain,' but whose name I never learned. I heard afterward he was a railway detective. He ordered me off the train and when I refused to get off he threw coal at me. I threw back at him and one of the lumps hit him on the head. Then he drew a revolver and fired twice at me. Both times he missed me and then I drew my revolver. I fired six shots and three of them hit him. I shot him in the head, in the abdomen and in the side. He ran a few feet and fell dead on top of the car. I searched him and found no money. Later the train crew came along and I heard they found $40 in his pockets. I was sore when I learned what I had missed.

"I was only a boy then, but I did not intend to be run over by any officer and when he tried to make me get off the train I decided it would be my life or his. After shooting him I got off the train and went from there to Winnipeg and heard no more about the case."

CONDITION SERIOUS

The Kaiser Could Not Attend Unveiling of Monument

Berlin, December 2— So rigorous is the doctors' insistence that the Kaiser shall not accelerate his malady by exposure, that they would not allow him to attend the unveiling of the monument to his father yesterday. The ceremony took place at Muenchen Gladbach, and in his place Emperor William deputed his son, Prince Eitel, Frederick, to attend the unveiling as the royal representative.

AN ACCIDENT AT MYRTLE

Mr. John King Killed by a C. P. R. Train

An accident occurred on the C.P.R. a little east of Myrtle on Sunday afternoon, when Mr. John King, a resident of Raglan, was run down by a freight train. An especially sad feature of the occurrence is the fact that Mr. King was deaf and dumb. Engineer Connell in rounding a curve, saw Mr. King on the track, walking westward, and blew long blasts from his whistle, which deceased of course did not hear. Although the brakes were applied, he was struck with great force in the back and hurled from the track. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and conveyed to Myrtle station, and Dr. Archer of Port Perry was 'phoned for, arriving on the scene in less than an hour, only to find life extinct, deceased having died about thirty-five minutes after the occurrence of the accident. Mr. King, who was about thirty-five years of age, was to have been married this winter to a Toronto lady.

SKILLED LABOR PLENTIFUL

Stratford, Nov. 30.—"Good men are plentiful now," said Master Mechanic Patterson of the Grand Trunk yesterday, "and we are taking on quite a number of them. I have had as many as ten come to me at one time." This is quite a change from the condition which his as well as all large mechanical institutions labored under during the summer, when numbers of workmen of very indifferent merit had to be taken on. In the shops these are being let go and their places filled with first-class mechanics.

ALARM FOR EMPEROR

Vienna, Nov. 30.—The Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung has a telegram from Berlin which arouses anxiety regarding Emperor William. The telegram mentioned says: "Though there can be no doubt that the recent operation on Emperor William concerned a benignant formation, the process of healing has not taken the favorable course hoped for. It seems as though unexpected complications had arisen, which rarely follow a simple operation for so-called 'singer's polypus.' In court circles there is a certain uneasiness."

BRITISH PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED

London, December 2—The fact that two prolonged cabinet councils were held Friday and Saturday gave rise to renewed rumours that a dissolution of Parliament was imminent. An apparently authorized statement is published this morning, however, declaring that at these meetings no question of dissolution was brought up, and that the discussion turned upon foreign affairs, including the situation in the Far East, Macedonia and Thibet.

THE DEATH LIST AND BADLY INJURED.

In the Football Games In the United States

Chicago, Dec. 1—Football has exacted its usual grim dues this season, and with many games yet to be played on frozen grounds, the list of killed and injured reaches almost to the high-water mark of last year, when fifteen died. The season of 1903 claimed fourteen dead. At least five of those who have been published from one end of the country as killed are still alive, and, if not entirely recovered are, in the majority of cases, well on the road. Experience of previous years, however, has proven that the fatality lists are never complete when the last game has been played, and that additions must be written each year when men die from hurts which they received weeks or even months before.

BECKER, GUSTAVE, died Oct. 7 of injuries received at Lake Forest Sept. 12.

NELSON, JOHN, died Oct. 27 at St. Paul Minn., as the result of a kick on the head.

WHEELER, THORNTON, died at Aurora, Ill., from injuries received in a football game three years previously.

CONNOLLY, WILLIAM F., died Oct. 25. He had been internally injured in a practice game at Elmira, N.Y., Oct. 22nd.

WITHNELL, JOHN, died Oct. 26 at Anthony's Hospital, St. Louis; neck wrenched and kicked on spine.

LEWIN, ROBERT E., of Plainfield, N.J., Killed at Annapolis, Oct. 21

SHANKLIN, FRANK, captain of the 1903 football team of Hanover College, died at an Indianapolis hospital, Nov 2 from injuries received five weeks previously.

M'CAULEY, THOMAS, JR., died Nov. 14 in Seney Hospital, Brooklyn, from injuries to the spine, received in a Prospect Park Oct. 18.

HOPE, CHARLES, a member of the Corning Free Academy football team, died Nov. 17 at Canisteo, N.Y.

HAUGHTON, J. R., South Bend, Ind, Oct. 10, internally injured.

THOSE HURT IN GAMES.

The names of the injured follow:

Aug. 24—Walter Zeigler, candidate for University of Pennsylvania team, broke his left leg at the ankle.

Sept. 22—Fleager, captain Northwestern University, assaulted by Private McDowell in game with team from Fort Sheridan.

Sept. 26—James Boswell, Winnipeg, Man. reported dead with dislocated neck. For three weeks Boswell was unable to move. Recovered.

Sept. 26—Neil Mohan, aged 11 years, leg broken in game at Philadelphia.

Sept. 28—Henry Kellman, Hammond, Ind., leg fractured, may never recover the use of it.

Sept. 9—Thomas J. Howlett, New York, paralysis; hurt in football scrimmage.

Oct. 7—Irwin Church of Menominee Falls full back on the Lawrence University eleven, kicked on the head.

Oct. 7—Arthur Labudde, 11 years old kicked in the temple.

Oct. 7—Weinberger, end on Northwestern University, broke a small bone in ankle in practice.

Oct. 13—John Moorehead, end on Yale football team, dislocated tendon in right foot.

Oct. 15—Jones, half back of the University of Wisconsin team, dislocated knee.

Oct. 16—Barney of Princeton, knee injured, water on the knee developing later.

Oct. 14—Hogan, Yale, injured rib.

Oct. 18—The hospital list at Yale at this time included—King, ankle sprained; Owsley, injured knee; Mocrelea and Silliman; badly wrenched tendons.

Oct. 18—Captain "Sandy" Hunt of Cornel University, Ithaca, dislocated ankle.

Oct. 17—Captain Rothgeb, University of Illinois, injured knee and ankle at Urbana.

Oct. 19—Mercer, Harvard, sprained ankle

Oct. 19—Schacht of the University of Minnesota, torn cartilage of rib in game with Ames.

Oct. 22—Tackle Asher of the University of Wisconsin, cartilage on end of shoulder blade torn and bruised.

Oct. 23—Quarter back O'Brien of the University of Minnesota, wrenched knee.

Oct. 24—George Truesdell of Rockfort High School football team, kicked in the head.

Oct. 31—Henderson, left guard on the Lafayette High School team, tendon of right shoulder torn.

Oct. 31—Soper, of Harvard, right ear cut.

Nov. 15—Myers, "left wing" on the Hyde Park Association football team, collar bone broken.

Nov. 14—At Notre Dame, Corby suffered a broken arm, and Dillon's collar bone was broken.

In addition to this list the ill-fated Perdue team, which was practically wiped out in a railroad wreck, had several injured men who were sent to hospital Sept. 29. The injured were: Reed, collar bone broken; Tackle McManus knee dislocated; Long, dislocated hip.

LOST JEWEL IS FOUND

Washington, December 2— On December 20, 1902, Miss Audrey Pauncefote, daughter of the late British Ambassador reported to the police that she had either lost or had stolen a diamond moonstone and turquoise brooch valued at $300. A few days ago Martha Brown, a young colored woman, took a brooch to a local jeweller to be repaired. She knew nothing of its value and when she said she would sell it for $5 the jeweller called the police. The girl told the detectives her beau had given her the brooch and he was arrested. He told a straight story of having bought the brooch from a coachman, formerly employed by the British Embassy. It proved to be the missing Pauncefote jewel. It will be sent to Miss Pauncefote in England.

COUNTRY'S FEELING IS TO BE TESTED FIRST

This Parliament Will Not Vote on Fiscal Question, A Canadians Invention

London, December [illegible] W. Forster, M.P., Junior Lord of the Treasury, says the Government is determined not to be rushed out of office, and there will be no vote on the fiscal question in Parliament until after the elections.

A LARGE PROGRAMME

The Imperial Labor Federation party's programme includes adult suffrage, payment of M.P.'s abolition of the House of Lords, an eight hours' working day, the municipalization of drink traffic, hospitals and utilities, and the nationalization of lands, mines and railways.

CANADIAN OPINION

The Express says there is a strong feeling throughout the Dominion in favor of Mr. Chamberlain, as reflected in a striking manner by the Canadian press and it quotes the Mail and Empire, Toronto News, Globe, Montreal Star, Witness and Ottawa Citizen.

A TARIFF IS NEEDED

The Times publishes a letter at the request of Mr. Chamberlain, from the chairman of the Ebbwvale Iron & Steel Company regarding the dumping of German steel. It says the English industry is right up to date, but the fault lies with the one-sided free trade. The only remedy to the perilous condition is retaliation and preferential trade with the colonies.

REFUSED TO PRESIDE.

Mrs Cornwallis-West, one of the promoters of the Primrose League, has declined to preside at a tariff reform meeting.

A CANADIAN INVENTION.

The African Review says Ripponite, the new explosive, called after its Canadian inventor, is eight times more powerful than dynamite.

London, December 2— Canada's anti-Chinese Act of last session has raised unexpected difficulties in South Africa. Lord Milner and the mining magnets agree that Chinese labor is essential to South Africa's future, but information has reached London that the Chinese Government, incensed at Canada's action, refuses to permit organized emigration to any British colony. China acquiesced grudgingly, so long as Japan was included in Canadian exclusiveness, but Japan's protests through the British Government having secured exemption for the Japanese, the Chinese government is infuriated, and means to retaliate, even though South African mining be ruined. It is claimed that Canada's action is a breach of the spirit of the treaty of Tientsin, which contemplates mutual, co-operative regulation of Chinese emigration.

London, December 2 —The Liverpool branch of the Tariff Reform League held a demonstration in connection with a visit of the Duke of Sutherland and Hon. G. E. Foster. The latter speaking at the luncheon, said Canada felt it hard that she should have no preference over hostile nations in the country she had helped to preserve for the Empire.

Speaking afterwards to a meeting of commercial men, Mr. Foster said the colonies asked Britain whether she would return the preferences they had given and unite the whole Empire in partnership.

R. B. Haldane, M.P., speaking at Glasgow, on Saturday, said that Mr. Chamberlain instead of forming his conclusions as the result of public consultations with experts, merely repeated gossip with manufacturers and made blunder after blunder. Mr. Haldane admitted that large numbers had been attracted by Mr. Chamberlain's personality to favor his scheme, but Mr. Chamberlain's personality had a record, he said, which required scrutiny.

CHINA RESENTS THE EXCLUSION ACT.

Will Not Allow Recruiting of laborers in China for the Mines in South Africa

London, Dec. 1.—The Morning Post says that the Chinese Government has decided to refuse to allow the recruiting of laborers in any part of China for the South African mines. The decision is prompted by resentment against the British self-governing colonies and other countries which have adopted anti-Chinese immigration laws. The Chinese indignation in this matter has been greatly intensified by the poll tax levied by Canada on Chinese entering the Dominion.

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 1.—At a meeting between Mr. Plummer of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company and the special committee of the City Council, appointed to wait on the company's representatives in an endeavor to prevent any strike trouble, Mr. Plummer last night offered to reduce the rent of the company's houses to the men 50 per cent., and to supply them with coal for fuel at cost from the company's yard. This the men accepted, and the trouble is averted for the present.

The company refused to recognize the Provincial Workmen's Association or to reconsider the question of wages.

HOCKEY CLUB ANNUAL MEETING

An Enthusiastic Meeting—Bright Prospects for the Season—Election of Officers

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. parlors, President H. R. H. Kenner in the chair. On motion the reading of the minutes of last meeting was dispensed with.

Communications were read from several outside clubs soliciting the support of this club for aspirants to O.H.A. offices.

In the absence of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. A. W. McPherson, the president, read his report, which contained a summary of last season's business, also the financial statement for the year, showing total receipts of $2121.48, expenditures $2113.19, including the purchase of $250 of rink stock, leaving a cash balance of $8.29.

The constitution, as amended by the executive, was read, and some further changes made, after which the election of officers took place, resulting as follows: Patrons and Patronesses, Mr. and Mrs. John Crane, Hon. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McAllister. Honorable President, Dr. Bradd. President, Mr. A. A. Hollingshead. 1st Vice-President, Mr. Fred Clarke. 2nd Vice-President, Mr. James Hamilton. Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. R. M. Glover. Chaplin, Rev. W. L. Armitage. Executive Committee, Messrs. J. McCabe, E. Dillon, H. Rush, J. J. Howden and Dr. Wighiman. Auditors, Messrs. R. P. Watt and W. J. Green.

Mr. A. W. McPherson was elected delegate to represent the club at the annual meeting of the O.H.A., which takes place in Toronto on Saturday next.

On motion Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell was made an honorary member of the club.

General Sports

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE.

It is a well known fact throughout Ontario that the above league is a marked figure among the best hockey players and supporters. Now it is a well known fact also that Mr. Clarry organized and promoted this league, and has been a power of strength to it at all times, and promotes amateurism from start to finish. The annual meeting of this ably organized hockey league will take place on Dec. 12, and I trust that every club interested will have their delegates promptly on hand, and that they will come prepared to heartily support Mr. W. S. Clarry, father of the league, for re-election as secretary.—Sam.

IMPERIAL FISCAL POLICY

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Receives It With a Great Deal of Satisfaction

The Secretary of the Board of Trade has received the following letter from the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, which speaks for itself:

40 Prince's Gardens, S.W.,
November 18, 1903.

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter enclosing the resolution passed by the Peterborough Board of Trade at its general meeting on the 3rd inst.

I have received this resolution with great satisfaction, and desire to express my cordial appreciation of the support thus given to me by so representative a body in the arduous work in which I am engaged in the hope of strengthening the ties which bind the different parts of the British Empire together.

I am, sir, yours faithfully,
J. CHAMBERLAIN.

STUDENTS RIOT

St. Petersburg, December 2 —A disturbance in which the students of both sexes took part, occurred here on Saturday at the funeral of a member of the senior class of the Gomevitch College, who, having been refused a certificate of graduation by the directors of the institution, committed suicide. The funeral was attended by a large number of students who became demonstrative and were dispersed by a band of Cossacks. A number of the students were injured. According to despatches received here from Moscow, a revival of the student disturbances is reported from various sections.

SHOT THEIR PURSUER

Dundas, Ont., Nov. 30.—About four o'clock this morning Chief Twiss discovered that Grafton and Co.'s store had been entered and ransacked. The assistance of Nightwatchman Peire was called, and together he and the chief tracked the men about two and a half miles on the road to Hamilton. About the Half-Way House, Peire, who was in advance of the chief, came upon the men. One of the robbers fired two shots, both taking effect, one lodging in the leg, the other in the groin. The robbers then escaped, but it is reported that two men answering their description have since been arrested in Hamilton. The wounded man will probably recover.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, [illegible] Woodward Ave., Room [illegible] Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 2, 1903

THE ISLAND OF ANTICOSTI AND WHAT IT MAY COME TO

We have sometimes to go far from home to hear news about ourselves. The New York Tribune of last Sunday gives prominence to a communication purporting to come from Newfoundland, and which, while amusing enough, has yet an element about over which one may ponder—in the extraordinary times in which we are living—when the new Republic of Panama has been so rapidly formed and recognized by the United States—an element which may well give rise to serious thoughts as to what may reach us in the near future.

The pith of the long article concerns the Island of Anticosti, which was purchased some time ago by the well known French manufacturer, Mr. Menier. It is known here that he purchased the territorial rights in the land and nothing more but according to the "Tribune" he has assumed the actual powers of government, and after driving out the former settlers, will allow none but people from his own country beyond the sea to settle there, and only the French language to be taught in the schools. It is also stated that he appointed his own governor of the island, who assumed to himself so much importance that on the death of Queen Victoria, he sent a telegram of condolence to the Governor-General of Canada, couched in such terms of equality and independence that the Viceroy declined to accept it, much less to transmit it to England—that, by the way, we may say, is something we had not heard before.

The lengthy article goes on to describe all that Mr. Menier has done, and is still doing in the way of exercising eminent domain, and a quasi independent government, which may eventually, under possible circumstances, jeopardise the navigation of the St. Lawrence route and "ruin the Canadian trade" over it!

This danger may, according to this authority, arise in two ways—first, in the event of war with France, the island would be handed over to her as a base of operations for the French navy, for mischief. It is pointed out that the French element in Canada has helped Mr. Menier along; and under the Right Hon. Mr. Laurier, the government of Canada would not dare offer opposition to such proceedings.

We need not say that such apprehensions are the merest rubbish, although reasons are given that there is a danger in that direction.

The other danger is that since the United States have so successfully engineered the Panama affair, after having so recently succeeded in crowding Canada to a certain extent in Alaska, that country is now casting longing eyes in the direction of the North Atlantic coast with a similar object in view.

The French islands of St. Pierre et Miquelon would, it is pointed out, serve that purpose admirably, as they command in a large measure, the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. A rumor has been going the rounds of the papers lately that the purchase of these islands from France by the United States would be desirable, and the rumor may have been thrown out as a feeler from headquarters. At all events it has apparently reached Newfoundland and the "Tribune" gives currency to it.

The article goes on further to illustrate the danger before us, by showing that if so disposed, Mr. Menier's settlers in Anticosti may some day soon, declare their independence of Canada, and if it is properly arranged for, a convenient force of United States warships may possibly land marines to support them, as in Panama, and a new republic in the St. Lawrence, about 20 times as big as that of Andorre, be promptly recognized by the self-constituted protector of any, or all, republics.

Such are the dangers and prospects for us that the New York "Tribune" is kind enough to spread before its readers and for our consideration. We do not suppose that the matter will cause much anxiety to Canadians, or disturb their slumbers, at the same time the Government of Canada as guardians of one of the most important outposts of the British Empire, will do well to watch closely all that is going on in these matters and in these days of sharp practice in the formation of new republics.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

While dyed-in-the-wool Tory papers like the Review are doing a lot of talking about clean men and clean government, the party leaders in Toronto are putting up a colossal fund for other purposes, and are thus giving the country a pretty fair intimation of something else.

The Grand Trunk Railway's example in establishing a combined telegraph and telephone system between outside points and the head office has been followed by the Canadian Pacific who have installed such a service between Montreal and Ottawa. It is not claimed that the principle can be utilized all over the system but it is thought that for comparatively short distances it will prove a success.

DEFY THE POLICE

Sunday Carrying was Done in Cornwall Despite Authorities

Cornwall, Nov. 30.—For the second time cars were run on Sunday on the Ottawa Electric Street Railway yesterday. The occasion was the visit to Cornwall of over 500 Knights of Columbus. The Knights came on special trains from Ottawa, Montreal, and Kingston, and the cars were run to the G.T.R and O. and N.Y depots to convey them to the town. No local passengers were carried.

As the Street Railway Company's local franchise does not permit the running of cars on Sunday, Chief of Police Smyth, acting of the Mayor's orders, notified the local manager and Street Railway officials not to take out their cars. He also took the names of the crews of the different cars, and it is possible that the matter may be aired in the courts.

THE ILLS OF WOMEN

A RELIABLE AND SAFE CURE FOR WOMANLY ILLS IS FOUND IN FERROZONE. A REMEDY THAT ALWAYS GIVES SATISFACTION AND NEVER DISAPPOINTS

If troubled with painful irregularities, dizziness, faintness, excitability, nervousness, remember there is a remedy that if regularly and persistently used, will cure all these ills. Its name is Ferrozone.

It is used by thousands of women who have experienced its great strengthening powers, and they would not be without it for ten times its price.

Ferrozone is primarily a blood maker. It drives all impurities from the crimson fluid, makes it strong and capable of supplying nourishment to the body. It quiets the nerves, banishes excitability and headache.

By taking Ferrozone regularly you can keep free from those dreadful headaches, and monthly sickness will pass off regularly and without pain or distress. Being prepared in tablet form, Ferrozone is both convenient and simple to use, and no uncertainty as to the proper quantity or dose can ever arise.

A Montreal hospital nurse who has used Ferrozone herself, and has seen also the benefit that other suffering women have derived from it, writes: "I have nursed and treated all forms of female disorders, and from my personal experience, must say that Ferrozone is a remedy about which all womankind should know. It is reliable and sure, and will give prompt and satisfactory results. As a builder of muscle and tissue, I know nothing to equal Ferrozone. I have found it good to build up a weak appetite, and consider it a splendid medicine for the blood and nerves. I have no hesitancy in endorsing Ferrozone."

Don't continue to exist in a state of misery and weakness any longer. Ferrozone will make you strong and well just as it has done for thousands before you. All druggists recommend and sell Ferrozone, at 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. Get a box to-day from your druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Complete Reciprocity Between Britain and Colonies an Impossibility

The Best Agricultural Machinery is Made in Toronto Says Hon. T. A. Brassey

London, Nov. 30.—Hon. Mr. Foster made his first London address yesterday. He said it was not possible to have reciprocity between Britain and the colonies upon a free trade basis. Canada desired a preference earnestly, and it would attract more emigrants from the United States. Under present arrangements three million able-bodied Britons have been lost to the Empire in less than twenty years. The colonies were consumers of British goods as compared to other countries in the rate of twenty to one.

A Fountain, Not a Sink.

Mr. George Wyndham, speaking at Edinburgh yesterday, said that in the matter of manufactured articles he would rather see Britain a fountain than a sink.

Sir John Colomb, M.P., speaking at the National Union Conservative Association yesterday, said he was in favor of giving a careful preference to see what the country would get in return.

The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress contradicts Mr. Chamberlain's assertion that the condemnation of protection was by the leaders of the congress and not by the rank and file.

Mr. Brassey, addressing his constituents at Rye yesterday, said the farmers need not be anxious that Mr. Chamberlain's policy would raise the cost of machinery. The best agricultural machinery was made by the Massey-Harris Company, Toronto, and the company at Hamilton, Ontario, and there was no duty upon it.

SHOULD COUNTER JAB.

Zeitung attacks the German Government for its weakness in dealing with ment for its weakness in dealing with the preferential tariff policy of Canada. Germany must play with the utmost vigor the game against Canada, South Africa and New Zealand. New Zealand's preference has created a most disagreeable surprise throughout Germany. The Zeitung says it is impossible to ascertain the damage to Germany.

PIG IRON FROM AFRICA.

London, Nov. 30.—The African World announces that the first South African blast furnace for pig iron will be open in February, and urges that the Transvaal Government concede a bounty, after the example of Canada.

SHORE MEN TO BLAME.

London, Nov. 30.—The Board of Trade Court of Inquiry into the case of Capt. Williams, who stranded off Newfoundland, lays the blame upon the shore officials and upon the strong undercurrent. Fog signals, it appears, were not given owing to the lack of coal at the lighthouse.

Earnest Effort Is Not Without Avail

A righteous old frog who had lived alone in an obscure corner of the stream set out to better the world, and one day found himself in a pond full of tadpoles. Comparing these awkward creatures with his own tailless perfection, he was filled and thrilled with a fine frenzy of reform. Night and day he preached to them on the necessity and duty of getting rid of their sinful tails. Such appendages, he assured them, were a shame and a degradation, and every self-respecting and ambitious tadpole should cast his off without delay.

Being impressionable tadpoles, they gave ear to his counsels and worried over their unregenerate condition. To live tailless became their ideal. "Take our tails or take our lives" was their prayer.

When at last all the tadpoles, save those who had worried themselves to death, were grown up, the wise old frog, loaded with gratitude and honor by the emancipated converts, retired to his obscure corner and croaked himself hoarse with self-congratulations for the good he had done. He died happy.

Enemies of Flirting.

Thirty-seven young men belonging to the higher ranks of society in St. Petersburg have organized an association called the "Club of the Enemies of Flirting." The members exchange solemn oaths to refrain from flirting, and to prevent others from doing so. Those breaking the promise contribute, "for charitable purposes," $500 for the first offence, and $2,500 for the second. According to the by-laws of the society, punishment for the third offence is left to the discretion of the president. The society meets in Ernbet's restaurant, on the Kamennoostrovski Prospect. Although the charter of the club has been properly registered with the authorities, the police see a revolutionary movement afoot, and imagine that if they could discover the key to the charter the youthful members of some of St. Petersburg's most noble families would soon find their way to Siberia.

Bands and Orchestras.

Good music, and plenty of it, is essential to every fair, and at the Dominion Exhibition there will be abundance. Bands will be stationed in many parts of the grounds all day long, and concerts will be given in front of the Grand Stand and in several of the buildings. The following well-known and popular bands have been engaged: Exhibition Band, Q.O.R., 30 men and bandmaster, 162 Adelaide street west; Governor-General's Body Guards, Toronto; 28th Regiment Band, Stratford, Ont.; 48th Highlanders, Toronto; Dufferin Rifles, Brantford; 14th P.W.C.A. Band, Kingston, Ont.; 13th Regiment Band, Hamilton, Ont.; Preston Band, Preston, Ont.; Victoria Industrial School Band, Mimico, Ont.; 10th Royal Grenadiers' Band, Toronto; Glionna's Orchestra, Toronto; School Cadets, Toronto; Aurora Band, Aurora, Ont., 19th Regiment Band, St. Catharines; 57th Regiment Band, Peterboro', Ont.

MARQUETTE IN CHICAGO

Granted Use of Michigan Central Tracks from Courtright

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—An official of the Pere Marquette Railway says traffic arrangements have been entered into by that road which will give it a continuous line from Chicago to Buffalo. A joint trackage arrangement with the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway for a distance of eighteen miles will give the directors of the Canada Southern and the Michigan Central Railways the Pere Marquette will have the joint use of the Michigan Central Railway tracks from Courtright, Ontario, on the St. Clair division of the Michigan Central, where the Pere Marquette intersects the Michigan Central Railway, to the west end of the International Bridge at Buffalo. For this the Pere Marquette will pay the Canada Southern and Michigan Central railways one hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars a year and also five per cent. of the cost of any betterments put upon the St. Clair branch of the Michigan Central Company. The Pere Marquette will use this line for through business only. No local business in Ontario will be done. The lease is said to be for 99 years, and will become operative on December 15. Under this joint trackage arrangement the Pere Marquette Company will not extend its lines from St. Thomas to Buffalo, paralleling the Michigan Central, a distance of 122 miles, as it purposed doing.

SHOT THEIR PURSUER

Dundas, Ont., Nov. 30.—About four o'clock this morning Chief Twiss discovered that Grafton and Co.'s store had been entered and ransacked. The assistance of Nightwatchman Peire was called, and together he and the chief tracked the men about two and a half miles on the road to Hamilton. About the Half-Way House, Peire, who was in advance of the chief, came upon the men. One of the robbers fired two shots, both taking effect, one lodging the leg, the other in the groin. The robbers then escaped, but it is reported that two men answering their description have since been arrested in Hamilton. The wounded man will probably recover.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors. Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing them with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men, bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future. The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber, builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water; hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 60 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U.S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 19 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of this stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

She pressed her hand to her brow, shutting out the gaze of the eyes that seemed to be piercing the very depths of her soul.

"I cannot understand," she whispered, her breath coming heavily through her blanched lips. "Why do you associate my wealth and my title with the murder of Sir Felix?"

Again that curious smile crossed Frank's face.

"Can I shut my eyes to what is so evident?" he asked. "Who would have so longed for his death as the woman to whom he was so strangely tied?"

"Enough! enough!" she exclaimed, gasping out the words, like one speaking in some horrible dream. "I do not want to hear more! All has been done for love of you—all!—all!"

She dragged herself to her feet, and commenced to pace the room with slow, unsteady steps, striving to trample down the burning thoughts that seemed to envelop her as in a surging fire.

"All has been done for love of you!"

These words seemed wrung from her soul.

For his sake she had brought upon herself the burden of a sin that no power could wipe away.

For his sake!

Yet he was the first to accuse her—to brand her with the horror of that hideous crime.

With sudden terror she turned to him, a frenzied look in her eyes, the dews of a mortal anguish on her brow.

"I cannot—I cannot give you up!" she cried, extending her arms to him, and clasping her trembling hands in a passion of appeal. "Have pity—be merciful! I love you!"

Love!

How hollow the word sounded, coming from her lips.

He turned away with loathing.

This woman, once so beautiful, was now nothing but a dark obstacle in his path—a thing of evil.

The suspicions rife within his breast made him shudder from her as he would have shuddered from some noisome reptile.

"The word 'love' should have no place on lips like yours," he said. "Leave it for the pure and the true."

His speech went like a stab to her heart, and a great bitterness swept over her, overmastering for a moment her wild love.

Had not she once been as pure as snow—as true as the stars?

What she was now he had made her, yet he could only look with loathing on the wreck he had made of her fair life.

With startling rapidity she recovered her composure, and confronted him with something of the old, imperious spirit.

"Answer me," she commanded. "Will another bear your name? Does another possess your love?"

The reply came, low and distinct:

"I love another—another who will be my wife."

His words seemed to deal out death to her—the death of every hope she had treasured up in these months of separation.

Wounded pride, defied love, jealous rage, rose in a maddening conflict.

A heart-wrung cry escaped her lips.

She tottered back, as though she would have fallen.

Frank walked across the room, and opened the door.

"It is useless prolonging this scene, Lady Errol. Your nerves are unstrung. I will leave you. When you are sufficiently recovered, you can take your departure."

She moved towards him.

His callous words had quenched the last spark of tenderness in her nature.

Her eyes were aflame with jealous rage.

She confronted him with all the fury of a woman scorned.

"You shall not go until you have heard me to the end," she said, her voice vibrating with passion. "I came to you with love: that love you have mocked and discarded, until it has become something more fierce and terrible than hatred. I would have given you my love with a blessing—I take it from you with a curse! You and yours shall suffer for the agony you have made me endure to-day! My hatred shall follow you with an everlasting vengeance! Every joy that comes to you shall be blighted—every hope withered! The love that should have been mine shall bring no peace to another! Go—go—you are free!"

Could Frank have seen her after he had gone from her, perhaps some remorse would have found its way to his heart.

With hungry, yearning eyes she watched him go from the room, straining every nerve to catch the sound of his retreating footsteps.

Then, with a wild, bitter wail, terrible as the cry of a lost soul, she sank into a chair, her whole form crouched together, her bloodless face bent upon her quivering hands, her bosom rent with short, hard-drawn breaths.

"Oh, God! is this the penalty I must pay?" she moaned, rocking herself to and fro in desolate anguish. "This life a death, this mockery that eats, like fire, into my soul! Must I endure such torture to the end?"

For nearly an hour she crouched there, brooding over the past—the hopeless future from which she shrank, as from some nameless torment.

The room seemed to become terrible in its loneliness and silence.

The embers of the fire paled and sank upon the hearth—a heap of dead ashes.

For ever and ever she was alone.

Another was to have the love she coveted.

Another!

Had this thought come to drive her mad?

Trembling in every limb, she rose and made her way slowly towards the door.

At the threshold of the room, she paused and looked back on the scene in which she could picture Frank—on the different objects his presence had seemed to make familiar.

Her glance, in its restless wandering, fell on a colored photograph placed on one of the brackets—the likeness of a girl, with flaxen hair, and tender, blue eyes.

Instinctively, Gretchen knew she gazed upon the pictured face of her rival.

Burning with jealous rage, she seized the photograph and read what was written on the back of the card.

"To my darling Frank, from his ever loving Nellie."

This was the girl he loved—the girl he was to make his wife!

"Ah, no, never—never while I live!" she exclaimed, crushing the photograph in her hands, and rending it to fragments. "If I can be nothing to him in life, in death I will be his bride! Only by passing over my dead body shall he reach the altar!"

Her teeth were clenched, her eyes wild.

A hissing sound came through her lips, as she flung the torn pieces of the photograph from her.

"And I am cast aside for her!" she muttered, "I who was his first love, I who should be his wife! How I hate her! If I could I would tear her limb from limb—destroy the fairness of her face, and make her so horrible that he should turn from her with loathing! His scorn has aroused a demon in my breast; there is nothing I would not do to revenge myself on him—and her!"

She drew her cloak closely round her, and covering her face with her veil, left the room, and made her way downstairs and out into the chill streets.

The night was setting in, cold and drear. Snow was falling, and a biting east wind swept round the houses, blowing the snow into drifts.

Lady Errol shivered once or twice, as she made her way along the almost deserted pavement; but it was not with the cold.

She was not conscious of the cutting wind or the whirling snow. She was thinking of what her life must be henceforth; of her own powerlessness to cope with her fate.

She had thought of returning to Drayton Court—the place that held so many terrible memories.

The year was nearly out.

She would remain in some out-of-the-way part of London until the end came—that end to which she looked forward with bitterness and despair.

RECEIVED DEPUTATION

Quebec, December 1—Yesterday a deputation from the working girls in the shoe factories waited upon the manufacturers and men to request that matters be settled as soon as possible. The manufacturers informed the deputation that no ill-will existed between the employes, and that they would be pleased to talk over matters at any time with their former employes in the factories and not through any union.

The factories closed down two weeks ago, and since then not one of the hands has returned to the factories to sign new engagements. The manufacturers want to deal directly with the men, and if this cannot be agreed upon it is likely that the manufacturers will remain closed down for some time.

Yesterday afternoon about 250 men marched along St. Valier street to the rooms of the Manufacturers' Association and after cheering for a few minutes, proceeded to the factory of F. Schuyburt & Co., where they again cheered.

WILL TAKE ACTION

Ottawa, December 1— The Department of Justice has received instructions to immediately take action against the J. M. Wilson Cordage Company, of Chatham, Ont., for selling short weight and short lengths of binder twine. Some days ago Inspector Haycock made a large seizure of the product of this company, which made the excuse that this particular twine was being manufactured for a firm in the United States, which desired to convert it into rope. This excuse might have been accepted had not the inspector discovered twine made by this company short in weight and short in length on sale at Blenheim and other points in western Ontario. The penalty varies all the way from $20,000 to $150,000.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

VARICOCELE
CURED.

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Self abuse, later excesses and private diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At the age of 14 I learned a bad habit and at 19 contracted a serious disease. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

A Matrimonial Entanglement.

In "Chapters From My Diplomatic Life," which Andrew D. White, the United States diplomatist, is contributing to "The Century Illustrated Magazine," there occurs an interesting reminiscence regarding the working of the German marriage laws:—

"One morning a man came rushing in exclaiming: 'Mr. Minister, I am in the worst fix that any decent man was ever in. I want you to help me out of it;' and he then went on with a bitter tirade against everybody and everything in the German Empire.

"When his wrath had effervesced somewhat he stated his case as follows:—'Last year while travelling through Germany I fell in love with a young German lady, and after my return to America became engaged to her. I have now come for my bride. The wedding is fixed for next Thursday; our steamer passages are taken a day or two later, and I find that the authorities will not allow me to marry unless I present a multitude of papers such as I never dreamed of! Some of them it will take months to get, and some I can never get. My intended bride is in distress: her family evidently distrust me; the wedding is postponed indefinitely; and my business partner is cabling me to come back to America as soon as possible. I am asked for a baptismal certificate—a Taufschein. Now, so far as I know, I was never baptised. I am required to present a certificate showing the consent of my parents to my marriage—I, a man thirty years old, and in a large business of my own! I am asked to give bonds for the payment of my debts in Germany. I owe no such debts; but I know no one who will give such a bond. I am notified that the banns must be published a certain number of times before the wedding. What kind of a country is this, anyhow?'

"We did the best we could. In an interview with the Minister of Public Worship I was able to secure a dispensation from the publishing of the banns; then a bond was drawn up, which I signed, and thus settled the question regarding possible debts in Germany. As to the baptismal certificate, I ordered inscribed, on the largest possible sheet of official paper, the gentleman's affidavit that in the State of Ohio where he was born no Taufschein, or baptismal certificate, was required at the time of his birth, and to this was affixed with plenty of wax the largest seal of the Legation. The form of the affidavit may be judged peculiar, but it was thought best not to startle the authorities with the admission that the man had not been baptised at all. They could easily believe that a State like Ohio, which some of them doubtless regarded as still in the backwoods and mainly tenanted by the aborigines, might have omitted in days gone by to require a Taufschein, but that an unbaptised Christian should offer himself to be married in Germany would perhaps have so paralyzed their powers of belief that permission for the marriage might never have been secured.

"In this and various other ways we overcame the difficulties, and though the wedding did not take place upon the appointed day, and the return to America had to be deferred, the couple at last after marriage first before the public authorities and then in church, were able to depart in peace."

The Blighting of His Fame.

"Ruined!" he cried, as he dashed a paper to the floor and trampled upon it "Ruined, disgraced! My fair fame blasted! My honor gone!"

"Dearest, what disaster is this?" It was his fond wife who gasped the question, in tones of anguish.

"A disaster which is irretrievable; a calamity which will crush me to the earth!" He ran his white, thin fingers through his luxuriant crop of long and inky hair, black as the raven's wing, at ten-and-a-half the bottle of black, warranted to defy detection—not a dye, not a stain, but a harmless liquid that merely has to be combed into the hair (Vide advt.).

"Heavens, Horatio, tell me what has befallen thee!" The fair girl turned her horror-full eyes upon him. Her young soul, aged thirty-eight, shared his agony.

"Felicia," he cried, "do I look like a humorist?"

"The fates forefend!"

"Do I strike you at all as being a funny man?"

"Anything but that!" she shuddered

"Am I not known as a serious author?"

"You are," she admitted.

"Do I not paint the serious side of life?"

"You do," she interjected.

"Am I not a novelist of grave and serious endeavor?"

"You am," she whispered.

"Does not my fame depend on my reputation as a man that abhors a jest as a writer who revels in the darkness of despair and the greyness of existence?"

"It doth!" she moaned.

"Then listen to this," he faltered. "These are the words that should have wound up the 'Fourpenny Monthly':—'As the light flickered out, she bent her queenly head and kissed him in the dark!'"

"Beautiful!" she ejaculated, enraptured.

"Yes, but listen to what the printer has made of it—'She bent her queenly head and kissed him on the beak!'"

"Oh, Horatio!" she murmured, and swooned.

"The horror of it!" he wildly cried. "The public will take me for a new humorist!"—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

A Unique Luncheon.

The Paris correspondent of the "Pall Mall Gazette" recently attended a luncheon given by M. Dessing-Whitmore, which was distinctly original. The table, he says, took the form of a boat, and the waiters were dressed as sailors. There was a distinctly nautical flavor about the whole thing, and during the hors d'oeuvres and dessert a sailor's chorus was sung. Not being a particularly good sailor, the perpetual motion of the table—which, it appears, took some time to get in working order—was not for me the most enjoyable sensation of the occasion. I was able, however, to appreciate the dexterity with which it had been planned, as not an article ever rolled—or even attempted to roll—off the table. To make the scene more realistic a canvas was hung on the walls, on which was painted a somewhat rough sea. The guests numbered twenty-four, and each was presented with a small compass.

Anecdotal.

At a circuit dinner in Ireland a barrister was relating some shooting stories, and wound up by stating that he had once shot thirty-one hares before breakfast. "I don't doubt it, sir," remarked Lord Norbury, "but you must have been firing at a wig."

A Maine country doctor tells this story on himself:—He responded one night to a note left at his door by a farmer asking him to go as soon as possible to see his little boy, who was ill with a very bad cold. The doctor gave one look at the child and asked severely: "Don't you know that your boy is coming down with the measles?" "Yes," replied the wife. "I knowed it." "Then what in the world did you mean by saying he had a bad cold?" asked the doctor. The woman hesitated a moment; then, looking at her husband, she said, hesitatingly: "Neither me or him knowed how to spell measles."

A Nottinghamshire clergyman, in baptizing a baby, paused in the midst of the service to inquire the name of the infant, to which the mother, with a profound courtesy, replied, "Shady, sir, if you please." "Shady!" replied the minister. "Then it's a boy, and you mean Shadrach, eh?" "No, please your reverence, it's a girl." "And pray," asked the inquisitive pastor, "how happened you to call the child by such a strange name?" "Why, sir," responded the woman, "if you must know, our name is Bower, and my husband said as how he should like her to be called Shady, because Shady Bower sounds so pretty!"

An amusing story is told of President Loubet's humble brother-in-law, whom an enterprising interviewer called upon directly after the French President's election. "How did you take the news?" asked the interviewer. "Oh, fairly well; without any rejoicings, of course. Now, here am I, for example, an ironmonger; in what way do you suppose it will benefit me that my brother-in-law is President of the republic? Why, this very morning I received three letters from people begging me to get them Government tobacco shops. That is the only advantage that the election will bestow upon me. People fancy that I have influence, and I shall therefore be worried."

Andrew Carnegie tells a story of a Yankee in Scotland that illustrates well the imperturbability of the Scottish temperament. The Yankee, a bicycler, came to the shore of a lonely lake, and saw in a boat a man examining the depths of the water with a water telescope. The man conducted this examination languidly. He would pause every little while to light his pipe and to converse on the weather or some such indifferent subject with a friend who sat upon the bank, now reading a newspaper and now tossing pebbles idly into the stream. The Yankee got off his bicycle to rest, and in an interval of silence he said to the man seated on the bank: "What is your friend looking for? Oysters?" "No. My brother-in-law," was the reply.

Charlemagne Tower, the United States Ambassador to Russia, was talking at Atlantic City about the Russian moujik. "This naive fellow," he said, "is something like a boy and something like an Irishman. He is, as a rule, very simple, very kind. A typical moujik entered one day a railroad station. He approached the agent and asked when a certain train would leave for a certain place. The agent told him distinctly, and, seeming satisfied, he departed. But a moment later he was back again, and again he asked the agent the same question. 'Why,' the agent exclaimed, 'I told you that only a minute ago!' 'You did, truly,' the moujik answered, 'but it isn't myself that wants to know this time. It's my mate outside!'"

Senator Edmund W. Pettus of Alabama is eighty-two years old. A man called at his law office in Selma one day and wanted to read him a thirty-page abstract of a will. Senator Pettus said: "I am too old to listen to all that. Tell me in a few words the abstract's contents." "I prefer to read it to you," the man insisted. "Ah," said Mr. Pettus, "you have the author's vanity. You are like Barthe, the comedian. Barthe called on a dying man one day with a new comedy. He unrolled it. He said:—'Let me read this to you. You will laugh.' 'But consider,' said the other, 'I am a dying man.' Barthe, ignoring that objection, smiled and cleared his throat to begin. 'Consider,' the victim resumed, 'I have only an hour to live.' 'But, to read my comedy will occupy only a half hour,' said Barthe."

At the Portsmouth luncheon to the United States squadron, United States Consul Swalm of Southampton, who was stationed at Montevideo during the war with Spain, told the following story:—"They were expecting the 'Oregon' during the Spanish-American war, and they also expected that she would be short of coal. He could not buy so much as a pound of fuel, but one evening a Scotsman came to his door and said: 'You want coal?' The Consul replied that he never wanted a drink as badly as he wanted coal at that moment. The Scotsman had no power to sell, but he pointed out that he had eight hundred tons on board, and said he pitied the American captain who could not put his ship alongside, take out the bags of coal and then 'cut the painter.' It so happened that the 'Oregon' did not call, but such an act of friendship which defied law and order touched his heart."

David Belasco was born in San Francisco and educated at Lincoln College. He said recently: "I remember a chum of my boyhood who was a great traveller. He used to entertain me during recitations with tales of his adventures by land and sea. 'Never go by boat,' he said one day 'from New York to San Francisco. They crowd those boats dreadfully. There's no comfort aboard them at all. This will give you some idea, David,' he went on, 'of the way the boats are crowded. In course of my last trip a mild mannered man approached the captain, and, in my hearing, said: "Skipper, can't you rig me up a berth somewhere or other? I have no place to sleep." We had already been two days out, and, therefore, the skipper said in a surly way to the man, "Sleep where you did last night and the night before." "I can't do it, captain," the other answered. "You can't do it? Well, why can't you?" "Because I've been sleeping atop of a seasick man, and he's got well now, and won't stand it any longer."'"

Mrs. Flase-Nee—I can congratulate myself that all my daughters have married well. Mrs. Lorgnette—H'm! All my daughters have married well twice.

Many are prone to allow their horses to run out through all kinds of weather until late in the fall, and until their coats become rough and shaggy. This is wrong. Frosty grass is not good for horses that have been used to dry feed and must yet do hard work. They should be stabled as soon as the nights become uncomfortably cool, and then they may be turned out to grass again after the sun has dispelled the frost.

Strange Run of Numbers.

"Odd how one particular number will seem to be connected with the fate of some particular person, is it not?" asked the man with the incandescent whiskers of the man with the underdone nose.

"Yes," answered the man with the underdone nose. "Now, there was Finley Marigger, down our way. He was born on the sixth day of the month, grew to be six feet tall, had six children, and died on the sixth day of the week, worth six million dollars."

"Rather strange," said the man with the incandescent whiskers; "but it isn't a circumstance compared to Tennyson Ten Eycke, a fellow I used to know. He was born on the tenth day of the tenth month, in the tenth year after his parents were married. He was always a tender-hearted boy, and at ten years of age he lost ten fingers and toes altogether by trying to save ten kittens that had been thrown in front of a train of ten cars on the tenth siding in the railway yards at 10.10 a.m. Ten years later he was married to Tennie Tendall, whose father owned ten business blocks, each ten stories high. They were divorced in ten weeks, and he married a girl named Tenwick, who lived ten miles from Teneriffe. They got room 10 at a hotel on their bridal tour, which began on the tenth day of the month, and the hotel collapsed at ten o'clock at night, and ten hours later they dug them out, and she was dead. He mourned her for ten days only, and was then married to a widow woman by the name of Tengerrow. She eloped with a man named Tenbally ten minutes after they were married. It went along that way until Ten Eycke had married ten wives, and he was perfectly happy with the tenth."

"That certainly is remarkable," observed the man with the underdone nose.

"Yes. And in addition to all that Tennyson Ten Eycke was the most tender-hearted man you ever knew, in spite of his misfortunes. Also, he was the champion tennis player; but at golf it always took ten strokes for him to put the ball in the hole, and as a usual thing he lost ten balls in every game. He died ten years ago, having been shot ten times by a man who disputed a debt of ten dollars and ten cents."

The man with the underdone nose cast a glance of suspicion at the man with the incandescent whiskers.

"And," he mused, "I suppose they buried Ten Eycke in a grave ten feet deep and ten miles from nowhere, and the tender tendrils of ten of the tenderest vines are tentatively twining over his ten-year-old tomb."

Then the man with the incandescent whiskers ordered some ten-cent cigars, and they smoked for ten minutes.—"Judge."

Victim of His Own Game.

Mrs. Potter Palmer's son Honore, who was married in August, once outwitted a concierge in Paris neatly.

A lad of sixteen or thereabout at the time, he was spending the winter in Paris with his mother. One cold night in February he stayed out unusually late, and, desiring to get in without awakening anyone, he rang up the concierge softly. The concierge, with equal softness, came downstairs. He whispered through the keyhole, "Is that you, M. Palmer?" and then he said, positively:

"I can't let you in, sir."

"Why not?" asked the young man.

"Because the rules are very strict," said the concierge. "No one ever is let in after midnight."

The boy desired ardently to enter. He thought a moment, then he slipped a gold louis under the door.

"I have just slipped a gold louis under the door for you, concierge," he whispered. "Now let me in, that's a good fellow."

The concierge instantly drew back the bolt. "Come in softly. Make no noise, monsieur," he said shamelessly.

But young Palmer was already regretting the gold louis—his last one. A thought struck him, and he had no sooner entered than he said:

"Oh, by the way, I left a book on the stone balustrade outside. Do you mind getting it for me?"

With great politeness the concierge, in his bare feet, tiptoed out upon the cold stones. While he fumbled about the boy pushed to the door and locked it.

"Let me in, monsieur," whispered the concierge, who had on nothing but a nightdress of white linen.

"I can't let you in. We let no one in after midnight. Unless——"

But young Palmer had to go no further. The concierge, freezing in the cold, perceived that he had been outwitted, and in his turn slipped the gold louis under the door. Pocketing it, the boy admitted the man and then went quietly to bed.

An Imaginary Mongoose.

A passenger entered a railway carriage in Australia, in which was seated a particularly aggressive commercial traveler, and placed in the rack opposite a small wooden box pierced with holes. In the conversation which followed the commercial traveler gave several hints that he would like to know what was in the box, without avail. At last his curiosity got the better of him.

"I say, old man," he asked, "what have you in that box?"

"A mongoose," was the reply.

A series of diplomatic remarks followed, aimed at getting the reason for carrying a mongoose; but, as no explanation was offered, the commercial traveler had to say plump out:

"What are you going to do with that mongoose?"

The answer he got was: "I'm going to see a friend who has been drinking very heavily of late—so heavily, in fact, that he has developed delirium tremens. You may be aware that people so suffering are inclined to see snakes, and you may also be aware that there is nothing on earth so deadly to snakes as a mongoose." He sat back, evidently satisfied that he had given a full and complete explanation.

"But—but, I say," said the commercial traveler, "those snakes are imaginary."

"So is my mongoose," returned the person interrogated.—"Sporting Times."

A State of Nature.

Primary and Junior Union

The first meeting of the Primary and Junior Union, which was organized on Monday evening last, will be held in the Y.M.C.A. this evening at eight o'clock. The lesson for the following Sabbath will be taught, plans for work discussed, and time for regular meetings decided upon. All interested are invited to be present, especially teachers in the primary and junior grades of our Sunday schools.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Consumption Mastered at Last

Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure

No discovery in medicine has created one quarter of the interest that the Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure has caused. Its severest tests have been made on hopeless cases of Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom have been restored to perfect health. It cuts the phlegm out of the throat and bronchial tubes.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, La Grippe it cures more quickly than any other medicine in the world.

Constant coughing is like scratching a wound. So long as it is done, the wound will not heal. For coughs, no matter how stubborn, a few doses of Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure will stop the irritation, and a cure is the quick result.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

GOLD——$80,000,000——GOLD

—If you want to make a GOLD DIVIDEND PAYING INVESTMENT—

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

the development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of [illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share, reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividend whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Dec. 1—There is figured to have been considerable buying of stocks for the account of shorts during the past two or three days, the general line of influence seems to be somewhat improved. There is a better feeling among invested interests and the latter continue to add to their holdings of the better classes of securities; the leading officials of the large corporations continue to report an increasing number of stock holders and this indicates plainly that many people who own stocks outright have not lost faith. The indications are that the fluctuations will be generally feverish and more or less nervous.

New York, Dec. 1—The occasion is present for picking up bargains in railroad shares; action on L.N. Div. will not be taken for some weeks, but the buying foreshadows agreeable surprise; big short interest in Penna; tractions will scarcely decline much under any circumstances. Gould shares are improving. Buy St. P., Atch. and B.R.T; Morgan trust people are bullish on Atch. Cons. Gas and B.R.T.; remember the pfd. should go at [illegible]; a few months ago the common was at 225; U.S. at [illegible]; U.S. [illegible], steel was king then, it is pauper now; if bearish sell on firm spots.

New York, Dec. 1—There was a long series yesterday of trades in a large amount of stocks which throws a great deal of light on the nature of the market. During the first fifteen minutes the market was weak; this it has since been discovered was due to the sale under cover of somewhat over 20,000 shares of stock bought on Friday for the account of the prominent trader who is one of the recognized leaders of the so-called Waldorf crown. The purchase of this stock created a decisive rally late Friday afternoon as the brokers employed to make it frequently received orders for very prominent bankers. The actual changes in ownership liable to extend over and considerable time was very small. The undertone of the market is strong and the best proof of its strength is the absolute resistance which it showed to the money flurry late in the afternoon.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER

John Redding Said to Have Been Hit Over the Head

Windsor, Nov. 30.—It is now believed that John Redding, the Maidstone Township farmer who was picked up on the road in an unconscious condition, has been murdered. The circumstances surrounding the case are most peculiar. The identity of the person who brought Redding home is as yet a mystery. This individual explained to Mrs. Redding that he had found her husband lying on the roadside near Wade Hill's Hotel, a resort of colored people, near Windsor. A physician diagnosed Redding's condition as being due to typhoid fever. Redding did not improve, and was finally brought to the Hotel Dieu here. Upon examination the house surgeon discovered that the patient's skull had been fractured, and that a blood clot had formed on the brain, bringing about the unconscious condition. On Saturday Redding died, and the post-mortem examination reveals the fact that the skull had been fearfully shattered by a blow.

The police authorities have conclusive evidence that the dead man became involved in an altercation with a colored man, whose name is being withheld, and that he was struck over the head with a heavy billiard cue and then thrown out of Hill's resort.

Odd Origin of Sea Terms.

How many people imagine that that familiar word "admiral" is anything but a thorough English word? Probably the last origin any would give it is Eastern. Yet its derivation is simply "Emir el Bagh," which is Arabic for Lord of the Sea.

There is hardly a language that we have not put under contribution for sea terms. The names of the various officers of a ship illustrate this most vividly.

"Captain" comes straight from the Latin "caput," a head; but "mate" owes nothing to any dead language. The word is almost identical with the Icelandic "mati," which means a companion or equal. The derivation of "coxswain" would never be suspected. Coxswain was originally the man who pulled the after oar of the captain's boat, then known as a cock boat. "Cock boat" is a corruption of the word "coracle," and, as most people know, the coracle is a small round boat used for fishing on some of the Welsh rivers, such as the Wye and Usk. So coxswain comes to us from the Welsh. Other languages are also pressed into the service.

"Commodore" is simply the Italian "Commandatore," or commander, and "naval cadet" was originally the French "capdet," which, going a step further back, has the same origin as the word captain. The reason of this apparent anomaly is that originally all naval cadets were younger sons of noble families, who served as privates previous to obtaining their commission.

There was never such a person as "Davy Jones," though we frequently hear of his locker. One ought to talk of "Duffy Jonah's locker." "Duffy" is the West Indian negro term for spirit or ghost, while "Jonah" refers to the prophet of that name.

"Dog watch" is another curious case of a term gradually corrupted out of its original form. Originally it was "Dodge watch," so described because it lasts only two instead of the usual four hours, and thus makes it possible that the same men shall not be on duty every day during the same hours. "Dog watches," so called, are from 4 to 6 and 6 to 8 in the evening.

Sailors call meat "junk." It is not a complimentary term, for junk is nautical for a rope's end. Some 3,000 years ago ropes were made out of bullrushes, for which the Latin word is "juncus."

Nowadays we talk of "port" and "starboard." Originally it was "larboard" and "starboard." Starboard has nothing to do with stars. It is really "steer board," Anglo-Saxon for "steer side," because in old galleys steered by an oar the oar was fixed somewhat to the righthand side of the stern, and the helmsman held the inboard portion in his right hand. As for "larboard," it is probably a corruption of lower board, the larboard side being originally considered inferior to the other.

"Sheet anchor" is the name given to the largest anchor carried by a vessel. It is almost as complete a corruption as "dog watch." "Sheet anchor" is really "shote" anchor, so called because it can, from its great weight, be easily shot out in case of emergency.

Again, "jury mast" has nothing directly to do with a law court jury, though both have come from the same original word, "jour," the French for day. Jury mast thus means a mast put up temporarily—for a day—just as jury in the legal term implies a tribunal summoned for a short period only.

The Annual Kansas Wail.

From Kansas comes the same old story that has been enacted and re-enacted every succeeding summer for forty-six years:—

July 9th—Hot—still hotter—no rain—corn shooting—hot winds—no rain—everything burning up—grass all gone—howling hot winds—no rain—earth cracking open—cattle starving—stock ponds gone dry—driving cattle six miles to water—prairies ready to burn—everything gone—hotter and dryer—farmers cutting up corn—gizzards of the cat-fish in the bottom of the Walnut baked to a coal brown.

August 1st—Will have to organize an aid society—not enough stuff in the country to winter a calf.

September 10th—Corn looks better—it lives—has a few nubbins—prairie grass a ton to the acre—cattle rolling fat.

September 20th—Two and three ears of corn to the stalk—step-ladders to pick the ears—thirty and forty and sixty bushels to the acre—money wanted—to buy cattle—to eat up the tremendous corn crop—stockmen gone to Colorado, Texas, and New Mexico hunting cattle to feed. More corn—more grass—more cattle.

Thanksgiving—Everybody wallowing in wealth—more farms—more land—more pianos—more carriages—better homes—more girls and boys off to the colleges—more money to loan at lowest rates of interest, and there you have it, and besides, it's all true—every word of it.—"El Dorado Republican.'

A New Armada Story.

The late Duke of Argyll set his heart on dredging Tobermory Bay, Scotland, in search of the wreck of the Spanish Armada ship, "Admiral of Florence," blown up there in 1588. About a hundred years ago various relics were recovered, but since then no real effort has been made to solve the secrets which the sea has kept so well. The present Duke has now taken the matter in hand. He has made arrangements with a Glasgow captain; and a well-known diver is making a preliminary search. This has been, so far, successful. A bronze cannon, five feet long, bearing the Aragon arms, and the date, 1563, has been landed, together with a pistol and sword so encrusted with rust as to appear mere shapeless masses. There is, therefore, ample evidence that the "Admiral of Florence," or all that remains of her, really rests below the waters of the harbor. This ship bore one of the treasure chests of the Armada, and thousands of Spanish doubloons are believed to lie among her debris. If the treasure should be hit upon, as it well may be, the old Duke's convictions will be amply justified, and yet another page will be added to the romance of the Armada story.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Mastan, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H. N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that the hour sows brings forth a dangerous harvest,—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhozone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhozone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few minutes by the penetrating vapor from the Inhaler. Ferrozone, taken in conjunction with Catarrhozone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhozone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Trouble, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhozone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

Christmas is less than a month off, and the merchants are beginning to feel the influence of the holiday buying. Their stocks are now full, and the buyer who can afford to do holiday shopping now secures first choice of the goods. No need to carry them home; if you prefer to leave them, the obliging merchant will store them for later delivery. In this way you have what later in the season is often a troublesome task off your mind. You benefit.

And while you benefit you also benefit others. This is a trying season on the men and women of the shops, and anything you can do to lighten their work will be a practical way of showing the true Christmas spirit. And you can lighten their work considerably if you will heed these hints.

Resolve to get as much of your buying as possible done next week, and to have it all done a week before Christmas.

Study the Times advertisements before you set out to shop. They're a good guide.

Do your shopping in the forenoon, as much as possible, and the earlier the better.

Carry home your parcels as much as possible, and thus spare the delivery men.

Don't choose the clerks' meal hours for shopping.

Be patient. Remember that the clerks are only human, and that they have their own troubles. A kind word and a smile is not lost on them.

Let the Christmas spirit radiate wherever you are. You will be the happier for trying to help to make others happy.

Santa Claus is Here

Dear old Santa Claus—in all his majesty and as jolly and good natured as ever—is here, and invites every father, mother and child to make our store their headquarters for Xmas presents. Times Bookstore.

Large Number

Some idea of the extent to which deer hunting has been carried this year may be judged by the fact that the shipments of deer through the two express companies doing business in the northern portion of Ontario, where these animals are hunted, are expected to reach the record number of 4,000. Last year the number was 3,535.

A Good Plan

With a view to having the supply ready for the demand when the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is opened for traffic, the Grand Trunk railway authorities have caused notices to be placed in their "Point" shops requesting all employees to have their sons seventeen years and over learn stenography and telegraphy from teachers which the company will provide.

The City Wells

At a meeting of the Board of Health the Secretary was instructed to again write the Provincial Secretary with regard to such action as the Board should take regarding certain wells in town which were ordered to be closed, and also requesting that in returning the report of the analysis of water, it be stated whether or not such water is considered fit for use.

May End in Strike

The trouble between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the telegraph operators on the section east of the Don, including the Midland Division, who number 700, has not yet been settled. After five weeks of conference the committee of employees in Toronto are unable to report progress. There was a rumor abroad last night that the Grand Trunk have been given to understand that a decision must be given one way or the other before the end of the week.

THE LATE MRS. M'KIBBEN

Of Lakefield Passes Away on Monday Last

It is with regret that we chronicle the demise of Mrs. William J. McKibben, which sad event took place at the family residence, Lakefield, on Monday last, after an illness extending over a period of six months from dropsy. The deceased, whose maiden name was Sarah Davidson, was born in Ireland, and came to Canada with her sister, Mrs. Hall, of Cambray, when she was 21 years of age, and settled in Smith, where she married Mr. McKibben, who died about five years ago. She resided on the homestead until about ten years ago, when the family removed to Lakefield, where they have since resided.

Mrs. McKibben leaves a family of six—five daughters and one son, as follows: Mrs. Johnston, Pearson, Man.; Mrs. Wm. McKee, Seymour; Mrs. C Hewitt, Smith; Mrs. H. A. Nelson, Chatham; Miss Anne, Lakefield, and Samuel, on the homestead in Smith.

The late Mrs. McKibben was a staunch Presbyterian, and was greatly esteemed and beloved. Her death will be sincerely mourned by many.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Lakefield, this Wednesday, afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock.

"JUST RUN ACROSS."

Some People are Lucky

Some people make an intelligent study of food and get on the right track (pure food) others are lucky enough to stumble upon the right way out of the difficulty, just as a Phila. young woman did.

She says: "I had suffered terribly from nervous indigestion, everything seemed to disagree with me and I was on the point of starvation when one day I happened to run across a demonstration of Postum Food Coffee at one of the big stores here.

"I took a sample home and a sample of Grape Nuts as well and there tried them again and found they agreed with me perfectly. For months I made them my main diet, and as the result I am restored to my former perfect health and can eat everything I want to.

"When I spoke to my physician about Grape Nuts he said 'It is a most excellent food.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Look for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in every package of both Postum and Grape-Nuts.

A NEW STEEL STEAMER

To be Built for the Stony Lake Waters Next Year

Mr. P. P. Young, of Young's Point, was in town yesterday, and gave The Times a call. Mr. Young has decided to place a new steamer on Stony Lake waters next year, and will probably let the contract for the steel frame and machinery in the course of a few days. The new boat will be 100 feet long by 18 feet, and will be licensed to carry 300 persons. She will be of the propeller class, and will have a speed of 14 miles an hour.

The great increase in traffic during the past few years has made it necessary to provide more steamboat accommodation for Stony Lake, and Mr. Young, with his usual enterprise, has decided to supply the want. It is enough to know that he has done so, to ensure a first class up-to-date steamer.

A CLOSE CALL

Rev. Mr. Bastow and Mr. Comstock Meet with an Accident

While returning from the funeral of the late Mr. John Donnelly yesterday afternoon Rev. Mr. Bastow and Mr. A. Comstock met with an accident that was nearly being very serious. As they approached the railway crossing the gong sounded and frightened Mr. Comstock's horse. The horse passed under the first gate, which struck Mr. Bastow on the head, breaking his hat—and also hit Mr. Comstock, and tearing the back off the rig. The second gate was down, so that the horse could not proceed, and the train, which was approaching from the east, made things decidedly exciting for a few moments. However, there was no further harm done, and after a few moments the gate was raised and the horse driven through.

It is said that the gatekeeper was to blame for not at once raising the gate when he saw how matters were. It is pleasing to know that neither gentlemen were seriously injured.

NO VERDICT

No Verdict Rendered by Jury Enquiring Into Cause of Death of John Donnelly

The jury appointed to enquire into the death of John Donnelly, who was injured at the Grand Trunk crossing on Tuesday evening, November 24th, met in the Council Chamber at 7.30 last night.

Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the relatives of the deceased, Mr. W. H. Moore for the Grand Trunk, and Mr. R. E. Wood for the crown.

Evidence was taken from Mr. Young, engineer; Mr. C. E. Tamlin, fireman; Frank Emsley and Wm. Coombes, brakemen; Geo. Gobbett, conductor; Nelson King, Robt. Harding, Walter Stocker, Harry Donnelly, Dr. Bradd, and Wesley Lewis.

The evidence went to show that the deceased come to his death by being struck by the shaft of a cutter. An adjournment was made till this evening at 7.30, when the remainder of the evidence will be taken, and the verdict rendered.

ONE LUNG

May be gone and yet the remaining lung will be amply sufficient to sustain a vigorous vitality. As a general thing few people make more use of both lungs than is equivalent to a healthy use of one lung.

These facts are all in the favor of the man or woman with weak lungs, even when disease has a strong grip on them.

Many a person living in health to-day has the lungs marked by the healed scars of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected or unskillfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption.

"I had been troubled with lung disease and pleurisy for a number of years and the trouble had almost become chronic," writes A. S. Elam, of Howe, Ia. "Had several kinds of medicine from different physicians without much benefit. At last wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce and got his advice, and began using his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have used twenty-five bottles. When I commenced taking it I had no appetite, my system was completely run-down, had no ambition to do anything. Now I feel better than I did before I got sick. Have a good appetite and am able to do my work. I sincerely recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted as I was."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

STONE, SAND AND GRAVEL PROPERTY FOR THE TOWN

Ald. Rush Fathers a Scheme to Purchase the Hilliard Estate, Containing Abundance of Road Material

THE TOWN AND VILLAGE OF ASHBURNHAM MEMORALIZE THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR TWO PROCLAIM THE UNION OF THE TWO MUNICIPALITIES

At a special meeting of the Town Council held last night Ald. Rush introduced the important question of providing ways and means of procuring gravel and stone for road purposes at the least possible expense. He had, he said, endeavored to secure from two to five acres of good gravel land on the Hilliard property at the north end of the town. He accordingly wrote Mr. Mark Hilliard, who is now in Regina, to this purpose, and received a reply that he would only consider the sale of the whole homestead property, north of Anson street, for $10,000 cash, and would not be disappointed if this offer was rejected. He referred Ald. Rush to his solicitor, Mr. Dumble.

Ald. Rush next consulted Mr. D. W. Dumble, with the result that he secured an option till February 1st on the property in question, which comprises in detail Block A, Plan 14, Lots 22, 23, 26, 27, 28 and 29; Block D, Plan 14, Lots 2, 5, 6 and north part Lot 7, Block E, Plan 14, Lots 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18, 19 and part of 20; all of Block F, Plan 14, and all of Block G, Plan 14. The conveyance to be made in consideration of a cash payment of $10,000, and purchase to be subject to existing leases.

THE ENGINEER'S REPORT.

Following up the matter with commendable energy Ald. Rush requested Town Engineer Hay to survey the property and report on its value to the town. The following is a copy of Mr. Hay's report:

"Ald. Rush, Chairman Finance Committee:

"Dear Sir,—As requested I herewith enclose plan of the Hilliard Estate, showing colored red the blocks and lots referred to in Mr. Dumble's letter.

"The total area of land included is 66 98-100 acres, consisted of cultivated land, pasture land, orchard and building lots, two large dwellings, barn, stables and sheds, all in good condition.

"The eastern portion of the property contains an immense ridge of excellent gravel of different grades, from heavy coarse gravel to sand, and sufficient to supply the town for many years to come.

"There is also a large quantity of field stone piled along the fences and in heaps, roughly estimated to 12,000 cords.

"If the town wishes to acquire this property and open one or more gravel pits, a portable crusher could be placed in the pits to crush the coarse gravel which appears to contain about 40 per cent. of granite, as well as the stone piled in heaps along the fences. A siding could be run into the property of the street railway, and thus provide a cheap and quick means of transportation.

"The gravel banks are so situated that when they are excavated to the level of the lower lands the property will be in good shape for disposing of as factory and building lots. The Grand Trunk Railway is also so situated as to render it an easy matter to lay a siding into the property.

"Yours truly,
T. A. S. HAY,
"Town Engineer."

COST OF STONE AND GRAVEL.

The following estimates of the amounts paid by the town for stone for crushing and gravel during the past four years was furnished by Town Treasurer Brownscombe:

	STONE FOR CRUSHING	GRAVEL
1900	$ 331.27	$151.58
1901	890.36	275.93
1902	1410.82	312.73
1903	1972.02	496.49
	$4,604.47	$1,237.73

The estimate for 1903 is up to September 12th last, and the amount required next year, especially now that Ashburnham is coming into the corporation, should be doubled.

A LIVE ASSET.

Ald. Rush here pointed out that the property would be a desirable acquisition to the town, outside of its value in gravel and stone. It is assessed at $8,750, which at 19 mills is equal to a taxation of $166.25, while the revenue at present in sight is as follows:

Rent from farm	$150.00
Rent from 2 houses	144.00
Hilliard Homestead say	120.00
	$414.00
Taxes	166.25
Total revenue	$247.75

The lease of the farm is about to of the Council, Ald. Rush emphasized is as good as guaranteed the acceptance of a new lease at $200 a year.

In leaving this matter in the hands of the Council, Ald. Rush emphasized the facts that for the past two years the Town has paid $3 a cord for stone delivered, and stone is getting harder to secure each year. His estimates are only for street purposes, and do not include stone and gravel for granolithic walks which are big items in themselves. The available sand and gravel on the property will last for say fifty years to come, and when it is exhausted the land would still be in good shape for building lots. The present revenue from the estate in rents would pay the interest on 30 years debentures. There is also half a mile of frontage on Water street, 200 feet of which could be sold today at $6 a foot. In the next few years large quantities of stone, gravel and sand will be needed for road purposes, especially now that Ashburnham has joined hands with Peterborough. In the event of the street railway being operated, and an extension of the G.T.R., the town will have valuable factory sites at their disposal.

Ald. Best, chairman of the Board of Works, said that the Town was now paying 6c. a yard for gravel delivered. He agreed with Ald. Rush that the Town should purchase this estate, which would prove a live asset in every way.

The Council unanimously approved of the scheme, and Ald. Rush moved, seconded by Ald. Shortly, that the Town Solicitor be requested to prepare a bylaw providing for the purchase of the Hilliard estate, by the issuance of 30 years debentures, said bylaw to be submitted to the ratepayers at the January elections.

SNOW PLOUGHING.

The Board of Works was empowered to let the contracts for snow-ploughing.

The Town Council met at 8 o'clock when there were present Mayor G. M. Roger presiding, and Aldermen H. Rush, Shortly, R. F. McWilliams, Edgcumbe, Best, Clinkscale, Finnie and Morrison and Corkery.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

His Worship explained that the object of the meeting was to take the necessary steps to consummate the union of the Town of Peterborough and Village of Ashburnham. It would be necessary, he said. to memoralize the cessary, he said, to memoralize the Lieutenant Governor to [illegible] municipalities incorporated under one head, and the Town Solicitor had prepared a memorial to this purpose on lines agreed upon by both the Reeve of Ashburnham and himself.

The following memorial was read by Town Solicitor R. H. D. Hall:

TO HIS HONOR THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO IN COUNCIL,

The Petition of The Corporation of The Town of Peterborough Humbly Sheweth:—

1. That the Council of the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough with a view to the annexation of the adjoining Village of Ashburnham to the said Town of Peterborough, appointed a Committee to confer with the Council of the said Village for that purpose, and said Committee on the 17th day of March, 1903, presented a report to the Council of the said Town in favor of such annexation, and thereafter on the 28th day of October, 1903 the Committee of the Whole Council of the said Town of Peterborough in respect to such annexation, which report was by resolution adopted by the said Council.

2. That after the adoption of the said report by the said Council, a vote of the electors of the said Town was taken on the 26th day of November, 1903, and was in favor of the annexation.

3. That the said Council of Peterborough hereby declare that it is expedient that the said Village of Ashburnham be annexed to the Town of Peterborough.

4. That the Council of the said Village of Ashburnham also passed a resolution declaring that it was expedient that such Village should be annexed to the said Town of Peterborough, which resolution on the 26th day of November, 1903, was submitted to the electors of the said Village and a majority of the electors voting thereon, voted in favor of the resolution.

5. That at the same time a By-law was submitted to the properly qualified voters of the said Village, to provide for the construction of sewers in the said Village and to authorize the issue of debentures of the said Village for raising the sum of $15,000 therefor, which By-law received the number of votes necessary to carry same.

6. That the assessment of the said Town for the year 1904 has been taken, but the assessment of the said Village for the year 1904 has not been taken, and it is desirable that the assessment made in the Village for the year 1903 may be adopted as the assessment on which the rate of taxation for the year 1904 shall be fixed and levied.

7. That it is desirable that the said annexation should take place on the first day of January, 1904, and that provision should be made for the nominations of Mayor, Aldermen, and School Trustees and Water Commissioners for the United Municipality on the last Monday in December, 1903, and that those qualified by the assessment for the Village of Ashburnham shall be qualified to be candidates and to nominate candidates for such offices in the Town of Peterborough, and to vote for same at the first election.

Your Petitioners Therefore Pray

That a Proclamation be issued annexing the said Village of Ashburnham to the said Town of Peterborough as Ward number Five; such union to take effect on the first day of January, 1904, and that the following provisions be contained in or provided for by the said Proclamation—namely;

1. That the United Municipality shall assume and be liable for the debts and be entitled to the assets of the the said Village of Ashburnham.

2. That the United Municipality shall within two years from the union, fully construct an outfall sewer from Elizabeth Street in said Village southward to a proper outlet and shall dispose of the sewage by a septic tank and outfall in substantial accordance with the plans furnished to the Council of the said Village of Ashburnham by W. Chipman, Esq., C.E., or by such other means as may be approved of by the Provincial Board of Health, and that debentures of the Town of Peterborough be issued to pay therefor, and that on neglect or default of the said Town of Peterborough to do so, any elector shall be entitled to take proceedings to compel such construction, and the issue of such debentures.

3. That the assessment taken in the said Village for the year 1903 shall be adopted as the assessment on which the rate of taxation for the year 1904 shall be fixed and levied.

4. RELATION OF RADIUM AND HELIUM

New York, December 3 — The Tribune's London correspondent cables:

Sir William Ramsay's lecture at the London Institution was less important than some sensational reporters represent. His experiments with radium have been incomplete, and, while he announces that this mysterious substance gives off a heavy gas which is slowly transformed into helium and then vanishes, it is premature to conclude that the elements are not constant, but can be converted into one another, and that the dreams of ancient alchemists are destined to an early fulfilment in the transmutation of baser metals into gold.

Agitation in Favor of a Canadian Officer

TO PROTECT THE FISHERIES

Latest Grist of News From Ottawa--- The General Elections

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, Dec. 3—There is considerable feeling in Government circles over the failure of the Grand Trunk to make the deposit of $5,000,000, as called for in the agreement. It is feared that Parliament will have to deal with the matter before work can again proceed.

THE MILITIA ACT.

The militia is again agitating the circles of government here. At present no one but a British officer can command This is one of the provisions of the British North American Act. For the last thirty years there has been more or less agitation on foot having for its ultimate goal the amendment or abolishment of this clause, and it now looks a if there would really be a serious attempt made to get rid of the objectionable provision. For this purpose a measure has to be passed in Parliament petitioning the imperial parliament for permission to amend the North American act. This, it is understood, may be done at the next session.

Some effort will also be made to improve the position of the divisional officers who have the rank of lieutenant colonel and who have as many as from 5,000 to 7,000 men to look after. The intention is to make them either major generals or brigadier generals and to see that they get the pay for the work intrusted to officers of that rank, and now being done by them under lesser titles.

It is generally conceded that the sooner the militia force of Canada can be put upon a proper defense footing the better it will be, but it is also admitted that this never will be entirely successful till a Canadian officer is put at the head of the forces. The man most in favro for the position at present is Colonel William Dillon Otter, who was in command of the first Canadian contingent that took part in the Boer war.

GUARD LAKE FISHERIES.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and who if he remains in the cabinet a little longer will be the first Canadian admiral, also is getting busy in accordance with the promise he made some time ago to build the nucleus of a Canadian fleet. He officially announced last week that he had given orders to the Polson firm of shipbuilders in Toronto for a government cruiser which is to be the best equipped and fastest lake cruiser in the world. It will be utilized principally to protect Canadian fisheries and is to surpass greatly the Kestrel in the matter of speed.

The cruiser Kestrel, by the way, has been sent to Port Simpson to guard against the United States poachers who come to Dundas channel to fish for halibut. As the orders received by the commander of the Kestrel are stringent, and as it is reported that some three dozen schooners and steamers owned in Seattle are running out of Katchikan this winter after halibut, there will be some fun if they do not keep at a safe distance from the Kestrel.

FEAR TO LOSE THE ST. LAWRENCE.

Men who have been studying Canada's growing development and the inclination on the part of the United States to get as much territory as possible close to the Dominion's borders, consider that a small fleet of fast cruisers will come in quite handy some of these days. The people insist that Canada's watchword and motto should be "eternal vigilance," and that a little less wailing over lost territory and greater watchfulness would be recommendable. They particularly call attention to the almost absolute necessity of getting Newfoundland to join confederation, not on account of fisheries, and not on account of trade benefits, but on account

GHOST AT MERRITTON

Volunteers Occupy a House to Catch an Apparition

Merritton, Dec. 3.—Merritton and vicinity was thrown into the worst ghost scare in the history of the town the other night. The town has just gotten over the scare of Ernie Trewien's hobgoblin at Lock 15, when Mrs. Waltham awoke and saw a ghost in her room. She roused her husband, who jumped up and lit a candle. He says he beheld what afterwards proved to be the ghost of a Mr. Pierce, who died in the house a year ago. Mr. and Mrs. Waltham hastily dressed and left the house, and spent the night at a neighbor's. The news spread rapidly, and soon a large crowd had collected for the purpose of catching the ghost before it could get away. Mr. Waltham has moved into the Mularky homestead, where he hopes to be immune from any future visitation. A remarkable feature of the affair is that Mr. Waltham never saw Mr. Pierce in his life until the occurrence, and his description of the ghost tallied exactly with the mortal Mr. Pierce. Volunteers are getting ready to occupy the house nightly in order to "have a look" should it again appear.

CABINET FEARS WAR IN THE FAR EAST THE RUSSO-JAPANESE RELATIONS.

War Regarded as Sure

Tokio, December 3—Anxiety deepens as the day for the assembling of the Diet approaches without an answer having been received from Russia as to what it purposes to do with reference to Japan's claims in Manchuria and Corea. Apparently only a conciliatory policy on the part of the St. Petersburg Government can avert a conflict, inasmuch as Japan would scarcely tolerate a ministry which should sacrifice the future of the nation either from a sense of fear or on account of the pressure of the European Governments. Tokio statesmen are representing the crisis in strong terms to the British Foreign Office. This doubtless accounts for the special meetings of the Balfour Cabinet held in London Friday and Saturday last.

MR. FOSTER'S TOUR EMPHATIC SUCCESS

Canada's Representative is Greeted with Enthusiasm at Liverpool

HE MET MR. CHAMBERLAIN

And Sailed for Canada Yesterday on Oceanic, a Chamberlainite Candidate

London, Dec. 3—Hon. George. E. Foster's last English address, delivered at Liverpool last night, was an emphatic success. As the Duke of Sutherland said in his speech at the Foster meeting, "Englishmen recognize that what the Canadians feel regarding tariff reform is of the very greatest importance to Britain. Hence the cordiality of the greeting given to Mr. Foster both at the luncheon and at the subsequent meeting.

A VALUABLE SERVICE.

The Liverpool Courier says, "Such addresses are greatly required. We need to have the colonial view put before us with knowledge and conviction. We have a magnificent ideal to make the Empire a self-maintaining entity. Yesterday's gatherings show that the business men of Liverpool, as well as the workingmen, all determined to strive after this ideal."

TO MEET CHAMBERLAIN

Arrangements have been made for Mr. Foster to meet Mr. Chamberlain to-day prior to Mr. Foster's sailing from Liverpool to-morrow on the Oceanic.

A SUPPORTER OF CHAMBERLAIN

Major Coates, of the firm of Coates, Son. & Co., is fighting the by-election at Lewisham as a hearty supporter of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

A VICIOUS LAD

The Chicago Bandit's Story Confirmed in Part

Winnipeg, December 3 — Diligent enquiry among the Canadian Pacific officials by a press representative fails to secure definite confirmation of the story told by Bandit Meidermeir, of Chicago, that he killed a trainman at Rat Portage in 1896. Chief McRae, of the city; Chief Elliott of the provincial and Chief Guerin, of the C.P.R. secret service, cannot recall such a tragedy. The only information of a definite character was given by George Eccles, who was then in the C.P.R despatcher's office. Eccles says that either in the fall of 1895 or 1896 a man was badly injured somewhere east of the city, and taken to the Winnipeg General Hospital, where he died. This man was one McCritchie, a son of the late Captain McCritchie, of Rat Portage, and was sometimes called "Cap." Enquiries made from Division Superintendent Arundel elicited the fact that there was no record of anyone killed. It was said that a man, after being shot, had fallen under a train, and had been so mangled as to destroy all traces of the shot.

WALKING DELEGATE M'CARTHY

Recorder Goff Decides he Must Stand His Trial

New York, December 3—Recorder Goff announced in the court of general sessions yesterday that he would deny the motion of Tim McCarthy's lawyers to dismiss the extortion indictment on which he is being tried. The motion was made on the ground that the indictment accused him of extorting $300 from Loebel Andrews & Co., last January, whereas assistant district attorney Rand in stating his case had said that the money was paid to Sam Parks in McCarthy's presence. Herman Loebel testified he had given $300 to McCarthy, which was to bring about a settlement of a strike.

JUSTICE AND MERCY

Ottawa. Dec. 1.—The Cabinet, at their meeting yesterday afternoon, decided to allow the law to take its course in the case of Ernest Cashel, sentenced to be hanged on December 15, for the murder in November, 1902, of J. Rylett, a rancher, who lived thirty-eight miles east of Lacombe.

The case of three Chinamen, convicted of the muder of a countryman in British Columbia, was also before the Cabinet. The perplexing question was to determine hwich of the trio committeed the murder. Their sentences will be commuted to life imprisonment.

DEPUTATION CONFERS WITH SIR THOMAS

Ontario People Want the C. P. R. to Build Spur Line

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Movement to Have Railway Lines Constructed Wherever Necessary in District

Montreal, Dec. 2— About twenty-five gentlemen, representing various points in Ontario, between this city and Toronto, held a meeting at the Windsor Hotel this morning, preparatory to visiting Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the President of the C.P.R., with a view to inducing that company to construct a spur line to take in a number of municipalities on the lake front now exclusively served by the G.T.R.

When the meeting was called to order at 11 o'clock, and when the matter had been thoroughly discussed it was determined to effect a permanent organization to secure better railway facilities wherever those might be deemed necessary.

Mayor Floyd, of Cobourg, was elected president, and Mr. A. D. German, of Warkworth, secretary.

For the purposes of the interview with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy this afternoon it was determined to invite the C.P.R. to construct a railway from Springbrook, a point on the Toronto-Montreal main line, near Central Ontario Junction, thence down through Campbellford, Warkworth (which has no railway at present) to Cobourg, and then westerly along the lake front through Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby and Pickering, joining the main line again at a point near Agincourt.

The delegates affect to believe that they will be able to induce Sir Thomas to see in this undertaking a seven per cent. investment.

For a number of years, they assert the G.T.R. has devoted nearly all its attention to the through freight traffic. What they want is more care and greater despatch. As for the passenger business, there are points on the G.T.R. such as Whitby, where it is impossible to get to Montreal at night without driving long distances.

Those present at the meeting were: W. H. Floyd, Mayor of Cobourg; J. E. Diamond, reeve of Campbellford; B. McAllister, Councillor, Whitby; E. R. Blow, Mayor of Whitby; Paul Trefelcock, president Board of Trade, Bowmanville; D. Callan, Warkworth; D. Ewing, Councillor, Cobourg; A. B. German, reeve, Warkworth; H. J. Walker, R. Harston, John W. Douglas, Warkworth; J. H. Diamond, reeve of Seymour township, Campbellford; J. B. Ferris, Campbellford; John G. Mason, Councillor, Bowmanville; E. C. West, clerk, Campbellford, C. H. Caanan, Campbellford, Henry White, Mayor Port Hope; Harold Barrett, chairman Harbour Board, Port Hope, F. W. Foke, Mayor Oshawa.

Mayor Floyd, in conversation with a reporter regarding the object of the visit, said there was a constantly growing dissatisfaction among the merchants of the cities and towns owing to the lack of railway facilities. There was practically no competition and quick despatch of freight was impossible. This state of affairs was ruining the business of the several towns, and the present deputation was for the purpose of seeing whether the C.P.R. would build a loop line that would take in the chief centres and thus come into competition with the Grand Trunk. Mayor Floyd, in instancing the evils that arose through a lack of healthy competition, said that goods could be shipped from Cobourg to Germany and back again to Vancouver, at a cheaper rate than they could be shipped from Cobourg to Vancouver.

In the event of the C.P.R. not seeing their way clear to meet the request of the delegation another meeting will be held to-day with the representatives of some Boston financiers who are anxious to build an electric road to meet the requirements of the towns in question. "We are determined," said Mayor Floyd, "that the present state of things shall not continue and if the C.P.R. will not come to our assistance, we will have to look elsewhere."

Continued Negotiations Between France and Russia

WORRYING THE BRITISH

Japan is Getting Tired of Russia's Silence and Aggression in Manchuria

London, Dec. 2.—Mr. George Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, speaking at Workington last night, said that the Government has still a great deal of work to do, and that it was not true that a general election was impending. This official confirmation that the Government is not meditating a dissolution of Parliament will increase the curiosity as to the reason of the holding of frequent Cabinet Councils.

It is the general belief that the situation in the Far East is causing anxiety, owing to the unexpectedly protracted negotiations between Russia and Japan.

The London Daily Mail says it thinks it most likely that the Cabinet has received an intimation that Japan is aware of Russia's fixed determination not to concede her demands, in which case a struggle between Japan and Russia is within measureable distance.

According to the Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent, Marquis Saionyi, addressing members of the Seiyukai party yesterday, said that the coming session of the Diet, involving the consideration of the problem of the Russo-Japanese relations, would be one of the most momentyous ever held, and that a single false step might precipitate a national calamity.

GOT HIS REVENGE

Boy Murderers Willing to Hang if Squealer is Executed First

Chicago Dec. 1—The youthful self-confessed murderers and train robbers, Pete. Neidermeier, Harvey Van Dine, Gustav Marx, and Emil Roeski, were arraigned in court yesterday. Marx, who made the confession, pleaded guilty, but his three accomplices pleaded not guilty.

"I am willing to hang without the wink of an eye, if I see Marx, the squealer, hang first," said Van Dine.

"The same here," Neidermeier added.

"You fellows got no more than you deserved," Marx said. Then he told how the three had attempted to shoot him, and added, "I got my revenge."

CARNEGIE ON RICHES

New York, December 3—Andrew Carnegie spoke at the St. Andrew's Society banquet. He replied to the toast, "The land o cakes." Mr. Carnegie enumerated some of the things that have made Scotland great, specifying particularly the climate and physical character of the country. It was a land of mist, he said, of mountains and floods. He continued: "These produce the Celtic magic that sets the blood on fire and gives to the Scotch the do or die resolve. Then history and tradition have done their part—struggles for civil and religious liberty that have compelled strenuous life. Another powerful element in the moulding of Scottish character has been the training of the Scotting children who fortunately, with a few exceptions, were born in poverty. I pity the son of a rich man. The child of a millionaire can never know the true meaning of a mother or a father. The children of Scotland do. It is from such conditions and such environment that we obtain a knowledge of Scotland's glories."

GROWTH OF THE WEST

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 3—An announcement was made by the post office authorities today that since the first of the year 119 new post offices have been opened in the Winnipeg district, which includes the district from Rat Portage to the Rockies. This is the largest list on record and is an indication of the rapid developmnet of the West.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room 386 Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

A YEAR OF REST

We are accustomed in this country to look for periods of reaction once in ten years, says the Wall Street Journal. A little closer examination of the statistics will show, however, that they really come after seven years of expansion. For instance, the last great reaction was in 1893. Then followed three years of slow recuperation from the effects of the panic, followed by seven years of unexampled prosperity. Now, after seven years we have again entered, not indeed into panic, but into a period of moderate reaction in trade, after twelve months of severe decline in securities. It might be said, therefore, that these years of reaction are sabbatical years of rest. In many universities the rule is established that every instructor connected with it shall take one year in seven for complete rest and recuperation, the belief being that he can do better work during the other six years, if he has one year of complete freedom from responsibility and daily routine. Applying this idea to the business of the country, it might be said that business requires one year of comparative rest after seven years of intense activity and nervous strain.

When Mr. Chamberlain finished a great speech at Newport by reciting Tennyson's "Britons, hold your own," every man in the audience leaped to his feet, cheered, and waved his arms until exhausted. Never was a conquest more complete, says the news report. No orator could so work upon an audience unless they were prepared to follow him to the last ditch.

A LINDSAY SOCIAL EVENT

THE MARRIAGE RECEPTION OF MRS. W. G. M'CLELLAN

The Event Had Been Postponed on Account of the Serious Illness of Mr. McClellan.

Lindsay Post—On Saturday, November 28th, at 4 p.m., Dr. and Mrs. McAlpine held the marriage reception of their only daughter, Mrs. W. G. McClellan, which happy event had to be postponed on account of the serious illness of Mr. McClellan at the time set for the marriage. Shortly after the appointed hour, the Dr.'s commodious and cheerful home was thronged with wedding guests, and it is needless to say that none came without the wedding garment.

THE DECORATIONS.

As one entered the spacious hall, a very brilliant picture was presented. Lights in profusion were made more glowing by masses of rich, red berries, entwined with smilax and other trailing foliage, while palms, ferns and potted plants filled every nook and corner. In the hall upstairs the same scheme was carried out. The drawing room was a veritable bower of pink chrysanthemums and smilax adorning every available space, and across the handsome mantle, with its polished mirror, festoons of smilax, clusters of the pink chrysanthemums, and pink candles, reflected their beauty all around. In the large front window a giant palm, some five feet high and similar ones of a smaller size formed a fresh green background for the bridal party who took their places before it, and the soft blending of the bridal colors and the foliage made a perfect picture. The four bridesmaids stood on the right of the bride and groom. In the sitting room the decorations were yellow chrysanthemums and smilax, and the brightly burning fire on the hearth mingled its light with that of the softly shaded candelabra, which "shone o'er fair women and brave men."

THE MUSIC ROOM.

was crimsoned with the warmth of red berries and smilax, gracefully drooping from chandelier and mantle. In the dining room, perhaps, we were most fascinated with the table and its adornments. In the centre of the large and hospitable board a charming centerpiece was the background for the bride's cake. This most interesting object was richly carved with those indescribable little figures wrought in purest white icing, and rested on a silver tray, draped with green gauze. Round the entire sides of the table garlands of smilax lay gracefully easy. In large vases were huge white chrysanthemums, and as a compliment to the white bridal cake numerous angel cakes stood sentries around the table. Those beautiful decorations of white and green were everywhere in the dining-room.

After the fair young bride had received the good wishes of her legion guests, she withdrew to the dining-room to give the first thrust of the knife to her cake. Immediately afterwards refreshments were served by a group of prettily gowned girls.

SOME STRIKING GOWNS.

Numbers of beautiful gowns were worn at the reception and among many who wore them were.

First, of course, the sweet young bride, whose wedding gown was pearl white duchesse satin en train, the corsage being an exquisite embodiment of chiffon and finest point lace (the product of a loving mother's fingers); the sleeves were of angel style, and the elbows were of pleated chiffon and fluting, the yoke was also of the same sheer material. The skirt was flounced with pleated chiffon. The bridal boquet was a large sheaf of bridal roses and asparagus ferns, tied with a large bow of white satin ribbon, with extended ends. She wore a crescent of pearls.

The bridesmaids —the Misses Harding, Rankin, Hughes and McClellan—each wore handsome gowns of white point d'esprit over white taffeta, trimmed with true lovers knots of bebe ribbon, and pink sashes were also worn. These dainty costumes were completed by white beaver picture hats, with white ostrich feathers.

Mrs. McAlpine, mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of pale grey voile de paris with cream handmade lace on waist and sleeves, and handsome jewels on corsage and in her hair.

Mrs. Col. Hughes, aunt of the bride, was in champagne voile with cream silk lace stole, and champagne lace and velvet hat to match.

Mrs. Scott (Toronto), also aunt of the bride, pale grey voile with cream lace garniture and grey hat.

Among the ladies present were noticed: Mrs. J. D. Flavelle, Miss Flavelle Misses Amy and Edith Flavelle, Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. Neelands, Mrs. Meagher, Mrs. Dr. Waters, Mrs. Dr. Gillespie, Mrs. Thos. Saddler, Mrs. Marsh Mrs. Dr. Allan, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Miss Armstrong, Miss Fuller (Toronto), Miss May Allen, Miss Ada Sylvester Mrs. A. O'Loughlin, Miss Kennedy, Mrs (Judge) Harding, Mrs. R. A. Wood, (Peterborough) Mrs. (Sheriff) McLennan, Mrs. Alex. Horn, Miss Meers, Mrs. Robert Spier, Mrs. James Grace, (Toronto) Miss Teresa McDonald, Miss Deacon Miss Harstone, Miss Gwen Harstone, Miss Sootheran, Mrs. L. V. O'Connor, Mrs. Dr. Cameron (Woodville), Miss Huston, (Cannington.)

THE GIFTS OF FRIENDS.

The many well wishers of Mr. and Mrs. McClellan were manifestly proven by the more than elegant display of valuable presents, with which the library was filled, and could those silent witnesses tell their tale, they would waft many a loving message to the amiable recipients of them. That everyone was more than pleased at Mr McClellan's providential recovery is needless to state, and that his fair young bride is well worthy of the happy termination which came of it, none of her friends will deny. Our best wish for both is that after a long lapse of years they may be able to say with the poet:—

"Love is indestructible;
Its holy flame forever burneth,
From Heaven it came, to Heaven returneth."

Mr. McClellan, who is manager of the Metropolitan Bank at Wellington, expects to be able to resume his position about the first of December. Bon voyage!

of a thing which most people have overlooked till now, the control of the navigation of the St. Lawrence, which would almost surely be lost if Newfoundland should be acquired by the United States or should even strike up an alliance with them.

It is not generally known that a wide strip of the Labrador coast, extending northwest from the Straits of Belle Isle along the shore of Labrador and Ungava, belongs to Newfoundland. Should Newfoundland join the United States, as would be the natural outcome of the Bond-Blaine treaty, Canada would have lost this strip of coast line also. Therefore, it is claimed that the only thing for Canada to do is to secure closer connection with Newfoundland and to remember that the lost territory through the Alaskan award is only a bagatelle compared to Canadian interests on the Atlantic coast.

ACCEPT THE NEW BOUNDARY.

The Northwest mounted police are being drawn back inland in consequence of the Alaskan decision and the farthest post has been moved from Wells, near the junction of the Chilkat and Klehenl rivers, on the Dalton trail, while the post at Pleasant Camp, at the junction of the Klehenl and Glacier rivers, also will be moved. At the same time an effort will be made to supply the police forces who have established a new post in the Hudson bay country, where they will look after United States whaling poachers, with mail from their friends, by means of an overland journey with dogs.

This Hudson bay outpost, which really is the nucleus of a new Canadian territory, for the commander of the converter cruiser Neptune, which carried the expedition, was appointed governor of Hudson Bay territory, with powers like those of the governor in the Klondike, and of the Northwest territories, is the forerunner of a number of other and similar expeditions.

AMERICANS TO BE KEPT BACK.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is reported to have stated in conversation and without exacting any promise that the matter should be treated as confidential, that he is determined that Canada's interests in every quarter shall be fully protected in the future and that he will not allow any trespassing in the future by United States fishermen, miners, and fortune hunters, either by land or sea, upon the Dominion's domains. A conference between himself and Mr. Sifton, Minister of the Interior, will be held shortly, when plans will be decided upon for the efficient protection of Canada's frontier, and after which the recognition of so called "rights of occupation" by strangers will be abolished.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries is going to boom the herring trade also. There is money in it for Canada, it seems, if the fish is properly cured, but in that particular branch of the herring industry the Canadians seem to be weak. Therefore the minister intends to import a number of Scotch fishermen and fishwives to instruct the Canadian fisherfolk. The catching of young herrings which are tinned and sold as sardines also is to be looked into.

Scientific circles are elated over the fact that the Chinese government has sent to McGill University of Montreal for a man to accept the position of field geologist of the Chinese Imperial Railway and mine administration. The man selected is O. E. Leroy, a lecturer at the university, who is a native of the province of Quebec.

WILL HEAR DIVORCE CASES.

The newly appointed Dominion Senators are going to have an amusing time of it during the next session of parliament, for already there are seven divorce cases listed for it, and it is always understood that there is a great demand for seats at the sessions of the special divorce committee which considers these cases. Six of these are applied for by citizens of the province of Ontario and one comes from the northwest territories.

Last session only two were granted. The total number granted since confederation was 333, and a third of these were granted in Nova Scotia, which has a divorce court of its own.

THE ELECTIONS.

The Times' correspondent has been informed by a gentleman high up, that the elections are sure to take place in February or March.

THE ANAEMIC YOUNG GIRL

Easily Noticed by Her Blanched Cheeks, Bloodless Lips and Dull Eye

Perhaps she is sixteen. Suddenly she seems to lose strength. Her beauty fades because her vitality is steadily decreasing. Dark circles appear under the eyes which become lustreless and dull. Her spirits droop, for no girl can be contented and happy in such condition.

This may be quickly corrected by taking Ferrozone. It supplies what is lacking in the blood, purifies and strengthens it, and keeps it in perfect order. Ferrozone makes plenty of red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy ruddy complexion. It aids the stomach to do all its work, and creates a natural healthy relish for food.

Every organ of the body is benefited by Ferrozone. It rebuilds the entire system, makes new tissue, strengthens weak flabby muscles, makes thin people fat and sick people well.

No case of Anaemia is too chronic for Ferrozone. It may take time, but if persistently used will cure in the end. It will give you a well developed form, clear complexion, pure breath and will restore the bloom to faded cheeks and color to the lips more quickly than any other remedy.

Every woman who desires a vigorous constitution, and the good looks that come with good health, should take Ferrozone after each meal regularly. It is a wonderful tonic for the brain, the nerves and the blood, and acts also as an efficient but harmless regulator of the menstrual flow. In fact for all diseases peculiar to women and growing girls, Ferrozone has no equal as your druggist can tell you.

Three weeks treatment costs 50c., or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere, or sent by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

HOW FREE TRADERS DEFY THE COMPETITION

Protection Raises Prices of the Manufacturers' Raw Material for Production

London, Dec. 1.—Earl Beauchamp, at the Birmingham Liberal Club banquet, said free trade enabled British manufacturers to obtain material at lower prices than protected countries. Despite protected manufactured paper in Canada and the United States, England produced 750,000 tons against 45,000 tons in 1861.

NO RAID, NO WAR.

London, Dec. 1.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was escorted through Newport streets by cheering crowds, and addressed a great meeting in Tredegar Hall last night. He denied the right of the Government to postpone an appeal to the country on the fiscal issue.

Trade was embarrassed, and the public credit impaired. British exports were increasing fast. Total make of pig iron in Britain last year showed an increase of 600,000 tons.

He said that if the Liberals had been in power there would have been no Jameson raid, no war.

ENGLAND'S HOPE.

London, Dec. 1.—Lord Brassey was the chief speaker on colonial reciprocity at the debate of the National Liberal Club last night. He said Britain should be grateful to Canada for the preference, but the tariff and the geographical position of the United States made it nearly impossible to increase British exports to Canada. England's hope lay in the tropical countries.

England had problems like the submerged tenth, but Canada was booming, and shouldn't have all the trade benefits. He didn't think it desirable that Britain should be self-contained. Canada's crops might fail, and in time of war a netral flag was safer. Australia had the same trade policy as Canada.

When he went to Australia Mr. Chamberlain said, "Whatever you see praise ferverdly; if you do not see anything to praise, keep silent."

GUESSERS AT WORK.

London, Dec. 1.—The unusual circumstance of the British Cabinet holding a meeting Friday and another on Saturday aroused conjecture that Great Britain's position as Japan's ally was discussed.

The Daily Mail mentions a report that Prime Minister Balfour has decided to dissolve Parliament, and that a general election will be held in February or March.

MUST FALL OFF.

London, Dec. 1.—Sir H. Colomb said by the evolution of the Empire and colonies must become great nations, and fall off like ripe fruit.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors. Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing these with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber: builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

For the Farmer.

Fresh excrement from animals is not always available fertility and not infrequently is injurious to vegetation with which it comes in contact, but decomposing manure, spread and ploughed under, exerts some influence upon the clods with which it is mixed, and whatever latent fertility it possesses is made more available.

Horse Dealers' Tricks.

"There are tricks in every trade, but I think that men who deal in horseflesh have a few more than those engaged in other occupations," said Samuel Ford, formerly owner of a big stock farm near Louisville, who is at the Plankinton House. "One of the directions in which the grafter in this line turns his attention is to making horses appear younger than they are, and there are scores of methods for accomplishing this purpose. The usual way of telling the age of an equine is to examine its teeth. A horse has a full set when five years old, and this consists of forty teeth. Six months later the nipper, or front teeth, become marked by a natural cavity, and it is the presence or absence of these markings that demonstrates the exact age of the horse. As it gets older the cavities begin to wear away, and it is then that the faker gets busy. In order to reproduce the markings the surface of the teeth is cut with a steel tool, and the requisite black lining of the groove burned in with nitrate of silver. In this way the animals that have passed their tenth birthday are palmed off as five-year-olds. If so desired, a three-year-old may be made two years older by chiselling away the side milk teeth, which are naturally present until the fifth year.

"It is not in that line alone, howevr, that the fakir operates," continued Mr. Ford, "for there are other things which call the attention of a close observer to the advanced age of a horse. One of these is a hollow which invariably appears on the forehead directly over the eyes. If a sale is in prospect the cunning agent introduces a fine pointed blowpipe through the skin; and blows gently through this until the skin is perfectly level. Skill is also required to conceal the fact that a horse is brokenwinded, and drugs and chemicals of various kinds are used in doing this. Another graft is to conceal the fact that a horse is lame. This is often done by inserting something in the shoe so as to make the other hind, or fore foot, as the case may be, lame also, and while this gives the horse a peculiar gait, it makes the feet work alike."—From The Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pig-feeding Experiments.

In a recent bulletin issued by the Massachusetts Experiment Station, the best results were obtained with Indian meal and separated milk when mixed in the following proportions: Pigs weighing from 20 to 80 pounds, two ounces of Indian meal to each quart of skim milk; pigs weighing 80 to 125 pounds, four ounces of Indian meal to each quart of skim milk; pigs from 125 to 190 pounds, six ounces Indian meal to each quart of skim milk. In these experiments it was not found profitable to feed beyond the weight of 180 or 190 pounds. The daily food consumed after these weights were reached cost more than the increased value of the pork. From experiments recently carried out in Germany, it was shown that profit in feeding ceases when the animal attains two hundred pounds in weight. It has been ascertained that 2 per cent. of the live weight in food must be taken each day to support live weight. If the animal weighs three hundred pounds, this amounts to six pounds of food for that purpose daily, or over 40 pounds per week, from which no profit is derived. In another experiment the pigs were taken at ages ranging from five to eight weeks. During the first hundred days of the experiment not far from two pounds of digestible food produced one pound of growth, while during the last fifty days the ratio was four pounds digestible food to one pound of growth. Every pound of pork made during the last fifty days cost double that made in the first hundred days. These experiments indicate that it is not advisable to keep pigs until they grow into large weights.

Toulouse Geese.

I was once much prejudiced against geese, but after having some years of experience with Toulouse geese I find no fault with them. They are gentle, not liable to disease, light eaters and long livers. I am surprised at the small quantity of food required to keep them. Grass and green stuffs are their principal food during the summer. In cold, snowy weather I feed them cut fodder and clover, with a little corn at night. A shed open to the south, with a little straw thrown in occasionally, is given them. They occupy it at night and on cold days. I also succeeded in coaxing them to lie in it. In open weather they take care of themselves. They are by nature fond of water, but I find it is not necessary to have a pond or stream for them. The young goslings should have water in shallow vessels. They will not thrive if they get their backs wet in any manner until they are feathered.

Geese should be picked only when the feathers are ripe. If not picked when ripe they shed them and pick them out themselves. Picking geese too often is cruel, and any one doing so ought to be bound hand and foot and the hair jerked out. Picking geese in winter is unnatural, and any one doing so ought to be forced to spend a night out of doors in a half nude condition. I use their eggs for setting, and do not pick them during the laying season. A pair of these geese will yield enough feathers to pay for their feed, and we have the geese and eggs left. There is always a demand for feathers. Roast goose for the holidays is almost equal to turkey in popularity. How can a farmer with plenty of range excuse himself from keeping a choice flock of geese?—W. A. Crosby, in Poultry Farmer.

An Artistic Episode.

("Incapacity for work has come to be accepted as the hall-mark of genius. . . . The collector wants only the thing that is rare, and therefore the artist must make his work as rare as he can."—"Daily Chronicle.")

Josephine found me stretched full length in a hammock in the garden.

"Why aren't you at work?" she asked; "not feeling seedy, I hope?"

"Never better," said I. "But I've been making myself too cheap."

"We couldn't possibly help going to the Joneses last night, dear."

"Tush," said I. "I mean there is too much of me."

"I don't quite understand," she said; "but there certainly will be if you spend your mornings lolling in that hammock."

The distortive wantonness of this remark left me cold.

"I have made up my mind," I continued, quite seriously, "to do no more work for a considerable time."

"But, my dear boy, just think——"

"I am going to make myself scarce," I insisted.

"Geoffrey!" she exclaimed, "I knew you weren't well!"

I released myself.

"Josephine," I said solemnly, "those estimable persons who collect my pictures will think nothing of them if they become too common."

"How do you know there are such persons?" she queried.

"I must decline to answer that question," I replied; "but if there are none it is because my work is not yet sufficiently rare and precious. I propose to work no more—say for six or seven years. By that time my reputation will be made, and there will be the fiercest competition for the smallest canvas I condescend to sign."

She kissed me.

"I came out for the housekeeping money," she remarked simply.

I went into the house to fetch the required sum, and, by some means I cannot explain, got to work again upon the latest potboiler.—"Punch."

"Genius—an infinite capacity for taking pains."—Carlyle.

The Automatic Life.

This life will soon become a thing
  Of cylinders and wheels,
Push buttons, dynamos, and cogs,
  And batteries and reels.
Each day a man will be aroused
  By some unique machine
Which will bring in his clothing, then
  Shave him both quick and clean.

Fond lovers, when they feel inclined
  To softly bill and coo,
Will start a phonograph which asks
"Whose ootsey 'oo is 'oo?"
His pocket phonograph will ask
  If she will be his bride—
Her phonograph will breathe the "Yes"
  Which waits in its inside.

When mother goes to call on friends,
  Or to her club, she won't
Be anxious for the children; she Will start the auto-"Don't"
To going in the nursery
  And hasten on serene,
And knowing that she may rely
  Upon the spank machine.

When father comes in much too late
  He'll stumble on the stair,
And hear a terse "How came you so?"
  Come megaphoning there.
And after while this life will be Without a thing to do—
Some one will make a grand machine
  To press the buttons, too.

Deduction.

Miss Cutting—Then you are an agnostic? Cholly Smallhed—I never said so. Miss Cutting—No; but you said you only believed what you could understand.—"Judge."

"You love my daughter?" said the old man.

"Love her?" he exclaimed, passionately; "why, I could die for her! For one soft glance from those sweet eyes I would hurl myself from yonder cliff and perish, a bleeding, bruised mass, upon the rocks two hundred feet below."

The old man shook his head.

"I'm something of a liar myself," he said, "and one is enough for a small family like mine."—Tit-Bits.

Butter Act of 1903.

Circulars from the Department of Agriculture call attention to the fact that the butter act of 1903 prohibiting the manufacture, importation or sale of oleomargarine, butterine, adulterated butter or process butter, prohibiting the improper marking of butter and a greater percentage of water than 16 per cent., is now in force. The penalties for violations of the act range from ten dollars to four hundred, according to the gravity of the offence.

The department points out the following pressing needs of the Canadian creamery buttermaking industry:—

(1) Better constructed and more sanitary creamery buildings.

(2) Improved refrigerators at the creameries where the temperature can be kept at least below 36 degrees Fahr.

(3) Delivery of the cream in a fresher and sweeter condition where the cream gathering system has been adopted.

(4) Stronger and neater finished packages for export butter.

(5) Heavier and purer vegetable parchment paper for lining packages.

(6) Frequent and regular shipment of butter from the creamery to a cold-storage warehouse where lower temperature can be secured.

(7) Greater precaution in transferring butter from the creamery to the cars to prevent it from becoming unnecessarily heated.

Cream That Will Keep.

I will give our method of making a fancy cream, which will keep for weeks without souring, in a very few words, as the whole secret of our success lies in absolute purity and cleanliness in everything, from beginning to end. It requires much more care to produce clean milk than any other food product, and were the consumers aware of the impurities in the larger part of the dairy products on the market, there would be a small sale for the same. The consumer is much to blame for this condition of things. If the people would demand a better article, and will be willing to pay for the extra cost, there are many dairymen who would be willing to take the pains required to furnish clean milk and cream.

Our first aim is to keep the stables and cows as clean as possible. The cows are brushed and the udders washed before milking. No hay is fed at this time, as the dust in falling will carry into the milk the germs which are found floating in all cow-stables. The bacteria thus introduced will give to the milk the same disagreeable flavor as the filth from the cow. To keep the dust and dirt from the milk we use a pail covered with two thicknesses of cheesecloth, between the folds of which is placed a layer of absorbent cotton. In this way the milk comes to the dairy house nearly free from all impurities. The greatest care is taken to have every utensil in the dairy thoroughly cleansed and scalded every time it is used. No half-way work will answer here. No sour germ can lurk in the can or strainer without affecting the cream. In fact, no odor or germ must be allowed in or around the dairy house.

After separating, the cream is cooled quickly and kept in a tank of ice water until bottled for shipment. You will see from my description of our methods that it is simply keeping the milk absolutely clean, and cooling as soon as possible after milking, that give our cream its fine flavor and keeping qualities. Choice cream and butter cannot be made from filthy milk, and our dairy inspector will have filled an important part of his mission, and rendered to the public a most commendable service when he shall have awakened the dairy farmer to the importance of producing a pure, clean milk.—C. S. Pope, Manchester, Me., in American Cultivator.

Remains of an Ancient City.

Out of the 100 acres composing the site of the buried Roman city at Silchester, Hants, between 80 and 90 have already been excavated, says The Times of Sept. 12. This year's operations have been unusually successful, because they have brought to light the public baths of the city. The whole of the foundations have now been laid bare, the area being nearly 200 feet long and about 100 feet wide, and, although everything down to the floor-line has been destroyed, there still remains enough to show the whole system and its arrangement. The baths are like those discovered at Uriconium, near Shrewsbury, but larger. The courtyard, at the entrance, apodyterium, frigidarium, tepidarium, sudatorium, and caldarium, with the hypocausts and remains of the hot-air flues can all be traced. It is evident that during the hundreds of years that these baths were in use many changes were made in the original design. This is particularly observable in the changes of floor level and in the alterations made in the size and shape of some of the rooms. For instance, in the frigidarium there are remains of a division wall built upon the tiled floor. In this room can be seen the lead pipe through which the water was drained off, while the floor and remains of the walls show the specially durable cement which the Romans generally used for lining receptacles for water or fire. In some places a cement floor is found, in others tile, and in others brick laid in herring-bone fashion. Some excellent specimens of both coarse and fine mosaic work are also visible. At one end of the caldarium was found part of a fallen wall made of brick and flint, showing on the under side the plaster with which all the walls were covered, both within and without. The fragment shows clearly the side of a window, which must have been square-headed. In almost every room are visible the pilae which carried the floors. A number of bone pins, beads, styli, etc., were found, as well as portions of columns of different sizes, parts of a basin which must have been eight feet or so across, and a very good specimen of a Roman altar, unfortunately not inscribed, and a handsome Doric capital. The efforts of the past year have also brought to light a number of sites of small houses. It is hoped that these discoveries will bring more contributions to the excavation fund, which has of late suffered from the deaths of some subscribers and other causes.

Will J. Lampton, the poet, is telling a sweetly poetic story these days, and he insists that it is perfectly true. Once upon a day he was making a driving tour through the country near Harper's Ferry, and stopped at a little wayside inn for refreshment. A sign in the window announced that oysters in all styles were to be had, and Mr. Lampton ordered a fry.

"Don't you want a stew?" asked the man in charge.

"No," said Mr. Lampton, "I want a fry."

"Raw wouldn't do, would it?" queried the man, who seemed to entertain a prejudice against unnecessary exertion.

"No," repeated the poet, "I want a fry."

The man walked over to the stove and sought the frying pan. It was lying on the floor.

"Here!" said the man, "get out of that pan, Jim; the gentleman wants a fry."

YOUR GREY HAIR brought back to its original color, and forever retained.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and fifteen ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Consumption Mastered at Last

Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure

No discovery in medicine has created one quarter of the interest that the Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure has caused. Its severest tests have been made on hopeless cases of Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom have been restored to perfect health. It cuts the phlegm out of the throat and bronchial tubes.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, LaGrippe It cures more quickly than any other medicine in the world.

Constant coughing is like scratching a wound. So long as it is done, the wound will not heal. For coughs, no matter how stubborn, a few doses of Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure will stop the irritation, and a cure is the quick result.

CHRISTMAS CANADIAN MAGAZINE

The coloured cover of special design, some seasonable stories and articles, many excellent drawings and coloured reproductions make the Christmas Canadian Magazine attractive. As a Canadian Souvenir to send abroad it is not equalled by any other Canadian publication. The Symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," by John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Walter C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin adds materially to its value as a souvenir to send to Great Britain. The two coloured plates of a Lake Huron Harbour by Moonlight, and an article on Toronto as a Typical Canadian City add to this value. With the exception of Sarah A. Tooley, who writes of Christmas at Sandringham, and Justin McCarthy, who contributes a story, all the contributors are Canadians. Price 25 cents; all booksellers.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

In the meantime, she would keep a watch over Frank, acquainting herself with his movements, so that, when the hour of his triumph arrived, and he believed himself secure in his new love, she could bring the past before him, and turn his cup of joy to gall.

Wearily she made her way through the snow, scarcely able to drag her feet along, so heavy and aching seemed her limbs.

A cabman, seeing her toiling along—noting her rich garments and her white, haggard face—drew up near the curb, thinking that some accident had urged her out into the chill night.

"Cab lady?" he said, an indescribable compassion in his rough voice.

She looked so frail to be battling with the wind and snow—so weary and woebegone.

Almost mechanically, she turned and stepped into the hansom.

"Where to lady?"

"Anywhere," she answered, hardly conscious that she spoke; then, as her mind became fully awake to her surroundings, she added, calmly: "Drive to some quiet hotel near Regent's Park—the quietest and best you know."

In another moment she was being driven quickly along the white road, and, with a sense of utter loss, she leaned back against the cushions and closed her eyes.

"What is there left for me?" she thought, her eyes so hot that they seemed to burn through her closed lids. "I wish I had died during those days when I had his love—when I believed myself his wife. There would have been one crime less in the world—and in my grave I could have found rest."

CHAPTER XXV.

There was one who was not long in discovering Lady Errol's whereabouts.

Monckton had gone on her track directly he had heard of her absence from Drayton Court, and had encountered no difficulty in tracing her to the hotel near Regent's Park.

"I don't mean to lose sight of her just yet, he thought, after having satisfied himself that she was in London. "There is no knowing how soon she may be wanted."

He was determined to leave no stone unturned that could prove Lady Errol's guilt.

He would see Rosalie righted, even if he had to devote every hour of his life to unravelling the mystery of Sir Felix Errol's murder.

Monckton guessed nothing of the motive that had brought Gretchen up to London.

He knew too little of her past to draw any definite conclusion from her movements, but he was determined to keep a vigilant watch over her—to discover, if possible, her reason for absenting herself from Drayton Court.

What worried him most was that Rosalie should so far act in defiance of his wishes as to appear each night in the circus.

"I never know from one day to another that she may not be killed by those wild beasts," he reflected, piqued that she should still resist his entreaties. "It is a horrible life. I wonder she can find pleasure in exposing herself to such danger."

Could he have seen her while this thought was passing through his mind, he would scarcely have been able to repress his displeasure.

The little lion-tamer was to perform some new feat of courage—something that had never before been attempted, without horrible human sacrifice.

The hour had not yet come for her to make her appearance; but she was ready to run into the arena when the signal should be given.

She was waiting in the dressing-room, listening eagerly to the sounds that came to her from the ring.

Polly, as usual, was trembling with the dread of what might befall her favorite.

"Jim oughtn't to have allowed it," she exclaimed, as her glance rested on the great posters pinned on the walls. "It's tempting fate! Mark my words, if you go much further with this lion-taming business, you'll regret the day those wild beasts came into the circus."

Rose laughed—such a bright, rippling burst of laughter it was, making the dimples play about her crimson mouth.

"It is a good thing my courage is not easily damped," she said, shaking the sunny curls away from her face. "After all, it would be a fearful waste if this beautiful new dress were to be gobbled up at its first appearance."

It was certainly a lovely costume—a cloud of vapoury blue, spangled over with stars; on her feet were silver sandals, on her brow a gleaming crown.

A sound outside the door arrested her attention: a sound familiar to her ears, and yet unfamiliar in this scene.

"Whose voice is that?" she asked, starting up, with pale cheeks and bated breath.

"Good gracious child! how white you've grown!" Polly exclaimed, hurrying out into the passage to see what had caused this alarm. "It is not likely to be anyone but Mr. Monckton."

Somebody pushed past her, and entered the room where Rose, pale and trembling, in all her glistening array, stood.

Marc was before her. Marc—dear, beloved, never-forgotten Marc!

She gave a wild, half-delirious look into his face; then, with a cry of ecstasy, flung herself upon his breast and twined her arms about his neck.

It was all she could do.

She could not speak.

A joy too great for words had rushed up from her soul; she could only cling to him, and sob and laugh, with her lips pressed to the sleeve of his coat, and her hair streaming in golden waves across his breast.

He raised her face and kissed her brow—just such a kiss as he had given her when he had parted from her at Lilac Villa.

"Rosy!" he said, clasping her to him as he looked down into her beautiful eyes. "Rosy!"

The old pet name falling so tenderly from his lips, brought the tears to her eyes.

He kissed the bright drops from the long, dark lashes.

"You have not forgotten me, Rosy," he said. "Dear little one, I am so glad I have found you at last!"

"I could never forget you," she answered, gazing at him with all her soul in her eyes. "I have thought of you and dreamed of you, and—oh, I have longed to see you again!"

"But you do not let me look at you," he said, as she hid her face once more against his breast. "The little bud has blossomed into a full rose—and how dainty and sweet!"

He had put her from him, and was holding her at arm's length.

She had grown more beautiful than ever he, with all his artistic conception, had dreamed.

Her form had gained in height and roundness, without losing any of the flower-like grace which had charmed him in earlier days; the child he had admired and petted had developed into a woman possessed of a loveliness greater than any he had yet gazed upon.

She read the admiration in his eyes and her own sank under his gaze.

With the knowledge of her womanhood, a burning flush had risen to her cheeks, and sudden confusion overwhelmed her at thought of the greeting she had given him.

He understood what had caused the sweet eyes to droop, and he laughed softly as he took her trembling hands again in his clasp.

"Why so shy, Rose?" he said. "If there is truth in all I have heard, we are cousins."

"How do you know?" she asked, her gaze once more lifted to his face.

"Sir Felix Errol was my kinsman," he replied, gently. "Do you object to having me for a cousin?"

"The thought makes me more happy than I can tell you," she murmured. "Are we really cousins?"

"I have no doubt upon the subject. Do you remember the last sketch I made of you? Sir Felix happened to catch sight of it, and I shall never forget the emotion with which he looked upon the picture. I believe that incident led to his discovering your whereabouts."

"Then I owe everything to you," she said, her voice very low. "But for that picture I might never have known I was the daughter of Sir Felix Errol."

ALARM FOR EMPEROR

Vienna, Nov. 30.—The Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung has a telegram from Berlin which arouses anxiety regarding Emperor William. The telegram mentioned says: "Though there can be no doubt that the recent operation on Emperor William concerned a benignant formation, the process of healing has not taken the favorable course hoped for. It seems as though unexpected complications had arisen, which rarely follow a simple operation for so-called 'singer's polypus.' In court circles there is a certain uneasiness."

BRITISH PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED

London, December 2—The fact that two prolonged cabinet councils were held Friday and Saturday gave rise to renewed rumours that a dissolution of Parliament was imminent. An apparently authorized statement is published this morning, however, declaring that at these meetings no question of dissolution was brought up, and that the discussion turned upon foreign affairs, including the situation in the Far East, Macedonia and Thibet.

SKILLED LABOR PLENTIFUL

Stratford, Nov. 30.—"Good men are plentiful now," said Master Mechanic Patterson of the Grand Trunk yesterday, "and we are taking on quite a number of them. I have had as many as ten come to me at one time." This is quite a change from the condition which this as well as all large mechanical institutions labored under during the summer when numbers of workmen of very indifferent merit had to be taken on. In the shops these are being let go and their places filled with first-class mechanics.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 28th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount, is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, located in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$00,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,[illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and [illegible] underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and many rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent. annual dividend on the [illegible] paid [illegible] stock, before any other stock receives any dividend whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the [illegible] and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury Stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York., Dec. 2—London prices for Americans were strong and the foreign houses on this side had fair buying orders there were moderate supporting orders representing interests and the uneasiness of shorts in some instances was a factor. The professional element were inclined to scalp for small profits in some parts of the room and naturally some of the outsiders were disposed to liquidate stock. The railroad news was generally favorable, since the earnings reflected a falling off in the volume of traffic; the money market was figured in a better position and there was a lot of talk to the effect that easier money rates will soon be established throughout the country. The general feeling in the latter part of the day was quite favorably inclined; on the close there was a firm undertone; outside stocks were steady and quiet and bonds were still irregular.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 2—The wheat market was rather irregular Wednesday; there was a fair demand from speculative interests at the lower levels and shorts were credited with buying on a moderate scale, however professional longs sold on the bulges. The export trade was slow. The cash demand was moderate and country offerings fair. The crop news was bearing in the main, and many interests were inclined to hold off, pending more definite news with regard to the acreage. There were moderate clearances and the primary movement marked accumulations. On the close there was some difference of opinion, and indications pointed to continued feverish markets. The corn trade was rather slow but there was fair buying on all little weak spots. The long interests in the market are quite substantial. The statistics generally today were above; as looked for. The cash and export trade was slow. The oats trade today was without special feature. There was a moderate demand at times; the receipts were small and the grading poor. The cash situation was figured to be quite strong.

AMERICANS CAUSE DELAY

United States' Shipbuilders Forestalled on South African Line

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—Complaints are made by Cape Town importers of Canadian products that nearly all the available cold-storage on the Canadian direct line vessels has been given to United States meat packers, and that apples, butter, and cheese ordered from Canada have been shut out. American agents are also boasting that, through Montreal parties they have secured this space for some time to come. This is the most striking feature in the report received at the Trade and Commerce Department today from Mr. J. C. Jardine, commercial agent in South Africa.

The explanation of American success in this respect is that Canadians are so lethargic in their methods that they delay engaging steamship space until the last minute.

WILL NOT OFFEND

London, Dec. 1.—It is announced that the British Government has no present intention of pushing the Younghusband expedition through to Lhassa, the capital of Thibet. The repudiation of designs in Thibetan territory is understood to be the outcome of the discussion of the British Cabinet last week. The Russian press has been loud in its protests against "British aggression" in Thibet, and there is reason to believe that the protest voiced the feeling of the Russian Government.

Curious Bits of News.

"Idle" is not the word to describe Prince Ludwig Ferdinand of Bavaria. He is a general in the German army. By profession he is a surgeon. During the past summer he has been playing first violin in the orchestra of the Munich Opera House. He attended his clinic before going to rehearsals for the Wagner performances. There are more princes usefully occupied than cynics may be willing to admit.

Mr. Edward Palckert of Stratford, Ont., whose forefathers lived in Germany, is the possessor of a Martin Luther Bible which is believed to be the only one on the continent of America. The history of the volume can be traced for nearly 400 years. It was handed down from father to son in the Palckert family until it was brought to Stratford by the father of the present owner. The volume contains a record of the births and deaths in Martin Luther's family.

The Paris police have prepared a picture-book for the use of travelers who lose things which, because of unfamiliarity with the language, they cannot describe. It contains representations of all kinds of articles, from keys to purses, and the enquirer, after missing valuables, has only to turn the leaves and point at the picture that most resembles his property. But the system has its limitations. Unfortunately it cannot picture a temper, which is the article now most frequently lost by visitors to a foreign city who do not know the language of the country.

In Prince Edward Island there is a striking example of that longevity which is characteristic of so many parts of Canada. At Tignish, in that island, live an old couple, Mr. and Mrs. Colo Poirier by name, who have been married over 70 years, and now have 201 descendants. Seven of their children are alive and, with their large families, reside within a few miles of their parents. At present Mr. and Mrs. Poirier are the proud great-great-grandparents of nine young children, and a short time ago the five generations of this family were all gathered together, which must surely constitute a record. To show what a healthy and prolific family this is it may be stated that the eldest son, aged 68, has had 14 children, 51 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

In the pathological laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania an investigation, designed to discover antidotes for all kinds of snake poison, is conducted along lines suggested by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, and the Carnegie Institute has granted an appropriation to assist the work. Many experiments are made with rattlesnakes, cobras and other poisonous reptiles, and the effects of their venom upon animals are studied. The physicians regard alcohol, taken internally, as a valuable stimulant, but not as an antidote. The most valuable remedial agent is the intermittent ligature—a band about the wounded limb, which is loosened for an instant at stated intervals, thus allowing the poison to enter the system in very small quantities. In this manner the patient is enabled gradually to overcome the effects of the poison.

New Orleans is to lose its picturesque French quarter, the scene of almost as many real and literary romances as the Quartier Latin of Paris. The Supreme Court of Louisiana is now lodged in the old Spanish Cabildo, or Town Hall, but a new house is to be built for it and a solid block is being torn out for the site. The Royal Hotel, once the most splendid in the country, where a $20,000 supper was given to Henry Clay; the residence with a quaint Spanish courtyard, once the headquarters of General Jackson; the home of Paul Morphy, the chess player; the office in Exchange alley where Sir Henry M. Stanley worked and borrowed his name—these and thirty-seven other old buildings are going or gone. By a pretty touch of Creole chivalry the Davis mansion is to be spared for a while so that the daughter of one of the old families may be married in the house of her ancestors. New Orleans, about to become a great city, thus throws aside its French and Spanish customs to deal in grain and lumber as well as cotton.

CHARGE OF HERESY

Professor of Boston on Trial Before the Court

Boston, Mass., Dec. 1.—Papers have been served upon Prof. Borden B. Bowne of the Boston University, calling him to trial before the Ecclesiastical Court of the Methodist Episcopal Church to answer to the general charge of heresy.

Rev. George A. Cooke, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, West Medford, and a member of the New England Conference, is the formal accuser of Prof. Bowne, and the specifications five in number, are based upon the general allegation that the professor has disseminated "doctrines which are contrary to the articles of religion or established standards of doctrines in the Methodist Episcopal Church."

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H. N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate. They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high; as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders. That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

No Verdict Reached

The adjourned meeting of the court appointed to enquire into the death of John Donnelly was continued last night in the Council Chamber. Much important evidence was taken and an adjournment made till this evening at 7.30, when the verdict will be rendered.

A Probable Strike

Word from Toronto indicates that a strike is probable by the telegraphers on the Grand Trunk. The Times enquired yesterday from a railway official as to the effect if the telegraphers went out, and were told that there would be some delay, the trains would be kept moving. On the main line the block system would be used.

Writ Against Hon. Geo. A. Cox.

Mary H. Boyd has issued a writ against the Cycle and Motor Company, and the former directors and original promoters of the company, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Hon. L. M Jones, E. E. Ryckman, E. R. Thomas, R. Y. Soper and E. Gould. The plaintiff is complaining of the original promotion of the company, and asks an accounting by these promoters. The same question has been threshed out in a former suit.

An Eye Witness

One of our prominent citizens, while in Brantford last week, saw the demonstrations in connection with the lecture on Liquid Air and Wireless Telegraphy, which will be given this evening, and was loud in his praises. He would not miss seeing it again and advises all who are at all interested to attend Thursday night's lecture. After delivering one lecture in Hamilton, Prof. W. B. Patty was brought back twice as the interest in the subject was so general.

Last Night's Concert

The concert last night, given under the auspices of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild, was a great success. The singing of Miss Tina Crawford did not disappoint those who expected something away beyond the average. Mr. Donald McGregor, the baritone, rendered his number in a pleasing manner, while Miss Irving, the clever elocutionist, simply delighted the large audience. Not the least of the attractions was the orchestra of twenty pieces, under the direction of Mr. Glidden. The Guild is to be congratulated on the success of its efforts.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Edgar H. Crockford Sent Up for Threatening to Shoot

At the police court yesterday morning Edgar H. Crockford, who was arrested in Toronto a short time ago and brought to town, was charged before Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, with writing a letter to Mrs. Rev. W. T. Lorymer of Sawyerville, Quebec, in which he threatened to shoot her husband, Rev. Wm. Tindal Lorymer, pastor of the Baptist church at that place.

After hearing the evidence the magistrate committed the prisoner for trial.

DEATH OF MR. THOS. BLEZARD

News of His Death Received Here Last Night

The news of the death of Mr. Thomas Blezard, late member of the Ontario Legislature for East Peterborough, will come with a shock to our readers. Mr. Blezard had been in poor health for some time, but no serious results were looked for.

The late Mr. Blezard was 65 years of age and was a staunch Liberal. He sat nine years in the Township Council and five in the County Council and was first returned to the Legislative Assembly in the general elections of 1879. Mr. Blezard was Master of Keene Lodge A.F. and A. M. He was known during the last Parliament of Ontario as the "Father of the Legislature," having been a member continuously for nearly 25 years.

"CLEANING HOUSE

A Change of Food Cleans the Soul's House

When the body is clogged up by the use of improper food and sickness gets in there is nothing so good as a "house cleaning" and the right way to do this is to change the food, for although medicines may afford temporary relief a complete change of food is much the surest and safest way.

The highest medical authority in the world, "The Lancet" of London, says of Grape-Nuts, "our analysis shows it is a nutritive of a high order since it contains the constituents of a complete food in very satisfactory and rich proportion and in an easily assimilable state." "About two years ago," says a resident of Springville, Ind., "I had terrible stomach trouble, and although tried all kinds of medicines none of them cured me. I was so run down I could not eat, got very little sleep, and was dizzy-headed and miserable all of the time. About that time a friend told me that the only way to cure my trouble was to change my food and recommended Grape-Nuts.

"From my very first meal of Grape-Nuts my stomach began to get better and all the improvements that come from a healthy stomach in place of an unhealthy one soon followed, and this was not all, for just as great an improvement came in my brain. All of the dizziness is gone and my brain is now clear and active. I can eat anything I want, sleep well and am altogether a new man mentally and physically.

"At the time I commenced to use this food I was nothing but a skeleton, weighing 120 pounds but now I have got back my normal weight of nearly 200." Name given by Postum Co, Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

TO SAVE THE WATER

OTONABEE POWER USERS ARE ANXIOUS ABOUT TRENT CANAL

Want Government to Raise Dams for Retaining Spring Floods—Premier Asks Time to Consider.

On Tuesday a deputation from Peterborough, Bobcaygeon and Lakefield, representing the Trent Valley Conservation Association, waited upon Premier Ross to enlist the aid of the Government in conserving the waters in the back lakes of the Haliburton districts. The deputation consisted of J. M. Kilbourn, of the Lakefield Portland Cement Company who owns one dam and rents another from the Government; W. T. C. Boyd of the Trent Valley Navigation Company, and a lumber mill owner; A. A. Stevenson, manager of the Peterborough Electric Company, and an official of the American Cereal Company, owners of the dam at Peterborough; J. C. Schook, manager of the Dickson Lumber Company.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, of Peterborough, represented the Port Hope Canal Association and the citizens of Port Hope. He presented a memorial opposing the request, stating that it was unnecessary, and urging that the entrance of the canal to Lake Ontario be completed before any other works north of Peterborough be undertaken. Mr. Thomas Walters, engineer of the Public Works Department, was also present.

The deputation represented that each spring there was enormous floods from these lakes, and that by raising the existing dams the overflow could be prevented and the water retained for use in the summer and fall both for navigation and power. They represented they said, many vessel owners plying on the Trent Canal, and about forty-five vessels, including those engaged in the tourist traffic on the Kawartha Lakes.

The subject was discussed by the deputation and Premier Ross, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Hon. E. J. Davis, who were present. No definite estimate of the cost, or of the possible damages, was presented, but the amount generally spoken of as necessary outlay was about $100,000.

Premier Ross said that in view of the extent of the undertaking and the varying interests involved they would have to give it a careful consideration. He would like to have the Dominion Government take it up first. He would, however, take counsel with his colleagues before taking any steps in the matter.

Opera House Stage Refitted

Mr. W. H. Bradburn has made all arrangements to furnish a good season's programme to lovers of the histrionic and operatic arts. Although in order to comply with certain conditions imposed by the underwriters, the customary scenery has been removed, Mr. Robert Bradburn has fitted up the stage with a portable box scene, which not only presents a pretty and pleasing effect, but will answer the purpose of any company billing in Peterborough. This box scene is substantially made of wood, is roomy and covered by a hood, and finished with refreshing and tasty decorating. This work originated with, and was executed under the direction of Mr. Robert Bradburn, who is to be congratulated upon overcoming what appeared at one time to be an insurmountable difficulty in the way of dramatic presentation in town this season.

We are given to understand that good billing is in sight, and that plenty of entertainment will be forthcoming at Bradburn's Opera House during the season of 1903-4.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Christmas shoppers are getting busy.

—Ashburnham Council met last night. Report to-morrow.

—The new stage fixtures in the Opera House are now about completed.

—Owing to lack of space, the report of the inquest is being held over till to-morrow.

—The Albany Club are enlarging their premises in the Opera House by taking in additional rooms. These are being handsomely fitted up.

—The regular meeting of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. F., will be held on Friday night. The nomination of officers will take place.

—At a public meeting of the subscribers and benefactors of the Toronto General Hospital Mr. J. W. Flavelle was re-elected their trustee for the year 1904.

—The Conservative Association of East Peterborough will hold their annual meeting in Norwood to-day. A mass meeting is also to be held for the purpose of nominating a candidate.

—At the Barnardo Home on Wednesday night the death occurred of Ada Anna Pearch, who died at the age of fourteen years. Her demise was caused by heart failure. The funeral will take place from the home this afternoon at two o'clock.

—An exchange prints the following: "William Bird and cousin, Amos Bird, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. John Bird, having come here to attend the wedding of Miss Flossie Bird to Mr. Lyman Parrot of Sparrow's Point." The ceremony was undoubtedly enlivened by that good old song, "Come, Birdie; Come and Fly With Me."

SOCIAL AND PERSONA

—Mr. R. J. Winch has gone to Montreal for a few day's visit.

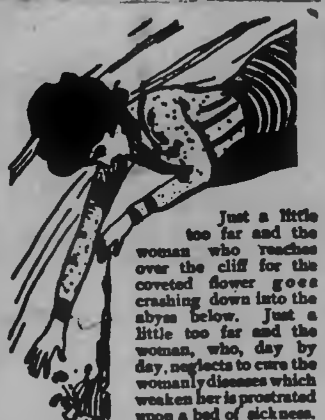
—Mr. J. H. McClellan left for Toronto last night on a business trip.

Mrs. D. P. Hamilton, of Smith's Falls, is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Douglas, George street.

—Mr. Ward Graham and Miss Minnie Graham were in Keene on Sunday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. Rochie.

—Mr. Jack Minchin of Dundas, Ont., a Hart's River hero, who was with Bruce Carruthers in the famous fight and received special mention, was in town to-day, the guest of Mr. Reg. Turner and Mr. Percy Price, oldcomrades.

—The Times had a pleasant call from Mr. A. Bretz, of Toronto, the popular Superintendent of the London Life Insurance Company. Mr. Bretz, accompanied by Mr. George Lee, the local district manager of the industrial branch, left yesterday for Lindsay.



Just a little too far and the woman who reaches over the cliff for the coveted flower goes crashing down into the abyss below. Just a little too far and the woman, who, day by day, neglects to cure the womanly diseases which weaken her is prostrated upon a bed of sickness. No woman should trifle with the disease peculiar to her sex. Neglect to-day means a worse condition to-morrow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a safe and reliable remedy for the cure of diseases peculiarly womanly. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"My wife, Mrs. Mary Estes, has been taking your medicine and received great benefit from it," writes Mr. Geo. Wm. Estes, of Springgrove, Va. "Was troubled with female weakness, heavy, bearing-down pains, severe pain in back and head, and a tired, worn-out feeling all the time. Tried all the remedies we could hear of, but they did no good. Finally we wrote to you and my wife commenced taking 'Favorite Prescription.' Took ten bottles, and is in better health than before in a long time. We shall always recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all who are thus afflicted."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

G.T.R. DEPOSIT HAS NOT BEEN MADE IN LONDON

A Modification of the Whole Scheme May Be Made by the Board

A VERY STRINGENT MONEY SITUATION EXISTS

Will the Delay Void the Agreement? This is a Point Now to Consider

London, December 4—The Grand Trunk officials here refuse to say anything dealing with the reported failure of the Grand Trunk Pacific to put up their $5,000,000 guarantee with the Canadian Government. They explain such a report as arising from the fact that Mr. Hays is on his way to London.

Enquiring elsewhere the correspondent learns that it is an undoubted fact that the five million dollar deposit has not been made. The cabled statement from Ottawa last week that it had been made is incorrect.

Indeed, the Grand Trunk financiers have been endeavoring to raise money here upon security, but without any known success. The difficulty was in finding and procuring acceptable security. This difficulty has been increased by the present state of the stock market.

Mr. Hays' visit is accepted as pointing to the intention of the Grand Trunk Board to reconsider and, if necessary, to modify the whole Grand Trunk Pacific programme. There are also signs pointing in the same direction with respect to reported developments in the situation as between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern and the Great Northern Railways. If the Government undertook to accept any substantial part of these systems in the place of the new trunk line; and if the latter acquired the same the Grand Trunk monetary position would be obviously relieved.

CLAUSE REGARDING DEPOSIT

"... The company shall within thirty days after the passing of the Act confirming this agreement, and of the Act incorporating the company hereinafter referred to, deposit with the Government five million dollars in cash or approved Government securities, or partly in cash and partly in such approved securities, at the company's option, as security for the construction of the Western division and for the first equipment of the whole line of railway as provided for in the agreement. The Government shall pay interest at the rate of 3 per centum per annum on any cash so deposited, and shall, from time to time, as received, pay over to the company, any interest received by it on the securities so deposited, unless and until the said deposit shall become forfeited to the Government, or returned to the company in the manner hereinafter provided.

KIEFF UNIVERSITY CLOSED

Kieff, Russia, December 4—The University here has been closed until January 3, in consequence of the renewal of disorders on the part of the students.

A FATAL COLLISION

Chicago, December 4— In a collision between two northbound trains on the South Side elevated railway today, Harry Cottell, a motorman, was fatally hurt, and several of the passengers seriously injured. The fog and frost on the rails were responsible for the accident.

ANOTHER BIG STRIKE

Pittsburg, Pa., December 4—Business Agent Williams, of division No. 85, of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car and Electric Employes of America, has announced officially that a strike of street car men employed by the Pittsburg Railway Company would be ordered Friday. The meeting to be held on Thursday evening, he said, would be a mere matter of form, as the men have already decided to strike if their demands are not conceded.

TO PREVENT SMUGGLING

Ottawa, December 4—A conference is in progress here between the Commissioner of Customs and Baggage Masters of railway lines whose tracks extend into the United States, with the object of deciding upon better regulations for the examination of baggage brought to Canada from the United States, so as to prevent smuggling. The customs department's proposition is that all baggage from the United States which has not been examined in advance by a Canadian officer shall be looked over at the station nearest the boundary.

STRIKE OF KINGSTON DOCTORS

Kingston, Ont., December 4— The General Hospital house surgeons who objected to continue in service without a medical superintendent, have agreed to remain until the Board of Governors can hold a special meeting this week to discuss the situation.

SUPERVISE LIGHT SERVICE

Ottawa, December 4 —An important change in the supervision of the light service between the head of lake navigation and the Gulf of St Lawrence has just been made in the appointment of Mr. J. A. Fraser to the position of superintendent. His appointment removes the responsibility for the maintenance of the light service from the chief engineer.

NO DIFFICULTY COMING

Difficulty Over Emigration to Africa Merely Financial

London, December 4—The Rand Mining magnates say Chinese emigration difficulty as explained in the special cable on Monday will be removed by palm oil. The Chinese ministers, viceroys, taotais, mandarins and compradores must each have their squeeze. No diplomatic difficulty affecting Canada is anticipated.

VENEZUELA DEFENDS BRITAIN

West Indies Squadron to Protest Against Closing the Orinoco

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 4— The British Indies squadron is under orders to sail from here for La Guayra, Venezuela, for the purpose, it is said by British officials, of backing up a protest against the closing by order of President Castro, of the Orinoco to foreign trade. The British Minister at Caracas is said to have made representations on the subject without effect, and a naval demonstration was decided upon.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC DEPOSIT

Grave Constitutional Question Raised at Ottawa

Ottawa, December 4—There is another meeting of the council this afternoon chiefly for routine matters. An important announcement is expected within the next day or two regarding the Grand Trunk Pacific deposit interest in which continues without abatement. The question is being raised here in political circles, as to the constitutional power of the Government to receive the deposit after the date fixed in the contract and ratified by parliament.

USED LADY ROUGHLY

Prescott Authorities Looking for Young Man Who Abused His Girl

Prescott, Ont., December 4 — Indignation runs high in Prescott over the vicious and brutal assault upon Miss Minnie Cosgrave by Hugh Hiscock, a man with whom she had been keeping company for some years past, and should the authorities succeed in apprehending him he is likely to meet with prompt punishment. Hiscox was traced as far as Kingston, and a detective is still after him.

An old friend of Miss Cosgrove's returned from the West and called upon her. After he had gone she went to a near-by well for water. Hiscox followed her, and during a quarrel he struck and kicked her, breaking her jaw and three ribs. Hiscock was secretary of the Prescott band and was well known.

Miss Cosgrove is a popular Prescott girl.

CANADA AND RUSSIA

Russian View of the Canadian Immigration Policy

St. Petersburg, December 4— Hostility on the part of the United States is assigned by the Canadian emigration agents on the continent, as the reason why Canada intends to embark on a scheme for specially stimulating emigration from Northern France and Great Britain. James A. Smart, Deputy Minister of the Interior, is coming to Europe to start the movement. The theory appears to be that French and British citizens are readily assimilated by their respective nationalities in Canada and augment the elements opposed to all thought of union with the United States and prepared to make a firm stand against Americanization in all forms. It is stated that while German emigrants are highly valued they cannot be relied on steadily and permanently to reject the view that Canada's best interests would be conserved by annexation to its big neighbor. It seems to be feared that under conceivable circumstances, German-Canadians might be powerfully attracted by the magnet of their numerous kinsmen across the border. German observers say that Canada just now is actuated by a vague and apparently unfounded feeling that America is plotting against the independence of the Dominion.

NO STRIKE PROBABLE

Telegraph Operators on G. T. R. Will Not Strike

The Times learns that there is little probability of a strike by the Grand Trunk telegraph operators. It is true that the Executive committee of the Order of Telegraphers has been in session in Toronto for some days, but there has not been any kind of a strike, a Times correspondent is assured. Mr. E. E. Bartlett, of Ormstown, Que., one of the members of the committee, said that the committee had forwarded to the company several requests for the betterment of the condition of the telegraphers, but that these requests were not in the form, nor with the intent of an ultimatum. The committee had not yet received any answer from the company, nor did they expect one for some time, as Mr. McGuigan was now in Chicago. The matter would not likely be considered until Mr. McGuigan returned to Montreal. The committee is composed of the following gentlemen: W. Fasken, Port Dover; E. E. Bartlett, Ormstown, Que; G. Harper, Bright, Ont., F. W. Dowell, Brooklin, Ont.; and G. W. McKay, Windsor, Ont.

Railways Advance Rate

An advance in rates on grain and grain products was put into effect by the Canadian railroads yesterday, and will affect shipments from all points in Ontario to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Portland, as well as Maratime Province points. The increase includes grain both for export and for local shipment. The increase is based upon the rates from Chicago to New York. The rates there were 15 1-2 and 17 1-2 cents per 100 pounds, local and export respectively. They are now 17 1-2 to 18 export and 20 cents local. The advance from Ontario is generally 1 1-2 to 2 cents per 100 pounds. The rates to Maritime Province points are exclusive of insurance while the grain is in terminal elevators. The insurance schedule put in by the railways is as follows. 1 to 60 days, 1-8c per bushel; 61 to 90 days, 3-16c per bushel; 91 to 120 days, 1-4c per bushel. For each succeeding 30 days or part thereof the charge will be 1-16 per bushel.

REACH AGREEMENT WITH G.P.R. COMPANY

The Engineers and Firemen Have Now Come to Terms

INCREASED PAY GRANTED

Most of Committee's Time Taken Up in Revising Rules

Montreal, Dec. 4—At long last the difficulty between the Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive engineers and firemen and the company has been settled on terms, which it is learned, are mutually satisfactory.

"An agreement has been reached that I think will prove satisfactory to both parties," was all that General Manager McNicholl would say when seen yesterday.

Mr. Ash Kennedy, the chairman of the men's committee, was not so reticent. A general increase had, he said, been granted by the company to every class of mechanic in the lines interested, though the increase did not prove as great as the committee had expected when it first reached the city.

Though pressed to do so, Mr. Kennedy refused to permit the publication of the schedule for the present.

The agreement reached in this respect is not for any fixed period, and may be terminated after thirty days notice. That length of time must however, expire before any question can be reopened.

The committee has been in the city now for close on two months, and most of its members leave for their homes this evening. The balance will go to-morrow morning. Mr. Kennedy himself contemplates going east before returning to Winnipeg.

Most of the time of the committee was, of course, taken up in considering a new series of rules to govern the entire system, and these will supersede the regulations which were formerly peculiar to each separate division.

Mr. Kennedy says that there have been few changes of importance, the whole effort being to make the rules general in their application. They refer in the main to the duties of the employes and to the hours of labour. The maximum day is ten hours.

KAISER CALLS A SPECIALIST

Paris, Dec. 4—A report is current here that Dr. Albert Robin, the distinguished French specialist, has been called to Potsdam for consultation with the physicians in attendance upon Emperor William.

JURY'S VERDICT

G. T. Railway Should Provide Proper Equipment

The jury appointed to enquire into the death of John Donnelly met in the Council Chamber last night, and after an hour's deliberation rendered the following verdict:

Your jurymen sworn to enquire into the death of Jno. Donnelly, signalman for the G.T.R. system, find that said John Donnelly came to his death as the result of injuries sustained by coming in contact with a horse and cutter while attending to his duties in as far as equipment supplied him would permit, the driver of said horse and cutter considering himself justified in crossing owing to the usual caution not being displayed, meaning neglect of said railroad to furnish sufficient equipment to operate gates also recommend rules to be placed in signalman's house governing the operations of the gates and supply a reserve of red lantern globes at the signal house.

FRAUDS IN HIGH PLACES

Grand Jury at Honolulu Recommends Prosecution of Offenders

Honolulu, Dec. 4—The Federal grand jury which was charged by the late Judge Estee reported today to his successor, Judge Dole. The report accuses the late legislature of systematic and monumental "grafting" recklessness in the granting of warrants for work never done and for excessive overcharges, 150,000 having thus been spent altogether. The house vouchers, says the report, presents an astonishing spectacle. The grand jury recommends that prosecutions be made in the territorial courts, as it believes the federal courts are without jurisdiction.

LAURIER WANTS MEDAL

Ottawa, December 4—Application is to be made for a Fenian raid medal for the Prime Minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. When a youth Sir Wilfrid Laurier belonged to the Arthabaskaville Volunteers, and turned out for active service in 1866.

The Lowest in Many Years

Wells are getting low by the long continued dry period, and fears are entertained of an approach to a water famine in the near future, unless there comes a number of heavy rains. The water in the back lakes is from five to eight feet lower than usual, and there is a corresponding fall in all the rivers, creeks and streams. If there is not a heavy rainfall to replenish the swamps and water courses, lumbering operations during the winter and spring will be very much retarded. The water everywhere in the back country is lower than it has been for many years.

BRITISH TRADE IS WON BY FREEDOM

Lead Over U.S. and Germany Not Due to Protection

Protection will Establish the Corruption of Protectionist Countries

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. Haldane, M.P., speaking at Hull yesterday, said that free trade was the great factor in Great Britain's lead over the United States and Germany. Mr. Chamberlain has been forced, in his latest revised edition of his speeches, to strike out the proposal he made to the colonies that they should give up the manufacturing competition with us. The colonies are not taking the initiative on this question.

BRITISH TAMMANY HALL.

London, Dec. 3.—Lord Coleridge, speaking at Wellingborough yesterday, said the introduction of protection would be the establishment of Tammany Hall in Britain.

ORIGIN OF SUPPORT.

London, Dec. 3.—The chairman of an agricultural society in Western Canada has written to the Cobden Club that Canadian support of Mr. Chamberlain comes from the eastern manufacturers.

Show Hatred of Russia

Rome, Dec. 3 —A marble tablet to Felice Orsini was unveiled at Omala today in remembrance of Orsini's struggles against Austria which government condemned him to death. The unveiling gave an opportunity for fresh anti-Austrian manifestations. The demonstrations against Austria continue throughout the peninsula.

POWERS ANGRY AT BRITAIN'S GROWTH

French Fear the Expedition Against Thibet will Add 599,000,000 Souls to Empire

London, Dec. 3.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says that two of the most widely-read Russophil organs of the French press, commenting upon the British expedition to Thibet, assume that the real object is to pave the way to a British protectorate. One paper says that by a protectorate over the high plateaus of Thibet King Edward would secure control of the religious influence of the Grand Lama over 300,000,000 Buddhists.

A second Russophil journal says Britain has had designs upon Thibet for half a century. Lhassa is the inviolate and venerated sanctity of Buddhism, and exercises veritable supremacy from the Ganges to the Amur. Whoever becomes its master will soon find his authority recognized by the fanatical and warlike millions who inhabit the high plateaus which were the home of the earliest conquering races of the earth. Russia has maintained commercial and friendly relations with Thibet, and the Russians are naturally uneasy at the bold move of their rivals.

THE REAL CAUSE.

London, Dec. 3.—Prof. Hewins, speaking at the Great Northern Railway annual dinner, said the fall of freights between Britain and the world was one of the chief causes of the fall in the prices of wheat and other agricultural product.

NATIONS OF THE WORLD WILL FIGHT ANARCHY

Object is to Guard All Rulers From the Deat Blow of the Assassin

Paris, Dec. 3—Heads of states throughout the world have formed a mutual protection association against anarchists and assassins. A system of international exchange of detectives has been inaugurated. English, French, German and Italian detectives soon will be among those who protect from lunatics and anarchists the life of the president of the United States and American detectives will guard European monarchs.

The first active step in this direction has been taken. Detective S. R. Ireland, who was one of the secret service men surrounding President McKinley at Buffalo, in September, 1901, when Czolgosz, the assassin, fired the fatal shot, is about to be attached to the corps of detectives detailed to protect President Loubet on his return visit to the King of Italy.

MAKES FRENCH DETECTIVES ANGRY

The official request for Ireland's services angered the secret police of France, who sneeringly declare that inasmuch as Ireland did not protect President McKinley's assassination he is not capable of guarding anyone. But the important fact is that Mr. Poulet, assistant director of President Loubet's household, acknowledges that Ireland has been engaged to accompany President Loubet to Italy because of Ireland's knowledge of American-Italian anarchists.

To smooth the ruffled plumage of the French secret police M. Poulet adds that Secret Service Agent Ireland has not yet positively accepted the engagement to accompany President Loubet to Italy, and further, that this is not the first time a foreign detective has been secured to protect the person of a French president.

NOT NOW FEDERAL EMPLOYE

Washington, Dec. 3—It is said here that Detective Ireland, who is reported to have been engaged by President Loubet to guard him against American-Italian anarchists on his Italian journey, is not connected now with the secret service of the United States. He has been out of that service for more than a year, and passed last winter in this city collecting information for New York stock brokers. He has not been here this autumn. It is denied that he is on leave of absence.

ROOSEVELT'S GUARD.

New York, Dec. 3—News from Paris of an international alliance against anarchists is believed to account for the extraordinary precautions taken to guard President Roosevelt when he attended James K. Gracie's funeral in this city last Friday. Hundreds of policemen, scores of detectives and a dozen secret service men were so employed. In explanation Police Commissioner Greene, who personally attended the President, said: "I am at liberty to say only that Secretary Loeb's letter of notification of the President's visit I was requested to exercise unusual precautions on this occasion."

WANTS CANADA TO BUILD MONITORS

Glasgow Herald Has Roseate Hopes of the Scope of Sir Wilfrid's New Bill

London, Dec. 3.—The Glasgow Herald, refering to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's bill creating a Canadian navy, says: "We prefer this alternative to subsidizing the North American squadron." The paper hopes the fleet will be composed on monitors for defence purely, but which, in the event of Imperial wars, will be ready for service anywhere.

The Herald refers to the bill for naval training stations, introduced last session but not pressed, and the recent announcement that a new fisheries cruiser, the first of Canada's "fleet," would be the finest vessel of its kind that could be built.

CHAMBERLAIN'S FALLACIES.

London, Dec. 3.—The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress has issued a manifesto, headed "Chamberlain's Modern Fallacies with Regard to Workingman and Protection."

BOUND TO TALK.

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. W. A. Lang, M.P., speaking to the Metropolitan division of the National Union of Conservative Association yesterday, said a statesman holding Mr. Chamberlain's views was bound to put them before the country when he found the colonies were ready to meet us half-way to make the Empire a sustaining whole, which ought to have been done many generations ago.

WOULD BE CONVINCED.

London, Dec. 3.—The Scottish Chamber of Agriculture at Edinburgh yesterday agreed to ask Mr. Chamberlain to address a meeting upon the proposed fiscal changes, with special reference to agriculture. Mr. Chamberlain will be informed that the Chamber is not pledged to his proposals.

OPPOSE CHAMBERLAIN.

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. W. Davis, of Birmingham, Secretary of the National Society of Amalgamated Brass Workers has been selected as the Labor candidate to oppose Mr. Chamberlain in West Birmingham. Mr. Davis is considering the matter.

CANADA'S GREATNESS.

London, Dec. 3.—The Times prints a survey of the position of Canada in relation to the United States by Secretary Gosnell of the British Columbian bureau of information, in which he details the manful part taken by Canada in hewing out a national structure of her own, and says he believes the stimulus of competition between the two countries will make Canada greater in the future than if they were united.

London, Dec. 3.—The Agents-General of New Zealand contributes to the Monthly Review an article, entitled the "Daughters of the House," in which he says there should not be so much talk in Canada about the Canadians being bitterly disappointed at the award which fixed Canada's new Alaska frontier had she not had much greater cause to be angry at former boundary arrangements.

British newspapers, he says, treat the colonies regularly to heavy lectures on what they should do, and they illuminate their tirades with flashes of insolence.

Regarding the agitation that the colonies should contribute to Imperial defence, he says "Great Britain should maintain just as large an army and navy to defend her own coast and shipping as if she had no colonies. This should be done in order to avoid war with any of the other great powers. Great Britain is prepared to sacrifice something to colonial interests, but it is unreasonable to expect the colonies to contribute to the cost of Imperial defence unless through their representatives, they share in the Imperial Councils.

JEWISH MEMORIAL.

London, Dec. 3.—To commemorate the services of 127 Jewish soldiers who fell in the late war with the Boers in South Africa, the Jews of England will present a memorial trophy to the National Rifle Association, to be given at a competition open to all-comers.

PATTULLO WILL SPEAK.

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. Andrew Pattullo will speak at Islington to-morrow night in support of Mr. Chamberlain.

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. Lloyd George, M.P., speaking at Paisley last night, said there was not a single great industry the production of which had not increased considerably out of proportion to the population. The only thing that had gone down was the hours of labor.

Dumping was not killing the iron and steel trade. Last year Britain bought £3,500,000 worth of half-manufactured steel from foreigners, which was dumped into Britain at a loss, and exported steel to the value of £20,000,000 at a profit.

SECRET OF YOUTH.

London, Dec. 3.—Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, speaking at a banquet at Northcote last night, said the greatest of all national aspirations was to increase the sympathy and mutual knowledge and interest in the great States which compose the Empire. If we could grasp the fact that the colonies were willing to draw nearer, then we have found the secret of perpetual youth.

—We are informed, says the Hastings Star, by salesmen of cheese factories that the buyers have been taking advantage of the last shipment and the drop in price by paying only about 90 per cent. of the price, which they offered at the board. Factories that sold their October make at 10 1-4 cents are not receiving that price. Buyers are also objecting to the quality of the cheese, and kicking about everything else in their endeavor to skin the farmers.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room 166, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 2. 1903

EUTHANASIA AND THE DOCTORS

"Though in the trade of war I have slain men," said Iago, "yet I do hold it very stuff of the conscience to do no contrived murder."

Most civilized men feel the same way. It is held to be right to take a fellow creature's life because his nation and your nation are at odds over a piece of territory or a diplomatic punctilio. It is likewise held to be measurably defensible if you kill him in the heat of a quarrel. It is deemed permissible and even necessary to kill him—by hanging him—if he kills someone else otherwise than in the ways specified. But to deliberately end his life in cold blood is held to be murder outright, for which there can be no defence in law or morals.

Certain socialistic gentlemen in the United States have arisen, however, with a new theory—or rather the rehabilitation of an old theory. They maintain that it is not only proper but commendable to kill your fellow man for his own good. They insist, that is, that when your fellow man is incurable ill or mortally hurt it is advisable, "quietly, decently, humanely, to end his sufferings." They maintain that such a course "would be a step forward in civilization and a step further away from barbarism." They propose that a board of physicians and laymen should hear and decide upon such cases and issue the necessary orders for euthanasia, which is the Greek word for the process.

The proposal appears to meet with qualified approval from physicians, but with distinct disapprobation from everyone else. The explanation of this division is alleged to be that the physicians favor euthanasia because it offers a plan for covering up their mistakes, while the laymen oppose it because of a disagreeable apprehension that the mortuary board might blunder and order a quietus for people who could easily recover. It can readily be seen that such a condition would not be conducive to tranquility of mind.

There appears, however, to be a possible way out of the deadlock. How would it do to confine the euthanasia experiment to physicians exclusively for a period of five or ten years and thus see how it works? If all the doctors are not killed off by that time it will be moderately safe to begin operating the system upon the laity.

AID FOR BRITISH NAVY

The New Zealand parliament recently voted $200,000 a year toward the support of the British navy and the commonwealth of Australia has voted a proportionately larger contribution, both following the example of Natal and Cape Colony. Canada is the only self-governing colony which has not yet undertaken to pay part of the expense of its protection. India has long since provided to some extent for its naval needs, its vessel, however, being of a minor class. The imperial idea is evidently growing. What is curious about it is that the imperial sentiment is strongest in New Zealand, which is radical and almost socialistic in its politics. In the mother country the liberals and radicals, as a rule, are anti-imperialists. It is time that Canada assumed her share of the burden.

There are sixty-six languages spoken in New York. This may not seem so many when one knows that there were twenty-two spoken there before the revolution. New York has always been a gathering place of the nations. There is one school, the one at Mugberry Bend, where children of twenty-nine nationalities are acquiring such Americanism as may be instilled into them before they are big enough to get their working papers. There are forty-nine newspapers published in foreign languages in New York.

—Miss M. Smith, of Hastings, visited her friend Miss M. McCann for a few days this week.

—The Forester's annual ball on Friday evening last was a very successful one. There were about 60 couples present. Cawthorn's orchestra supplied the music and Archie Moore was floor manager. Supper was served at Mrs. McFarlane's.

—At the home of Mr. David Cruikshank, Otonabee, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25, the wedding of his daughter Clara, to Mr. Colin McFarlane took place. Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Keene, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 40 of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. Miss Mamie Taylor acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Donald McFarlane supported the groom. After the ceremony the evening was pleasantly passed. Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane left per C.P.R. for Streetsville and western points, and on their return will reside in Otonabee.

—The Farmers' Institute of East Peterborough held a very successful meeting here on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The speakers in the afternoon were Mr. Mason, Elgin county, on Dairy Cows, Mr. Mills, Ottawa, on Noxious Weeds, Dr. Jeffs on Sugar Beets and Miss L. Rose on The Common Defects in Butter and their Prevention. In the evening the hall was crowded to the doors. The same speakers gave very clever and interesting lectures. Miss Jennie Weir gave two pleasing recitations. A solo by Miss J. Kenneally "The Valley of Kentucky" was exceptionally well rendered. Messrs. J. M. McFarlane and Dr. Edwards brought down the house when they sang, "Larboard Watch." At the conclusion of the programme Mr. Samuel Armstrong moved a vote of thanks to the speakers and local talent, who took part, which was carried. The meeting was brought to a close by singing, God Save the King.

Lost Appetite Quickly Revived

A Fitful Appetite is generally associated with a general weakness of the system. Ferrozone the best tonic and appetiser should be taken after each meal and a rapid improvement is sure to follow

Distaste for food often follows La Grippe and fever, or is brought on by over excitement or worry. It is a dangerous condition and paves the way for more sickness. On this account it should be at once corrected by the regular use of Ferrozone. A new and wonderful medicine is Ferrozone. It instantly imparts a real zest for food, and gives power to the stomach to digest and assimilate all that is eaten. Dyspepsia and indigestion are quite unknown to those who use Ferrozone, simply because it digests food so quickly, that it has no time to ferment or sour on the stomach.

Ferrozone regulates the bowels, quickly remedies urinal disorders and causes all the organs of the body to perform their functions with proper regularity. If the liver is torpid, or the kidneys not eliminating as they should, they are soon restored to normal action, and the poisons that might otherwise be retained in the body to cause disease and ill health, are carried off through natural channels.

The surest road to perfect health is Ferrozone. Young girls who have been accustomed to eat almost nothing at breakfast, soon get over the bad habit by using Ferrozone, and as a result grow into healthy vigorous womanhood. When people get up in years and lose the strength and vim of youth, they need a good tonic and blood builder to enable them to resist the trials of our vigorous winter, and this is where Ferrozone can be used to great advantage.

Both; the young and the old, the weak and the strong, male and female can derive untold benefit from Ferrozone. It is guaranteed to contain no opiates or injurious drugs, and will do just what is claimed for it.

Druggists recommend and sell it, price 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Financial Difficulties Involve Elijah III and His Host

The Prophet Has Lost Much Money in Law Suits Recently

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Financial difficulties which began during the crusade of John Alexander Dowie, the self-styled Elijah third, and his "Restoration Host" to New York a month ago, and which have been rapidly increasing since Dowie's return, culminated last night in the Federal courts taking possession of all the property controlled by Dowie in Zion on the ground that he is insolvent. This town, which was founded two years ago by Dowie and has a population of over 10,000, is the general headquarters for Dowie's church, and is said to represent an expenditure of $20,000,000.

Fred M. Blount, Chairman of the Chicago National Bank, and Albert D. Currier, a lawyer, were appointed receivers for the property. The receivers left for Zion City last night to take possession of the property.

WIFE HARD PRESSED.

Dowie, whose wife and son recently left for Australia, has been hard pressed by his creditors, especially since it was announced that his recent mission to New York has proved unsuccessful, financially. Dowie is known to have accumulated a large sum as the head of the Christian Catholic church, the assets of the organization being estimated at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000. There was a large outlay of money however when Zion City was started. The lace and candy industry were started, and as both of these ventures have never been a paying investment, a great deal more money was tied up.

Dowie's differences with his brother-in-law, Stevenson, over the management of the lace factory cost more than $100,000, and other suits recently begun in Lake County by creditors are said to aggregate a large sum.

DOWIE'S CONFESSION.

Last Wednesday Dowie made what has been regarded as a confession of weakness at a rally in the tabernacle at Zion City.

"A lot of you people have cash in your pockets," Dowie said to his followers. "Dig down and get it out. It is God's, and we need it in His work. You're cowards if you don't give it up. Deposit it."

Instead of frightening many into depositing, this appeal sent a long line of people to the bank on Friday to draw out their money.

Less than $1,000 was deposited in the bank on Friday, while the amount withdrawn was twice as much. Late in the afternoon A. W. Graham tried to withdraw his account of $300, and was told he would have to give 30 days notice before he could get his money.

Yesterday another appeal was made by Dowie for funds, but the depositors who appeared were few. Dowie then asked the members of Zion more urgently than ever for money. He declared that he must have $300,000 without delay. That sum, he said, he was willing to take in short loans, but they must be forthcoming immediately.

URGED TO SELL OUT.

In the efforts to remedy the condition of affairs at Zion City, hundreds of letters were sent out daily to Dowie's followers in other parts of the country. In them, all Doweyites are urged, almost commanded, to sell their farms, stores, and everything else, and come at once to Zion City and take up the work of the church. All of those who have money in banks near where they now live were asked to draw that money out and send it for deposit in Zion City.

It is said the employes of the manufacturing industries have not been paid in four or six weeks. Early in the week before last Dowie made a personal trip through the various shops, and told his followers and others that they must either wait for their salaries or must endure a substantial cut in wages.

Not until a reporter asked for an interview was Dowie aware that steps had been taken to declare him bankrupt. His private secretary said that Dowie would see nobody, but when impressed with the importance of the overseer making a statement at this time, he returned and endeavored to get one, but Dowie was determined to say nothing.

Immediately after hearing the news, Dowie sent for Judge Barns, and was closeted with him all the evening.

News of the appointment of a receiver spread rapidly throughout Zion, and produced consternation. Despite the law of Zion, which provides that all persons stay in their homes at night, there were groups on many corners, talking in hushed tones about the Zion City trouble.

On every hand there is sorrow, for the people see the end of their ideal life, in which every resident has invested his all. If Dowie does not come out of the trouble all right, the greatest calamity of its kind the country has ever seen will follow, for never before have people gone ahead with such implicit faith and entire confidence in one man's word as in Zion. Many followers have laid at Dowie's feet every cent they have in the world, and excepting the coupon books in Zion stores, which they received for the deposits, most of the residents are poverty-stricken.

It is said in Zion City that Zion is practically moneyless, a condition which seems likely when it is known that a lacemaker was paid over $10 in dimes.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble on my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake's Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. "We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth.'"

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P.E.I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y
OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors. Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing them with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber: builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

ARE YOU A PRISONER?

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vices of early youth, exposure to contagious disease, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or used to be. The vim, vigor, and vitality of manhood are lacking. Are you nervous and despondent? tired in the morning? have you to force yourself through the day's work? have you little ambition and energy? are you irritable and excitable? eyes sunken, depressed and haggard looking? memory poor and brain fagged? have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? deposit in urine? weak sexually?—you have Overfeeding Horses.

The following good advice from the pen of Dr. A. S. Alexander is well worth attention by every owner of a work horse. He says:—

It is perfectly safe to assert that thousands of work horses are injured by kindness. The owner thinks that because his team is hard worked it ought to be heavily fed, but he forgets that it is not what a horse eats, but what he digests that counts. This is especially the case in summer, when there is much field work to be done and little time in which to do it.

The horse hurries home, hot and weary, is given all he can "hog," and goes out to the water trough, where he fills up on water and goes on to work again. First of all, his stomach was not in a fit condition for food reception. The fatigued, hot, sweaty horse cannot digest food. He needs a rest first and then a drink of water, which passes through his stomach and stays in the large intestines. If he first eats oats or corn and then drinks water, the food is largely washed out by the water and passes to the small and large intestines where such food is not digested, but decomposes, giving off gas and thus sets up more or less disturbance and distress.

Under these circumstances a horse is not properly fed just because he has been furnished with six quarts of oats or from eight to thirteen ears of corn and all the new hay he can gobble in the short interim of the noon hour.

He has been fed, to be sure, but he has derived little benefit from his food. All of the benefit comes from the portion of the food digested, and that is very small when there is insufficient time first to masticate properly and then digest normally.

In the busy season the work horse should have small amounts of concentrated, nutritious food, just such an amount as he can masticate and digest. Corn ads fuel to the heat of his body and does not supply the strength and vigor he most requires. That comes from oats, and time is needed for its mastication.

Hay is unnecessary and actually injurious when fed at noon. It is not digested while the horse is at work. It does not remain in the stomach, but, like water, passes through into the large intestines, where it lies inert or decomposing until a period of rest promotes the normal process of digestion.

On general principles it will pay to cut in half the ration now being fed to work horses, provided they are given little time to masticate and digest their food. This will be found remedial where horses are evidently doing poorly, sweating too much, panting when at work, or having a tendency to diarrhoea. They will do better on less food for the reason that they digest a greater proportion of its nutrients.

Altering Grade Marks on Fruit Packages.

The fruit division, Ottawa, says in reference to this matter:—Shippers who still use the old system of marking fruit "XXX," "XX" and "X," instead of "No. 1," No. 2," and "No. 3" (which mean the same thing), should always enclose the two lower grade marks, "XX" and "X" in a circle, oval or diamond, in order that dealers who handle the packages may not have an opportunity of injuring their reputation by adding an "X" to "raise the grade." This practice, though not common, has come under the notice of the trade, and is liable to cause trouble to the original packer whose name is on the package.

Canadian Butter for Japan.

The dairy division, Ottawa, reports that as a direct result of the Canadian exhibit at the Osaka Exposition three new customers have recently been secured in Japan for the butter made at the Government creameries in the west. In this connection it is encouraging to find that the amount of butter exported to Japan by the dairy division is more than three times as great this year as during the corresponding period last year.

Pigs for the British Market.

Sanders Spencer's article on "Rearing and Fattening Pigs," in The Journal of the Board of Agriculture, says, speaking of American supplies, that "the very serious shortage of maize of the 1901 harvest has been tided over with comparative ease by the use of wheat, and so successful has the mixture of maize and wheat proved for pig feeding, that probably many American hog raisers will continue the plan of mixing the food for their pigs, since the quality of the meat is improved, and the losses from broken legs in transit on the cars to the large centres, such as Chicago, are considerably less. Indeed it is now frankly admitted by pig feeders in America that the low price of wheat and the scarcity of maize have proved to them a great blessing in disguise. One other step they will have to take ere their pork and bacon take a high place on the English market—they will have to alter the form and quality of their pigs. Fashion and the desire to produce a very fat pig, or, in other words, a prize-winning and lard pig, have together simply ruined the majority of the pigs on the American continent for producing a side of high-class bacon such as would realize the highest price on the English markets. The change is sure to come, and one of the levers will be the demand on the part of American consumers for such bacon as they can eat, since the well-to-do and middle classes have become as fond of mild-cured bacon and hams as have the same and even lower classes in this country. The hog-raisers on the other side will very readily alter their system as soon as it becomes evident that there is profit in it. Of course a few of the moneyed men and fanciers may still persist in breeding and exhibiting the lard hog, and there may still be found judges who are interested in, and who will continue to award the prizes to, the obese animals, whose only excuse for their existence is that they can win prizes and honors for their millionaire owners. But most probably we are about to see a great change in the type and character of the fat hog generally produced in the States."

A NATION THAT IS LACKING IN HONESTY

A New York Paper's Severe Criticism of Public Complacency and Fraud

New York, Dec. 1.—The American says editorially:

Are the people of the United States less honest than those of other countries?

Ask an Englishman why he always speaks of "Yankee cunning" and "Yankee smartness," and he will tell you that Americans regard dishonesty with cynical tolerance, provided it is done on a large scale. He will tell you that in England the law protects the public from swindles, while in America the law protects the swindler against the public that has been robbed.

If you tell him he is mistaken he will cite you a thousand instances, from the sale of the Emma Mine, in 1871, the Pacific railroads, the desert lands of the West, down to the shipyard merger and the Steel Trust.

It is useless to trouble about the mine and railroad swindles of thirty years ago, but how about the shipbuilding combine? That swindle has neither been outlawed by the lapse of time nor condoned by subsequent prosperity.

Its organizers, from J. P. Morgan & Co., who took the greatest share of the profits, down to the small clerks that got up the main company, were guilty of false representation to obtain money, fraudulent and improper use of the United States mails, charging their stockholders more for properties than was actually paid for them, and putting in their own pockets the dishonestly acquired balance. Worse than that, men loth to betray the interests they had been elected to guard, were offered special bribes to act the traitor.

All of these things have been sworn to by competent witnesses in a court of law. So far nothing has been done about it. What right will the American people have to resent the charge of general dishonesty if nothing is done about it?

Surely it must be against the law to obtain money or valuables by false pretences. The poor wretch who fills a trunk with bricks to defraud an hotel-keeper is sent to jail. The unfortunate that cashes a check for money in excess of his bank deposit is sent to jail. The man that offered silk of any shade at ten cents per yard and supplied his cash customers with sewing silk now languishes in prison for an improper use of the United States mails.

Morgan and Schwab and the rest of the shipbuilding combine did not even take the trouble to send a yard of sewing silk to the purchasers of their securities. All these securities were sold to the public on the most solemn assurances that the plants of the constituent shipyards were worth in the aggregate the total face value of the securities. That assurance was an absolute falsehood told for the purpose of swindling investors. It was just as criminal as cashing a bogus check. It was just as much a crime as making a forged greenback or a bogus dollar and passing it on an innocent tradesman.

The shipyard combine knew that the various yards were not paying and could not be made to pay—because most of the Government work on hand had been taken at a loss, to crush out a rival yard. A concern outside of the Trust had cut the price of naval vessels nearly one-half. The Trust took the work, and was forced to give bonds to complete the ships. In many cases this meant ruin, and this is why the Trust was so eager to unload on the public. This was well known to the promoters of the combine, and the circulars issued to deceive the public were sent out with the intent to obtain money by false pretences.

Under the circumstances how does it happen that the guilty promoters are not indicted for their crimes?

In Defiance of Death.

Winter is drawing near. He has sent before him a scout who has already made his presence known. Swiftly, noiselessly, by night, he passed through our gardens and in the morning we saw the bodies of his victims, the tender flowers slain by the sabre of the frost. The foliage of the trees also has begun to wither. Some trees at the first far-off summons of winter struck all their flags and woefully await the conqueror. Not so the maples. No sooner was it known that the frost had come and winter was on the way than they hung out their bravest banners. Hope of final resistance they have none, but they flaunt their crimson flag in winter's face, defiant and splendid to the last.

It is thus that some men meet death. To most, death is the arch fear. It is so stealthy, so inevitable, so remorseless, its approach so distressing, its associations so sorrowful, its issues so mysterious, that few can face it without a tremor. We cannot withhold a measure of admiration from one who can meet it undismayed. But one may admire without envying. Whether we shall only admire or also covet the spirit of one who can defy death depends upon what underlies the defiance. A courage without hope, a valor only of desperation—these may be admired, but they are not to be envied. Take Henley's well-known verses:

> "Beyond this place of wrath and tears
> Looms but the horror of the shade,
> And yet the menace of the years
> Finds and shall find me undismayed.
>
> "It matters not how strait the gate,
> How charged with punishments the scroll,
> I am the master of my fate,
> I am the captain of my soul."

The ring of these lines may stir one's blood, but no one would covet the spirit of godless truculence which they breathe.

Browning's defiance of death is very different. He also is a fighter, and does not shrink from "One fight more, the best and the last!" But his courage is backed by faith:

> "For sudden the worst turns the best to the brave,
> The black minute's at end,
> And the elements' rage, the fiend voices that rave,
> Shall dwindle, shall blend,
> Shall change, shall become first a peace out of pain,
> Then a light, then thy breast,
> O thou soul of my soul! I shall clasp thee again,
> And with God be the rest!"

—The "Presbyterian."

Anecdotal.

Payne, an examiner at Cambridge University, whose questions were always of a peculiarly exasperating nature, once asked a student at a special examination to "give a definition of happiness." "An exemption from Payne," was the reply.

James Cobb tells a curious story of a lady, a sister of Owen Tudor, who, like Henry VIII., was greatly given to marrying, and did not die until she had been led seven times to the altar. When she was following her fourth husband to the grave, the gentleman behind whom she rode on horseback ventured to urge his suit. "Unhappily," said the dame, "thou art too late, seeing that I am plighted already; yet do not lose heart, for, should it fall out that I have again to perform this melancholy office, I will bear thee in mind."

An old Scotchman, named Robert Gordon, was seriously ill and had been wheedled into making a will by a crowd of greedy relatives. The paper had been drawn up, and lacked only the signature. The sick man was propped up in bed, and a pen was put into his hand. He managed to write "Robert Gor—" and then fell back, exhausted. A nephew seized the pen and offered it to him again. "D, Uncle Robert, d!" he urged, referring to the next letter of the signature. The old man's eyes snapped. "Dee!" he growled. "I'll dee when I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"

A well-known professor, having boarded a few weeks with a farmer who was in the habit of taking a few summer guests into his house to help pay the rent, decided to spend his vacation there again this year. In notifying the farmer of his intentions, he wrote: "There are several little matters that I desire changed, should my family decide to pass the vacation at your house. We don't like the maid Mary. Moreover, we do not think a sty so near the house is sanitary." This is what he received in reply: "Mary has went. We haint hed no hogs sence you went away last September."

When the President's special train, during his recent tour of the West, reached Nebraska, Governor Mickey joined the party to escort the President across the State. The President was delighted to meet the governor of Nebraska, and asked him about a hundred questions — political, industrial, social and personal—winding up with: "How many children have you, governor?" "Nine," answered Governor Mickey. "You are a damn good man," exclaimed President Roosevelt; "you are a better man than I am. I have had only six." And Governor Mickey, who is a Methodist elder, gasped with astonishment.

The oratorical gift of the preachers of mountain regions of Tennessee is much admired by their simple parishioners. In fact, nearly every youth's ambition, it is said, is to be a preacher, although it is an affectation among the horny-handed portion of the population to pretend to despise those who do not engage in manual labor. A traveler recently asked a bright-eyed youngster in Tennessee: "What are you going to do when you grow up?" The boy turned his head away, blushed with embarrassment, and began to draw semicircles in the dust with his bare toe. In the meantime his father answered for him: "I reckon that boy'll be a preacher; he's a powerful pert talker when he ain't bashful, an' he's too darn lazy to work."

George Meredith recently said of a late brilliant and beautiful leader of English society: "She did not merely shuffle the cards; she was one of the pack." An earlier leader, Lady Holland was not one of the pack, to borrow the phrase, and she was inclined to shuffle her cards—which included princes, peers politicians and poets—with more or less flourish. She exacted homage; it pleased her to see distinguished men fetch and carry in her drawing-room. It was one of her little habits to drop her handkerchief for someone to pick up and return to her on bended knees. One evening at a dinner at Holland House, when she had dropped her handkerchief three times in close succession, Count D'Orsay returned it to her the third time, saying: "Pray, my lady, had I not better take my seat under the table?"

When Lord Lyons was the English ambassador to the United States, the grave difficulty over the Mason and Slidell case arose. Lord Lyons was instructed from home to present an ultimatum afford twelve hours for its acceptance and, the latter not being forthcoming he was to break off relations and leave the country. The twelfth hour expired Slidell and Mason were not surrendered and there remained, apparently, only the dire prospect of war. "Give me another twelve hours," said Seward, the Secretary of State. It was an entire contradiction of official orders, but, nevertheless, "I will," said Lyons. From six o'clock that night until six the next morning Seward battled with the recalcitrants. Then Lyons received an intimation that the Confederate envoys would be given up. So by the insubordination of an ambassador war was avoided.

"The other day, on a train coming into New York," said Lew Dockstader, "I met a young man, who was introduced to me as Dr. Blank, and after some conversation with him I said: 'What kind of a doctor are you? Medical, teeth or feet?' 'Well,' said he, 'to tell you the truth, Mr. Dockstader, I'm not a regular doctor yet, but I'm following the medical profession.' 'Oh,' said I, 'you haven't graduated yet,' and the entire incident passed from my mind until a few weeks later I attended the funeral of an acquaintance, and whom should I see handing out camp chairs to the mourners, but my friend, the doctor. After the last sad rites I approached him, more in sorrow than in anger. 'Doctor,' I said, 'you led me to believe that you were a medical student, didn't you?' 'No, Mr. Dockstader, I did not. I told you I was following the medical profession, and I am. I'm an undertaker.'"

Rich Men's Sons.

Willie—If you've saved up enough for an automobile, why don't you get it?

Bobbie—Not yet. I'm saving up enough to pay for the people I run over.—"Life."

Those Questions.

Mother—Tommy, stop asking your father so many questions. Don't you see it annoys him?

Tommy — Why, mother, it's not the questions that make him angry. It's because he can't answer them.—"Punch" (London).

YOUR GREY HAIR brought back to its original color, and forever retained,

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Consumption Mastered at Last

Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure

No discovery in medicine has created one quarter of the interest that the Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure has caused. Its severest tests have been made on hopeless cases of Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom have been restored to perfect health. It cuts the phlegm out of the throat and bronchial tubes.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, LaGrippe It cures more quickly than any other medicine in the world.

Constant coughing is like scratching a wound. So long as it is done, the wound will not heal. For coughs, no matter how stubborn, a few doses of Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure will stop the irritation, and a cure is the quick result.

The coloured cover of special design, some seasonable stories and articles, many excellent drawings and coloured reproductions make the Christmas Canadian Magazine attractive. As a Canadian Souvenir to send abroad it is not equalled by any other Canadian publication. The Symposium on "Canada and Mr. Chamberlain," by John Charlton, M.P., Chancellor Wallace, Professor Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Walter C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin adds materially to its value as a souvenir to send to Great Britain. The two coloured plates of a Lake Huron Harbour by Moonlight, and an article on Toronto as a Typical Canadian City add to this value. With the exception of Sarah A. Tooley, who writes of Christmas at Sandringham, and Justin McCarthy, who contributes a story, all the contributors are Canadians. Price 25 cents; all booksellers.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 200 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure the gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

Her eyes filled with tears, as she always did when she spoke of her murdered father.

It had been such a deep sorrow to her to have lost him in the moment he had called her by her name.

Noticing her distress, Marc changed the conversation.

"Why are you here, Rose?" he asked gravely, "and what is the meaning of this finery?"

"I have to perform," she said, keeping her eyes averted. "Do you understand?"

"Too well. You are the Rose of the Ring."

She nodded—still without looking at him.

"Yes. You will see me presently—with my friends, the lions. Hark! there is the bell. They are waiting for me!"

She was running from the room, her starry dress shimmering in the uncertain light, her face turned smilingly over her shoulder towards Marc.

In an instant he was at her side, his hand clasped on her wrist with a detaining hold.

"You shall not go!" he exclaimed, his tones low and imperative. "It is monstrous to expose you to such danger. As long as I live you shall never go through that performance again!"

"Who will prevent me?" she said, lifting her startled eyes to his.

"I will! Do not try to defy me, Rose. Henceforth you must be a stranger to the ring."

She read the determination in his gaze, and struggled feebly to free herself from his hold.

"I must go," she said, "Jim would be ruined; somebody must appear with the lions."

"One thing is certain. You will not perform with them to-night."

"But, why? Oh, please let me go! The people are clamoring for me!"

"Let them clamor! You shall not go!"

At that moment Jim rushed into the room, his face white, drops of perspiration standing on his brow.

"Come quickly!" he panted. "The people are working themselves up to a state of frenzy. We shall have them in the ring presently!"

She did not attempt to follow him towards the door.

She felt Marc's hold tighten upon her, and knew he was watching her with an angry light in his eyes.

"Come!" Jim exclaimed. "Can't you hear how they're clamoring for you?"

In his excitement he would have dragged her after him: Marc held her back and turned with suppressed passion to Jim.

"Make what excuse you can to appease the audience! I will not sanction this performance!"

Jim stared at him aghast, scarcely able to realize the meaning of the words he had just heard.

"It's for her to decide whether she'll appear or not!" he exclaimed; then addressing himself to her, he said: "Follow me! another moment's delay will be fatal!"

She looked from him to Marc, and a sudden trembling seized her.

Only for an instant did she hesitate as to which she should obey. She glanced up into Marc's eyes, and her own fell beneath his gaze.

He drew her nearer to him, holding her more gently.

He knew he had conquered.

The people might clamor, but they would clamor in vain.

She could not defy and disobey the will that was so much stronger than her own.

Jim put his hands distractedly to his head.

"Is it possible that, at the last, you have failed me?" he exclaimed, unable as yet to grasp the situation. "You must go through your part to-night—only to-night; you must appear!"

She turned to him with wild eyes, white and trembling; she could scarcely speak.

"I cannot—I cannot!" she said, and then sank at Marc's feet, her form shaken with sobs.

With a groan, Jim hurried into the circus, and did his best to calm the disappointed audience.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Frank troubled himself very little as to what had become of Gretchen.

The knowledge that should have appealed to his manhood, he put from him altogether; her fate did not interest him; she had no part in his life.

"I must have been mad ever to have cared for her," he thought. "My only hope is that she and Nellie will never meet."

His face grew tender as he thought of the girl he loved. Nellie, with her innocent blue eyes, and sweet, trustful ways.

How little she dreamed of what had been in his past—of that tie he had so relentlessly broken.

"The truth must never come to her ears," he muttered. "I have no greater dread than a meeting between Nellie and—that woman."

An expose, such as he shrank from, meant more than the loss of Nellie's love.

His own limited income made marriage with an heiress desirable, and Lord Rayne's pretty daughter was heiress to no mean fortune.

Her money had been the first thing to attract him to her, but her sweet disposition had won a way to his heart, and he uttered no lie when he said he loved her.

He had set his heart on making her his wife—on giving her the name that should have been Gretchen's; yet a strange misgiving rankled in his breast, and he could not shake off the depression that weighed upon him as he made his way, one night, towards Lord Rayne's house.

It was near Christmas, and in a few days Lord Rayne would leave London for his country seat—a beautiful place in Buckinghamshire.

Frank was to join them, so it was not the thought of separation that brought this feeling of depression to his heart.

His face lost some of its gloom when Nellie greeted him with a bright, loving smile.

She was always gentle in her devotion to him; sometimes he could not refrain from comparing her innocent love to the passion that had stirred Gretchen's heart.

"My little love," he murmured, taking her hands, and drawing her to him. "Tell me you are glad to see me."

"Oh! so glad!" she exclaimed. "But how cold you are, Frank! Have you been walking through the snow?"

He gave a short, happy laugh, and kissed the pretty face upturned to him.

"Snow does not hurt me, little one but come, don't let me keep you in a draught."

She took his hand, and led him up the broad flight of stairs to the drawing room, where Lord Rayne was sitting with a few of his guests.

Frank exchanged a few remarks with his host, but his gaze wandered to Nellie.

She was looking unusually lovely to-night, in a pale-blue velvet dress, trimmed with old Irish point lace—her eyes brightened when ever she met his glance, then were veiled under her long lashes.

Truly, she had been worth winning and Frank felt his pulses thrill with pride as he watched her.

"My sweet, how beautiful you look to-night!" he said, bending so that only

DUMPED AT A LOSS AND SOLD AT PROFIT

The Open Market Has Secured Raw Material at Lowest Figure

London, Dec. 2.—Mr. Lloyd George, M.P., speaking at Paisley last night, said there was not a single great industry the production of which had not increased considerably out of proportion to the population. The only thing that had gone down was the hours of labor.

Dumping was not killing the iron and steel trade. Last year Britain bought £8,500,000 worth of half-manufactured steel from foreigners, which was dumped into Britain at a loss, and exported steel to the value of £28,000,000 at a profit.

THE REAL CAUSE.

London, Dec. 2.—Prof. Hewins, speaking at the Great Northern Railway annual dinner, said the fall of freights between Britain and the world was one of the chief causes of the fall in the prices of wheat and other agricultural product.

SECRET OF YOUTH.

London, Dec. 2.—Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, speaking at a banquet at Northcote last night, said the greatest of all national aspirations was to increase the sympathy and mutual knowledge and interest in the great States which compose the Empire. If we could grasp the fact that the colonies were willing to draw nearer, then we have found the secret of perpetual youth.

QUEER CUSTOMS.

Observed in Various Countries at Christmas Tide.

In England.

That fine old ceremony, the bringing in of the boar's head, is observed at Queen Victoria's table at Rugby, Eton, Winchester and Harrow, and at Oxford and Cambridge Universities.

It dates from the Pagan age, when the ancient Britons killed a boar at the winter solstice and offered its head to Freyr, the God of Peace and Plenty, who was supposed to ride upon a boar with golden bristles.

In Spain.

In old Seville and the other beautiful cities of Spain Christmas is largely an out-of-door celebration. The Anglo-Saxon idea of hearth and home is foreign to the Latin temperament, and the gracious climate lends itself to all fresco merry-making.

All is movement, color, tumult, dance, song. The great plazas are kaleidoscopes of human movement. The cathedrals and churches are thronged. Piety and gayety mingle.

In Italy.

Inspired by the ancient poetic thought of cheering the Virgin during the pangs of maternity, young men and maidens throng on Christmas eve before her shrines, and play upon their guitars and mandolins, singing songs of praise.

It is their part, too, to decorate the beautiful old churches most profusely—a loving service at which they spend the greater part of the night, refreshed by a collation after midnight mass.

In Germany.

This is the land of Santa Claus—the home of the beautiful legend of Kris Kringle, which is a corruption of Christ Kindlin, or Christ Child.

While the good child finds its little stocking laden with Kris Kringle's gifts, the naughty child finds nothing but a birch rod placed there by the avenging Pelsnichol—"St. Nicholas with the fud." Such an experience makes the small victim intensely miserable.

In Mexico.

To eat cakes on the Noche Buena (Christmas Eve) is the immemorial right of the Mexican belle—and they are all sweet-tooths.

The Mexican confectioner is an artist. His show window at this season presents a rich and rare array of such things as make the mouth water—such elaborate combinations of creams, glaced fruits and the like as transcend the imagination even of the New York matinee girl.

In Sweden.

One of the earliest and quaintest of Christian legends is an article of faith among Scandanavians.

They believe that even as the ox and the ass of Bethlehem are said to have fallen upon their knees when Jesus was born in the manger, so all domestic cattle on the stroke of midnight that heralds Christmas Day prostrate themselves in silent worship.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividend whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

About Woman Writers.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is known to the world chiefly as a novelist, yet one of the most active aspects of her life is her philanthropic work among the settlements of London. Especially is she interested in the raw material of young life that populate the congested slums of the East End, and the institution which lies nearest her heart and of which she is most proud is the Vacation School founded by her in Bloomsbury in conjunction with the Passmore Edwards Settlement in Tavistock Place. While the readers of England and America have been following with unabated interest the fortunes of Julie Le Breton in "Lady Rose's Daughter" during the summer months, the author has been quietly and unostentatiously pursuing her schemes for the amelioration and gladdening of the joyless lives of the children in the neighborhood of Bloomsbury.

Mary MacLane is at it again. Her publishers promise that before the end of the month we shall have a new book from her radium-tipped pen, called "My Friend, Annabel Lee." They write that the young lady has been living quietly in Boston, working on this book. It is hard to imagine Mary doing anything quietly.

Miss Corelli is always funny when she is hysterical, and she is nearly always hysterical. Her loud protestations against the desecration of Stratford by a Carnegie free library were the first act of a howling farce which has now reached its climax. Sidney Lee, a scholar whose greatest fault is that he is quite incapable of hysteria or any other manifestation of feeling, says that the cause of Miss Corelli's objection is that she once tried to get the site in dispute for a free library of her own, but found the price too high. Miss Corelli, in a voice shriller than ever, retorts that Mr. Lee is a mean thing, and calls on her solicitors to hale him to the courts. Then she writes another pamphlet, calls it "The Plain Truth About the Stratford-on-Avon Controversy," and sends it out as her final vindication.

Out of the five million self-supporting women in the United States (those in domestic service not counted), few comparatively have become journalists. Of these the majority gain their training in the "prentice" fashion of an older day. Many fall out of the ranks early, some never go beyond the "prentice" stage, some advance and attain all the honors in the gift of the profession That newspaper work claims the greater number is due to the fact that newspapers pay better than any other journals. But whether in the stress and excitement of work on a morning paper, or, following the quieter routine of a weekly, or the more literary duties of a monthly, in no other calling are there such possibilities: not so much for fortune or for ambitious advancement, as for gaining an ever-deeper knowledge of humanity; for giving and winning sympathy; for keeping in touch with growing and widening movements in which the worker may share.

London Editors Who Are Women.

Mr. Rudolph de Cordova sketches the women editors of London, with portraits, in "Cassell's Magazine." He says:

"Among the publications thus edited are the 'Sunday Times,' by Mrs. F. A Beer; the 'Westminster Budget,' by Miss Hulda Friederichs, in conjunction with Mr. F. Carruthers Gould; 'Baby and Womanhood,' by Mrs. Ada S. Ballin; the 'Nursing Record,' by Mrs. Bedford Fenwick; 'Myra's Journal,' by Miss J. Heale; the 'Lady,' by Miss Rita Shell; the 'Ladies' Field,' by Mrs. E. Macdonald; the 'Green Sheaf,' by Miss Pamela Colman Smith; the 'Onlooker,' by Mrs. Harcourt Williamson; and the 'Churchwoman,' in part by Miss Gertrude Ireland Blackburne."

He rightly gives the place of honor to Miss Friederichs. He says:

"The first woman journalist to be engaged on exactly the same terms, both with regard to work and to pay, as the men on the staff of an important London daily paper with which she was connected, is Miss Hulda Friederichs. Of all the woman journalists in London it is safe to say she is the most brilliant linguist. Indeed, it was her facility in tongues which won her her place on the 'Pall Mall Gazette.' Having got acquainted with Mr. Stead when he was about to edit that paper, he asked her to join him as his secretary, and in a little while she began contributing to the paper. Mr. Stead made no difference between his contributors on account of sex." He exacted precisely the same standard of work from men and women, and considered that that work should be paid for in exactly the same way—a fact worth insisting on, as it by no means generally obtains even to-day."

Five women have had the pleasure of combining the functions of proprietor and editor:

"Mrs. Bedford Fenwick shares with Mrs. Woodhull Martin and Mrs. George Cornwallis West, as they did with Mrs. Fenwick Miller and Mrs. Arthur Stannard, when they were editors, the distinction of owning her own paper."

FIVE CENT GIFTS TO J. D. ROCKEFLLER JR.

Young Millionaire Asks his Sunday School Class to Meet $15 Expenses

New York, Dec. 1.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., on Monday, segregated the young men of his Bible class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist church into three groups—the 5-cent men, the 10-cent men, and the 25-cent men. Mr. Rockefeller told his pupils that if they individually contributed those small coins every Sunday, they would spare him a great deal of worry over how to raise the $15 necessary to pay the weekly expenses of the Bible class.

It was after the young men's quartet had sung a hymn that Mr. Rockefeller stood up before his class, adjusting his eye glasses, and spoke on the subjects of the class finances with precision and detail.

"I made a mistake in my calculations regarding our expenses last Sunday," said young Mr. Rockefeller, "by adding up the wrong column. But I have thought the matter over during the week, and I feel sure that I now have a plan by which we can raise the $16 a Sunday which is necessary to meet the current expenses of this class.

"If we can raise that much in collections, it will not be necessary for us to make up the sum by a personal canvass."

Mr. Rockefeller then went into the details of his plan.

"Assuming," he began, "that we have a weekly attendance averaging 150 pupils, seventy-five men could contribute 5 cents, fifty men could contribute 10 cents, and twenty-five men could contribute 25 cents. In adding this up we would find a total of $15 in the contribution baskets.

"Now, the man who contributes 5 cents every Sabbath morning during the season of eight months of the class year will meet an expenditure of $1.80, the man who contributed 10 cents will spend $3.60, and the man who gives a quarter will spend $9.

"It has occurred to me," continued the young Bible class teacher, as he toyed with the dainty gold timepiece that lay beside the Bible on the stand in front of him, "that our necessary contributions could be paid on this class basis.

"I do not believe there can be any question that the expenses of this class can be easily met, and I think," continued Mr. Rockefeller, seriously, as he looked from face to face, "that we all of us can afford to make these contributions."

Mr. Rockefeller here glanced at his watch. He made a sign to the leader of the little band of violin players, and the entire class stood up to sing "Rock of Ages." Mr. Rockefeller then began his Bible lessons. "As our subject this morning," he said, "I have chosen Paul's defence against the accusations of those who endeavored to overthrow his influence with the Church at Corinth."

He proceeded to draw lessons from the text. "No man is so miserable," he said, "as he who thinks only of his own happiness. He alone is happy who does good to others.

"You come here, although nobody makes you come. But you come believing you will be made better by associating with those who are devoting themselves to this good work.

"The world approves self-sacrifice and a life of selfishness is not approved. Which life shall we choose? Shall we do as Paul did? Shall we recognize our own weakness, or shall we rather endeavor to aggrandize ourselves?"

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

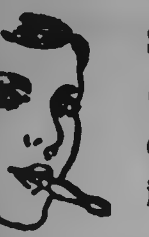
COLDS
COUGHS, CATARRH, AND CONSUMPTION



Simply can't exist if

CATARRHOZONE

Is inhaled 4 times daily.

Catarrhozone is the most pleasant and powerful destroyer of disease germs known to science. It is inhaled at the mouth, and in traversing the air passages of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs passes over not less than 1,000 square feet of mucous surface.

The penetrating, healing vapor of Catarrhozone goes wherever the air we breathe can go, and no matter how remote the disease may be it will quickly cure it.

The bacilli of Catarrh and Consumption are expelled from the system by one day's use of Catarrhozone. Ordinary coughs and cold in the head are cured in ten minutes. Most severe cases of Asthma, Bronchitis, and Lung Trouble are relieved in a few hours.

Catarrhal Deafness, Head Noises Ringing in the Ears, can be corrected in a short time and cured by the persistent use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed to prove satisfactory or your money refunded. Two months' treatment complete, with liquid for recharging and hard rubber Inhaler, costs $1.00; trial size 25c. At druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Skipped Without Paying Board

Chief Rossel yesterday received a telephone message from Lindsay, asking him to arrest four picture men, who had skipped out of the Scugog town without paying their board. In the absence of the necessary papers, the Chief could take no action. It is said the men are canvassing this town for the sale of pictures. The public are hereby advised that it would be a good quantity to steer clear of.

Provincial Appointments

An order in Council was passed yesterday appointing Miss N. A. Ewing, teacher of household economics at Toronto Normal School. Peter W. TRUE ENOUGH

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—The letter written by Mr. Burnham to The Toronto World in reply to the anonymous scribbler who tried to discredit his political consistency, must have pleased that gentleman that he was taken notice of. His own name evidently was best left out. It is such gentry as he, however, who pretend that it is an honor to belong to the same party as they do—save the mark! It is not every decent man who will acknowledge belonging to any party at all these days.

COUNTRY FIRST.

STORIES OF HUNTERS

One bold hunter is said to have been almost run over by a deer, whose horns tore his shirt, and although he had a repeater in his hands loaded with sixteen shells he was so surprised at the appearance of the animal that he forgot to shoot. Another hunter became so excited that he fired off every shot in the magazine into the ground at his feet before he woke up to the fact that his deer was a mile away from him unhurt. Two other nimrods chased a deer two miles, one trying to hold it by the tail so that the other could shoot him.

New Patent Law.

The new law, assented to August 13, 1903, empowers the Commissioner of Patents to place certain patents under the Compulsory License System in lieu of the actual manufacture of the patented article, provided application is made before February 13th, 1904, in cases of patents granted before August 13th last. The patents which are likely to be placed under the Compulsory License System are for: an art or process; improvements for patented invention, when both patents are not held by same persons; appliances or apparatus used in connection with railways, telegraph, telephone, and lighting systems and other works under control of the public or large corporations, which are manufactured only to order and are not according to custom carried in stock. The cost of preparing and filing a Petition for the Commissioner's Order is ten dollars ($10) in all ordinary cases.

The Late John Bennett

On Wednesday evening there passed away at the family residence, River Road, Otonabee, Mr. John Bennett, aged 85 years. The deceased was born in Cork County, Ireland, in 1818, and came to Canada when but two years of age. After a residence of nine years in Cobourg the family moved to Cavan, where they resided twelve years, when they removed to Otonabee in 1841. Mr Bennett leaves four sons, John A., of Otonabee, David and George, who are in the North-West, and Sidney, at home, besides three daughters, Mrs. D. Mason, of town, Mrs. J. M. Thompson, of Detroit, and Laura at home. Three brothers and two sisters, the youngest of whom is 73 years, survive him, as follows Joseph, of Nort Monaghan, Robert, of Michigan, and Edward, of Manitoba; Mrs. F. Newell, of Ashburnham, and Mrs. T. Crocker, of Toronto. The funeral will take place from his late place of residence this afternoon at 3 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

CAN "GO" NOW

Was formerly Robbed of her Energy by Coffee

The wife of a Virginia clergyman tells her coffee story thus: "One year ago I was a wreck, only able to be up a part of the time and dragging myself around the house.

My skin looked like a dead hickory leaf, no appetite, weight 113 pounds, no energy and I suffered most of the time with most dreadful headaches or nervous chills or spasms and could not bear the least excitement.

At one time my left hand was drawn to my shoulder and for 9 days could not be moved away and I had often laid for 6 to 8 weeks under the care of our best physicians. I had been like this for 6 years and it seemed a cure could not be effected, and I could get only temporary relief. My case was pronounced nervousness but that was as far as we could get.

"All this time I had been a slave to coffee, thought I could not live without drinking 4 to 5 cups a day, although my husband used to beg me to give it up and give Postum a trial. But I always put him off with, 'O I don't think I'll like it, it will do me no good.'

"He was so persistent, I finally decided to try Postum, although I thought the very idea of a good coffee made from cereals was absurd.

"At first I did not like it so very well but soon found it was not boiled long enough to make it good; after a few days the terrible headaches disappeared and I felt so full of energy I was astonished. I grew to love Postum and have used it continually since then, and words can never express the good it has done me.

"I never know what it is to have a headache, have not had a nervous attack, for 11 months, now weigh 141 1-2, my complexion is clear and my friends say I never looked so well. I do not suffer a day's sickness and can do all my housework. Just think that for 6 years I spent more than half my time in bed, never able to keep up more than a few days at a time and all that suffering came from coffee.

"My restored health seems to me almost miraculous but I know there is nothing miraculous about it, just common sense from giving up coffee and giving Postum a fair trial and I don't hesitate to tell my friends all about it.

"I have a baby girl two years old who for the past year has used Postum in her bottle instead of milk. She is a large healthy child and if we give her milk she will hand it back and cry for Postum. My husband also has been greatly benefited by Postum and nowadays we never have coffee in our house but you will always find plenty of Postum in the pantry." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A CANDIDATE SELECTED

MR. J. A. SEXSMITH FOR EAST PETERBOROUGH

Result of the Conservative Convention in Norwood Yesterday

The Conservatives of East Peterborough held a convention at Norwood yesterday, which was fairly well attended by the faithful.

Mr. R. E. Birdsall, President of the East Peterborough Conservative Association, occupied the chair, and stated that the meeting was called to select a candidate to contest the riding in the interests of the Conservative party at the forthcoming elections for the House of Commons.

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, of Belmont, received the unanimous nomination of the convention, which he accepted in a brief speech.

Mr. Sexsmith, it will be remembered, was the Conservative candidate at the last general elections, against the present member, Mr. John Lang.

After a number of speeches by prominent men present, the convention adjourned after cheers for the King.

C.G.E. BENEFIT SOCIETY

Held their Opening Concert and Ball Last Evening

The C. G. E. Benefit Society held the first of a series of entertainments in the Foresters' Hall last night, which will be continued during the winter months. According to indications last night these will prove to be a very popular attraction. The hall was crowded when the chairman, Mr. Jos. Hickey, in a very appropriate address, stated the object of these gatherings, which were to raise money for the above society, which is indeed a very commendable object. Following this was the following program:

Piano solo	Miss McCabe
Vocal solo	Miss M. Clancy
Recitation	Mr. E. Akey
Vocal solo	Miss L. Hallihan
Cornet solo	Mr. S. Rogers
Vocal solo	Miss A. Pedlar
Instrumental duet	Misses Picard
Vocal solo	Mr. Jos. Legg

The programme was of a very high order, and the different artists were each heartily encored, the solo of Mr. Jos. Legg being enthusiastically received.

The program concluded the first half of the entertainment, after which the majority of those present adjourned to the adjoining room, where a very enjoyable evening was spent in dancing.

Among the committee to whom is due the credit for this successful evening, and under whom the next will be conducted, were: Misses Conroy, Hallihan, Woods, Pilling, O'Brien, McAndrew, Trombley, Wilson; and Messrs. Lean, Hoist, Martin, Cranfield, Crowley, Hodgson, Legg, McIntyre, Joyce, Carson, and Tranter.

Liquid Air and Wireless Telegraphy

The scientific entertainment at the Opera House last night, under the auspices of All Saints' Church Guild, was well attended. The marvelous demonstration of the wonderful power of liquid air, given by Professor Patty, of Chicago, opened the eyes of the audience to the possibility of this scientific marvel being used for commercial purposes can it but be produced cheap enough. As an aid to surgery and medicine it is at present used in New York, and Professor Patty last night froze the hand of Alderman McWilliams in a few seconds, the frozen member again returning to normal conditions, without the slightest injury resulting from the exemplification. As advertised, the professor served his astonished audience with stewed ice, frozen flames and a liquid air love feast; he rendered tin, iron, rubber and linen as brittle as glass; froze alcohol and mercury as steel, and welded together steel pans in the same glass in which he froze cranberries. His exhibition of wireless telegraphy was marvelously clear and explicit, and he amply proved that by means of this latest discovery of the age, he could readily start or stop the power plant at Niagara, or light the city of Boston, from a distance of thousands of miles. This lecture and experimental demonstrations of these two wonder-working discoveries will delight, amuse and instruct any audience, and afford food for thought on the rapid strides being made in the scientific world.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Rice Lake is now covered with five inches of ice and residents of that district are using it for driving.

—The regular meeting of the Town Council will take place on Monday evening next.

—Venerable Archdeacon Allen, D.C.L., of Millbrook, will preach anniversary sermons at All Saints church on Sunday, January 10, 1904.

—The bazaar under the auspices of the Girls' Guild of the George street church was opened yesterday in the Y.M.C.A hall, and will be continued today. It is being largely patronized.

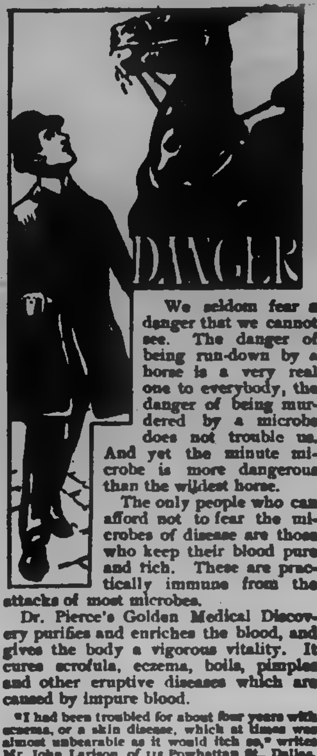
—Tickets for the Verdi concert to be given by the band on Friday evening, December 18th, can be had from members of the band or at Salisbury's book store.

—At the police court yesterday morning Herbert Nash was remanded again until Monday. He appeared before Mayor Roger, owing to the fact that the Police Magistrate was in Cobourg.

—The Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's church will be entertained this evening at the residence of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Torrance, 281 Rubidge street. Mr. R. M. Dennistoun will address the Guild.

—On Monday evening at the meeting of the Charlotte street Epworth League, Mr. Brigley, of the Collegiate Institute staff, will give a lecture entitled "A Trip Through North York to the Home of the 'Children of Peace,'" illustrated by lantern slides, of their temples, buildings, etc.

—The Ontario Fisheries Department received word a short time ago of an alleged shipment of bass to the United States from the Trent River. [illegible] and upon examination the fish were found to be only catfish and other coarse fish.



We seldom fear a danger that we cannot see. The danger of being run-down by a horse is a very real one to everybody, the danger of being murdered by a microbe does not trouble us. And yet the minute microbe is more dangerous than the wildest horse.

The only people who can afford not to fear the microbes of disease are those who keep their blood pure and rich. These are practically immune from the attacks of most microbes.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies and enriches the blood, and gives the body a vigorous vitality. It cures scrofula, eczema, boils, pimples and other eruptive diseases which are caused by impure blood.

"I had been troubled for about four years with eczema, or a skin disease, which at times was almost unbearable as it would itch so," writes Mr. John Larison, of 115 Powhattan St., Dallas, Texas. "I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after using five bottles found that I was entirely cured. Please accept many thanks."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the blood.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

At SANDERSON'S

THE MOST EXCLUSIVELY AMPLE EQUIPPED JEWELERY ESTABLISHMENT IN TOWN.

THERE'S a surprise in store for the gift choosers who will take the trouble to inspect our stock of rich and appropriate articles for Christmas and New Year's Presents.

Never in the history of this store—and that is long enough to have gained all that is desirable in experience of where and how to buy—has there been a time when stock was more complete, the designs more appropriate than right now.

In all departments there is a sort of exclusiveness of design, that stamps the goods as Sanderson's. WAR IN THE EAST IS REGARDED BY JAPAN AS SURE TO COME

The Far Eastern Difficulty is as Far From Settlement as Ever

A BELIEF THAT RUSSIA WOULD SUCCUMB

Japan's Naval Strength Would Win Her The Fight—Britain's Efforts For Peace

London, Dec. 5—The outlook in the Far East this morning is far from reassuring. Late despatches confirm the report than Japan is less hopeful than ever of a peaceful settlement. Notwithstanding the efforts of Great Britain for a peaceful solution,

Tokio, December 5 — The Progressive party, which is the strongest in Japan, after the Constitutional party, has adopted a resolution similar to the one adopted by the Constitutional Association yesterday, denouncing the delay in the negotiations between Russia and Japan, and urging that they be hastened but the Progressives' resolution is more strongly worded. It denounces the Government's weakened diplomacy which it is declared, has brought the country into universal contempt. It also demands that the principal ports in Manchuria be opened to trade. There are signs that the two parties under the stress of the crisis may possibly co-operate in an effort to overturn the Government.

London, Dece,ber 5—"If Japan must fight Russia," said one of the Mikado's most responsible representatives to a correspondent this morning, "it will enter on the contest nerved by the conviction that fate leaves no other course open. To falter before the ordeal would be treason to our fatherland and race. We do not ask much, only the right to live and move and have our being. No grand imperial dreams move us. Japan does not like Russia, to covet half the globe. If Russia were to cease accumulating in Manchuria materials for our destruction; would recognize our commercial rights there and keep its hands off Corea, we would be satisfied.

"Japan would not implacably oppose the concession of a special political status to Russia in Manchuria nor the presence in those provinces of a body of Russian soldiers large enough to guard the railway. What we do oppose and must to the end oppose is the heaping up of military stores, the mobilization of troops, the erection of naval and military fortifications and the assembling of warships, all palpably designed to overawe, cramp, and if necessary, annihilate Japan. Russia has only ambition at stake, and can easily yield. Japan's case permits no such alternative. Great Britain could not witness the defeat of Japan without the greatest concern. Such defeat would mean a tremendous step forward for the strongest enemy of the British race and would weaken British influence in Pekin, Cabul and Teheran. It would not only jeopardize the Yangtse Valley, but would also suspend a cloud above that majestic reach of British possessions, beginning on the frontiers of Persia and Afghanistan, and terminating in the south-eastern waters of New Zealand.

WHAT THE CZAR MAY DO

London, December 5— The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph hints at the possibility at the eleventh hour will personally propose arbitration of the Russo-Japanese dispute, adding, however, that the terms of reference would in such case be so defined as to eliminate everything touching the rights which Russian statesmen regard as being impossible to submit to a third party without loss of dignity.

Nowhere can confirmation be obtained of the rumor from Paris, that Russia and Japan have reached an agreement on the Manchurian question, and the story is received sceptically here.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph ascribes to a responsible officia, here the opinion that the prospects of peace are far less hopeful than they were a while ago.

The Daily Mail says it learns that Russia's unyielding resistance to the opening of Youngampho, Corea, still blocks a settlement. The paper adds that the situation is very acute and is nearing a crisis.

The Standard doubts the authenticity of the Paris story, and says it believes that the position is one of extreme delicacy and even danger.

FELLED WITH AXE

Attempted Murder and Robbery Near Fort Frances

Fort Frances, Dec. 3.—A dastardly attempt at murder and robbery was made here on James Short, merchant tailor. Frank Bates, a tramp lumber jack, applied for work, and was given a job cutting wood and, claiming to be a tailor, was set to work in the shop. Yesterday, as soon as Short came to his shop it is alleged, he was approached from behind by Bates, and knocked down with a small axe. He was then dragged to the rear and robbed of his pocketbook. Leaving his victim as he supposed dead, Bates took a fur overcoat belonging to a customer and made for Koochiching, Minn.

Constable Knaff crossed over, and with the assistance of a United States constable, located the man full of whiskey in a saloon, and brought him back without assistance. He is now in the Fort Frances jail, awaiting trial. Bates claims to be from Lethbridge, and lately from Fort William.

MAY WIN STRIKE

Boot and Shoe Workers will Return with Union Unrecognized

Quebec, Dec. 3.—It was announced on the part of the united boot and shoe manufacturers that a final settlement in the lockout will be reached to-morrow. A final meeting of all the men is being held to-day, and by far the greater number are in favor of accepting the terms offered by the manufacturers. A compromise will be effected regarding the refusal of the manufacturers to recognize the union.

The men will have to apply individually for such, and the union will in future be along the lines of a mutual benefit association.

The settlement is regarded as a complete victory for the manufacturers. If a settlement is arrived at, 3,000 men will return to work on Monday.

PISTOL TERROR OVER

Hamilton Police Believe They Have Man Who Shot Constables

Hamilton, Dec. 3.—The police believe they have made the most important capture in years. At midnight they arrested William Hillis, Guelph, and Herbert Yates. After the pair were handcuffed, Hillis tried to draw a revolver on P. C. Libke. It was a big 38-caliber Colt's weapon, similar to the lot of 53 stolen from Buffalo lately. Yates carried a 32 caliber weapon, loaded with dum-dum bullets. In addition a big bottle of nitro-glycerine was found on them.

The police have hopes of not only tracing many of the recent robberies to them, but also the shooting of Constable Peaire of Dundas, and perhaps the murder of P. C. Barron. Peaire was shot with a 32-caliber bullet with the end filed off, similar to the ones found on the prisoner Yates. Barron was shot with a 38-caliber bullet.

The prisoners gave three officers a desperate fight before they were overcome. They came up in Police Court this morning, and were remanded for eight days. In the meantime all kinds of sensational developments are expected.

Hill is at present held on a charge of stealing $40 from John Merriott, a farmhand, and Yates is held as a vagrant.

ONLY ZIONISTS ALLOWED

But Dowie Makes Exception for United States Officials

Chicago, Dec. 3.—"All who have not Zion in their hearts cannot come into Zion," is the order promulgated to-day by John Alexander Dowie, through his chief of police. The order to the "Zion guards," the police force of the Dowieite town of Zion City, continued as follows:

"From now on arrest or escort to the city limits every person who either is not of the faith or a United States official. We will bow to the Government alone."

Following this order, the usual force of Zion guards was doubled, many of them patrolling the outskirts of the Zion City with pongee.

The lace factories, lumber mills, and other industries continued in operation to-day, and contrary to expectation, Dowie "trade checks" were taken instead of money at the general store, a Dowie institution in the hands of the Federal receivers.

There was a rush for the general store tha tthreatened to clean out the stock. Many who had exhausted their ready supplies of money, and were unable to purchase provisions with "trade checks" yesterday, were in extreme need of food.

WORRY WAS WASTED

Senator Believed Never to have Referred to Laurier's Rudeness

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—Was the Washington special, in which Congressman Payne was reported as accusing Sir Wilfrid Laurier of rudeness because of failure to reply to a letter from Senator Fairbanks, suggesting a meeting of the Joint High Commission, a fake? That is the opinion now entertained here in official circles. The Prime Minister has received a copy of the Washington Post, a very reliable paper, which contains a summary of Congressman Payne's remarks. In the "special" Mr. Payne was accredited with the statement that Sir Wilfrid had not answered Senator Fairbanks letter because he was sore on account of the Alaska boundary decision. According to the Washington Post, Mr. Payne did not refer to the Canadian Prime Minister at all, and the whole tenor of his speech was the very opposite of that conveyed by the special.

PATRIOTIC SALMON

They Swim Around American Traps to Canadian Waters

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Not long ago Americans discovered that they could intercept the salmon heading for the Fraser River before they reached the mouth of that stream. This almost broke the hearts of the British Columbia packers, who came down here, insisting that the fishing regulations must be made less stringent, or they would have to go out of business. Meanwhile our neighbors were running up new canneries, one of them completed in July last to employ 610 hands and turn out five million tins of fish a year. But now comes news that the fish have taken a new route to the Fraser, and that most of them have forsaken the vicinity of the American traps. The Puget sound canners had expected this season an output of 750,000 cases of fifty tins each, but they realized only 180,030, while British Columbia put up 1,247,000 cases in all. Thus it looks as if the trouble had cured itself without any Government intervention. The fish, which really belong to us, are eluding the United States trappers, and several of the new canneries on the American side will be idle next year.

POPE LEO LOANED MILLIONS

Present Pontiff will Take Action to Recover the Amounts

Rome, Dec. 4—The Financial Commission appointed by Pope Pius X recently to examine into the accounts of the Peter's Pence Fund has discovered that the late Pontiff, Leo XIII., loaned several millions. The names of some of the borrowers are not recorded. Several have admitted the debt, and pleaded their inability to pay. The Pope will adopt coercive measures, irrespective of any possible scandal that may occur.

BRITAIN BUYS WARSHIPS

Santiago de Chile, December 5 — The battleships Libertad now under trials on the Clyde, and the battleship Constitution, now in course of construction in England, have been sold by the Chilian Government to the British Government for 30,000,000.

IRON WORKERS STRIKE

Chicago, Dec. 5—A general strike against the George A. Fuller Construction Company and the sub-contractors of that Company was declared last night by the executive board of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers International Association now in session in Chicago. The fight against the Fuller Company will be centered in New York. Nearly 10,000 men are said to be directly affected by the strike order, and in the event sympathetic strikes are called, more than 70,000 would be affected.

AFRICA IS RULED BY THE REIGN OF COIN.

United States Will Now Gobble Sand Domingo Land

Washington, Dec. 4.—The State Department has been informed that already a new revolutionary movement has begun in San Domingo. These repeated uprisings have concentrated the attention of the Washington authorities upon the island, where much American capital is invested, and there may be a renewal in a more forcible manner of Minister Powell's declaration that the peace of the United States is not to be troubled in this fashion.

The Commissioner of Mines Resigns Because of the Financial Boss ry

Johannesburg, Dec. 4.—Wilfrid Wyberg, Commissioner for Mines in Lord Milner's Cabinet, has resigned. In submitting his resignation he wrote: "The political influence with the Government of the financial interests have increased and the country is governed in a manner that is more conducive to the interests of powerful financial houses than the interests of the local population."

BRITAIN MUST BUY THE FRENCH ISLANDS

Montreal Board of Trade Want Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon

Montreal, Dec. 5—Just the bare possibility of the United States acquiring by purchase the only remaining French islands on this continent,—the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, has stirred Canadians up to the point of addressing the Canadian Government with a view of the ultimate possession of these bits of property which from their position at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, makes them of enormous strategic value.

At the meeting of the Montreal Board of Trade Council yesterday the matter was threshed out at length, and it is understood that as a result, a series of resolutions will be sent to the Premier, asking that the Canadian Government approach the British Government with a view of acquiring the islands from the Republic of France.

For some time it has been unofficially intimated in Paris that the French Government would be willing to dispose of the islands for a consideration. Turning back the pages of history, as it concerns the United States, it is found that the Republic has always been willing to take advantage of a land sale, and even the most unpromising have turned out of great advantage to that country.

For instance, there is the purchase of Louisiana from the French and Alaska from the Russians, not to speak of the territory which has been acquired from Spain and Mexico by both purchase and conquest.

The members of the Montreal Board of Trade Council are naturally inclined to think, therefore, that if the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon are in the market the United States Government would probably not throw the opportunity of acquiring the same to one side, and as these islands form a natural bulwark to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the acquisition of the same by any flag but Britain's would be unwise in the extreme, and an ever existing menace to the trade of Canada.

Mr. A. J. Hodgson, President of the Board of Trade, when seen regarding the matter this morning, was inclined not to discuss it, as the resolution which was sent to the Government had not been given to the press. He stated, however, that he greatly favored the purchase of these islands by Great Britain, if it could possibly be arranged.

"If England was at war with any foreign power," said Mr. Hodgson, "the holding of these two islands by an adversary would be a very serious matter to Canada. Here they are, barely twenty English miles away from the Newfoundland coast and within easy striking distance of our ports in the Maritime Provinces, but even worse than this they virtually command all shipping passing to the south of Cape Race, which is the route taken by the freight vessels passing up and down the St Lawrence, the greater portion of the navigable months.

"We will imagine for a moment that the British Isles are dependnet for the larger portion of her foodstuffs on Canada, and that hostilities should break out between the Mother Country and the owners of the islands in question, presuming, of course, that these bits of land had been strongly fortified and made a basis of operations. The result might likely be a crippling of Canadian seagoing trade and the British people would thus be brought to the verge of actual suffering for the want of the necessities of life.

"Again," continued Mr. Hodgson, "this would be the means of settling the ever present fishing disputes between France and Newfoundland. For these have been a source of irritation to both the Newfoundlanders and the fishermen who come out each year from France."

Among prominent Montrealers the question today is being very generally discussed, and is looked upon as being one of the most serious which has ever come under the notice of the Montreal Board of Trade.

From a trade, as well as an imperial point of view these gentlemen consider is a matter which will not brook delay.

Is Now Tired of Trade War, Germany Has Decided Not to Withdraw

The Most Favored Treatment From the South African Colonies

London, Dec. 4.—It is understood here that the Foreign Office has received an intimation from Germany that her most favored nation treatment will not be withdrawn from the South African colonies.

En Route For England.

Does Not Explain.

The Shipping Gazette, commenting on Mr. Chamberlain's speech on the shipping industry, says that Mr. Chamberlain does not explain the fact that the increase in the shipping of the United Kingdom is really over 1,000,000 tons, and only by the diminution of Canada's old sailing fleet was the lower figure of 1,400,000 tons obtained.

South African Memorial.

Princess Louise undertakes the execution of the bronze monument which will constitute the memorial in St. Paul's Cathedral to the colonial troops who fell in South Africa during the Boer war.

Strathcona is Honored.

Lord Strathcona today was made burgess of the city of Edinburgh, the ceremony, in consideration of his age, taking place in the Council chamber instead of in the public hall, as is customary. Lord Provost Cranston presided.

CHANCE TO DEVELOP.

London, Dec. 3.—Canadian firms able to supply mica for boiler covering and asbestos in large quantities should, if they wish to develop their British trade, apply to the Canadian Government agent at Birmingham.

PRAISED OUR MILITIA.

London, Dec. 3.—Col. O'Grady-Haly, speaking at Canada's Club dinner last night, referred in the highest terms of praise to the Canadian volunteers and militia.

Col. O'Grady-Haly paid a striking tribute to Canadian bravery during the South African war. "The whole annals of the British army," he said, "would fail to discover anything better than the magnificent stand made by Bruce Carruthers."

THE CANADIAN LUNCHEON.

London, Dec. 3.—The Canadian Society's luncheon at the Holborn restaurant last night was a great success. A thousand guests attended. Mr. T. R. Clougher, formerly of Toronto, was chairman, and Mr. Andrew Pallullo, M P.P of Ontario, made a brief speech.

WHY THEIR SILENCE?

London, Dec. 3.—Mr. F. H. Clergue and Senator Durand sailed for Canada to-day without fulfilling their promise to let the Canadian Associated Press representative know the result of their mission.

CANADA WILL WAIT

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—Premier Seddon of New Zealand, has wired Sir Wilfrid Laurier as follows: "Preferential trade bill passed practically unanimous."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that no action in response to New Zealand's policy will be taken until the Dominion Government learns officially the details of that Colony's new tariff and how Canada will be affected by it.

WAR OR PEACE RESTS WITH CZAR'S ADVISERS

Solution of Far Eastern Question In Russian Hands, Will Ultimately Recede

London, December 5.—Questioned by a newspaper correspondent this afternoon, the Foreign Office authorities expressed themselves in the slightest degree doubtful as to the outcome of the Russo-Japanese crisis. They discredit the report that an agreement had been reached—particularly the one embodying the terms mentioned in recent Paris dispatches. While admitting that the situation was a source of intense apprehension, they stated that official advices from St. Petersburg represented the ruling minds of that capital as exercising great energy to avert war.

Lord Lansdowne and his colleagues are clinging to the hope that Russia will ultimately recede sufficiently to enable the Tokio Government to hold down the Japanese politicians and people.

Well-informed circles in Tokio profess ignorance of any definite proposals on the part of Russia, calculated to abate the acuteness of the crisis. It is generally believed the difficulty is insoluble except by force. Some hope has been awakened by the calm evinced by the Mikado and his Ministry. Optimists interpret this composure as meaning that the Government has reason to believe that Russia does not intend to insist on the conditions Japan regards as intolerable.

In regard to the available food supply of Great Britain in war time, many think only of the grain in store, estimated superficially by the number of bushels of wheat. Only corn enough for three or four weeks at any time! they exclaim, inferring that with the exhaustion of this grain, starvation would have to be reckoned with.

But not so. The estimate takes no work of the coarse grains and meals and other goods of a general sort, of which there is abundance at all times. When these have been reckoned there is the average supply of fishes, which swarm around the coast line for two thousand miles, and the value of which amounts to about $32,000,000 per annum. With exhaustion of other forms of food, the fisheries would take a boom and the supply be trebled or quadrupled.

By the time the varied food supplies in store and to gain from the deeps from day to day, in despite of any blockading force, were used up, new crops of every kind would be available, wheat, oats, peas, barley, potatoes, fruits, mangels, turnips, without stint.

The British Isles might be greatly inconvenienced by a combined naval war, hampering the food ships en-route, but the talk of starvation in any such sense as that of the Parisians in the time of the German seige is hardly warrantable.

It is not the deficient food supply which would be the greatest danger, in the case indicated, but the interruption of the supply of raw materials for manufactures, throwing vast masses of people out of employment, and causing discontent and possible insurrection to force a return of peace.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—An order-in-Council has passed confirming the provisional regulations adopted for Customs entries under the German surtax. There are no changes in the entry forms, but a clause of considerable interest is added to the regulations interpreting the second paragraph of the surtax rules, which says that 'Such surtax shall also apply to any article imported into Canada when the chief value of the article was produced in Germany, although it may have been improved or advanced in value by the labor of another country, notwithstanding the provisions of the British preferential tariff.'

Fair Market Value.

The explanatory clause says that "In determining whether or not any article imported into Canada, which has been produced, improved, or advanced in value by the labor of any country other than Germany, is subject to the surtax the fair market value of the material grown, produced, or manufactured in Germany which has entered into the manufacture of the article shall be held to be the value produced in Germany within the meaning of the Tariff Act."

That is, for instance, where neckties are made in Great Britain of German silk fabric for export to Canada, if the market value of the fabric represented more than fifty per cent. of the value of the finished articles they would be subject to the surtax. The same thing would apply to hosiery made in Britain or elsewhere of German yarns.

PLEA TO YOUNG MEN

E. W. Rathbun a Few Days Before Death, Wrote a Message

Kingston, Dec. 4—"I implore of parents, teachers and schoolgirls of every class to unite in a pledge to abstain and to co-operate with one and all against the many temptations which beset our boys' paths in life. I pray our Heavenly Father to protect and guard the young men of Deseronto."

That was the earnest wish of that great captain of industry, E. W. Rathbun of Deseronto, sent to the Presbyterian Sunday School of that town, of which he had been superintendent for 20 years, and read in the school two days before his death. It was temperance Sunday, and in this, his final message to the world, he said:

"I beg to cordially endorse the efforts made to encourage our dear scholars against yielding to temptation." He spoke of this age as offering greater dangers than ever known before to boys, and urged teachers to declaim against every form of vice, and to pledge help and assistance to those so stoutly beset by evils.

FOSTER AND CANADA

London, December 5—Hon. George E. Foster, who sailed yesterday for Canada on the Oceanic, was the recipient of numerous offers of seats in British constituencies.

Mr. Foster, while full of admiration for the British people, says his heart is in Canada.

TUPPER OUT OF POLITICS

Vancouver, B.C., December 5—Sir. Chas. Hibbert Tupper interviewed on the announcement from Yale-Cariboo that the Conservative nomination there would be offered to him and that he probably would accept, and that this conclusion was absolutely incorrect. He was not seeking a nomination nor would he accept one from, no matter what quarter it came. He says he is out of politics altogether.

ABOUT FEAR

Often Comes From Lack of Right Food

Napoleon said that the best fed soldiers were his best soldiers, for fear and nervousness came quickly when the stomach is not nourished. Nervous fear is a sure sign that the body is not supplied with the right food.

A Connecticut lady says: "For many years I had been a sufferer from indigestion and heart trouble and in almost constant fear of sudden death, the most acute suffering possible. Dieting brought on weakness, emaciation and nervous exhaustion and I was a complete wreck physically and almost a wreck mentally.

"I tried many foods but could not avoid the terrible nausea followed by vomiting that came after eating, until I tried Grape-Nuts. This food agreed with my palate and stomach from the start. This was about a year ago. Steadily and surely a change from sickness to health came until now I have no symptoms of dyspepsia, and can walk 10 miles a day without being greatly fatigued. I have not taken a drop of medicine since I began the use of Grape-Nuts and people say I look many years younger than I really am.

"My poor old sick body has been made over and I feel as though my head has been too. Life is worth living now and I expect to enjoy it for many years to come if I can keep away from bad foods and have Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

GERMAN ART QUARREL

Impressionist Party Refuse to Exhibit St. Louis

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Artists of the impressionist school have sent an answer to the letter addressed to them by the General Association of German Art Societies at Dresden, refusing to come to terms. The impressionists had decided not to exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition, and the letter of the general association called upon them to reconsider their refusal to send pictures. In their reply to the letter the impressionist branches of the association say;

"We cannot subject ourselves to the decision of a central jury, whose artistic competency we dispute. We demand that the German secessionists be accorded the position belonging to them in view of their achievements."

The "secessionists" are organizations of artists of the impressionist school.

The letter sent by the General Association of German Art Societies said that the question of space distribution had already been settled in the interests of a worthy exposition of German art, and concluded:

"If you persist in your refusal we will denounce you before the public for endangering a national cause of great importance out of petty motives."

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible] Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 5, 1903

THE MEN'S CHURCH SOCIETIES

Striking in many ways is the movement towards men's associations for church work, which of late has gathered such headway in Ottawa, says the Journal of that city. Within a couple of months the movement has made such progress that it is likely that before the year is out every church of the three most numerous Protestant denominations here, the Anglican, Presbyterian and Methodist, will be equipped with an effective men's organization for humane work. Though started with the idea of placing a fair share of the responsibility for the church's activities upon the shoulders of the male members, the movement is laden with striking possibilities and probabilities, judging by the comprehensive plans some of the leaders appear to have in view.

If the movement ultimately reaches the goal some of the leaders are aiming at, the result will be a union of the voting forces of the churches of the city, of a general effectiveness such as has hitherto only been dreamed of by those who in the past have worked in isolated bodies for moral and other reforms. The idea is that each denomination shall form a union composed of delegates from each of its individual associations, and that when this is done there shall be organized a further union of representatives from each of the denomination unions, the object of which shall be to work in harmony towards reaching effectually out after evils of one sort or another, which have continued to exist, despite the earnest efforts of individual workers, isolated societies, and of women's organizations, the efforts of which were ineffectual because they were not able to hold over the heads of the powers that be a lash of voting power. But imagine a deputation from the united churches of Ottawa waiting on the city Council and saying: "Gentlemen, we represent 7,000 of the 12,000 voters of the city; we want so and so done." Would attention be paid to their request? We rather fancy so. Such an organization could be a power in many directions. And the fact suggests the thought that once such a movement is a success here in its limited civic sphere the day may not be far distant when that ideal time will come when throughout Ontario church workers will vote as they pray. And then as church members can easily control the ballot—it will be time for evil-doers to look out.

BRITISH FOOD IN WAR

In regard to the available food supply of Great Britain in war time, many think only of the grain in store, estimated superficially by the number of bushels of wheat. Only corn enough for three or four weeks at any time! they exclaim, inferring that with the exhaustion of this grain, starvation would have to be reckoned with.

But not so. The estimate takes no stock of the coarse grains and meals and other goods of a general sort, of which there is abundance at all times. When these have been reckoned there is the average supply of fishes, which swarm around the coast line for two thousand miles, and the value of which amounts to about $32,000,000 per annum. With exhaustion of other forms of food, the fisheries would take a boom and the supply be trebled or quadrupled.

By the time the varied food supplies in store and to gain from the deeps from day to day, in despite of any blockading force, were used up, new crops of every kind would be available, wheat, oats, peas, barley, potatoes, fruits, mangels, turnips, without stint.

The British Isles might be greatly inconvenienced by a combined naval war, hampering the food ships enroute, but the talk of starvation in any such sense as that of the Parisians in the time of the German seige is hardly warrantable.

It is not the deficient food supply which would be the greatest danger, in the case indicated, but the interruption of the supply of raw materials for manufactures, throwing vast masses of people out of employment, and causing discontent and possible insurrection to force a return of peace.

CARNEGIE SINGS THE PRAISES OF POVERTY

Millionaires are prone to sing the praises of poverty. Having secured themselves against want by accumulating a comfortable supply of bonds or preferred stock, they feel impelled by a sense of humane obligation to warn young men against the danger of wealth.

At the dinner of the St. Andrew's Society at Delmonico's, New York, Andrew Carnegie pictured the blessings of poverty with the master hand of a man who had himself felt the pinch of penury and knew what it was. He said:

The child of the millionaire cannot know what the words father and mother mean. Few Scotchmen have been cursed by being born to wealth. They've been born to poverty.

All of which is gracious and timely. The dangers and disadvantages of wealth are conceded. But how is a boy to avoid being "born to wealth"? How is he to avert the handicap of a rich father? How can he secure to himself the blessings and aspirations of poverty.

The steel magnate inspires us with a yearning for poverty but does not tell us how to attain it. How are we to escape the destructive, corroding influences of wealth? Even Mr. Carnegie has been unable to give away libraries fast enough to bring the blessed boon of poverty.

Efforts of rich men to persuade their sons that they are not rich and that they—the sons—will have to "work for a living," have signally failed, except in rare instances, where the son was not gifted with a sufficiently imaginative temperament to realize his opportunities.

Nearly every millionaire claims that poverty is necessary to the development of a man. We must feel the stimulus of desire, the pinch of want. But how is the precious jewel of poverty to be attained? Here is where the millionaire leaves us groping in the dark.

We had heard that much of the North-west wheat had "gone bad," but if it is only five million bushels, or one-tenth of the crop, the North-west can stand it.

THE KING'S MESSAGE

President Reciprocates King's Wish for Continued Friendship

Washington, Dec. 3.—Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, the successor of Sir Michael Henry Herbert as Ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, was received formally by President Roosevelt at the White House yesterday.

Sir Henry, after handing to the President the letter accrediting him as King Edward's Ambassador to the United States, said: "His Majesty has further directed me to assure you of his earnest desire that the friendly relations which exist between the United States and Great Britain may be maintained and strengthened, and I have received his Majesty's command to keep this object constantly in view."

Replying, the President said: "I cordially reciprocate his Majesty's desire that friendship and good-will between our two countries shall be strengthened and perpetuated."

THE G. T. R. DEPOSIT

Montreal, Dec. 3.—The Grand Trunk Ry. to-day announced that the necessary $5,000,000 deposit had been provided by the company, and was in the hands of bankers. Payment to the Government was delayed in order to allow the company an opportunity of modifying the contract. No difficulty has been experienced in having it underwritten, and the Government had agreed to the conditions of delay.

FERROZONE

Will give you an Appetite and with Appetite and good digestion comes health and strength

Ferrozone will in one week give you a splendid apatite, and will so improve digestion and assimilation that full benefit will be derived from everything eaten.

There is nothing like Ferrozone to create a keen healthy relish for food for the brain, and a tonic for the nerves and brain. To those leading a sedentary life it is a perfect boon.

The reverend Dennis O'Brien, D.D., the well known Evangelist says of Ferrozone: "I have pleasure in saying that I have found Ferrozone a remarkably good preparation. It keeps up one's appetite, cures nervousness and sleeplessness, and perhaps the very best tonic I have used. Being in the form of chocolate coated tablet, it is both pleasant and convenient to take and is well worthy of my highest recommendations."

This is an example of the way people speak of Ferrozone who have used it, and should be convincing evidence of its unusual merit. It is warranted to cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Lost Appetite, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Catarrh, and all other diseases arising from impairment of blood or nerve tone.

Refuse to accept a substitute for Ferrozone. Every druggist sells it 50c. per box, or three for $1.25. Prepared by N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., and Kingston, Ont.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers' profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing them with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men, bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $6,000,000, divided into $3,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber; builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

Anecdotal.

General "Phil" Sheridan was at one time asked at what little incident did he laugh the most. "Well," he said, "I do not know, but I always laugh when I think of the Irishman and the army mule. I was riding down the line one day when I saw an Irishman mounted on a mule, which was kicking its legs rather freely. The mule finally got its hoof caught in the stirrup, when, in the excitement, the Irishman remarked, "Well, begorra, if you're goin' to get on, I'll get off."

While in England Henry Ward Beecher was entertained by a gentleman who believed in spiritualism and was himself a medium. One day he asked if Beecher would like to talk with the spirit of his father, Dr. Lyman Beecher. Mr. Beecher replied that it would please him immensely. After the seance was over he was asked how it had impressed him, at which, with the twinkle in his eye, Beecher responded: "All I have to say is that if I deteriorate as fast for the first ten years after I am dead as my father has, I shall be a stark-naked fool."

It is related that when he first visited Ireland, Thackeray took a drive on a Dublin car some distance into the country. Milestones had recently been erected along the roads, and on each was printed the number of miles, with the letters "G. P. O.," distances being measured from the general post-office. Thackeray was unaware of this, and in his thirst for information asked the carman what the letters meant. The prompt reply was: "God preserve O'Connell." Thackeray believed what he was told, but the incident only appeared in the first edition of his book.

The Manila "American" has discovered "the champion circulation liar." He is acting as editor of the "Thundering Dawn," a Buddhist organ just started in Tokyo. Here is his greeting to the public: "This paper has come from eternity. It starts its circulation with millions and millions of numbers. The rays of the sun, the beams of the stars, the leaves of the trees, the blades of grass, the grains of sand, the hearts of tigers, elephants, lions, ants, men and women are its subscribers. This journal will henceforth flow in the universe as the rivers flow and the oceans surge."

When a boy in Smyrna, Justice David J. Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, once paused to speak to Adjib, a scribe of Smyrna, on the highway. Adjib's robe was as white as snow, but there was a hole in it. "There is a hole in your robe, Adjib," Justice Brewer said. "I know it," Adjib replied. "If you know it why don't you darn it?" Brewer asked. "For the sake of appearances," Adjib answered; "a hole may be an accident of the most recent happening. A hole will pass upon a king, a noble, or the most rich and powerful person. But a darn is the sign of poverty. There is no getting around it, no misunderstanding it. I cannot afford to wear a darned robe."

A pair of frightened horses were dashing madly down the street. The coachman was sawing at the reins, and the carriage was swaying from side to side in a dangerous fashion. The occupants of the vehicle, an elderly woman, noted for her extreme parsimoniousness, and her pretty niece, gave no outward signs of fear; but just as the horses came to a standstill the younger woman unexpectedly fainted. "I wasn't frightened a bit," she explained afterward, "until, just as we rounded that last corner with three wheels in the air, Aunt Caroline exclaimed, 'I'd give a dollar to be out of this!' I knew the case must be serious if Aunt Caroline was beginning to risk dollars in that fashion."

A young couple with matrimonial intent, fresh from the green fields of their rural homes, went recently to the parsonage of a clergyman in Maryland. The nuptial knot was tied. In the pause which followed the newly-made Benedict looked embarrassed as he fished about in his trousers' pockets as if looking for something. "What's the price?" he finally blurted out. "The State allows me a dollar," said the clergyman, "but—" and paused. Some pauses are more eloquent than words. Evidently this was not. "Well," finally remarked the groom as he handed the astonished divine a quarter, "if the State allows you a dollar take this and the job will have netted you a dollar and a quarter. Good day."

It was the custom of a certain minister when dining at the home of one of his best friends to consume a glass of milk and then, without more ado, fall to and enjoy the spread, which was always elaborate when he was expected. One day when the minister was scheduled to appear, instead of the foamy glass of milk, delicious and creamy, his friend placed beside his plate a good, stout, rich glass of milk punch, so clearly and cleverly prepared that it resembled nature's concoction to a nicety. The dinner hour duly arrived, and after a short blessing the minister seized his glass and quaffed. Not a tremor, not a move, not an exclamation, did he make, until the beverage was consumed, and then he exclaimed, as he pushed the glass from him, closed his eyes and smacked his lips: "Ah! a glorious cow!"

In Arizona, when a man buys a thousand head of steers, it is customary to allow him a ten per cent. cut. Old Colonel Gray was selling a train load to a young Californian who knew his business, and, though nothing had been said about the cut, the buyer was making the accustomed selections, when the colonel happened along in an ill-humor, and forbade any further choice; whereupon the young man refused to take the cattle. The irate colonel swore a great oath, loaded his steers, and started for Nevada; but finding no sale for them there, he swore some more and took his train to Colorado, then to Kansas, and then to Nebraska, until he had spent the worth of his cattle in transportation, and had loaded and unloaded until they looked like a famine in a dry land. At last in desperation he began selling a few at a time. An old farmer from the plains came in to buy a bunch. "Can you load 'em on the hears?" he asked. "Oh," said the exasperated colonel, "when those steers hear the toot of a locomotive you can't hold 'em. They'll run forty miles and climb aboard themselves."

CHRISTMAS WAS FORBIDDEN

So Be Observed by the Puritans Who Denounced It as a Heathen Feast.

As everybody knows, Christ was not born on December 25, and Christmas, though celebrating His birth, is really a survival of the heathen festival—among the Celts called Yule and by the Romans Saturnalia—celebrating the turning point of the year and the henceforth increasing power of the sun.

On this account the Puritans denounced Christmas as a heathen and Popish feast and did not observe it. During the Commonwealth they carried their objections into force and forbade the celebration of Christmas. In 1644 Parliament ordered December 25 to be strictly kept as a solemn fast, and that all people should pass the day in humbly bemoaning the great national sin which they and their ancestors had hitherto committed on that day by eating boar's head, drinking ale flavored with roasted apples, devouring plum pudding and romping under the mistletoe. For twelve years this order remained in force.

Municipal authorities also sought to reduce Christmas Day to the level of other days. We are told that, "Upon Wednesday, December 22, 1647, the cryyer of Canterbury, by the appointment of Master Maior, openly proclaimed that Christmas Day and all other superstitious festivals should be put down, and that a market should be kept upon a Christmas Day."

For attending service in the Cathedral on that day many people were mobbed. The inhabitants divided themselves into two parties—the Christmasites, and the anti-Christmasites—and came to blows.

On December 24, 1652, an Order in Council was issued, proclaiming "that no observation shall be had of the five-and-twentieth day of December, commonly called Christmas Day, nor any solemnity used or exercised in churches upon that day in respect thereof."

This was simply a reproclamation of an edict of 1647, abolishing Christmas, Easter, Whitsuntide and all other holy days. Soldiers were sent to the houses of all suspected persons to search the ovens and larders and carry away for their own consumption all seasonable dainties found therein. People who ate mince pies and decorated their houses with evergreens were declared unworthy of sitting in Parliament.

But the restoration of King Charles was also the restoration of King Christmas, who has ever since reigned undisturbed. But the Puritan's hatred of Christmas lingered long among Nonconformists.

It has now disappeared and services are held in all places of worship on Christmas Day, while the rest is celebrated equally by all sects.

Favors and Fancies.

"No one, nowadays, would think of decorating a Christmas table with anything but holly," said a celebrated New York chef, the other day, and while this statement is a little too sweeping to be taken literally, the fact remains that holly makes one of the prettiest and most seasonable decorations for the Christmas board of plenty.

If not much time can be devoted to the work of trimming, then have simply, for centre piece, low bowl of cut glass or faience ware filled with holly twigs and the red berries.

At each cover place a boutonniere of the holly. For the men merely a buttonhole spray. For the women, a larger "corsage bouquet," tied with scarlet ribbon. Your table will be charming.

But with an hour's work something more elaborate may be evoked from the Christmas greens. For example: the centre piece may consist of three wreaths joined together and laid along the "backbone" of the table. The central wreath must be considerably larger than the other two. All three may be of holly, or prettier still, the larger wreath of holly, the other two of some decorative ferns. In the centre of each wreath is arranged a low flower bowl containing rich red carnations or roses.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and often ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and keeps it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trantwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trantwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

she could catch the words. "You do not know how glad it makes me to feel that you are mine."

She smiled up at him—a smile of glad trust that filled her eyes with dreamy softness.

"So you intend leaving London very soon, Nellie?" he said, as they moved together into the conservatory, where the glare of the lights was softened and subdued by the many tinted shades, and fragrant masses of winter flowers greeted their sight.

"Yes!"

"How long will you stay in the country?"

"Until February."

"So long?" he asked. Then drawing her gently to him, he added, in low undertones, "And how long am I to wait for my little wife?"

Her eyes drooped before his passionate gaze, and a faint rose-pink tinted her cheeks.

"Answer me, my sweet one, is it to be such a while before I can call you by the dear name of wife?"

"It cannot be before February, Frank," she answered, shyly.

"How can I wait so long," he exclaimed, bending his handsome face close to hers. "It will be a sore trial to my patience. You will not put off my happiness longer than February? Promise me you will marry me than, little Nell."

"I promise you, Frank," she answered, simply.

He pressed her to his breast with a sudden rapture, kissing her again and again.

She made no effort to escape from his passionate caresses, but leaned, unresistingly, against him, her flower-like face nestling on his shoulder, her red lips offered for his kisses.

"Do you know how much I love you, little one?" he said. Do you know how very dear you are to me?"

She twined her arms about his neck with an abandon of love that made his heart beat with quick, wild throbs.

"I think I do," she replied, in her wooing voice; "I think you love me as you say, dear Frank."

She was looking searchingly into his eyes, with a wistful eagerness that seemed to penetrate his thoughts, and he felt a sudden guilty pang leap into his heart.

"You have never given your love before, Frank?" she murmured, "I am your first love—no other woman has ever held the place in your heart that I hold now?"

He winced beneath the scrutiny of her pure eyes, a dull red dyed his face and a sense of bitter self-remorse made him avert his head from her steadfast gaze.

Like a shadow of evil omen, the thought of Gretchen rose in his mind—the sin of his past seemed to fall, like a black cloud, between him and the girl who now clung to him with such tender faith.

It was hard to deceive this sunny-natured girl—base to utter a lie that would blind her to deception which was being played upon her—and yet—and yet, to own the truth was to lose her, and he loved her dearly—very dearly—it would be terrible to lose her now.

"I have never loved before as I love you, my sweet one," he replied. "You are my first love, my only love. My darling, are you content?"

He bent his face now over her head, so that she could not read the deceit it might have betrayed.

"Are you content, little Nell?" he repeated, pressing his lips amongst the silky coils of her hair with lingering tenderness.

"Yes! You have made me so happy, Frank. I was afraid—afraid——"

"Afraid!" he said, as he broke off suddenly. "Of what were you afraid, sweet?"

"That you might have loved someone else," she answered, looking shyly up at him. "But now I know how foolish my fears were. I know you would not lie to me, Frank, and it has made me so glad, so very glad to feel sure no other woman could have held my place in your heart."

"Dear little Nell!" he murmured, holding her in a passionate embrace. "My little wife! My only love! How I long for the time when you will be mine—mine for ever."

He had never known how really dear she had become to him, until the thought that he might lose her came into his mind, and the curse that had fallen from Gretchen's lips seemed to creep, like a threatening shadow, between him and his betrothed.

With Nellie's voice in his ear, her soft clinging arms twined about him, and her clear eyes meeting him, he felt no pity for Gretchen—no sorrow for the despair and anguish he had caused her—only a mute contempt, that was almost hatred, for the deceit he was forced to show the girl who would soon be his wife.

He loathed himself for having stopped to utter a lie to her, but he blamed Gretchen for being the cause of his baseness.

The time he spent with Nellie passed all too soon, and he felt a strange reluctance to leave her when the hour came for him to take his departure.

"You will see me again, soon," Nellie said, smiling as Frank breathed his regreat at going from her; "you are coming into the country with us, you know."

He kissed her without answering—that dread misgiving was chilling his veins again, and he shivered as they passed along the wide hall, and stood near the open doorway.

"Your are cold, Frank. I wish you had not to got out again this wintry night," Nellie said, nestling lovingly up to him, and buttoning his overcoat, with a pretty anxiety that both amused and touched him. "Good-bye, Frank dear!"

"Good-bye, my love, my darling—good-bye!"

As he bent to press his lips to hers a low frightened cry escaped her.

"What is it, my darling?" Frank asked, startled by her sudden pallor.

"I saw a woman's face! Look, Frank out there!"

He turned and looked in the direction she indicated, but all he saw was the figure of a woman passing swiftly out of the gates; and even while they both gazed, it turned and disappeared.

Frank soon quieted Nellie's fears, and brought back her old, bright smile before he left her; but his own heart was heavy with foreboding, and he knew the appearance of the silent woman was but the presage of some fearful calamity about to happen.

CHAPTER XVII.

The old year died away, and the new year came.

It was February—cold, bleak, bitter. Frost everywhere—the snow freezing as it fell—a biting wind making the London streets chill and uninviting.

A carriage drew up at one of the fashionable churches, and Lady Errol alighted, robed in white velvet and white fur, a long, filmy veil enveloping her from head to foot.

Under the veil, her face was set and bloodless, her dark eyes burning with a vengeful light.

Her step did not falter as she made her way through the porch, and along the flower-decked aisle to the altar.

A marriage ceremony was about to be performed—a ceremony that was to make Eleanor Rayne the wife of Frank Stanford.

He looked pale and nervous as he stood by her side, while the first words of the service were pronounced.

A sense of approaching evil weighed at his heart.

Thoughts of Gretchen rose in his mind and he could not forget the scene he had gone through with her, when, for the last time, she had knelt at his feet, pleading for his love.

He knew he had roused a demon of vengence in her breast and her parting words seemed to throb through his brain, making him dread every movement, lest he should turn and see her at his side.

His bride understood nothing of what he was enduring.

In her spotless dress, with a diadem of orange blossoms on her brow, she looked fair and sweet enough for one glance at her to have chased away these gloomy reflections.

(To be continued.)

AN EXPLOSION OF GAS

Guests of the Rossmore Hotel are Badly Frightened

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 4.—The guests of the Rossmore Hotel had a bad scare last night shortly after 11 o'clock, when an explosion occurred in the basement owing to a hitch in the operation of the acetyline gas machine with which the house is lighted.

It appears that the employes of the hotel noticed that the lights were going out, and a guest who is agent for the gas machine used in the hotel, went down to ascertain the cause of the trouble. He struck a match, the basement being in darkness, but blew it out before he rached the machine! He removed a portion of the machine, which allowed the gas to escape; and it is supposed that there was still a spark on the match which ignited the gas and caused the explosion. He was knocked down, but fortunately was able to get away without assistance. No serious damage was done beyond the injury to the building, which is slight, although the shock was felt throughout the building and caused a panic among the guests, most of whom had retired for the night. They came running down in their night clothes, and there was quite a commotion for a time.

One of the guests was a friend of the traveler who lost his life in the recent explosion in a Ridgetown hotel, and he declined to remain in the house, packing his grip and seeking quarters elsewhere.

Prescott Authorities Looking for Young Man Who Abused His Girl

Prescott, Ont., December 4 — Indignation runs high in Prescott over the vicious and brutal assault upon Miss Minnie Cosgrave by Hugh Hiscock, a man with whom she had been keeping company for some years past, and should the authorities succeed in apprehending him he is likely to meet with prompt punishment. Hiscox was traced as far as Kingston, and a detective is still after him.

An old friend of Miss Cosgrove's returned from the West and called upon her. After he had gone she went to a near-by well for water. Hiscox followed her, and during a quarrel he struck and kicked her, breaking her jaw and three ribs. Hiscock was secretary of the Prescott band and was well known.

Miss Cosgrove is a popular Prescott girl.

Storm King Group of Mines

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

The property comprising what is known as the STORM KING GROUP OF MINES offers an attractive and safe investment. The property is the richest in the country and we believe it would be difficult to secure an investment that promises better returns. The following is a description of the mines written by Capt. A. M. Paul, whose reputation as an expert in mining matters is known far and near.

These properties are situated in the Cable Cove Mining District, about fifteen miles north of Sumpter, Oregon, and about one mile northwest of the Baby McKee mine, about two miles northwest of the Last Chance, the Alpine, the Imperial and the California mines.

The properties in this report consist of seven claims. The names of the seven claims being as follows: The Eureka and the Honest Dollar. These two claims are on the same vein. Adjoining these two claims and paralleling them on the northwest is another vein upon which there are two claims known as the Jessie and Golden Rule, and paralleling them on the northwest there is another vein upon which there are two claims, known as the Storm King and the Ozone. The last claim of this group lies to the northwest of the last two named, and is adjoining them. This claim is the Shannon Bell.

In making my report I will commence with the two first named claims of the group, the Eureka and Honest Dollar. The development on these claims consists of a tunnel ninety-seven feet in length, running along the course of the vein, showing two feet ten inches of ore in the top of the tunnel and a little over three feet in the bottom, which assays giving values of from $9.68 to $70 per ton in gold. About four hundred feet in a southwesterly direction there is a shaft on the vein ten feet deep, showing the vein to be from one to two inches wide on the surface and about twelve inches wide in the bottom of the shaft, in which assays give values of from $9.76 to $40 per ton in free milling gold ore.

This vein is exposed by small shafts and open cuts for a distance of fifteen hundred feet, and the course of this vein is north, ten degrees east, and the vein cuts the formation, showing it to be a true fissure, and the formation is granite. This vein shows in places a width of from ten to fifteen feet of mineralized matter, commonly called vein matter, but which is caused by hot solutions from below.

I will now pass to the Jessie and Golden Rule. There has been very little work done upon these two claims, there being one discovery shaft ten feet deep, showing ore on all sides of the shaft, and running in value of from $4 upwards. It is my opinion that with development, this, too, will prove valuable property.

The work on the Storm King and Ozone consists of a tunnel near the point of discovery and is driven along the vein for a distance of one hundred and eighty feet, showing ore all the way from the surface to the face of the tunnel, and averaging in width from six to eighteen inches. Three assays give the following values, $12.50. This being a general sample taken from the dump. The other two assays are $62.68 and $79.08 respectively, this being the assorted ore for shipment. The course of this tunnel and vein are north, ten degrees west, and the vein cuts the trend of the formation obliquely (which is granite) and by driving this tunnel five or six hundred feet on the present course it will intersect a quartzite reef (which is running north, twenty degrees east) which would make this a contact vein between granite and quartzite, and should produce a large body of ore, at the intersection of the contact.

The only work done upon the Shannon Bell, the last claim of this group, is the location work, and is not enough to allow of a report being made.

There is water for power purposes one mile from the property, and timber on the ground, of a very fine quality, sufficient to run the mine for many years to come.

All the assays mentioned in this report were made by the assayer of the Imperial mine at my request, and the ore was taken by me from the properties mentioned.

I will state that I have been a practical miner since 1870, and am now the manager and superintendent of the Imperial mine in this district.

Black Hills Copper Company
LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to-day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Dec. 3, 3 p.m.—In last night's letter we told you to buy St. P., at 139 and then advanced to 141 1-4. We advised the purchase of Mo. P. around 91 and it advanced nearly two points. Erie 2nd we advised to buy around 48 went to 51-2 today; R.D.G. we advised to buy near 42 went to 44 5-8.

The market was very strong from beginning to end and our advice not to short the market has proved correct. The market looks to us as if it was entitled to a moderate reaction after the continued advances for the last three weeks. We think U.P. ought to go in the neighborhood of 77 and on this movement and then react back to about 75. A.P. may go to 48 and react below 48. U.S. on which we have expressed bullish views lately went to about 56 today; we would not be surprised if it got up to 58. If the market is good and strong to-morrow up to about noon or 1 p.m. it will probably be safe for a turn of a point or two; people who are long then take profits and wait for a good reaction. And when the next turn comes they will again prove a splendid sale as good as they were a year ago; if the market is weak tomorrow morning we would not take profits only if they are strong up to noon or 1 o'clock.

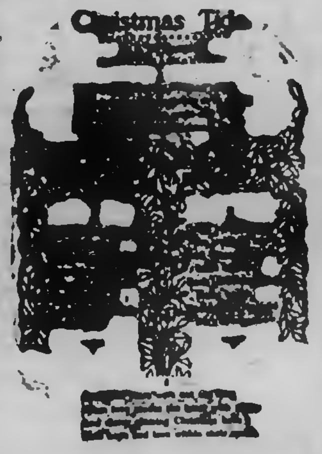
In Australia.

It is the midsummer season. The mercury may register 100 degrees or more. Families, instead of being united, are divided, for this is the time of the long vacation.

Still, English traditions are preserved. Plum pudding is the dessert and holly the decoration. Moreover, the Australians have a decoration of their own—a crimson-flowering shrub which they call "Christmas bush" and which blooms only in December.



Yule Dollies.

Mrs. Cornelia C. Bedford gives the following Christmas recipe: Cream together one-half of a cupful of butter and one cupful of sugar. Add gradually two well-beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of cream or rich milk, one teaspoonful of vanilla and three cupfuls of flour with which has been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, then stand for an hour in a very cold place. Have ready a tin cutter in the shape of a doll about five inches long. Take a portion of the dough out on the board at one time, roll out one-half inch thick and cut into dolls. Brush each over with milk and dredge lightly with powdered sugar; use currants for eyes and bake on greased pans in a moderate oven. When cold decorate the skirts of each doll with ruffles of frosting. Wrap separately in sheets of waxed paper. In packing place the doll in a long shallow box, pack firmly with tissue paper and before closing the box add a tiny Christmas card and sprig of holly. Tie the box with red ribbon.

When Lord Kitchener was in Ireland he visited the Wishing Well at Killarney with two plain, elderly spinsters. Beside the well sat an old Irish woman who looked up into Lord Kitchener's handsome face and asked:

"What do you think I wish for?" he good-naturedly inquired.

"Och, thin, for a beautiful young swatcheart, of coorse," said she.

He pointed to the two spinsters, who stood at a little distance, and said:

"Don't you see I have two with me?"

"Ah, thin it's the grace o' God you'll be wishin' for!" replied the sympathetic old woman.—New York Times.

The man said nothing more at the time, but when they were next playing he suddenly intermitted in his task of inflating the organ. Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H. N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate. They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders. That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

CATARRHOZONE

Rev. D. K. Smith of White Head N. S was cured of Catarrh by CATARRHOZONE.

The following statement coming from one of Nova Scotia's prominent churchmen carries conviction of the fact that Catarrhozone is all right.

"For years I tried all the advertised remedies for Catarrh, but was unable to get relief until I used Catarrhozone. Before I had used the inhaler half an hour my nostrils became free and clear so that I could breathe easily through them. In one day Catarrhozone helped me immensely, stopped my coughing and hawking and cured a dull pain that was continually over my eyes. I have great pleasure in recommending Catarrhozone. I have proved it the best remedy for Catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes."

There is certainly no remedy that is so well spoken of by the clergy as Catarrhozone and this can be accounted for by the fact that it gives perfect satisfaction.

It is the only remedy that reaches all diseased parts and gives quick relief without bad after effects. Catarrhozone contains no cocaine nor morphine. It is nature's own remedy, soothing and healing, and pleases everybody that uses it.

Catarrhozone is a local and constitutional treatment. The inhaler clears the air passages, stops the headache, and Ferrozone Tablets that are included in every complete Catarrhozone outfit, never fail to drive impurities from the blood. This builds up and strengthens the system so that Catarrhal conditions cannot exist.

The speediest cure for Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma is Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, price $1.00; small size, 25 cents; at druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

FAIRNESS AND DECENCY IN POLITICS.

To The Times, It is plain to be seen, that our contemporary, the Review, for some time has exhibited such an unseemly and indignified spell of violent language in attacks upon Mr. Stratton that it cannot treat with ordinary journalistic decency any political subject.

For our own part we have in the past opposed Mr. Stratton, especially before he became a minister, but we never have felt justified nor found it good policy to employ any approach to the violent and abusive language our contemporary habitually uses. Since he became a member of the Government, The Times has given Mr. Stratton an independent support; and while we are not bound to him in any way, we like to see fair play in all things, and especially to one of ourselves, who has grown up amongst us and has lived here all his life, and especially in view of what he has done in his representative and official capacity to advance the interests of Peterborough town and county.

Mr Stratton, as said, has lived here all his life, and what he has done is to be seen of all men. All his constituents have had an opportunity to watch his course and the result of that scrutiny has given him a hold, as his services have given him a claim, upon the good opinion of the people, with the result that he has been returned as representative of the riding by continually increasing majorities. Mr. Stratton has been before the public for a quarter of a century, and has become a strong factor in the public life of the Province. We have little hesitation in expressing the conviction that the Premier and he saved the Ross Government from defeat at the last general elections. In spite, if not greatly in consequence, of the abuse he has received and is receiving, Mr. Stratton is as strong a man as there is in Provincial politics today.

If the editor of the Review thinks he is weakening Mr. Stratton by his persistent and violent personal abuse, he is making a great tactical mistake, and shaping a boomerang for the party he is serving, not wisely, but too well; for we know many Conservatives who opposed Mr. Stratton at the last election, who at another election will be decidedly lukewarm in their opposition or be ranked with his supporters.

For the sake of the credit of the journalistic guild, we do not like to see a contemporary, especially a local one, take a course that brings discredit upon decently conducted newspaper criticism. The organ of a party which has been described as "the party of gentlemen" should, to be consistent, adopt a style of criticism superior to that of the now happily effete, backwoods country newspaper and employ language more dignified than that of the gutter. It always pays in the end to be fair and decent.

If the Review desires to know the course of campaigning and the mode of conducting their elections, it could perhaps get some valuable information from the Conservative party in West Peterborough.

Interesting to Cheese Makers

It is said that Mr. F. W. Brenton, of Belleville, the well known cheese buyer, is forced to assign. Mr. Brenton's offer to his creditors is to pay them at the rate of 6 1-8 cents per pound for all cheese for which he was owing. The same cheese had been originally bought by his buyers at 10 3-4 cents. We do not know if our local cheese board is affected or not.

Vicious Dogs

Yesterday morning about seven o'clock while a young lady, who is employed at the Cereal Works, was passing down Union street on her way to work, she was attacked by a couple of hounds and, had it not been for the assistance of an employee of the Electric Works, she would have been severely injured or perhaps killed. The dogs, it appears, jumped on her, knocking her down and tearing her clothes badly.

Assessed $100

At the police court yesterday morning Police Magistrate Dumble gave judgment in the case King vs. Wasson, in which the defendant, Wm. Wasson, of Dummer, is charged with having wilfully damaged a Government dam on the head of Indian River. The magistrate held from evidence taken that Mr. Wasson in entering the Government land and wilfully cutting and removing stop logs was guilty of the charge, and as the smallest penalty the law provides for the offence is $100, he adjudged that Mr. Wasson pay a fine of $100 and costs, to be paid in fifteen days.

Death of Miss Rye

News has been received from England of the death there of Miss Maria Susan Rye, one of the founders of the work of finding homes in Canada for poor English orphan girls. Over 30 years ago an institution known as "Our Western Home" was established at Niagara where these children, collected at the London Home, Peckham Rye, were trained for domestic service. For 26 years Miss Rye superintended this work, when she was compelled to retire owing to failing health. Miss Rye was well known in Peterborough in connection with Hazel Brae.

Lakefield

—Capt. Reynolds, who has been in Toronto during the past three months, returned home on Friday.

—Messrs. George Hendren and Roland Johnston attended the supper and entertainment at Young's Point last Wednesday night.

—Mr. Thomas Wallace, who went out to Winn'peg last June, has come home to stay.

—Big crowds of young people are on the Little Lake every night skating.

THE LIBERALS IN CAUCUS

Meeting Last Night to Prepare for Convention

There was a meeting last night of leading Liberals, the object being to prepare for the elections which are now believed to be close at hand. There are a number of aspirants for parliamentary honors, and it would require a clever man to name the one who will be selected as the party standard bearer. The Times believes that one of the following gentlemen will be chosen: R. R. Hall, R. F. McWilliams, J. H. McClellan, Mayor Roger, Geo. E. Elliott, Adam Hall and Daniel O'Connell.

We believe with a good candidate the party has a fair chance to win in West Peterborough this time. It is understood that Mr. James Kendry will again seek re-election, and if so he will have the battle of his life, no matter who his opponent may be.

A PLEASANT GATHERING

The Members of Mr. George Lee's Bible Class Entertained

Last night the members of the Baraca Bible Class, in connection with the Murray street Baptist Sunday school, were entertained by their teacher, Mr. George Lee, at his home at 490 Aylmer street. The members to the number of sixteen, and others, were present, and spent a most delightful evening. A feature of the supper was a huge roast of bear, which was daintily served by Mrs. Lee. It is known that Mr. Lee is quite a fisherman, but no one imagined for a moment that he was equally expert as a hunter. It would appear, however, that he is—or else he has a "pull" somewhere with those who kill big game.

At the conclusion of the supper music and games were indulged in, after which the party separated, not, however, without thanking Mr. and Mrs. Lee for their hospitality.

LAID AT REST

The Funeral of the Late Thomas Blezard Largely Attended

The funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Blezard took place yesterday afternoon to the Westwood cemetery. The funeral was very largely attended, many coming from Toronto and elsewhere. The Masons turned out in a body, leading members of the order being present from all parts of the county and town. Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, was present, representing the Ontario Government. The floral offerings were profuse.

THE CEREAL DAM

The Water Raised Almost to the New Level

Yesterday more stoplogs were put in at the new dam, and the water is now raised higher than ever before. It is almost up to the new level which it is proposed to maintain.

The bridge over the dam is rapidly progressing, and will be completed in a few days.

TO THE PUBLIC

The report that is being so assiduously circulated around the town by interested parties that the Otonabee Power Co. and the Peterborough Light & Power Co. have amalgamated and are all one, is absolutely false and untrue in every particular.

The Otonabee Power Co. have never at any time in their history, in any way, shape, or form, offered to sell out or amalgamate with any company, least of all the Peterborough Light & Power Co., being perfectly satisfied that we would receive a loyal support from every citizen having the present as well as the future welfare of Peterborough at heart. The Otonabee Power Co. has come to stay, and therefore ask the people to stay with the company that broke the monopoly, and we will stay with you.

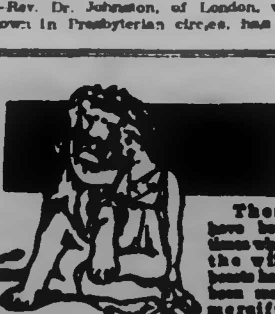
—Rev. Dr. Johnston, of London, well known in Presbyterian circles, has accepted a unanimous call to a leading Presbyterian church in Montreal.

—Sault Ste. Marie News: Mrs. J. Darbeau and three children left today for Peterborough, where they will take up their residence with Mr. Barbeau who went to that city some time ago.



There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

They have the most remarkable record of cures made by this world-famed remedy ever placed to the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

A Beautiful Girl Saved From Dread Consumption —Other Wonderful Cures.

Miss Amelia Weymer, Appleton, Wis., writes: "Early last summer I contracted a cold which seemed to hang on to me and could not be shaken off. From the head it went to the throat, and then affected my lungs. My mother felt very anxious and as we had used Peruna in the family before, she advised me to try it. I was somehow very opposed but was persuaded to try Peruna. Using it one day convinced me that it was no ordinary medicine, within a week I was much better and in two weeks I was well, and I felt much stronger and in much better health generally. I was perfectly satisfied with the results from the use of Peruna."—Miss Amelia Weymer.

Hundreds of Women Cured of the First Stages of Consumption by Pe-ru-na.

The Following Letter From a Thankful Woman Tells Its Own Story.

Mrs. Mary E. Hoblit, 2801 Clinton avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"My son suffered for three months with catarrh of the bronchial tubes which threatened to become very serious. The doctors advised that he seek a more favorable climate, but as he had heard of Peruna as a specific for lung trouble he decided to give it a trial before he left his family for an expensive journey among strangers. For six months he used it faithfully and found that the trouble gradually disappeared and blessed health took its place. In two months he was perfectly well and able to perform his duties. You have indeed a grateful mother's thanks."—Mrs. Mary Hoblit.

It is the praise of those who have been cured by Peruna that makes this remedy so popular and so extensively used. No advertisement could have accomplished this result.

Peruna cures the first stages of consumption by removing the cause, which is chronic catarrh. The catarrh having been cured the cough and other disagreeable symptoms cease.

CATARRH CAUSES CONSUMPTION

Pe-ru-na Never Fails to Cure Catarrh Wherever Located.

THE medical profession has so thoroughly prejudiced the minds of the people against patent medicines that it is with great reluctance that anyone can be persuaded to try such a remedy at first.

In nearly every one of the thousands of remarkable cures that Peruna has made the patients had to be persuaded by friends very strongly before they could lay aside their prejudice against it.

A large multitude, of course, hold out against the persuasions of friends and die simply because they have allowed their minds to be poisoned against this very excellent remedy.

But fortunately there is another large multitude of people who are able to shake off their prejudice and try Peruna before it is too late. These people are rarely disappointed. They generally try other remedies at the beginning of their troubles. They allow a cold to develop into catarrh of the head. They allow catarrh of the head to gradually become catarrh of the throat. They still keep using the doctor's medicine, or some other ineffectual remedy. The catarrh stealthily spreads down the bronchial tubes and reaches the lungs. Everybody then becomes alarmed. Faith in the doctor begins to disappear. The patient reaches a state of mind in which he is willing to try almost anything. A bottle of Peruna is sent for.

The first week it produces a decided change for the better. A few weeks' continued treatment cures the patient. Then another happy man or woman is added to the long list of people who are praising Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

PROPOSAL OF THE POWERS--INTERNATIONAL GENDARMERIE FOR MACEDONIA

To Check Attempts at a New Uprising

And Consequent War Between Bulgaria and Turkey

London, Dec. 6—The Associated Press learns that in order to prevent another Macedonian uprising in the spring attended by unspeakable horrors and the danger of war between Turkey and Gulgaria as a consequence Russia and Austria have proposed to the other powers that immediate steps be taken to put into operation a plan which in its general outline resembles that now enforced in Crete. This proposal is the result of the acceptance in principal by the Sultan some days ago of the Austro-Russian some days ago of the Russo-Austrian note concerning reforms in Macedonia which was submitted to the Porte pafter the recent conference betwoen Czar Nicholas and Emperor Francis Joseph. To what extent each power will participate in the organization of an international gendarmerie to be formed for the preservation of the order and which power will be placed in supreme command of the gendarmerie as (well as other details, must be settled by the negotiations between the powers. This proposals of the two powers dissipates the apprehension which has prevailed in diplomatic circles on the continent that Russia and Austria were arranging a settlement of the Macedonian question in a way to insure their own interests. According to the information obtained by the Associated Press the powers will this time unite in the appointment of a Christian Governor of Macedonia.

While it is intended that the Christians shall be protected, there is also a determination that equal protection shall be accorded to the Mussulmans. All the powers concerned are anxious to settle the difficulties in the Balkans, so that they can no longer menace the peace of Europe. It is believed that results identical withh hose obtained in Crete are likely to follow from the enforcement of a similar policy in Macedonia. At first a large force was sent to Crete, btu at present there are not more than 1,000 men therre, representing the Governments of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy.

London, Dec. 6 —Lord Strathcona, speaking at the banquet of the Edinburgh Merchant Company last night said that thirty-three years ago Canada was the first nation born within the empire, a nation then, and now, true as steel to the motherland. In ten years the population of Canada would be doubled and they would be able to send to Britain every pound of breadstuff the country needed. So conscious of this were the Americans than in the last three years more than 100,000 of them had gone to the northwest, and Canadians had no misgivings as to the loyalty of these American settlers. McGill and Toronto Universities were as good as any in the motherland. Britain, he said, must not show indifference to the colonies. Canada would give a preference without return to show her gratitude. But for the Hudson's Bay Company it was practically certain that western Canada would not be a part of the Empire to day.

FARMERS AND THE TARIFF.

Three hundred and sixty-two farmers interested in over 150,000 acres of land in Herts and Essex forwarded a petition to Mr. Chamberlain yesterday, which while approving of the changes in the fiscal policy, did not consider the proposed duties on foreign corn, meat and dairy products sufficient to stimulate greater production here. From the colonies they want flour and they want a heavy duty placed on hay and straw.

The Executive Council of the Iron and Steel Association of South Wales and Monmouthshire passed a resolution favoring Mr. Chamberlain's policy regarding steel imports and wanting the Government to immediately stop such imports.

The Morning Post, quoting President Drummond's speech, says it is clear that the Canadian manufacturers are by no means opposed to Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

CANADA'S SPLENDID ATTACHMENT

Lord Aberdeen, speaking at Edinburgh, before the United Liberal and Free Trade Committee, declared the splendid attachment of Canada to the motherland was spontaneous, adding: "Do not try to galvanize into artificial growth a plant that is growing naturally itself."

American steel is being dumped into Glasgow at £1 a ton under the Scotch makers' prices.

IS IT LIKELY ?

J. McDonald, speaking under the auspices of the Independent Labor party at Birmingham, yesterday, asked it it was likely that Britain would give a preference to Canada which at the present time was dumping upon our shores products of iron made cheap by the fact that the Canadian Government paid bounties upon iron produced in Canada by Canadians. Mr. Chamberlain was notable for his ability to pick our certain products and say what each colony could supply to this country.

BELIEVES IN MR. FARRER

The Financial News, referring to Mr. Farrer's article under the heading "An annexationist unmarked," says the writer deals with an ominous symptom, and the article should speed Britain's determination to offer Canada a preference while there is time.

A New Book

The new book, "When Patty Went to College," by Webster, is undoubtedly the best selling book of the season. Just the book for a Xmas present.

St. Pierre and Miqueton

Montreal, Dec. 7—The Star thinks that the Board of Trade is showing no undue alarm in attempting to awaken the Canadian Government—and through it the British Government —to the danger which undoubtedly threatens us in the possibility that France might sell the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon to the United States. A strong, unmistakable utterance against such a step by even the Canadian Government would probably put a stop to it. For if Britain were once convinced that Canada regarded this point as vital, she would never permit the sale to take place.

As to the peril which would threaten us if the Americans once got hold of these islands we surely know our neighbors well enough to appreciate. There may be a treaty forbidding their fortification; but when did Washington develop any very profound respect for treaty obligations? Certainly since the larceny of the state of Panama from the friendly nation of Colombia was connived at. Then, whether fortified or not, they would afford a shelter for a fleet which could command the sea route from Canada to Britain

But, as a correspondent pointed out yesterday, a still greater danger would lie in the leverage which the possession of the French shore rights by the Americans would give them over the people of Newfoundland. A movement has just been started on the island looking to union with Canada. Give the agitation time; and it may bring about the federation of the last outstanding British colonies on this continent. But if our Uncle Samuel were in a position to offer the settlement of the French shore difficulty as a bait, how easy it would be for him to veto this union with a preferential trade treaty carrying a French shore attachment.

M'GILL TO HAVE NEW DEPARTMENT

Making Arrangements for Students to Learn Railroading

ROADS ARE CO-OPERATING

This is New Departure in Education So Far as Canada is Concerned

Montreal, Dec. 7—Principal Peterson had a conference with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy this morning, and as a result, the railway department, which is proposed in connection with McGill University, is now practically assured

When seen subsequently by a reporter, Dr Peterson said: "You may say with the utmost assurance, that the undertaking will be carried through. That is all I chould care to say now."

In this respect McGill University will inaugurate a departure so far as scholastic institutions of Canada are concerned. Hitherto railway men have not, in the great majority of instances, been college men. Most of those who have achieved distinction, both in Canada and the United States, have risen by dint of their own unaided efforts and after many years of the hardest kind of apprenticeship along practical lines. Most of the operating officials on the two big lines centering in this city, for example, could do almost anything connected with a railway.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy who is now the president of the company possessing the longest continuous line of railway in the world, began railway work as a clerk in the purchasing department of the Milwaukee and St. Paul road. Mr. Charles M. Hays, now general manager of the G.T.R., who has under his personal charge all the details of the construction of the second transcontinental railway, known as the Grand Trunk Pacific, also started railroading in a humble position.

SOUTH AFRICA AS FAVORED NATION

Germany Intimates That the Treatment Will Not be Withdrawn

MEMORIAL IN ST. PAUL'S

Princess Louise Has Undertaken Erection of Bronze for the Cathedral

London, December 7— The Shipping Gazette commenting on Chamberlain's speech on shipping industry, says that Mr. Chamberlain did not explain the increase in the shipping of the United Kingdom, which is really over 1,600,000 tons, and only by the diminution of Canada's old sailing fleet was the lower figure, 1,400,00 0obtained.

THE TALK PEACE BUT SEE NOTHING BUT WAR

German Newspapers Believe That War is Sure to Come

Berlin, Dec. 8—The extreme tension reported in the Russo-Japanese situation almost monopolized the attention of the German press and official world yesterday, and early to-day the danger of war was regarded as greater than even. This feeling was changed, however, by the announcement from Paris that a basis of settlement had been reached. This made the financiers hopeful and prices on the bourse opened strong. Later a tide of alarming despatches quickly reversed the favorable sentiment and stopped the trading absolutely.

In official circles, however, a most hopeful view of the situation is taken, as Great Britain is said to be chiefly anxious to keep Russia engaged until Curzon has completed his tour of the Persian Gulf.

The Washington proposal of a reference to The Hague is attracting much attention. Nevertheless, the foreign office, it is said, believes Russia will not accept.

SOME QUESTIONS SIDETRACKED.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 7 —Enquiry at the foreign office respecting the announcement that a basis of agreement between Russia and Japan had been reached, elicited no information. However, it was admitted the two powers had decided temporarily to put aside questions whose decision was found impracticable. The negotiations, so far as Russia is concerned, were confined to delimiting the railroad and telegraph rights of each power in Korea.

Japan was said to hold the Manchurian question in abeyance, as Russia declined to discuss it on the ground that it was solely a matter between her and China until she ascertains whether a satisfactory arrangement is reached regarding Corea. Russia contends that Japan's treaty rights in Manchuria were secured from China and stand on the same footing as those of the United States and other powers.

Russia's reply to the latest Japanese proposals is still unsent. When it is framed it will not be in the nature ofan ultimatum, and may lead to counter proposals.

It is pointed out that, as political issues are involved, the American suggestion of arbitration is impracticable.

Tokio, Japan, Dec. 7—A meeting of the Shampoto members of the diet today passed a strong resolution denouncing the cabinet's dilatory foreign policy and according the opinion that peace in the far east depends on the evacuation of Manchuria and the opening of the principal ports there. Popular feeling is increasingly in favor of the speedy despatch of an ultimatum to Russia, but the Japanese government is calm and confident.

Montreal, Dec. 7—The first advance in Canadian cottons comes from New Brunswick, the Cornwall and York Cotton Mills Company of St. John announcing an increase of five per cent, which may be followed later by another increase.

The other Canadian mills, including those in and about Montreal, will put the advanced schedule into effect immediately. This move is made necessary owing to the high prices which raw cottons are now bringing with the prospect that it will be months before a material decrease in the prices now ruling.

Some of the managers of the Canadian mills maintain that between the British preferential and the high price of raw cottons they have been doing business at no profit if not at an actual loss, and now that their stocks of raw cottons, bought at lower prices than those now ruling, are about if not all milled, there must be an advance, if they are to keep their mills going.

Halifax, N.S., December 7 — Captain R. J. A. Montgomery, C.B., commanding the British second class cruiser Charybdis, says that while the suggestion that the British and United States fleets should hold joint naval manoeuvres in West Indian waters this winter would be popularly received, he does not think the proposal is within the region of practicability. "For one thing, Great Britain's warships in these waters are all cruisers, we have no battleships. On the other hand, I think that the American manoeuvring fleet would be composed of battleships. Supposing that the British and the American squadrons were to meet for the proposed manoeuvres we would have on our side cruisers, more readily handled, more easily worked and drawing less water than the American battleships. This would be a serious handicap in favor of Britain, and to overcome it Britian would have to send out battleships specially for the purpose to put the two fleets on an equal footing."

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 7— Appleton preachers are advertising thier services. The innovation has been such a success that it is being adopted in other places.

Rev. H. S. Anderson, of the Methodist church here has taken a new tack to make his services more attractive. For the first time in local history a preacher is holding revival meetings which are followed by a luncheon. The meetings have been held every night this week and thus far have been a rousing success.

In announcing the meetings, which he terms special week services, Rev. Mr. Anderson places special stress on the refreshments.

Chicago, December 7— Gustave Marx, the only one of the car barn bandits who when arraigned in court, pleaded guilty, engaged a lawyer yesterday and prepared to change the plea to one of not guilty. It is not probable, therefore, that Marx will be tried as soon as was expected. All of the gang have legal representatives. The bandits will, it is thought, all plead hereditary insanity.

THE OLD MAN'S WISH

Mr. Carnegie Hopes Canada will Annex Uncle Sam

Windsor, Dec. 6—In a letter received by the Windsor St. Andrew's Society, Andrew Carnegie, replying to an invitation some time ago to become a guest of the Windsor Society, says: "Thanks for your kind letter. I regret it is impracticable for me to accept, but convey my greetings to "Brither Scots of St. Andrew's. I earnestly hope that Canada is to play the part of Scotland and annex her southern neighbors some time in the new near future."

SNATCHED THE PAPERS

Curious Action Begun in Hamilton Over an Account

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 4.—Harry Carpenter, a well-known lawyer of this city, has begun an action against Robert Edwards, tinsmith, that is regarded by the local legal fraternity as unusual. It is for recovery of a statement of account and for unstated damages for alleged assault and trespass.

Mr. Carpenter had an old account against Mr. Edwards, which he was trying to collect for his brother, Fred A. Carpenter, hardware marchant, and as there has been a fire in the hardware store some time ago the account had been made up with considerable difficulty Lawyer Carpenter went to Mr. Edwards place of business a couple of days ago with the account, which was only for $50 or $60, and while there, so he alleges, the defendant snatched at the papers in the lawyer's hands and tore off the portion containing a summary of the itemized account. He refused to give it up. Hence the suit.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 4.—While on her way to Vancouver from Union Bay, H. M.S. Flora yesterday morning piled up on the identical rock at Village Point, eDnman Island, which held the big collier Williamette prisoner for nine months a few years ago.

A dense fog prevailed, and in the cloudy atmosphere the navigating officer issaid to have mistaken his beacons. The Flora is half full of water, and appears to have driven high on the rock at almost the lowest stage of the tide, immediately listing over with her bow fast out of the water andher stern fully ten feet submerged. The position is most dangerous.

Several hundred tons of coal and other supplies are being removed in order to facilitate efforts to free the ship at the rising of the tide.

STRIKE STILL ON

Quebec, Dec. 4.—After a protracted discussion last night the boot and shoe employes decided that the employers offer was not satisfactory, and this morning they did not return to work as expected.

Quebec, December 4—Not withstanding the announcement officially made last night by the employes of the boot and shoe industries the men failed to turn up at the factories this morning. It is stated that a meeting was held last night and that after a protracted discussion, the men decided that the settlement was not acceptable.

UNION AND ANARCHY

Striker Declared to be on Same Plane as Deserter from Army

Chicago, Dec. 5—"It is a blot on the civilization to which we belong, that in this city of Chicago, people who are employed by a nonunion party, who desire their work from day to day, are not permitted to do it; that they walk about in this community as citizens do in a city where there is a revolution; that they meet not only insult but physical violence, as they have by pickets in this vparticular strike or lockout, whatever you may call it, from its inception to the present time."

Speaking from the bench, Judge Holdom made this statement to officers and members of Franklin union, No. 4, of pressfeeders, who are defending the union against a prosecution for contempt brought by the Chicago Typothetae. The prosecution is the outcome of the trouble between the publishers and the pressfeeders, which has been going on for several months, and by which one man has been killed, several crippled, while girls whose only fault was that they have tried to earn their living, have been creelly beaten.

HER EXCELLENCY'S VISIT TO JAPAN

Record of Impressions Received in the Flowery Kingdom

LAND OF GREAT BEAUTY

Wonderful Advances Made by the Japs- - They are Both Enterprising and Aesthetic

Montreal, December 7—Her Excellency who arrived in Montreal yesterday evening to attend St. Andrew's Ball, has but recently returned from Japan, which she visited, accompanied by her two daughters, Lady Eileen Elliot and Lady Ruby.

The country, and its clever little inhabitants Her Excellency considers quite marvellous in many respects. It is difficult, without actually paying a visit there, to form an adequate idea of its unusual beauty, its sunshine and flowers and striking cleanliness, or of its people who are imbued with poetical and artistic inspirations, yet display an energy and spirit of progress worthy of the most up-to-date Americans.

In Japan the paper screens in a poor workingman's house bear decorations that well-to-do Canadians would envy. Great artists in Japan have written books upon the artistic arrangement of flowers. It is the land of fascinating Geisha girls and of flower fetes that are beautiful beyond description. At these festivals masses of flowers are arranged everywhere, thousands of lanterns twinkle behind softly-colored shades, multitudes of quaintly-clad, happy people promenade with much soft laughter and the clatter of shoes, and, over all, there is the music of Japanese harps in the radiance of Japanese moonlight. It is a land where grown people ascribe qualities to flowers much as a child of poetic imagination would do with us, where they can distinguish between varities of a flower by calling one "glint of the moonbeam."

HAS AN EFFECTIVE ARMY.

Yet this same Japan has an effective army and navy that are, to use Her Excellency's own words, "wonderfully organized." Its Government has established kindergartens and a school system modelled on ours; they have imitated our railways, our business methods and even our telephone girls, but the marvel of the land is that, while they have taken the best of our modern inventions, they have had sufficient metal balance and native appreciation of art to retain the former thoroughness and distinctive qualities of their arts and handicrafts. Her Excellency, who is herself an artist, particularly admired this feature of Japan's industrial life. Ordinary weavers or embroiderers in a Japanese workshop will work for months upon one piece of work frequently originating their own designs, and no one there considers this remarkable. Even their most modern work is carefully and beautifully done.

Victoria, B.C., December 7 — H.M.S. Flora, of the Esquimalt Squadron, which while returning from Union after loading 800 tons of bunker coal, stranded heavily on Village Point, Payne Sound, four miles from Union, during a fog, will probably be a total wreck. She lies on a shelving ledge of rock, with her bow high out of the water and her stern submerged ten feet. Six hundred tons of coal shipped on Tuesday, together with a lot of stores, are being removed, but the work is made difficult owing to the sharp angle at which the vessel lies.

When the ship struck her scuttles were open, and it is said that through these the water rushed at a rate wholly uncontrollable. The officers' quarters being all situated in the stern, the gold-braided men of the ship were at once flooded out, and it is likely will be forced to take refuge on board the admiral's steamer.

Rear-Admiral Bickford and H. F. Bullen, one of the proprietors of the British Columbia Salvage Company, have gone to the scene of the disaster by special train. The Egeria proceeded from Esquimalt last evening, and the flagship, H. M. Crafton, will leave at once for Denman Island.

St. Paul, Dec. 7—Consumption is to be classed with all contagious diseases, if an ordinance prepared by Dr. E. H. Whitcomb, assemblyman, is passed by the council. The order provides that all physicians shall report cases of tuberculosis, to the health commissioner. Consumptives or their keepers, who break the sanitary rules of the health department will be liable to punishment. Houses where consumptives have died or from which they have been moved will be placarded with the information that they are infected.

JAPAN MAY WIN IN THE STRUGGLE WITH RUSSIA

Leading French Paper Says That She Will More Than Hold Her Own

Paris, Dec. 7—La Temps, in an article on the Eastern situation, says: "We suspect that the Japanese newspaper that pretends to report what Admiral Alexieff said to the Russian staff at Port Arthur has made a very shrewd guess at the interior of the Russian viceroy's mind. The admiral is represented as saying that the Japanese navy probably would annihilate the Russian fleet in the second engagement. His idea seems to be that the Japanese ships would retire from a first severe and indeterminate conflict to refit their vessels in their own navy yards. The Russians have not enough docks in the North Pacific even to make the repairs required at present by their warships. It would be impossible to refit after a first engagement; so they would have to meet Japanese ships restored to full efficiency with their own in a crippled condition. Probably the result would not be unlike the battle of Santiago.

This particularizes the general judgment that Japan would be victorious at sea, unless England left her in the lurch again and the French navy was added to the Russian. There have been vague stories that the German Emperor would warn Great Britain against keeping her treaty with Japan; but the German Empperor seems likely to have private preoccupations. It looks more and more as if the one chance of Japan's national life will be lost if she do not seize the opportunity of war. A complete naval victory and command of the coast should permit her to throw an army into Corea, and then negotiate on a basis of each power keeping what it has.

LICENSE REGULATIONS

Interesting Circular from the Department in Toronto

The Times has been requested to publish the following—

The Provincial Secretary's Department has issued to the License Inspectors of the Province an important circular with regard to thirty-day permits Under the statute inspectors are permitted to issue such permits in case of a hotelkeeper desiring to immediately transfer his license to another party. Thus the latter is not obliged to wait until the monthly meeting of the License Commissioners before obtaining possession, although the transfer must be finally ratified by the Board. It has been found that undesirable persons obtain permits in this way, and by immediately spending money on the promises render it difficult for the Board to cancel the mit at the expiration of thirty days.

The circular advises more care in the public interest as to the character of those to whom transfers of license are made, and to that end it is suggested that it is inadvisable to continue the issue of thirty-day permits, and that an application for a transfer should wait until the Board has had a full opportunity of considering the application and all the surrounding circumstances before he is allowed to exercise in any way the privileges of a license

Moreover, when an application for a permit or provisional consent is made the License Board should, in every case, be notified and in very case the reason fully reported before any such permit is given.

Inspectors are directed in every case to make the fullest enquiries as to the fitness of the applicants, and especially to obtain from the inspector of the district in which the person who is seeking the license or transfer resides, a written statement as to the fitness of any such applicant so far as known.

The attention of inspectors is also called to the fact that there is much complaint of Saturday night and Sunday selling. This practice is not only utterly illegal, but it is entirely opposed to the sentiments of the public and must be stamped out. Inspectors are urged to exercise the utmost vigilance to prevent violation of the law, and to prosecute those guilty of the infraction of it.

THE C.P.R.S SUCCESS

Consolidated Stock Will be Underwritten at 106

Montreal, Dec. 7—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy the President of the C.P.R. announced today that he had been informed by the financial agents of the Company in London, that the entire amount of $12,000,0000 worth of the four per cent. consolidated debenture stock, authorized by the shareholders at the last annual meeting would be underwritten at 106 during the next ten days. The money will be utilized as follows: Cost of Atlantic steamships, fifteen vessels, £1,417,500; cost of 471 miles of additional rail way lines constructed and acquired £1,385,500, total, £2,803,000

THE AMERICANS FEARED EUROPEAN INTERFERENCE

A Total Wreck, Freight Irrain Blown Up, Other Interesting News

Washington, D.C., December 7—It has become known today that when Rear Admiral Evans was ordered two weeks ago to go to Honolulu with the Asiatic fleet on what was called a "practice cruise," the administration feared some European power might try to interfere in Isthmian affairs and had planned to assemble every available warship in Isthmian waters. Admiral Evans was ordered to await instructions at Honolulu, with the intimation he might be sent to the Isthmus. Fear of foreign interference has now disappeared and today an order was sent to Evans to return to Yokohama.

Dover, Del., December 7— A Pennsylvania Railway freightrain on the Delaware railway was blown up by dynamite Wednesday. The crew were killed and fifteen cars were destroyed.

As a result of the explosion 70 dwellings in the town of Greenwood show damages to the extent of $70,460. Two freight trains and their contents on the Pennsylvania Railway were totally destroyed, entailing an estimated damage of $120,000. Three tramps who were riding in a box car near where the explosion occurred and where the fire was the fiercest, are believed to have been burned to death.

New York, December 7—Dr. Andrew L. Neiden announces that the ear grafting which he began on Nov. 18, in Philadelphia, has proved an absolute success. It is the first time in the history of surgery, as far as records go, that the grafting of an ear has been accomplished. The identity of the patient, who is known to be a rich Western man, is still kept a secret. Except for a slight swelling and inflammation the ear has a perfectly normal appearance. From the lobe to the tip there is no indication that the tissues have shrunk and the healthy redness of the member shows that complete circulation has been established. The scars of the stitches which held the ear to the patient's head are still apparent, but Dr. Neiden says they will not be visible when wounds heal. The man who sold his ear for $5,000 is in the private sanitarium at Philadelphia, where the operation was performed. He will be released in two days, and will go to his home near Pittsburg, where his wife and child await him.

Wadena, Minn., Dec. 7—Rev. Arthur Heathcote will eat his Christmas dinner in the county jail at Fergus Falls.

The clergyman was brought before Judge Sedgwick on the charge of beating his wife and was found guilty and fined $25 or thirty days in jail. He is without friends and was taken to Fergus Falls.

Heathcote is a member of an illustrious family in England, his father being an old and [illegible] clergyman in the Church of England, and has travelled extensively. He is the father of two children. The family is in poor circumstances.

Baltimore, Md., Dec., 7— Among the notable marriages to take place this winter is that of Miss Mary Peter to Augustus John Philbin Gallagher. Miss Peter is the daughter of Mrs. Edwin J. Farber, the wife of a prominent lawyer, by her first husband, from whom she secured a divorce. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Martha Washington and of John Francis Mercer, the fourth Governor of Maryland, and is one of the most charming and attractive girls in the younger set. Since her debut two years ago she has made a host of friends.

Mr Gallagher is prominently connected in Philadelphia and New York. He is a noted gold enthusiast and has won over twenty trophies.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 7—The steamer Iyo Maru, which arrived today from the Orient, brought Captain and Mrs Hoestadt of the wrecked American ship Benjamin A. Sewall. Captain Hoestadt confirms the report that ten of the crew were killed by savages off Tobago Island near the Formosan coast. Searching parties found two of the men belonging to the mate's boat, which had fallen into the hands of the natives. These men, William Reinwald, and Julian Calco, had been kept alive to carry wood. When found they were naked, their bodies sore and blistered.

Butler, Pa., December 5—Up to noon today 1,143 cases of typhoid fever had been reported to the representatives of the State board of health. Probably there are 100 unreported cases in the town.

There was one death and several new cases today, but the belief is general among the Butler physicians that the worst is over, and from now on there will be fewer cases of fever developed.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

SUGAR BEET RAISING

The experimental stage seems to have been passed in the growing of sugar beets in Canada. It has proved a most gratifying success. Nor must the average return of a whole section for the first year or two be deemed a correct estimate of what the soil will yield, for first experiments are always expected to show considerable improvement as knowledge through experience becomes generally diffused.

The closing session of the sugar beet convention was held recently at Bridgeport, Ont. It was, says a Berlin report, the most largely attended of the three sessions, and was also the most interesting and profitable from a beet-growers' standpoint. Dr. James Mills, President of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was in attendance and conducted the session. An informal discussion took place as to whether the growing of sugar beets had proved profitable during the past season. Dr. Mills, in his opening remarks, said he regarded the Germans of Waterloo county as the best settlers in Canada, and that Berlin was the most suitable place for a sugar refinery, on account of being in the midst of a German settlement. The success of the sugar industry depended on the regular supply of beets by the farmers, the management of the refinery and the price of sugar. He regarded the pulp of the sugar beet as one of the best fattening foods in existence. Dr. Mills then questioned the farmers regarding the results of the season.

One farmer, living three miles from Berlin, had 25 acres and his expenses amounted to $251.51. He will receive in the neighborhood of $1,500 for his beets, at the rate of about $5.25 per ton. Another farmer, raised ten acres, and hauled to the factory 130 tons, which netted him about $650. His expenses were $147. The general opinion of the farmers present was that the raising of sugar beets was profitable. It is not likely that the farmers who asked for $4.50 per ton for beets, will cease growing beets, in the face of the facts from the farmers at the convention.

YOUNG MR. ROCKEFELLER IN DEEP WATER

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the richest young man in America, has a bothersome problem on his hands. The expense of his Bible class are $15 a week, and he can't, apparently, raise that amount. He has presented a plan of procedure to his class that he hopes will enable him to get the money, but there is nothing certain about it, and he admits that the problem troubles him.

Perhaps his experience in this matter will give young Mr. Rockefeller a faint idea of what would confront him were he suddenly thrown upon his own resources and had to start in the world with nothing.

But more astonishing than young Mr. Rockefeller's inability to raise the $15 a week for his Bible class was his admission last Sunday that he had made a mistake in figuring up his expenses. Here is a young man who is looked upon as the heir to a fortune of perhaps $1,000,000,000. He is said to have been given a thorough training as a capitalist by his father, and he blunders in the financial management of a $15-a-week Bible class. This is startling—almost appalling. What if when his father's millions are confided to his care he should add up the wrong column, as he did his Bible class figures, and base his calculations upon unwarranted tools? That the stability of our financial institutions may be assured might it not be well for John D., Jr., to take a course in some night school or business college before it is too late.

PHYSICAL TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS

About the best thing that has yet been hit upon in connection with the public schools is the care that is being bestowed on the physical condition of the children. In the larger cities of the United States and to some extent in Canada children are being examined for physical defects and appropriate measures are being taken to remedy them as far as possible. If nothing more was done than to promote the habit of deep breathing, that would be a hygienic reform of the first importance. We doubt if anything could be done by public authority that would contribute more to the wealth and happiness of the community. Until human beings are placed in full possession of their physical faculties and in full enjoyment of their natural functions, they do not know how good a place the world is. With more of genuine good health in the world, more of something approaching physical perfection, there would be less craving for artificial enjoyments and probably less craving for wealth. If the schools will, in addition to making the children practice deep breathing, cultivate their speaking voices and teach them to walk well, the effect in a few years will be marvellous. We shall see a new race springing up with an average of health, strength, good looks and good nature visibly superior to that of their immediate predecessors, and probably to that of any earlier age. We hope this great reform will be pressed forward, even if a little time has to be stolen from grammatical analysis and brain-twisting arithmetic.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

An advance in the price of cotton is a sure sign that it is time to put on flannels.

The Kingston house surgeons who went on strike must have been nerve specialists.

When the Countess of Yarmouth stepped from the train at Pittsburg, the other day she nodded to the Thaw family's coachman and said: "Hello, George." No doubt the poor lady was glad to get back where she could call somebody by his first name.

Mr. O'Grady, who represents English labor unions here, declares that the injunction is "the bane of the English workman" the same as of the American. Of course. Yet nobody has ever heard of an injunction to prevent any man from being idle if he wanted to be, or from working either. In fact, the injunction is absolutely powerless except against that which is unlawful. Is the workingman unlawful? If not, how can the injunction be his "bane"?

FREIGHT SHEDS BURNED

Schenectady, N.Y., Dec. 4.—The freight house and sheds of the New York Central Railroad Company in this city were totally destroyed by fire this morning, together with an immense amount of freight, the value of which it is almost impossible to estimate. The only means the fire department had of fighting the fire was with water obtained from the Erie Canal, with two fire engines. The city has been without a drop of water in its mains since 9 o'clock yesterday morning on account of a break-down at the pumping station, which disabled both pumps and shut off entirely the city's supply.

RURAL DELIVERY IS COSTLY

Expenditure is Almost Five Times the Revenue

Washington, Dec. 4.—The value of the stamps borne on the mails collected by rural carriers during six months of the last fiscal year amounted to about $930,000, while the pay of these same rural carriers for that period was about $4,500,000, or nearly five times as much. This is an important contribution to the discussion of the profitableness of rural free delivery. Cancellation, while by no means an accurate test of business, forms for practical purposes a very good guide. Each piece of mail resembles a street car passenger who uses a transfer; it pays its way to the first agency of the postal service which it meets, and the payment is represented by the cancellation. Subsequent stages of the journey are made on free transfers, as it were.

The inaccuracy of the cancellation test comes from the fact that patrons of the rural free delivery routes send less mail than they receive. How much less is readily shown by the department statistics. Carriers took to them in the period under review six times as many pieces as were collected, but as two-thirds of these were newspapers or publications going at the pound rate, then revenues were not greatly affected. Of letters which pay ninety-three cents a pound—because so few of them weigh the full ounce—the patrons of the rural mail routes mailed 41,000,000, and received 61,000,000. They thus answer about two-thirds of the letters they receive.

Roughly, then, rural cancellations may be estimated as representing not far from two-thirds of the total business going and coming between these and the rest of the service. The business originating and ending within the rural zone does not affect materially this calculation. Therefore, when the Post-Office Department tells us that the average cancellation per month on each rural route was $11.32, and the average pay of the carrier for the same period $49.78, it is fair to say that a fifty-dollar man is doing about a fifteen-dollar business. It is the way it would be looked at by the commercial world. It must also be remembered that the rural delivery service is an extremely small part of the whole postal establishment. The Government has many other services to perform for each letter before it reaches its destination.

A LIBEL SUIT

J. Bidwell Mills of Hamilton Sues the Daily Herald

Hamilton, Dec. 4.—J. Bidwell Mills whose family figured somewhat prominently in the public eye at the time of the murder of Policeman Barron, issued a writ against the Hamilton Herald Printing Company at noon today for $20,000 damages for alleged libel. Mr. Mills issued the writ personally.

The alleged libel consisted in a statement in the Herald a few weeks ago to the effect that the police had put the plaintiff's son, William, through the "Third Degree," and had concluded that he and the other members of the Mills family knew nothing further about the Barron murder than had already been made public.

U. S. INTENTION

Washington, Dec. 4.—Representative Livernash, of California, introduced a joint resolution to-day, "defining the intention of the United States concerning the Isthmus of Panama." It disclaims, on his part of the United States, any intention to impair Colombian sovereignty, or to support the Republic of Panama against Colombia, or to interfere in the relations between Colombia and Panama.

FERROZONE

Furnishes in a convenient form, a Tonic-Laxative which cures Constipation and a host of other diseases more or less common

The entire length of the intestinal canal can be gently and thoroughly cleansed of all foul decaying matter, by taking Ferrozone after each meal.

Ferrozone helps the kidneys and liver to their work, and by preventing the pores of the skin from being clogged up, it clears and beautifies the complexion. Ferrozone relieves irritation and pressure on the tissues of the brain and nerve centres, and insures a healthy vigorous condition of mind and body.

The great merit of Ferrozone is that it instantly relieves constipation, and permanently cures it without interference with business or pleasure, and never causes inconvenience or distress. It keeps all the bodily functions regular, and is the only medicine for constipation that acts gently, acts quickly, acts surely, without grip or grippe.

Ferrozone will keep the entire family in perfect health. It regulates the bowels, cures headache and stomach troubles, and effectually cleanses the blood from all impurities. It builds up muscle and sinew, strengthens debilitated constitutions, and permanently remedies all manner of skin blemishes.

Ferrozone is especially efficacious in cases of over-work, headache, brain fag, torpid liver, weak memory, and melancholia. It relieves that "tired feeling," and puts elasticity into every movement. Ferrozone gives strength to the regenerative organs, and for the relief of nervous prostration, nervous debility, or decline of mental or physical power, is certainly superior to any curative agent the world has ever seen.

The range of adaptability of Ferrozone is simply wonderful. It is entirely vegetable in composition, and quite free from any possibility of injurious effect even under long continued use. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, and no uncertainty or mistake as to the proper quantity or dose can ever arise.

Ferrozone is recommended and sold by all druggists, price 50 cts. a box, or three boxes for $1.25. Remember the name and see that the genuine Ferrozone is supplied. Refuse a substitute. Sent safely by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors. Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stock holders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers' profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing these with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber: builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

The Leading Specialists of America. 25 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects.

The DRAINS, either by night losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped, the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. United States and Panama.

A little while ago The New York Tribune, discussing Canada's protest in regard to the Alaska award, and like most United States papers, basing its remarks upon a misconception of the reasons for this country's attitude, expressed the opinion that somewhere in Canada existed a county of Buncombe, stretching from Halifax to Toronto. To-day, The Tribune—not alone, of course, there are plenty of others—is desperately engaged in defending the action of the United States Government in recognizing the Panama revolutionists within forty-eight hours of their uprising. Not only does The Tribune defend the Roosevelt Administration, of which it is supposed to be the particular mouthpiece, but it is exceedingly angry with those newspapers and publicists who dare to condemn the action of the President and his advisers. The idea of anyone venturing to question the right of the President to order the naval force of the United States to actively assist the revolutionists, because that is what the situation now amounts to, arouses The Tribune's ire as much as did the energetic protests of Canadians against what they believed to be a wrong. And so The Tribune is calling for a continuation of the "firm attitude" adopted by the Administration, and doubtless is willing that every ship in the navy should be sent to the scene to deal with the Colombian fleet, consisting of a former trading vessel, the Bogota. The Tribune need scarcely be alarmed regarding naval developments. The United States navy is not likely to receive any damage other than it may inflict upon itself, and the Colombian fleet has by this time no doubt found refuge in a creek. The almost insurmountable difficulties of getting troops overland from the interior of Colombia to the Isthmus, make it unlikely that the United States army, which is reported by the Associated Press to be eager to show what it can do, will be called upon to furnish even a corporal's guard. So that the risks to the United States are practically nil; there is nothing to prevent the carrying out of the "new diplomacy."

It is from a Tribune editorial of Saturday last that the following significant editorial as to the future relations of the United States to the new republic—and other republics—is taken:—"It is probable that the effort to maintain a national existence in Panama, separate from Colombia, would in the long run have a doubtful chance of success without the friendly regard and virtual protection of the United States. With protection there must, of course, be a measure of authority. We have already assumed such a suzerainty in definite terms over the republic of Cuba. The application of the Monroe doctrine in the countries within our immediate sphere of influence, around the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico, will ultimately make its extension to them inevitable. The time is now opportune for the establishment of it, in unmistakable language, in whatever final terms we shall make with the republic through whose territory we expect to construct an interoceanic canal."

As has been intimated, all United States journals do not see eye to eye with The Tribune, though some who denounced the idea of recognising the revolutionists before official action was taken have changed their opinions since. Their change of front recalls the old story told of a certain Canadian editor, who was a staunch supporter of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. A day or two before that statesman announced his adherence to a certain line of action on a momentous question this editor published a stinging article against the very policy Sir John was preparing to adopt. When the announcement came by telegraph to his office, the editor read it sheet by sheet, and finally murmured, "It's a —— sharp turn, but I guess we can make it." Whereupon he wrote an editorial fully approving of Sir John's decision. Still, there are many who stand by their opinions, and from their editorials the following extracts are taken:—

The Evening Post, New York:—"Who could have imagined that an American Administration would make the Jameson raid look respectable? But that is precisely what the Government at Washington has done. Dr. Jameson could at least pretend to be actuated by humane motives; this mad plunge of ours is simply and solely a vulgar and mercenary venture, without a rag to cover its sordidness and its shame. All the filibusters and despoilers that ever lived are entitled to canonization, if such proceedings are to go unrebuked. At one stroke, President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay have thrown to the winds the principles for which this nation was ready to go to war in the past, and have committed the country to a policy which is ignoble beyond words. . . . And this blow below the belt is dealt by the vociferous champion of fair play! This overriding of the rights of the weaker is the work of the advocate of 'a square deal'! The preacher to the bishops has shown that, for him at least, private morality has no application to public affairs. But Congress is to meet. If the President is careless of the national honor, and is ready at a word to launch us upon unknown seas, the duty of Congress is but the more imperative. Let this scandal be thrown open to the public gaze. Let committees of inquiry draw out the details of this miserable intrigue—this cooked-up republic, of which the offices were openly hawked about in advance—the Presidency itself being refused by one man on the ground that those offering it were a 'set of d—d rascals.' And when all is laid bare, let Congress and the country decide if we are ready to tie our fortunes, and commit our fame, to a policy beside which the Walker filibusters appear like Christian statesmen."

The New York American:—"President Roosevelt's act has not even the excuse of emergency to justify it. Congress meets day after to-morrow, and so absolute a reversal of our traditional policy might well have been deferred until the national Legislature could give it consideration. But the President knew that even a Republican Congress would not endorse such a course to a friendly sister republic as that to which he has chosen to commit the country. There have been scores of revolutions in South and Central America, but never before has the United States countenanced a rebellion from its very inception. In Chili a dozen years ago there was a rebellion, and although the insurgents had possession of most of the country, the navy, and held the principal cities, while it administered the Government, the United States withheld its recognition until there was actually no other Government in Chili but that of the revolutionists. It may seem like deep diplomacy to Secretary Hay to have produced the present situation in the Isthmus, but Americans who are jealous of the honor of this country will have another and less complimentary term for it. Those who remember how the Federal Government and the people of the north felt toward England when she allowed the Alabama to be built and armed and turned over to the Confederates can appreciate how the Colombians must now regard this country. We were able to exact payment of millions from England for the injury done us when she aided the secession movement. Colombia will hardly have that solace, but from this time no country of South or Central America will have faith in the protestations of friendship made by the great republic of the north."

The New York World:—"There is thus set up, practically by the United States, a nation of the area of Maine and of 300,000 people—a nation smaller and more vulnerable by its position than any other Central or South American State, yet holding potentially the most important commercial and military point on the continent, subject to large transit rights confirmed to the United States by treaty. For such a power so situated unaided to maintain its independence would be impossible. And the peculiar position of our country as its sole protector will present to a certain type of official mind a constant temptation to further territorial aggrandizement of the sort that has already so disastrously involved the country in the Pacific."

The New York Times holds that the Spooner act of 1902 "directed what the President should do in case he should be 'unable to obtain for the United States the control of the necessary territory of the Republic of Colombia and the rights mentioned (being the rights required for construction and maintenance) within a reasonable time and upon reasonable terms. He must then proceed to secure the necessary rights from Nicaragua and Costa Rica and proceed to the construction of a canal by what is 'commonly known as the Nicaragua route.' It is the plain interpretation of the act, to which we have already called attention, that the 'reasonable time' within which the President could come to terms with Colombia expired with the refusal of Colombia to ratify the treaty containing those terms within the period fixed by the treaty itself. The duty of the President is the plainer now that he has acknowledged formally that Colombia has lost the control which she had already refused to cede to the United States. The condition on which the act of 1902 directed that the President should take up the Nicaragua route is clearly fulfilled."

Prior to recognition, and while it was being discussed, The Chicago Inter Ocean said:—"In previous revolutions great care has been taken to favor neither contestant. The same care should be taken in this case. The Government is placed in an embarrassing position, but it can no more evade the responsibility than it could have evaded the responsibility two years ago and four years ago. In short, the United States must act without reference to the Panama canal or any isthmian canal."

The Springfield (Mass.) Daily Republican expressed this opinion:—"But our own Government's duty is clear, however much the people of Panama may be justified in their course, concerning which two opinions perhaps are possible. The United States is in honor bound to do nothing to encourage this revolution and to maintain an impartial, neutral position between the belligerents, leaving the rebels to establish their independence unaided, if they can."

Public Opinion, New York, of Thursday, November 5, prior to the announcement of the recognition, said:—"Panama's revolt may be justified by the treatment this portion of Colombia has received at the hands of the Bogota Government; secession may be a good thing for the isthmus and a fortunate thing for us. But the comment we give on another page on the proposal that the United States shall openly encourage and actively assist in securing independence for Panama as a means of obtaining the canal concession on our own terms—this comment is sufficiently conclusive evidence that public opinion will not approve any step which would place this country on a plane with the most conscienceless of South American filibusters."

It will be interesting to watch the action of Congress on the question. It looks very much as though the Cuban reciprocity treaty, for the consideration of which the extraordinary session has been called, will meet with strong opposition, and the opponents are not unlikely to make a big fight against the Panama complication, notwithstanding the evident desire of the Administration to avoid more than a perfunctory discussion.

Jordan and the Dead Sea.

The Daily Graphic of October [illegible] had the following from a correspondent, who desired to refute many "false and foolish reports" regarding the Dead Sea.—Since the earthquake in Palestine last April, someone circulated the story that the mouth of the River Jordan had been so affected by the shock that the level of the river had been altered to such an extent that at the place where the historic river goes into the Dead Sea there was now a waterfall of considerable depth and strength. This is altogether false, and no change whatever has taken place at or near the mouth of the Jordan. The writer has just spent some days there, and made it his special business to investigate this matter. Much has also appeared from time to time in papers and periodicals about steamboats navigating the Dead Sea. This, too, is a fabrication. The only boat on the Dead Sea is a small sailing boat about twenty feet long, the crew consisting of one man and his boy. This vessel makes trips, as the wind allows, from the north end of the sea to the bay on the eastern side of the tongue that divides the water near the middle. Here at this terminus some Jews are located. The whole concern is, in fact, in the hands of Jews, who, at a low rate, buy wheat and barley from the Arabs, to be delivered on the seashore. From there it is shipped to the Jericho side, and carried on donkeys to Jerusalem, where it finds a ready sale at a good price. When adverse winds blow, the little craft is in danger of being swamped, for the so-called Dead Sea becomes a living mass of waves. The writer recently spent four nights, such as never will be forgotten, on these waters, and the smartness of the old man at the helm and his boy with the sails saved us from being wrecked again and again. A charge of one medjedie (three shillings and fourpence) a trip is made for each passenger, and for such a unique voyage it is not exorbitant. There is some talk about a small steam tug being put on the sea, but the authorities are loth to grant permission. It will be a great boon when, if ever, it does arrive, as it will bring the east and west sides of Jordan nearer to one another for communication and trading purposes.

Mixed the Babies.

The court of Amsterdam has a strange lawsuit before it. As far back as February of last year a newly-born child was taken from its mother's care to be reared in an incubator. In accordance with medical advice the infant was packed in wadding and hurried to the hospital, where the incubators stand ready to receive weakly babes. Meanwhile, in compliance with Dutch law, the father had the birth of a son registered, and the child was given the name of Franciscus Gerardus, there and then. At the hospital a receipt was taken for the baby boy, and he was put into one of the incubators. Some weeks passed, and the parents received notice that their child was well enough to be taken away. Imagine the father's surprise when he went to fetch his son to have a baby girl thrust into his arms. The hospital nurse declared some mistake had been made by the parents. The parents, nurse and other witnesses declared the mistake was on the part of the hospital authorities. The baby girl was not wanted by the parents of the missing baby boy, and nobody else owned her. The father took proceedings against the Mayor of the city, and claimed two hundred and forty pounds damage for his lost son. During the time the child was in the incubator the outside of the machine was painted, and according to the plaintiff's advocate, the cards on which are written the particulars regarding the inmates were mixed up.

Piano-making in Germany.

According to a United States Consul, the manufacture of pianos in Germany has reached a state of perfection attained by no other nation. Admitting that in other countries particular firms produce instruments which in every respect are equal to the best German make, it is claimed that as an industry, considering the number of factories and the high exports to nearly every country in the world, the manufacturers of the German Empire are a long distance in advance of all their rivals. In spite of the enormous sale of pianos every year within the limits of the empire, the manufacturers are dependent upon the markets of foreign countries for the sale of fully one-half of the number produced. The success of the German pianos is due to the fact that they are cheap, comparatively speaking. Two hundred and fifty dollars (say £50) will buy a very fine upright piano in Germany. The construction is always apace with the latest art designs, special attention being paid to the woodwork. They not only present an elegant appearance, but are solid and durable. There are 485 piano factories in Germany, which manufacture 60,000 instruments annually. One hundred and forty factories are located in Berlin, twenty-seven in Stuttgart, twenty-one in Dresden, sixteen in Leipsic, fifteen in Hamburg, ten in Leignitz, nine in Zeitz, while the rest are located in Dresden, Munich, Halle and Brunswick. During the past twenty years the export of ready-made pianos and parts has increased from $1,500,000 to $6,110,000. Great Britain is at present Germany's best customer, buying over 40 per cent. of the total exports. Previously to 1890 Argentine was the best market for German pianos, especially for those made in Halle. Australia is also a chief market.

Under the Ice.

Captain Joseph La Barge, one of the early pilots of the Missouri River, was noted for his courage and daring. In the winter of 1834 he experienced the following adventure, which is recorded in the "History of Steamboat Navigation on the Missouri River," by Mr. H. M. Chittenden. He had occasion to cross the river, which was frozen deep. There was a path across, which ran between two large air-holes through the ice. The weather was extremely cold, and a blizzard had already begun.

Captain La Barge wrapped himself in a blanket coat, held tight to his body by a belt, and was armed with a rifle, tomahawk and knife. He felt confident of crossing all right, for the distance was short, and he knew the way so well that he felt as if he could follow it blindfolded. In fact, that was practically his situation, for the wind drove the snow into his face so violently that it was impossible to look ahead. Getting his bearings as well as he could, he started on a slow run in face of the blinding storm.

It was in any case a reckless performance, considering the existence of the air-holes near the path; but La Barge was not given to fearing future dangers, and forged boldly ahead. For once his confidence deceived him. All of a sudden he plunged headlong into the river.

He instantly realized that he was in one of the air-holes, but which one? If it was the lower one he was certainly lost, for the swift current had borne him under the ice before he came to the surface. If it was the upper hole, he might float to the lower.

He soon rose to the surface and bumped the overlying ice. Sinking and rising again, he bumped the ice a second time. The limit of endurance was almost reached, when suddenly his head emerged into the open air. Spreading out his hands, he caught the edge of the ice. He held on until he could draw his knife, which he plunged into the ice far enough to give him something to pull against, and after much severe and perilous exertion drew himself out. He had stuck to his rifle all the time without realizing the fact, and came out as fully armed as when he went in.

But now a new peril awaited him. The storm was at its height, the cold intense, and his clothing was drenched through. The bath which he had received had not chilled him much, for the water was warmer than the air outside, and his exertions would have kept him warm anyway, but out in the wind the chances were that he would freeze if he did not quickly reach a fire. Hastily recovering his bearings, he set out anew, and had the good fortune to reach the post without further trouble.

A Water Contest.

A story in which a pointer's loyalty, persistence and foolhardiness are mixed in about equal proportions is quoted below from the New York "Sun." Pointers are not naturally good water dogs, but some of the breed, as sportsmen know, come near perfection, and such an exception is a dog owned by a Texan named Burleson.

One night Mr. Burleson shot a wild goose which was flying over to its night retreat in a salt bay. The bird was wing-tipped, came down on a long slant and fell into a tank a quarter of a mile out. The dog did not notice it.

The next morning Mr. Burleson was walking over the prairie with the dog and found the bird quietly swimming in a pond not more than a quarter of an acre in extent, but deep. It was in perfect condition, except for its slight wound, a large gander, and very powerful.

The dog recognized instantly that it was a wounded bird, and plunged in without a word of command. For a little while the gander kept out of the way, but it was finally penned in a corner. Then it dived, went under the dog and came up five yards away.

The dog resumed the chase, and the unequal contest was kept up for a quarter of an hour. The dog dived time after time, but of course could not catch its active adversary. Soon it was swimming with its nostrils barely out of water, and once or twice they went under. It was deaf to all commands. Its final drowning was only a matter of minutes.

Mr. Burleson had no gun. As a last recourse he gathered a little pile of stones from the edge of the pond and began hurling them at the gander. Finally, by chance, he struck it on the back near the base of the neck and stunned it for a moment. In that moment the dog closed and grasped it.

The dog was so tired that it could do nothing with the bird, but its hold kept its head out of water while the gander thrashed it with its wings. The battling pair, the distressful snortings of the dog mingled with the hoarse calls of the gander, fought their way to within ten feet of the bank, and Mr. Burleson jumped in. The water came to his armpits when he reached them, but he grabbed the gander, took the dog in one hand and the bird in the other, and brought them ashore. The pointer was too exhausted to stand, but fell on the pebbly shore and lay there panting.

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U.S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

Her blue eyes were full of a shy happiness, and her heart thrilled with almost thanksgiving for the love that had brought new glory to her life.

Frank felt like one in a dream.

He seemed to grasp nothing of what was going on.

The words, so impressively uttered, came to him like a far-off echo.

"——and, forsaking all others keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live?"

There followed a dead silence.

He tried to frame the response, but his lips seemed set, like stone.

There was a slight stir among the guests.

All eyes were fixed upon him, and the "best man," bewildered at the bridegroom's silence stepped forward and tried to prompt him.

Some inward power held Frank mute.

In this hour, he could not forget what Gretchen had been to him—the troth he had plighted and had broken

In spite of the sudden, sharp break in the chain that had bound them, he might still have loved, and comforted, and honored her—he might have been true to her, he might have saved her from the wild passions which had made such havoc of her life.

Like an apparition, called up by these thoughts, a white form glided swiftly towards him.

He gave a convulsive shudder, and looked down at Nellie.

She was at his side, her fair head dropped, the smile of happiness still upon her face.

As yet, she was unconscious of any break in the service.

He took his gaze from the pretty, flaxen head, with its bridal wreath, and comfronted—Gretchen!

With a swift movement she had flung the veil from her face, and stood before him, her eyes glowing like living coals.

"Speak!" she exclaimed. "There was a time when you were not so unresponsive a bridegroom."

Her voice rang out with passionate mockery, and the man, who knew the meaning of her words, felt as though a mortal wound had been dealt him.

She had come to wreak her vengeance—to make him writhe under the might of the love he had scorned.

The dread—the humiliation of the moment seemed to chill his senses.

The carved pillars, the altar with its array of white flowers, swam around in a confused mist, and he staggered back, unable to face out the awful situation. The minister looked on in wonder.

"What does this interruption mean?" he demanded. "Who is this woman?"

Frank remained silent.

Gretchen's eyes never wavered in their burning gaze that seemed to hold him under a strange spell, like the gaze of some fierce wounded animal about to spring upon and rend its destroyer.

Again the question was asked—

"Who is this woman?"

At last, power of speech returned to him, and he opened his lips to defend himself with a coward's lie.

"I do not know; I have never seen her before."

He felt the scorn that blazed up in those scorching eyes, and it needed all his self-command to keep him from betraying how false his words had been.

"He has lied!" she exclaimed, raising her arm and pointing to him, her head erect, her eyes flashing like black jewels. "Tell him to look at me, and answer again. What was I too him a year ago—less than a year ago?"

Frank turned to Lord Rayne, an expression of vindictive rage distorting his features.

"Take her away!" he hissed. "She is mad! Let the ceremony proceed!"

A cry of despair surged to her lips, and she staggered beneath her effort to repress it.

How could he act this lie—he who had once loved her, and had called her by the sweet name so soon to be bestowed upon another?

Somebody tried to draw her aside.

With a swift gesture she flung off the strange hands, and kept her place in front of the altar.

"Not yet!" she said. "I have much to say before I leave him—free!"

"This must be explained," Lord Rayne exclaimed, taking his daughter's cold hand, and drawing her away from Frank. "Either the woman is mad—or——"

He broke off, unable to put into words the thought that was in his mind.

Gretchen's lips curled with a smile of bitter mockery.

"I am not mad," she answered, her eyes fixed on Frank with scorn and derison. "Has he kept all his past from you, that you know nothing of the woman who once believed herself his wife?"

"What do you mean?" Lord Rayne asked, his tones chill and measured. "What were you to Frank Stanford?"

"His wife! His wife in the sight of Heaven, though he chose to put aside my claim—though he abandoned me, when I was most in need of his protection! Look at me, and read in my face what I am—a woman driven to the extremity of despair—a woman driven by desperation to darkest passion and crime! What I am, he has made me!"

Her form was still erect, her head held high.

Her dry lips lost their loveliness, her eyes looked terrible, as the eyes of some avenging fate, her bosom heaving with the tempest that was going on within.

A shudder went through those who watched her; even Frank felt a momentary recoil.

"Take her away!" he hissed. "Do not let her stand there with the stain of murder on her hand."

A wild discordant laugh rang from her lips—a laugh that resounded shrilly through the great arched church.

"Murder! yes, but it was done for you!" she cried. "I knew that only wealth could buy me back your love—that sordid gold was more to you than the pure faith of a woman's true heart. I married Sir Felix Errol without thought of the hideous temptation which afterwards assailed me—thinking only to bear his name in peace, until death should set me free, and I could give you the riches I had sacrificed so much to gain. I waited, patiently, at first, longing for the time of my release, I waited until the gloom and solitude of my life turned all my thoughts to one deadly purpose. He seemed to read what was in my soul, and shrank with terror from my looks; my presence filled him with horror—yet I waited—waited until I had discovered his treachery against me—until I knew he had made a will, by which I should gain nothing by his death. Then, while he was dozing in his chair, I secured the document, and before any sound roused him from his sleep, I plunged a knife into his breast!"

"Let her be arrested!" Lord Rayne exclaimed, hoarsely. "On her own confession she is a murderess!"

"And what is he?" Gretchen asked, pointing to Frank. "Will he have nothing to answer for at the great Day of Judgment?"

"Let her go! She is mad!" Frank said, making a weak effort to defend himself against her fury. "Let her be driven from the church!

"If I am mad, what is this?" she cried, tearing open the bosom of her dress, and producing a folded parchment.

Unnoticed by anyone, Monckton—always on Lady Errol's track—had come upon the scene.

His voice, calm and prompt, broke the silence that had followed her words.

"It is Sir Felix Errol's last will," he said. "The will that has been missing since his death!"

Her burning gaze wandered to Monckton's face, and a laugh, which seemed almost satanic, broke from her lips.

"We searched for it together," she said. "Do you remember? That ghastly form was lying under the white sheets—but what did I care? Those stone-cold lips could not cry out vengeance against me!"

Lady Landsdowne in Society.

Lady Lansdowne, says M. A. P., occupies a commanding position in society, and, of late years, Lansdowne House has become the social centre of London. Its chatelaine has been responsible for a new and welcome departure in the matter of political receptions. Instead of limiting her invitations to members of the present Government and their supporters, she exchanged duty and dullness for brilliance and variety, with the result that her evening parties have become the most successful on record. Splendid entertainments were given at Lansdowne House during the coronation season, and last summer witnessed a notable banquet, arranged in honor of the French Ministers who accompanied President Loubet to England. Dinner took place in the white and gold ballroom, and eighty guests were seated at one long table, which was decked with the splendid silver candelabra and the two score massive silver bowls which are among the most cherished possessions of the Fitzmaurices. On this occasion each of the forty silver bowls was filled with La France roses. Lady Lansdowne made a distinguished figure at the coronation, and, like Lady Spencer and the Duchess of Bedford, had her lord's coat-of-arms embroidered on her coronation robes. It has been stated that the most precious pearls in London belong to Lady Cork, Lady Iveagh and Lady Lansdowne; and certainly the pearl necklace owned by the latter can find few rivals in the markets of the world. Pale blue is Lady Lansdowne's favorite color, and she wears it on almost every important occasion.

British in Somaliland.

According to the latest advices received from Somaliland, Gen. Egerton's advance against the Mullah is not likely to take place before the middle of November. The delay is due to the Abyssinians not having taken up their positions. Abyssinian co-operation with the British, which was not a tactical success in Gen. Manning's campaign, although the Abyssinian forces scored several successes, will be an important feature of the coming operations. The British Government has undertaken, with the consent of the Emperor Menelik, to reimburse the Abyssinian troops who are co-operating with the British forces. The Emperor's troops have, moreover, been supplied with a quantity of cooking pots and other utensils. The two British officers, Colonel Rochfort and Major Cobbold, who accompanied the Abyssinians on their successful northward advance last spring, will again be with them. Further, the War Office has placed two doctors, Captain H. D. Dunn of the Egyptian army, and Major J. Willes-Jennings, R.A.M.C., both of whom have had Soudan experiences, at the disposal of our auxiliaries. The British force which will start from Bohotle will consist of between 1,200 and 1,400 fighting men, with eight Maxims and several guns. The Mullah's force is now estimated at 70,000 men, one tenth of whom are armed with modern rifles. The enemy have also the three captured Maxims, which they know how to work. The total of the troops at Gen. Egerton's disposal is 7,000 men, with 6,000 animals.

Mariages of Only Daughters.

There has been quite an epidemic of engagements and marriages among society's only daughters this year, says The London Express. It is an admitted fact that the only daughter of a family is a fortunate being, unincumbered as she is by a bevy of older or younger sisters, and consequently able to enjoy to the full all the good things fate provides through a first London season. One of the principal marriages in point this season was that of Lady Juliet Duff, Lady De Grey's only daughter. Another was that of Lady Muriel Digby, the daughter of Lord and Lady Ilchester. Lord and Lady Chesham's only girl, Miss Lilah Cavendish, now Mrs. Manningham Buller, was another, and Miss Arbuthnot, now the wife of Mr. Robert Lygon, half-brother to Lord Beauchamp, also comes under this category. Weddings yet to come are those of Miss Pearson, the only child of Sir Weetman and Lady Pearson, to Lord Denman, on November 26; Lady Marjorie Greville, who is engaged to Lord Helmsley, and Miss Elsie Hope who is engaged to Lord Kerry, and is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hope, the latter being an intimate friend of Lady Lansdowne.

Storm King Group of Mines

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

The property comprising what is known as the STORM KING GROUP OF MINES offers an attractive and safe investment. The property is the richest in the country and we believe it would be difficult to secure an investment that promises better returns. The following is a description of the mines written by Capt. A. M. Paul, whose reputation as an expert in mining matters is known far and near.

These properties are situated in the Cable Cove Mining District, about fifteen miles north of Sumpter, Oregon, and about one mile northwest of the Baby McKee mine, about two miles northwest of the Last Chance, the Alpine, the Imperial and the California mines.

The properties in this report consist of seven claims. The names of the seven claims being as follows: The Eureka and the Honest Dollar. These two claims are on the same vein. Adjoining these two claims and paralleling them on the northwest is another vein upon which there are two claims known as the Jessie and Golden Rule, and paralleling them on the northwest there is another vein upon which there are two claims, known as the Storm King and the Ozone. The last claim of this group lies to the northwest of the last two named, and is adjoining them. This claim is the Shannon Bell.

In making my report I will commence with the two first named claims of the group, the Eureka and Honest Dollar. The development on these claims consists of a tunnel ninety-seven feet in length, running along the course of the vein, showing two feet ten inches of ore in the top of the tunnel and a little over three feet in the bottom, which assays giving values of from $9.68 to $79 per ton in gold. About four hundred feet in a southwesterly direction there is a shaft on the vein ten feet deep, showing the vein to be from one to two inches wide on the surface and about twelve inches wide in the bottom of the shaft, in which assays give values of from $9.76 to $40 per ton in free milling gold ore.

This vein is exposed by small shafts and open cuts for a distance of fifteen hundred feet, and the course of this vein is north, ten degrees east, and the vein cuts the formation, showing it to be a true fissure, and the formation is granite. This vein shows in places a width of from ten to fifteen feet of mineralized matter, commonly called vein matter, but which is caused by hot solutions from below.

I will now pass to the Jessie and Golden Rule. There has been very little work done upon these two claims, there being one discovery shaft ten feet deep, showing ore on all sides of the shaft, and running in value of from $4 upwards. It is my opinion that with development, this, too, will prove valuable property.

The work on the Storm King and Ozone consists of a tunnel near the point of discovery and is driven along the vein for a distance of one hundred and eighty feet, showing ore all the way from the surface to the face of the tunnel, and averaging in width from six to eighteen inches. Three assays give the following values, $12.50. This being a general sample taken from the dump. The other two assays are $42.68 and $79.08 respectively, this being the assorted ore for shipment. The course of this tunnel and vein are north, ten degrees west, and the vein cuts the trend of the formation obliquely (which is granite) and by driving this tunnel five or six hundred feet further it will encounter the present or meet a quartzite reaf (which is running north, twenty degrees east) which would make this a contact vein between granite and quartzite, and should produce a large body of ore, at the intersection of the contact.

The only work done upon the Shannon Bell, the last claim of this group is the location work, and is not enough to allow of a report being made.

There is water for power purposes one mile from the property, and timber on the ground, of a very fine quality, sufficient to run the mine for many years to come.

All the assays mentioned in this report were made by the assayer of the Imperial mine at my request, and the ore was taken by me from the properties mentioned.

I will state that I have been a practical miner since 1870, and am now the manager and superintendent of the Imperial mine in this district,

(Signed) CAPTAIN A. M. PAUL.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Dec. 5—The strength in the general stock market was well maintained Friday, though on the better levels the latter part of the day there was some selling for profits and here there stocks sought a lower level. However sentiment this morning is still quite substantial and under circumstances there is a confident feeling among observers in the stock exchange. The indications are that the bank statement will be favorable. The several movements of funds during the week have been in favor of an increase in surplus reserves. The railroad situation is the subject of more favorable comment; the fact that some of the railroads are renewing orders for supplies. It is also evident that some of the railroads have cut down their forces too heavily. The Penna. is the first to take back a lot of men laid off a few weeks ago. The railroad earnings generally continue quite favorable.

New York, Dec. 5—We told you last night the shorts had at least commenced to get frightened and that if the market was strong up to 1 o'clock to sell out your long stocks. At exactly 1 p.m. the market was on top. We said Union Pacific would go to above 77 and it went to 77 1-2; we said U.S. would go to [illegible] and it went there, R.G. got up to above [illegible] and Mo. P., whose purchase we advised around 91 went up to 93 1-4 at one o'clock when the market was on top. The tractions were rushed up under the leader B.R.T., which went up to 49 7-8 but it did not hold the gain, losing about a point. During the last hour the market got quite weak and showed extensive signs of realizing. The transactions yesterday were over a million shares and today the same thing. This marks the culmination of the upward movement, at least in the general list. A few specialties may be rushed up to-morrow or Monday under cover of which the general list will prove a splendid sale; we advise you to sell N.Y.C., St. P., B. & O., R.I., CA, UP, Pa, Atch, Mo R, L.N. around today's figures. There may be another upward spurt in the tractions and perhaps in Erie 2nd, and when that takes place and the general list looks good and strong to-morrow or Monday do not be afraid to sell them; sell them around today's prices and don't wait till they have another rally, from this first stopping place on the downward grade. Now is your chance. Take it. We don't advise selling the tractions.

A CAR FAMINE

Local Branches in the West Have Made Great Changes

Montreal, Dec. 4.—"As far as the leading banks are concerned, our business throughout the North-West this year has been greatly hampered by the enactments of the Grain Act. While the banks made special provision in order to meet all demands, they find that their money will now be tied up till the opening of navigation, simply because the farmers in many instances were unable to get a sufficient number of cars."

Such was the opinion expressed by the manager of the local branch of the leading Toronto bank when asked to point out how business had worked out throughout the West this year.

"The farmers are now bringing their wheat to the interior, as also to the lake elevators, and as soon as it is stored secured money on it. As there is not any chance of selling the wheat till after the opening of navigation, the banks will have to wait till then for their money.

"This year saw a big change in the manner in which business was done in the West. Where formerly the banks did business with the exporters, the system of branch offices in all the towns has resulted in the farmers doing their own business direct with the banks.

"With such a large amount of money tied up till spring there is not much chance of it getting much easier till that time. There is a strong demand for money for stock purposes, but we are looking after the commercial interests.

"Payments throughout Canada are splendid at present. In fact, they have never been better than during the last few months.

"The little money that the banks could lend on cattle this year showed that in the West the cattle trade had certainly been a failure.

Christmas Slipper.

The clergyman paced up and down the floor of his humble parsonage. It was Christmas morning and there was a cloud upon his brow.

"The comic papers are the cause of it," he murmured as he trod back and forth in his heavy walking shoes and winced occasionally as he stubbed his toe. "Not a slipper this morning, and oh, I did so need a pair!"

He put his hand to his bald head and sighed.

"Not a smoking cap in the lot, either," he muttered. "And this study is certainly cold. Why couldn't they have kept their satirical poems, pictures and paragraphs to themselves? How true it is that ridicule is a most deadly and effective weapon! Now, I must buy a pair of slippers, I suppose, and yet that money ought to go for a ham and some granulated sugar."

UNITED WORKMEN

Pawtucket, R.I., Dec. 4.—A charter for a new organization, which will work along the same lines but in opposition to the Ancient Order of United Workmen, was granted by Secretary of State Charles P. Bennett to-day. The new organization will be known as the Grand Lodge of New England Workmen. The incorporators have been prominently affiliated with the A. O. U. W. Dissatisfaction over heavy dues said to have been assessed upon New England of late, on account of the large number of deaths in the West, is said to have prompted the new movement.

Roosevelt's Proclamation.

President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving proclamation, issued October 31, named Nov. 26 as "a day of praise and thanksgiving to God. In no other place and at no other time," says the President, "has the experiment of government of the people, by the people, for the people, been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the twentieth century. Failure would not only be a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, because it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and righteousness of liberty. Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech Him that He may not withhold them in the future, and that our hearts may be roused to war steadfastly for good and against all the forces of evil, public and private. We pray for strength and light, so that in the coming years we may, with cleanliness, fearlessness and wisdom, do our allotted work on the earth in such manner as to show that we are not altogether unworthy of the blessings we have received."

Perhaps the Colombians do not believe in "the power and righteousness of liberty," or perhaps President Roosevelt made a mental reservation in regard to American republics other than his own, in view of the report that the Administration knew weeks ago that the Panama revolution had been planned.

He Got the Applause.

Senator Depew was talking about the mishaps and contretemps of actors.

"I'll never forget," he said, "the stately 'super,' in powdered wig and silk stockings, who stalked, chin in the air, upon the stage to answer the Earl's question, 'Who is there?' The 'super' should have said, 'The boy, my Lord,' but what he did say was, 'The Lord, my boy.'

"Then there was another 'super,' unlike the former one—a 'super' self-possessed and ambitious. This chap, after years of stage life, had not yet got beyond a part that consisted of only a meaningless line or two. He was hungry for applause, and at last he determined, at all hazards, to get applause. So one night, after he had said his usual solitary sentence of 'The carriage waits,' he stalked to the centre of the stage, elbowing the star to one side, and, looking up at the gallery and striking himself on the chest, exclaimed in a loud voice:

'And permit me to add, sir, that he who raises his hand against a woman, save in the cause of kindness, is unworthy of the name of gentleman.'

"That brought down the house, but the poor 'super' lost his place on account of it."

THE STOCK OF THE

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

IS THE BEST MINING INVESTMENT TO-DAY

This is a strong statement, but facts substantiate it. The work on the mine has proven its value. The promoters have shown their confidence in it by using their own money for development work.

The Company's Property is Six Claims, Patented Land

$60,000 worth of ore blocked out and mine ready for mill.

Mine can be cheaply and economically worked.

Dividends positively guaranteed in sixty days after mill is in operation.

Treasury Stock only for sale, and only sufficient stock will be sold to supply machinery.

The mine lacks but one thing—machinery, and to purchase this a small block of stock will be sold at 15 cents per share. When machinery is paid for no more stock will be sold

PROSPECTUS INFORMATION FREELY GIVEN

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,[illegible], consisting of 2,[illegible] shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] to [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of [illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to [illegible] and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share, reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent. annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

CATARRH

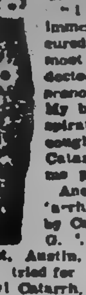
The Mother of Consumption

How this dread disease may be prevented and cured—the opinions of people who have been cured by

CATARRHOZONE.

Catarrh is very often spoken of as the mother of consumption, because when neglected, it extends from the place of beginning to the bronchial tubes then deeper and deeper, till finally the disease becomes consumption of the lungs.

The safest and best remedy for any form of Catarrh is Catarrhozone. It is inhaled to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the disease, and drives it completely out of the system.



Mrs. Mary J. Whitney, of Clay Street, Topeka, Kansas, was cured of nasal catarrh, after twenty years' suffering by Catarrhozone. She says:—

"I owe to Catarrhozone an immense debt of gratitude. It cured me of Catarrh of the most disagreeable kind after doctors without number had pronounced my case incurable. My breath is pure and my respiration regular, and I do not cough any more since using Catarrhozone. It has cured me perfectly."

Another case of Chronic Catarrh that was cured quickly by Catarrhozone is that of Mr. G. [illegible] Luce, of 1,700 Navarro's Street, Austin, Texas. Mr. Luce says:

"I tried for four years to get rid of Nasal Catarrh, used salt douches, atomizers, tablets, stomach medicines, etc., but they didn't do me much good.

"Then I tried Catarrhozone, and received relief in a few hours. It cured in a week, so that I never had a recurrence of my former trouble.

Miss Winer, who resides on May Street, in Hartford, Conn., was cured of throat trouble by Catarrhozone, and speaks of her recovery in the following words.—

"Repeated colds finally resulted in a Catarrhal condition from which I suffered more or less every spring and fall. Catarrhozone was the only remedy that relieved and cured me. I recommend it."

No treatment is so good for Catarrhal affections and Bronchitis as Catarrhozone. Its success is quite unequalled in the history of medicine. It will cure you quickly and surely, and is well worth a trial. Two months' treatment guaranteed to cure, price $1.00; small size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Buy it to-day.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT

A Young Man Painfully Burned At the Electric Works

A serious accident occurred at the electric works on Thursday last, when a young man named Ramsden, an employe, was painfully burned about the face and hands.

It appears that Ramsden was working on a piece of machinery which was being erected, and the current in some way "flashed," blistering his face, injuring his eyes, and badly burning his hands. Dr. Young was at once summoned and dressed the wounds. He will be laid up for some weeks.

Joe Rickaby and Joe Toban are Charged with Assault

On Saturday night Joe Rickaby and Joe Toban entered McCallum's restaurant and ordered lunch. This was provided and, according to information given The Times, they tried to get away without paying for it. During the altercation that followed Mr. McCallum was assaulted by both young men. After the assault Toban ran out the back door, fell into the hands of the police and was locked up. Rickaby is still at large, but will doubtless be arrested later on.

ARRESTED IN PETERBORO

Barney Burton Arrested on Saturday by P. C. Adams

After a long hunt by the police, Barney Burton, who is wanted in connection with the Cobb robbery, was located on a farm a short distance from Springville and arrested on Saturday. He is now in the cells, and will appear this morning at the Police Court.

Burton, who hails from Manvers, was arrested in connection with the same matter, but was allowed to go on suspended sentence. It appears that fresh evidence against him has been secured, hence his arrest.

NATURAL SEQUENCE OF THOUGHT

An Odd Reply to a Straight Question by This G. F. J.

On Saturday a leading citizen entered the office of the managing editor of this great family journal. He began his conversation by referring to the article which appeared in our issue of that morning in which this g. f. j. took it upon itself to rap a local contemporary over the knuckles, and intimated that The Times should exercise a Christian spirit of forgiveness, for, as he said, "life is short, and in a few years at most both the editors of your local contemporaries will be dead."

After a few moments' pause, during which this g. f. j. prudently kept it's mouth shut, our visitor broke out: "By the way that reminds me, have you got the furnace fire going in your house yet?"

READY FOR THE DANCE

The Opera House Building Transformed Into Fairyland

All day Saturday a score of people were at work in the Opera House and the flat below, preparing for the ball, which is to take place this evening, under the auspices of the Albany Club. The Opera House has been beautifully decorated with flags and bunting, and presents a handsome appearance.

The flat below, where the rooms of the Club are situated, has been turned into a veritable fairy land. The premises of the club have been extended southward, and a magnificent parlor added to the suit of rooms. This has been carpeted and furnished for the use of the ladies. The large hallway has been carpeted and decorated with flags, palms, &c. The orchestra will be stationed here during the reception, which will probably take place in the ladies parlour. The guests will pass from the reception room up the rear stairs, which has also been carpeted, to the ball room.

The Times has been requested by the committee to state that ladies need have no fear, as the temperature will be uniform throughout the entire building, up stairs and down.

Annuals

The following annuals are now on sale and our prices will positively be found lower than elsewhere for the same goods—Young Canada, Chatterbox, Chums, Boys of Our Empire, The Girl's Realm, Child's Own Magazine, Little Folks, Bo Peep. —The Bobcaygeon "Wirelcss" states that Mr. Wm. I. Junkin, the Government diver, left on Wednesday morning to do some diving at the great hydraulic lift lock at Peterborough. Mr. Junkin combines his mechanical skill with his experience as a diver, and is reliably entrusted with all such work along the Trent waterway.—Mr. Vivian Lancaster leaves tomorrow, Saturday, for Peterborough where he will be engaged during the winter as a machinist in the Hamilton Co.

A SURE TEST

Of Whether Coffee Really Hurts or Not

Some folks drink coffee and suffer day after day but console themselves by saying "I don't believe it hurts me or at any rate I am not sure that it does."

"The sensible thing to do is to make sure by leaving off coffee and using Postum, for a week or so. The trial is pleasant and you may learn something worth more than money to you in the way of health and strength.

An intelligent woman who valued her health and comfort made sure. She says "I have proved positively that when I used coffee I had kidney and bladder trouble, palpitation of the heart, stomach trouble, insomnia and my complexion was sallow and muddy. But I got rid of all these troubles when I quit coffee and took on Postum Food Coffee. All my troubles disappeared quickly, almost as if by magic, and in their place I became strong and well.

"I soon learned to like Postum as well as I ever liked coffee and I would not exchange my delicious cup of Postum for coffee and sickness for anything in the world." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A DIAMOND WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Montgomery Married Dec 6, 1843

Yesterday was the diamond anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Montgomery, who reside at 210 London street, they having been 60 years married. They were wedded in Peterborough, Dec. 6th, 1843, and lived in Smith until 26 years ago, when the family moved to town. They are receiving the deserved congratulations of many friends in town and country. Mr. Montgomery will be 83 years of age on New Year's eve, while his partner in life, celebrated her 80th birthday a few weeks ago.

The members of the family circle who have come from out of town for the event are:—Mrs. J. Billington, of Winnipeg; Mrs. J. H. Montgomery, Selkirk, Man., Mr. D. and Mrs. D. Montgomery, of Orillia; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Roberts and son Percy, of Port Hope; Miss Maud Roberts, of Lindsay; and Miss Etta Montgomery, of Kingston. Those at home are Mr. J. B. Montgomery, and Misses Eva and Mary Montgomery.

The Times extends its hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, and hopes that they may be spared for happy years to come.

COMMON SENSE POLITICS IN PETERBORO

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I see from your today's issue that the regulars are girding on their armour and that another Dominion election appears to be in sight. Now, sir, I want your kind permission to express a few common sense ideas in regard to the political situation in West Peterborough. I can't find anybody scarcely, either here or elsewhere, who really expects a change in the Government at Ottawa. Some expect perhaps a decreased majority, but opinion seems to be practically unanimous that Laurier will be sustained. Now, then, if this is the case, what under Heaven is the use of this riding sending a man to Ottawa to support the Opposition? Is it not a fact patent to everybody that the chief need of the hour and all the future hours for Peterborough, is a speedy completion of the Trent Valley Canal? It is not necessary of course, to say why —but if, for a hundred and one reasons, this is so, where does the sense come in of sending up a man one day to oppose the Government and the next shipping off a train load of the "free and independent" to ask favors from it? Would it not be common sense for the Liberal party here to bring out some man—not a rabid or offensive partisan—who would be fairly acceptable to the people generally, and send him to Ottawa with instructions to get that Canal completed quick—or lose his job next time? The great and revered Gamey said "Manitoulin is my politics." Is it not about time that we sent a man to Ottawa who would be able to tell the Government that Trent Valley Canal was his politics and hustle things to a finish? It is not necessary to say anything about Mr. Kendry's neglect of the interests of the Riding. He probably has done the best he could—but for pity sake let us get down to business, and act more sensibly, even if we talk a little less. Yours very truly,

INDEPENDENT.

SOCIAL AND PERSONA

—Miss Clara Belleghem is in Tweed on a visit.

—Mr. Ed. Young, Young's Point, was in town Saturday. Ed. reports business booming in his line.

—Mr. W. B. Thomas, of Cobourg, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Warne, and will spend the winter here.

For Rent

TO RENT—In north end of town, two sleeping rooms, also private sitting room with out-side entrance. Board if desired. Apply at Times Bookstore.

Will Want $15,000

On account of the union with Ashburnham the Water Commissioners propose to ask for $15,000 in order to meet the demands for water connections. This is an increase of $10,000. It is only fair, however, to state that the sum allowed during the past year—$5,000—was insufficient, on account of the great demand for connections by the people.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—The Town Council will meet this evening.

—The Albany Club ball will take place tonight in the Opera House.

—Some interesting "doings" will be on at the Police Court tomorrow morning.

—There was a big market on Saturday, fowl being the dominant feature.

—At the Police Court Saturday morning, A. W. McDonald was fined $1 for being drunk and disorderly.

—Sons of England, Lansdowne Lodge election of officers this evening. All members urged to be present.

—It is said that the pear crop has been cornered by the capitalist, but "peaches" are still to be seen on George street.

—A debate will be held in the T.A.A. hall this evening which promises to be interesting. The subject is—Resolved that strikes have been beneficial to the people.

—Miss M. Clarry has been engaged as organist and choir leader by the board of the George street church. Miss Clara Belleghem has also been engaged as soloist.

—The vibrations which the people in town feel is not caused to electric currents, but the efforts of the Liberals to select a candidate out of the big bunch of aspirants to parliamentary honors.

—Those who intend making special purchases for Christmas should do their buying now. That the goods are to be had it is only necessary to read the advertisements in The Times and by visiting the shops now a better selection and service can be obtained than later on when everything is rushing.

—Lindsay Post—Messrs. McDougall, Brandon & Austin, of Fenelon Falls, despite the low prices being paid for live stock, made a large shipment of cattle to Toronto and hogs to Peterborough this week. Six carloads of cattle and two of hogs were shipped by them from the north country. The prices paid for hogs was $4.25, and for cattle $3.50.

12 Minutes for Lunch.

That is the average time spent in a large city restaurant by three thousand lunchers. It takes three hours to digest a fresh egg soft boiled. In fact, three hours is about the time required to digest the average twelve minute lunch. The object of the hasty lunch is to let the busy man get back to his office work. But when the brain is active, the stomach is inactive for lack of necessary blood. The natural consequence is indigestion, and indigestion opens the door to many diseases.

"Indigestion is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"I had stomach trouble from childhood and suffered with it more or less as I grew up," writes Mr. Willis Seaman, of Washingtonville, Orange Co., N. Y. "At the age of [illegible] I was broken down with dyspepsia. My suffering was terrible. Could not eat without distress. Could only eat a few certain things and was not able to work half the time. Everything I tried only gave me temporary relief. My wife finally persuaded me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' MUD-SLINGING POLITICS

To the Editor of The Times:

Say, Mr. Editor, what's up? You are right as to the tomfoolery of the recent stuff in the local Tory organ, but what's that got to do with the g. f. j.? Can't the old dog, and his puppies up the street bark loud enough in reply, without your taking a hand in the racket?

Just the same, it is tomfoolery ! I would like to know how many old readers of the "Mail" have quit it in disgust, because of its vulgar mud-slinging propensities? I know several right here in town, and I suppose the same is true of the Tory sheet. Of course it don't hurt Stratton—quite the contrary—I should think he would rather they would continue such guff, than otherwise. Gamey or no Gamey, J. R. Stratton has been the very best representative Peterborough has ever had, and no one will deny it.

Somehow I can't help remembering a picture in the "Pilgrim's Progress" that used to frighten me in my younger days. It represented an awful figure of a giant in a cave (that was meant to represent the Pope, I think) but all he could do, owing to his age and general infirmity, was to gnash his toothless gums at Pilgrim, who passed on his way "not one penny the worse." Your contemporary's treatment of Mr. Stratton is really as comical from some points of view, but you let them fight it out themselves. Yours truly,

BOSH

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,

MR. JOHN WOOD,

To Facilitate Xmas Shopping, By-Law to This Effect Passed by the Town Council, the Municipal Elections

The Town Council met in regular session last night when there were present His Worship, Mayor G. M. Roger, presiding, and Aldermen Edgcumbe, Shortly, Morrison, Rush, Finnie, Clinkscale, Corkery, Baker and Best.

The minutes of the preceding meetings were confirmed as typewritten.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, enclosing a plan of proposed street, immediately south of the C.P.R. property, which they would give in exchange for Wolfe street. They believe that a street 40 feet wide at George and 50 ft. wide at the wharf would be of sufficient size to accommodate the traffic to and from the wharf for seven months of the year.—Referred to the Board of Works.

The Peterborough Light and Power Company applied for permission to erect one pole on the north side of London, between Aylmer and Bethune sts.—Board of Works.

Mr. James Bogue, through his solicitors, Dennistoun, Peck and Stevenson, requested payment forthwith of his account for constructing pavement on Stewart and Brock streets.—Board of Works.

Mr. Richard Sheehy, through the same legal firm, requested immediate payment of his account for constructing pavements on Gilmour street.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From a number of ratepayers asking that an electric light be placed on Sherbrooke street, between George and Bethune streets.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From T. A. S. Hay, complaining of an error in his assessment which was not discovered until too late for appeal to the Court of Revision.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From a number of ratepayers asking that an electric street light be placed at the corner of Dublin and Bethune street.—Referred to the Fire, water and Light Committee.

From J. Hampden Burnham, and a number of ratepayers on Brock street, praying that the Council cause to be restored that piece of cement walk between George and Chamber streets, on Brock street lately removed. The petitioners expressed astonishment that representatives of the people should allow such a contemptuous disregard of public rights.—Board of Works.

The local Board of Health forwarded a letter from Dr. M. Agatha, of St. Joseph's hospital, in which the following proposition was made: That for a grant of $1500 this hospital will receive for treatment all cases of diphtheria in indigent patients that may seek admission for the year ending Nov. 1st, 1904. That of this sum not more than $200 shall be available for antitoxine. The communication then went on to say that after carefully looking over the number of cases admitted during the past year, it has been computed that the total amount asked for would barely cover the cost of those who came in as charity patients. For a number of years this hospital has suffered an ever increasing financial drain from its infectious department, and during the severe epidemic last year were severely taxed. We are by no means anxious to continue the nursing and attending of diphtheria cases, all of which details a great additional expense upon the management of the institution, especially as these patients require a whole flat for their accommodation. We are still, nevertheless, somewhat reluctant to refuse admission to those who as a rule are in more urgent need of careful nursing, and close and constant attention, than ordinary patients, but as this is impossible under existing conditions, so a new arrangement is imperative. It is expected that if the above proposition is accepted the hospital burden will be so lightened as to render possible the continued admission of diphtheria cases.—Referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. John Crane, secretary of the Nicholls Hospital Board, also forwarded through the Board of Health the following proposition, re infectious diseases

Our Board, after careful consideration decided to withdraw from this branch of the hospital work, on account of the insufficient accommodation in times of epidemic, and also on account of the great expense connected with the ward. Also from the fact that the majority of patients treated were of the non-paying class. The result has been large deficits each year, directly traceable to that ward. With a view, however, to be of service to your Board in the position it is now placed, our Board have decided to make the following offer: This Hospital will undertake the treatment of scarlet Fever cases, to such a number as our facilities will allow, at a daily rate of $1 per head, on condition that your Board will undertake that each patient going in is accompanied by a card of admission signed by your duly authorized officer, and that settlement be made when each patient is discharged. In order to carry out this arrangement we should require to spend considerable money in improvements, and I would point out that the rate suggested does not, in our opinion, cover the cost of treatment and maintenance.—Referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

From J. Odias de Lapiante, saying that he is instructed by Mr. P. M. McNamara to take whatever steps may be necessary to recover damages caused his client's property, by allowing the Cordage works to fence in as their property that part of Bethune street lying east of the right of way between Lake and Perry streets.—Referred to the Legal Committee, and a copy of the letter to be forwarded to the Town Trust Commissioners.

From J. W. Edwards, complaining of being over assessed.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

The ratepayers asking that a granolithic walk be constructed on the east side of Stewart street, between Hunter and Brock streets.—Referred to the Board of Works.

ACCOUNTS.

A number of accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

A petition, signed by Robert Fair & Co and three-fourths of the occupiers of shops in town was read, praying that Council pass a bylaw under the Ontario Shops Regulation Act" requiring that all shops within the corporation occupied by Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Caps and Furs, Gents Furnishing and Millinery shall be closed and remain closed on each day of the week (except Saturday and the day before any Public Holiday other than Christmas Day and four days before Christmas Day) at and continuously after the hour of seven o'clock in the afternoon until five next morning.

The object of this petition was to secure the repealing of bylaw No [illegible] governing early closing, and to have a new by-law passed allowing dealers in Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Caps, and Furs, Gents' Furnishings and Millinery, remaining open late on the four nights preceding Christmas Day, so as to facilitate meeting the requirements of the Yuletide shoppers, who are unable to purchase their holiday presents until after 6 o'clock in the evening. Under the old early closing by-law, experience has shown that on Christmas Eve, these stories have been so thronged as to utterly congest business, resulting in loss to the merchants and dissatisfaction to their patrons.

Ald. Morrison thought that unless a stated hour for closing on these nights was fixed by the by-law, a hardship would be inflicted on certain clerks, especially the ladies, who might be compelled to work at night these four days in question, thus marring by reason of excessive fatigue their looked-for enjoyment of the Christmas festivities. He advocated restricting the hour for keeping open to 9 o'clock.

Ald. Shortly concurred with Ald. Morrison in his opinion, although he thought the time limit should be fixed at 10 o'clock.

Ald. Edgcumbe did not think it necessary to limit the time for remaining open to either 9 or 10 o'clock. It is only for four nights in the year, and on those occasions extra clerks are engaged, and they know what is expected of them.

His Worship did not think that under the Act the Council had any power to fix a stated hour; all they are empowered to do is to act on the petition.

Ald. Clinkscale said he would move that the hour for closing be fixed at 10 o'clock.

It was eventually decided that the Council's power is restricted to acting on the petition received, and a by-law in compliance with the above petition passed its several readings. This by-law will come into effect on December 15th this year, and under its provisions the dry goods, clothing, hats, caps and fur, gent's clothing and millinery stores will remain open the four nights preceding Christmas, until 12 o'clock should business warrant it.

ANOTHER PURCHASE.

The Town Trust Commissioners wanted the Council to express their approval or disapproval of their proposal to purchase the two buildings in continuation of the town buildings on Simcoe street. The land is owned by the town and the building by the Bank of Montreal. The lease for the land expires at the end of this year, and it will then be necessary for the Town either to renew it or purchase the buildings. The Council did not seem to have any desire to object to or agree with, the Commissioners proposal. Some did not think any opinion of theirs would have weight in the matter.

SNOW PLOUGHING.

A by-law to authorize the execution of contracts for snow ploughing for 1903 passed its several readings. The following are the contracts covered by this by-law:

Southern Division, Wm. Breckenridge, at $120; Western Division, N. Rusaw, Northern Division; Zymri Blodgett, $171.

LAND FOR STONE AND GRAVEL.

A by-law to authorize the purchase of the Hilliard estate for corporation purposes and the borrowing of $10,000 with which to pay for the same, passed its first and second readings. This by-law deals with the commendable proposition made at the special meeting of the Council held last week, by Ald. Rush, in which he urged that the Hilliard Homestead, north of Anson street, be purchased to furnish stone and gravel for road purposes. The property also contains splendid lots for factories and other buildings, which would furnish a valuable asset to the Town; and includes likewise a farm house and barn, and other dwellings, the present rental from which is sufficient to pay the interest on the debentures issued for this contemplated purchase. This matter is now in the hands of the ratepayers, who will be given an opportunity to express their approval or disapproval at the January elections.

FIXED ASSESSMENT.

A by-law to aid the Colonial Weaving Company by fixing their assessment at $4,000 for ten years, passed its several readings. The Company's present assessment is $4,500. They must have at least 20 hands employed by July 1st next, in order to enjoy the fixed assessment here provided for.

THE ELECTIONS.

A by-law to appoint polling places and deputy returning officers for holding elections for Mayor, Aldermen, School Trustees and Water Commissioners passed its several readings.

DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE.

A by-law to authorize the execution of a contract with Dan Bellegham for taking care and service of the Dan Spence Ambulance passed its several readings. The sum to be paid for such care and service will be $150 a year.

OVERCOATS FOR THE POLICE.

Ald. Corkery submitted the following: Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report that we asked for tenders for overcoats for the members of the Police Force and we recommend that the tender of Gough Bros at $22.50 each for four overcoats be accepted and that a cap be purchased for the Chief.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Ald. Clinkscale submitted the following.

Gentlemen,—Your Fire, water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That electric lights be placed on the following streets, the exact location of each light to be designated by the Town Engineer, namely—Sherbrooke street, between George and Bethune streets, Bonaccord street, near the Grand Trunk railway track; at All Saints church; at the Charlotte street Methodist church; at St. Peter's Cathedral; on Cedar street, near Cross street; on Stewart street, on the hill near the Protestant Home; on Charlotte street between George and Aylmer streets, and on Homewood Aven at Walton street.

2. Than an incandescent light be placed at the door of the Police Station.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ald. Edgcumbe thought a light at the east end of Smith street should be embodied in the above report.

Ald. Morrison did not think the report went far enough and that much of the present system of street lighting will have to be arranged shortly. It would be better to refer the matter to a Special Committee, so that if the contract recently entered into with the Peterborough Light and Power Co. is declared legal, immediate action can be taken should the weather permit of it.

The matter was finally referred back to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with Ald. Clinkscale's ready acquiescence.

TELEPHONE FRANCHISE.

Ald. Morrison submitted the following;

Gentlemen,—Your Street Lighting and Franchise committee beg leave to report as follows;

On Nov. 12th last your committee met Mr. A. T. Smith, District Superintendent of the Bell Telephone Company, in regard to the franchise which that Company had and which expired. Mr. Smith was asked to make a proposition of the best terms the Company would give the Town for the renewal of the exclusive franchise for five years, and a letter has been received from him offering $400 a year and the use of five telephones for the renewal for that period.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ald. Morrison, in submitting the above, remarked that the Bell Telephone Company were in a peculiar position as to their franchises. At present litigation is going on between them and the City of Toronto, and bills are before Parliament, asking for legislation to prevent the granting of exclusive franchises to any one telephone company; this may materially affect the position of the Bell Co. New telephone companies are coming into the field, and we may in the near future get a cheaper service. The franchises in some towns have expired, and they are not renewing. Ottawa has not done so, and London is in a similar position. Hamilton has given the Bell an exclusive franchise for five years, and an action is at present before the courts to quash it. Ald. Morrison then went on to say that if the Bell Telephone Company's plant were assessed we would get as much out of that assessment as from the exclusive franchise embodied in the report. He did not recommend accepting the company's offer.

The report was merely received.

The reports of the Finance committee, Property committee and the Board of Works are left over till tomorrow.

TWO GIRLS KILLED

Only Children Instantly Killed by An Express Train

Monongahela, Dec. 8—At 6.30 o'clock Miss Evelyn and Miss Minnie Thompson aged 16 and 19 years respectively, and and only children of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of Coal Bluffs, were run down and instantly killed by an express train on the Pittsburg, Virginia & Charleston railroad. The girls had a few minutes previously started to walk to the house of a friend at Bunola to spend the Sabbath. They stepped from the track to avoid an approaching train and almost directly in front of an express train which came up behind them at a high rate of speed.

The remains were brought to Monongahela and prepared for burial. The aged parents are stricken with grief.

Detroit, Dec. 8.—Albert Holmes, aged 21, who came to Detroit from Rock Island, Ill. expired suddenly last night and his sisters think he died of a broken heart. Young Holmes had associated with a worthless set of young men, and he was arrested and tried for housebreaking. He was acquitted, but the disgrace preyed on him and he said he could never live it down. His two sisters, who live here, tried to cheer him, and they say he was more genial last night than at any time since his release.

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 8.—What is claimed to be a highly important discovery was announced today by James Dennis o fthis city. He has hit upon a combination of common clay and certain chemicals that produce a first-class fuel. It is turned out in blocks the size of bricks. Dennis claims the bricks will furnish a steady, lasting heat. The cost is placed at not more than half that of coal.

TO URGE ARBITRATION

United States Wants New Treaty with Great Britain

PUBLIC IS TO BE ENLISTED

Committees to Co-operate with National Bods to be Named in Leading Cities

Washington, Dec. 8.—A movement was started at a conference at the residence of General John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, this afternoon, which, it is hoped, will result in the negotiation of an arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain. It is understood the plan has the hearty approval of the President, and that it will be supported by the new British Ambassador. Among those present were Admiral Dewey, General Nelson A. Miles, Wayne McVeagh, Thomas Nelson Page, Gifford Pinchot, John R. Proctor, General H. V. Boynton, D. C. Gilman, Charles G. Glover, District Commissioners McFarland and West, John Joy Edson, Charles J. Bell, William J. Boardman and W. V. Cox. These gentlemen constitute the local committee, and will arrange for a meeting of the national arbitration committee in this city January 12.

It is understood that prominent among the objections urged against the Hay-Pauncefote treaty were the complications growing out of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and the controversy over the Alaskan boundary. These having been disposed of, it is felt by the friends of international arbitration that the present is a favorable time to re-awaken public sentiment in favor of a new arbitration treaty with Great Britain. At a meeting of the executive committee appointed by the conference of [illegible] it was decided to call a meeting of the national arbitration committee in Washington on Jan. 12 to take this subject into consideration and adopt such measures as may seem desirable. To advance these ends a local committee was designated for Washington, and it is contemplated to organize similar committees in other leading cities." STUDY OF THE BIBLE

The Centenary of the Upper Canada Bible Society

The Times has been requested to state that in addition to the effort to awaken interest in Toronto, in the celebration of the Centenary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, it is proposed by the Committee to offer 100 prizes for competition among the pupils of the public schools outside of Toronto, for the best essays on the Bible Society—it's History, Work and Claims.

All school children attending public schools outside of Toronto may compete in this contest.

The essays must not exceed one thousand words, and must be in the hands of the Chairman of the Committee, Rev. A. B. Chambers, D.D., Oak Street, Toronto, on or before February 1st, 1904.

The name, age and school of each competitor must be attached to the essay.

The prizes will be Bibles, authorized version, Centenary edition, well bound.

The names of the winners will be announced at the Young People's Mass Meeting, in Massey Hall, Toronto, March 7th, 1904, and prizes will be forwarded to winners as soon as possible thereafter.

The Committee claims the right to publish any of these essays as they may choose.

It is hoped that the interest in this contest will be great and widespread.

WOULD ELIMINATE WALKING DELEGATE

Objects of the Citizen's Industrial Association

IN FAVOUR OF OPEN SHOP

Resolution Adopted Outlining Policy Which Association will Strive to Carry Out

Dayton, O., December 8. — To eliminate the walking delegates is one of the special purposes of the recently organized Citizens' Industrial Association of America. The organization included in its basis principles an open shop, no sympathetic strikes, no restriction in the number of apprentices and output, and the enforcement of the law.

These facts were developed at the meetings of the executive committee, which were concluded yesterday, clearly indicating the line of battle between the employers and labor unions.

A resolution was adopted asking Congress not to endorse the eight-hour bill when that document comes up for action. Another resolution requests all employers associations throughout the country to affiliate with the national body. The determined stand to be taken by the association is indicated in the passage of a resolution instructing all members of employers associations affiliated with the national body not to place the union label on any of their output. It is proposed also to establish a labor information bureau, where will be kept a tabulated record of all law-breaking and undesirable workmen.

The present methods employed by unions in conducting a boycott were bitterly denounced. A bureau of organization, publication and education will likely be located at Dayton, although the headquarters will be at Indianapolis.

THE PLATFORM.

The platform which was adopted contains the following.

"Resolved, that the present industrial conditions have become so deplorable by reason of the indefensible methods and claims of organized labor that the time has come when the employing interests and good citizenship of the country must take immediate and effective measures to reaffirm and enforce those fundamental principles of American Government guaranteeing free, competitive conditions.

"In its demands for the closed shop, organized labor is seeking to overthrow individual liberty and property rights, the principal props of our Government. Its methods for securing this revolutionary and socialistic change in our institutions are also those of physical welfare. Because of this welfare the industrial interests of the nation during the last year have been injured to an irreparable degree. Many firms have been driven into bankruptcy and the cases are innumerable in which the workingmen have been disabled, and even murdered, while numerous families have been rendered destitute by reason of the tyranny and seditious attacks upon society of the strike organizations. A condition of anarchy has existed continuously in some States for months past, and in fact the acts of lawlessness committed under the sacred name of labor are of such frequent occurrence that the public sense of their enormity has become blunted. The period of great prosperity brought about by the unrestricted operation of the law of supply and demand is also being detroyed by acts of violence of organized labor, and as a result we are now confronted with the possibility of a period of depression

"We, therefore, urge the rapid organization of those who believe in the maintenance of law and order, and the perpetuation of our free institutions, to the end that they may yield their full and proper influence upon the destinies of the nation. Since organizations exist for the apparent purpose of defying law and common sense, and are able to intimidate and influence public men and municipal authorities there is no alternative left to those who desire to preserve bearable conditions in our body politic than that of forming counter organizations. It is only through the machinery of organization that we can hope to exercise a potent and salutary influence over public thought, and the conference over public thought, and the conthe rights of American citizenship can be assured to free and independent labor the right of property protected, and and legislation of a socialistic nature prevented from being enacted into law."

A few interesting remarks were made by Mr. W. H. Hill regarding the investigations made by the committee also highly approving of the Municipal Ownership system, also by Mr. Jamieson and Mr. Hartley.

Mr. V. Eastwood made several objections to the system, but advocated the Toronto system in preference to that of Brantford or Hamilton.

After some further discussion by Messrs. Fair and Stevenson on the Municipal Ownership scheme, the Board adjourned

POLAND IS READY TO STRIKE FOR FREEDOM

Grave Danger Threatens Central Europe Should War Break Out

Berlin, Dec. 8.—Die Grenzboten states the grave danger threatens Central Europe as a result of the growth of the Polish national movement. It declares that Poles of all classes alike in Russian Poland, Prussian Poland and Gaelic are imbued with the patriotic idea of reviving the ancient kingdom of Poland, now divided between Russia, Germany, and Austria. This revolutionary movement has received a strong impetus recently and the situation is beginning to trouble the nations directly affected.

An important section of the Poles in the three countries comprising practically the whole of the Polish aristocracy entertains the bold project of provoking a war between Germany and Russia at some future date. These two powers are the ones which at present form the most insurmountable barrier to Polish nationalist aspirations. The idea of the Poles is that Russia might crush Germany, but that she would be so exhausted by the struggle that it would take many years to recuperate.

With Russia and Germany in a state of prostration the Poles calculate that it would be comparatively easy to deal with Austria and inaugurate a revolution that would end in the re-establishment of the kingdom of Poland. Polish noblemen holding official positions in the Austrian and Russian state services, according to the Die Grenzboten, are using their influence to promote unfriendly relations between Russia and Germany. Many Poles are leading journalists in St. Petersburg, Vienna and Berlin and are provoking bitter enmity between Russians and Germans. Polish influence cleverly brought to bear are at work along the same lines in every respectable center in Europe for the same purpose.

Die Grenzboten then proceeds to discuss the probably effect of the re-establishment of Poland as a kingdom by depriving Russia, Germany, and Austria of large slices of their respective territories. It comes to the conclusion that it would be a loss to civilization, claiming that the Poles are not able to govern themselves so well as they are now governed by the three empires.

BORDERING ON REVOLT.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—The Vorwaerts, a Socialistic organ, says that it learns that a portion of Russia Poland is bordering on revolt. All classes at Bialystok are in a state of feverish excitement, in consequence of daily domiciliary visits by the police, and by arrests following a series of strikes.

GREAT BRITAIN RULES THE SHIPPING WORLD

Free Coal and Free Imports Are the Secret of Her Success on the High Seas

London, Dec. 7— W. Orders, proprietor of the Orders Steamship Company, speaking at Newport, said that owing to free coal and free imports the shipping of the country had more than doubled during the last thirty years, and at the present time Britain owned more than half the total tonnage of the world.

London, Dec. 7—The Leicester Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution declaring that the farmers must have a food tax in addition to the proposed powers of retaliation.

DANGEROUS TO BRITAIN.

Colonial Preference Would Not be Safe in War Time.

London, Dec. 7—A legal correspondent of the Standard, discussing international law in time of war, argues that protection and colonial preferences would make war with a maritime power more dangerous to Britain than free trade

The bad outlet from the Canadian wheat fields would be dangerous to a complete reliance upon the Canadian grain supply.

AMERICAN PREFERENCE.

Tariff Against Britain Higher Than Against United States.

London, Dec. 7— Mr. Peacé, M.P., who lately visited Canada, says that Canadians are not anxious to have the Motherland place a tariff on foreign articles. As the average duty on British goods is 17 per cent., and on United States goods, 12, Americans are getting a preference over the British Empire.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S PLANS

Japan's Populace May Force That Country to War in Spite of Statesmen

London, December 8.—There is rejoicing this morning in anti-Chamberlain circles. Mr. Chamberlain authorizes the statement that he can undertake no further public speeches, beyond the two already arranged. These will definitely close his present campaign. He will not make fresh engagements before the autumn of next year at the earliest.

By Mr. Chamberlain's opponents this official announcement is interpreted as Mr Chamberlain's admission that the country will not run the risk of a dearer loaf and fears to enter into or adopt a retaliatroy competition with America, Germany and Belgium.

Special enquiries, however, discredit this sanguine Liberal view. It is true that Mr. Chamberlain, in his sixty-sixth year, could not, in any case, long maintain the high continuous pressure of the past few months, but the present lull in his public speeches was always contemplated. Mr. Chamberlain never was more sanguine than he is now, but his proposals being now well in the public mind, he believes that his presence and speeches in Parliament, his insistent letters to correspondents, and above all, the extensive publication of the arrangements of his Tariff Reform League, will prove the best medium and keep the fight going until the general election, which today's announcement makes clear is not contemplated by Mr. Chamberlain or Mr. Chamberlain's ally, namely, Mr. Balfour, for at least another year, and probably not for two.

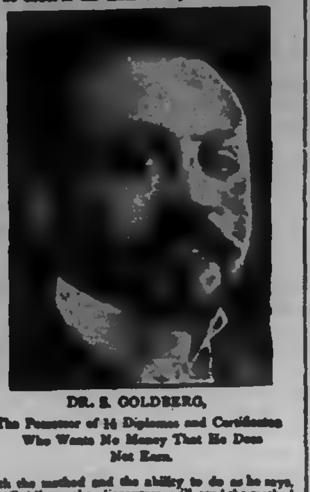
You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has



DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 7, 1903

A CANADIAN MONROE DOCTRINE

It may be that Senator Lodge has done Canada a service by his declaration that the United States should secure the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon instead of allowing Great Britain to obtain them. The spirit of imperialism or shall we call it jingoism?—seems to be still rampant in the United States. It is not, therefore, surprising that Senator Lodge should have expressed such an opinion as that we have mentioned. The fire that was ignited when the Hawaiian Islands were annexed in spite of the protests of their people, assumed large proportions when, as the result of the war with Spain, the last remnants of a great Colonial empire were torn from the feeble grasp of what Lord Salisbury described as one of the "dying nations" of the world. The acquisition of Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands made the expedition for the relief of the Cubans a fairly profitable enterprise and there is still the prospect that even Cuba itself may be gently "pushed" into the American fold if its people do not give practical proof of their appreciation of American magnanimity by granting their benefactors every commercial monopoly and concession that they may demand.

We need not refer to the recent Alaskan Boundary arbitration in which Canadians were beholden to the generosity of the American Commissioners in giving us one end of Portland Channel and two islands when they might have insisted on keeping all for themselves. Scarcely was that affair closed before American diplomacy startled the world by another chivalrous effort. This time it is to assist the people of Panama to separate themselves from the Colombian Republic. The forces of the United States were used to overawe the Colombian authorities and the new State of Panama were immediately recognized. It is, of course, merely an incident that the grateful people of Panama should cede to their benefactors territory for the Isthmian Canal on the terms that the latter desired. Impotent as these Central American Republics are against any first-rate Power, their disintegration makes them still more easy to swallow, and Colombia, despoiled of Panama, must be on her good behaviour, or the political exigencies of the coming Presidential campaign may result in more glorious victories in which she will find her "manifest destiny" in the Great Republic.

Satiated with these easy victories in southern waters, Senator Lodge would extend the blessings of American rule over the northern seas and has pitched on St. Pierre and Miquelon as a convenient strategical point for his ideas of national expansion. Nor should we, perhaps, quibble at this, since the islands still belong to France, and although their ownership by the United States would give that Power a position commanding our great national waterway, we must not forget that the jingoes at Washington have already claimed the ownership of the North Pole and have hinted not obscurely that they have a pre-emption on Hudson Bay, through "effective occupation" by American whalers.

There may be, however, some unreasonable Canucks who think it is time to call a halt to these pretensions. It might be well to take a leaf out of our neighbor's book and announce a Canadian Monroe Doctrine that would make any suggestion of any claim for ownership by the United States of any territory on this Continent north of its boundary, besides what has been conceded by the Alaskan Boundary Tribunal an unfriendly act. We are a peaceful people, but there is a limit to our good nature and such a suggestion as that by Senator Lodge about reaches it. If France should ever relinquish the ownership of her islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, they can only pass into British possession as outposts of Canada.

CARDS AND THE CHURCH

It is interesting to note that an effort will be made at the next Methodist General Conference of the United States to amend the discipline so as to remove the present ban on card-playing and dancing, and it is interesting further to note that the leaders in the movement are western Methodists, which may or may not indicate that the church west is more liberal than the church east. Yet the Boston Advertiser intimates that there are many Methodists in the East and in New England who favor allowing members to play cards, dance, and go to the theater, and that a prominent Methodist clergyman of Boston is one of the clerical directors of the Actors' Alliance.

The movement to lift the ban undoubtedly will encounter strenuous if not bitter opposition, which may be ineffectual. Although card-playing and dancing are still contrary to the discipline, they are not condemned as they were once. Once the church declared them to be "immoral." It does so no longer. They are now only pronounced "imprudent." Possibly the next step will be to call them idle, or frivolous, or unprofitable, but nothing worse than that, and it may be left optional with members to do as they please. Undoubtedly there are many members, especially among the young, who play cards and dance, or even go to the playhouse. It is exceedingly difficult to live up to the strict form of the discipline in this age, when many of the old bars are being taken down and more freedom is allowed. One does not have to go far back indeed in New England and other sections of the country to reach the time when none of the denominations favored these classes of amusements, and not far back of that time to reach a period when, in New England and New Amsterdam and several other new places, it was looked upon as wicked to have much, if any, amusement, or even indulge in an excess of levity. But as the years go by and times grow more liberal rigid laws and stern church disciplines have relaxed, and it is quite now generally conceded that the amusements already referred to are not bad in themselves, and that the evil is only "to him who evil thinks." It is possible perhaps for a person to be a good Christian at an innocent card game where nothing is at stake, or at a social dancing party, just as it is possible for a person to be a sinner in a church pew or in a Sunday school. So it is not impossible that this movement among Western Methodists may be approved by Eastern Methodists under certain precautionary conditions, and that the amusements mentioned may no longer be frowned on by the Church.

Portland, Maine, has been greatly shocked by the discovery of a liquor distillery hard at work in the heart of the city, "almost within sight of the old home of Neal Dow." The cool impudence and rashness of this enterprise is considered to be without precedent. The revenue defrauders might have known that if they went into buying and importing molasses by wholesale, the operation would presently be noticed and would give rise to suspicion.

SHOCKED BY CHICAGO

Dowie's City is in the Hands of Receivers

Newsboys Who Invaded the Place are Chased Out or Locked Up

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 4—"Zion will pay its debts, dollar for dollar, to the last farthing. I will have the receiverships removed in five days. By the first of the year Zion's entire indebtedness will be wiped out."

Bundled in his great coat, his face rubicund from the cold, and with a beaming smile, Dowie stood at the threshold of his library at Zion City today and spoke these words.

Wheels of industry turned in the little city by the north shore of Lake Michigan, notwithstanding the receivership. Only the bank was closed.

After the theocratic city of peace had passed into the hands of receivers there were many signs of the new regime. Custodian Paul Redieske had a black cigar between his teeth in the early morning as he stood in front of the administration building. He was smoking like a chimney, the wreaths drifting up past the windows of the general overseer's office. A Zion guard rushed up to him excitedly.

"Hey, you can't smoke here!" he shouted. "It's against the law!"

He pointed to a signboard at the corner of Shiloh Boulevard.

"No Tobacco, Liquor, or Profanity, or Vulgarity Allowed in This City," the sign read.

"Aw go on," said the north side politician, "I'm from Chicago."

The guard went away apparently satisfied.

A small army of newsboys invaded Zion's streets crying Chicago papers. Zion's entire police force turned out. The boys were chased through streets and alleys, through orchards and garden patches. Several were arrested and their profane wares confiscated.

Dowie Asks for $1,000,000.

A great gathering of the Dowieites was held in the Tabernacle at Zion City. It was called by Dowie for the purpose of starting a fund of $1,000,000 with which to pay off all the indebtedness that hangs over Zion City and himself. The outpouring of his followers was not one to bring cheer to the heart of the general overseer of Zion.

Dowie gave his followers a statement of the financial situation of Zion City told them that the assets were ample, the only trouble being that he was not able to realize upon them at once. All he needed was a contribution of ready money with which to tide over the present crisis in the affairs of the city.

"The fleshpots are the cause of our coming here to-night!" he cried. "They are a joke to me. For an hour the dogs have thought they lead me. But, beloved, we are going to kick them out now. We will kick them for all eternity.

"I call upon you to help me crush them all. My people, I come to you for help. I know that you will not be found wanting. Are you of Zion or not?"

There was a feeble "yes."

"Those devil's parasites, the reporters, came to me today. They wanted to know what I would say to you tonight. I tell you we will run them out of Zion. I knew they were coming before they attempted to pollute Zion—I knew it by the stench that came ahead of them."

May Save the Outfit.

Dowie needs time, it is said, to recuperate from the financial disasters of the New York trip. He is said to have practically given up for a time his trip to Europe to devote himself to saving his municipality. The receivers will give him the aid he wishes and, appreciating that, Dowie is said to be pleased at the present situation.

"The appointment of conservators is in no sense an attack on Dowie or his financial institutions," said Attorney Newman. "On the contrary, the bankruptcy proceedings will put a stop to all hostile litigation and give Dowie ample opportunity to turn himself, collect collateral assets and apply them to the payment of just liabilities. Without the bankruptcy proceedings the sixty lawsuits now pending would shortly ripen into judgments, and the Sheriff of Lake County would seize and carry away every parcel of property and leave nothing of Dowie's labors or accumulations. The receivers in bankruptcy will make this destruction of property and annihilation of business impossible. They will preserve and protect everything."

Judge Kohlsaat gave permission to the receivers to continue the business at Zion. He was assured that a detailed report of financial conditions of the institutions would be made to him as soon as possible. Unless frauds are shown to have been perpetrated, a final order for the operation of all plants will then be made, and under directions of the court the industries will attempt to alleviate the distress.

NEURALGIA

THIS DISTRESSING COMPLAINT IS DUE TO IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

When the blood becomes thin and watery, as a matter of course, you become weak, vitality gets down low, and there is but little power in the system to ward off disease and pain.

Neuralgia hunts out a weak spot, and makes a home there, so secure that it is only by using the proper remedies it can be driven from the system, never to return. To obtain immediate relief, first apply to the painful parts a good quantity of Polson's Nerviline, and then bind on a hot flannel cloth.

This local treatment will be found very efficacious, but must be followed by a course of Ferrozone treatment. Ferrozone is a blood food, and a blood purifier, and quickly strengthens the system so that further attacks may never be feared. It makes the rich red kind of blood that gives strength and vigor to weak constitutions and puts them in good shape to resist neuralgic attacks.

This combined treatment of Nerviline and Ferrozone in Neuralgia, Sciatica, and Rheumatism, is marvelously effective and cures after all else has failed. Because of the unique success of these remedies we have no hesitancy in endorsing their use to our readers. All druggists sell them.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale of stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing them with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber: builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

CHRISTMAS IN JUDEA.

OBSERVANCES AT THE SACRED SEPULCHRE.

Curious Scenes About the Place of Nativity—The Stable a Grotto—Religious Observances—The People of Bethlehem—Female Traits.

THE poet Lamartine, writing of the Holy Land in his "Meditations" sixty odd years ago, tells of buying an arsenal of pistols, sabres and other weapons to arm his company against the Greek pirates who infested the Archipelago Sea and of divers other dangers which made the journey to the scene of the nativity and life of Christ adventurous and lively.

A recent French writer, visiting Bethlehem at Christmas time, found it hard to believe, in these practical days of railroads and table d'hote dinners, that such a condition of affairs could ever have existed.

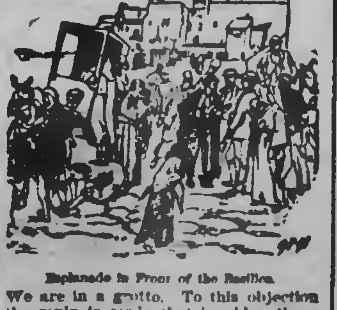
Arriving at Bethlehem, he says, I hastened to see the scenes of the nativity, full of expectation and yet ready to be disappointed, for that had been my lot so often in Palestine. The Mount of Olives, Golgotha, the Sacred Sepulchre, all were in my eyes spoiled for the want of that exquisite simplicity which had filled my childish visions. Everywhere the ardor of the faithful has shown itself in upsetting and improving things in a deplorable manner. So I asked myself with apprehension how I would find the stable where Mary brought her child into the world and laid him in the manger because there was no place for them at the inn.

Passing through the narrow and crooked street which cuts Bethlehem into two parts we finally reached the extremity of the burg and found ourselves in an oblong square, which in its turn opened into an esplanade paved with stone, here and there showing openings into cisterns which served for baptisms and for ablutions among former generations of Christians. In those days it was the usage to wash before entering the sanctuary.

A curious scene is here on the very border of the place of the nativity. On one side a burial ground with white tombs; on two other sides rows of bare, high walls, like a fortress or a prison. Here and there windows pierce the walls, but no doors. One looks about him mystified, but finally discovers a black hole in and out of which people are passing almost on all fours, so low is it. This is the chief entry to the sanctuary of the nativity. Having passed through this hole one finds himself in a large hall divided by four colonnades and surmounted by a roof flanked by heavy beams. People stand about talking and smoking, children play, Turkish soldiers sew up their uniforms, women give suck to their infants, fakirs offer oranges, beads and candles for sale, while Greek and Franciscan monks hurry about as if on business of pressing importance. Formerly, I am told, the Arabs used to stable their sheep here.

But this is not the stable where Jesus was born, and one is some time in discovering it. On the left two Turkish soldiers with rifles are stretched lazily on a bench. One is asleep, the other yawns. They are evidently not there from personal preference. In front of them a circular stairway goes down to a door which seems to indicate a crypt. The door passed, one continues the descent by a narrow staircase until he comes to two other Turkish soldiers, this time standing up, with guns on the floor, and on the left, lighted by hanging lamps, is the following inscription: "Hic de Virgine Maria, Jesus Christus, natus est" (Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary). We are in the stable.

This discovery is much of a surprise, and one's first movement is for protestation, for the simple reason that nothing at all like a stable is apparent.



Esplanade in Front of the Basilica.

We are in a grotto. To this objection the reply is made that in olden times it was the custom in Palestine to use grottos for stables. Unfortunately, even this explanation seems unsatisfactory, so much has the appearance of the grotto been changed. The walls are covered with marble, and countless lamps hang down from a ceiling richly decorated with gold and purple hangings. The effect is that of a pretentious hallway in some Oriental museum. There is nothing which calls to mind the poverty in which Jesus was born, and the manger, which is seen at the right in a space supported with marble columns, is also made of marble. Finally one sees, also fashioned in marble and a little further to the right, a circular orifice marking the place where God caused a spring to burst forth when the holy family was sheltered in this refuge.

Of course Christmas is the great fete day at Bethlehem. On Christmas eve the French Consul comes from Jerusalem to Bethlehem to take part in the ceremonies of the great Christian night. The Turkish authorities place at his disposal a detachment of cavalry, and two officers with drawn sabres accompany him. Surrounded by his eight cawas on horseback in their striking Levantine costume of blue and gold, the Consul goes with the procession, which includes many pilgrims, through the holy place. About half way there, near the rock of Eli, mentioned above, the sheiks of Bethlehem and other rich people of the city wait for the Consul on horseback and accompany him to his destination, while the whole population turn out along the streets, the women and children along the terraces and at the windows, and welcome the visitors with cries and cheers. Upon the esplanade before the basilica the Turkish garrison stands at arms, while the music of the Catholic orphan asylum sounds the "Marseillaise," and then the cortege passes on to the Franciscan monastry, where the prelates of the Latin Church, the patriarch himself, who is the chief dignitary in Palestine, being present, receive the guests.

At night the Christmas service begins at 10 o'clock with a pontifical mass celebrated at the Franciscan Church near the basilica. The richest vestments are worn for this office, these having been presented in the name of the French Republic by Marechal MacMahon. This first ceremony is concluded about midnight, and then a long procession with candles in hand moves towards the grotto of the nativity. First comes the cross bearer, followed by Franciscan monks and members of other religious bodies. The patriarch comes last, and directly behind him, at the head of the laymen, walks the French Consul with his attendants. Only those who precede the patriarch carry candles, but that dignitary bears in his hand with infinite precaution a beautiful little child in wax, which, with sweet smile, seems almost on the point of crying out. The divine child rests in a manger on silken cushions, rose colored and embroidered with gold.

At the Basilica of the Nativity.

The cortege, having traversed the transcept of the basilica and descended into the grotto of the patriarch, stops in front of the spot where the child Jesus was born. The patriarch places the manger and child in the hands of one of his followers and begins to chant the story of the Nativity as told by St. Luke. Then the prelate takes the child again and placing it upon a silver star continues the service, with modifications of the sacred text appropriate to the occasion and the special surroundings. As the prelate says the words which tell how the Holy Mother brought into the world her first born son he takes the child again, wraps it in fine laces and chants:

"And here they wrapped it in clothes."

Then he walks to the marble manger and places in it the image of the new born child, at the same time chanting the words:

"And here they laid it in a manger because there was no place for them at the inn."

This service often lasts until 2 o'clock in the morning, and is finished by a "Te Deum" and "God Save the Republic." All Bethlehem watches this night, and the people, men, women and children, remain until day breaks with lighted candles in their hands in the neighborhood of the basilica.

Bethlehem is of all the cities in the Orient or in Palestine the most Christian. In a population of a little more than 6,000 inhabitants there are hardly 100 Mohammedans. It is a fact not generally known that the Bethlehemites are lineal descendants of the crusaders. They prove it to you by long parchments in which their genealogy is traced out elaborately. Indeed, there is no need of such proof, for the Ayrian type is plainly seen in their features. Under their Oriental garb one is surprised to find yellow hair and blue eyes which in no way resemble the typical Arab or Syrian. These peculiarities are not found in Jerusalem, which city was too great to be absorbed by the crusaders, whereas the little burg of Bethlehem was entirely peopled by them and has remained the residing place of their descendants until the present day.

Not only are the people of Bethlehem unique in the matter of physical traits but they have the spirit of enterprise and activity of mind and economy which are not less rare in the East than are the blond hair and blue eyes. They devote themselves almost entirely to the fabrication of pious souvenirs, which are carried away in immense quantities by tourists and pilgrims.

It is literally true that in most of their domestic customs, such as marriages and funerals, the same practices are in use to-day as existed in biblical times. The woman of Bethlehem wears a costume which is most picturesque, a long garment without fastening at the waist colored in stripes of blue, red, yellow and green, and covered at the throat with fine embroidery under which are shown short brick-colored vests embroidered with arabesque figures in yellow. Her head dress is not less striking, being composed of a red colotte, spangled with pieces of silver, which, together with necklaces formed in the same way, make up her dowry. The woman of Bethlehem is also famous for her beauty, with regular and fine features, a skin where pink and white struggle for the mastery, and an expression at once demure and grave, which seems peculiarly appropriate for these fair descendants of the Blessed Virgin.

Football Tactics in the Ballroom.

The American Society of Professors of Dancing, which recently met in New York, has decreed that football tactics on the ballroom floor must stop. There must be no more "Yale glides," nor "Harvard dips," nor distorted attempts to tread a measure in two-four time when the music calls for three beats in a bar. The dancing of the two-step to waltz time and the grotesque positions assumed by the dancers are evils attributed to the college fads that have vitiated the public taste. "Some of these students" said one professor, "invent a series of Simian contortions and football tactics and give it a college name, and the public thinks it is all right because the college men do it. Now, we want to stop all this, and bring dancing back to the old style of graceful carriage that enabled the dancers to express the beauty of motion to music. A majority of the people now seem to dance a two-step to waltz music. This is not right. The two-step is easier to teach, as it is in common time, and dancing it to waltz music is not a correct movement." Attention was also drawn to the neglect in the large cities of the old square dances, which are still taught in the smaller cities.

More Gluttons than Drunkards.

In the "Gentleman's Magazine" Dr. Yorke-Davies writes on "Gout the Nemesis," a subject on which he can speak from long experience—experience of the sufferings of other people. It is in the nature of a staggerer to learn from such an authority that more people shorten their lives, directly or indirectly, by excessive eating than by excessive drinking:

"That excess in either induces numberless diseases which shorten life goes without saying. The consequences of excess in drinking are more apparent in some ways than excess in eating. The individual who takes too much stimulant shows plainly that he is doing so. He gets manifestations that are palpable even to the most unobservant of his friends. Indeed, one often hears the remark that so-and-so is shortening his life by excess. On the other hand, the individual who eats himself to death does not seem to attract any attention at all. In fact, the more a person eats the more pleased his friends are. They say, 'He has a healthy appetite, enjoys his food,' and so on. He is tempted in every way with the refined cuisine of the present day and the repetition of dishes to eat beyond repletion. The result is that if the food he is fond of is not the kind of food he should eat, he becomes either so gouty or rheumatic that he cannot walk, or so corpulent that he gets to be an object of pity and amusement to all his friends, and, whether male or female, becomes to a great extent a nuisance to all around.

"Gout is much more prevalent among males than among females. It is more prevalent in cold climates than in hot ones, and in those predisposed by heredity a very small excess in eating or drinking will precipitate the attack. Undue physical work or exertion, excessive mental work or worry, exposure to cold or wet, sudden suppression of perspiration, emotional causes such as sudden joy, a fit of rage, loss of blood, injury to a joint or sudden wrench, will do the same. Indeed, the gouty individual is like the atmosphere when overcharged with electricity. He has in his system a bottled thunderstorm always ready to burst out."

It is a curious fact, as the author points out, that many who live to eat are very hard upon those who live to drink.

Red Mites in the Poultry House.

The little red mite is a very serious pest among chickens if it is allowed to have the roam of the premises for a short time, although it is one of the easiest to guard against when proper precautions are taken. We have known cases where they have killed grown hens and made life almost a burden to their keeper, besides tormenting horses and cows so they would turn away from their feed. Just a few days ago a young man was telling me his little chicks had been all dying off, and he believed it was lice and wanted to know how to get rid of them. Upon questioning him we found they were mites. Kerosene oil as a remedy has never been known to fail when properly used.

Many do not recognize the difference in the red mite and lice, which must necessarily be considered when attempting to get rid of them. The louse is at home on the body of the fowl or chick, while the red mite breeds and lives on the roosts, in nest boxes and in the crevices of the walls of the poultry house or coops. We found once that they had established themselves in one of our houses, and in a short time, with a few gallons of kerosene oil and a whisk broom we killed every one we could find, and as long as we kept our chickens on that place we never saw one again. Since that time we made a practice of using kerosene oil on the roosts and in nest boxes, occasionally, and have never had any to fight since. Warm days are wonderfully helpful in the propagation of insect life.—Indiana Farmer.

Breeding "Lady Bugs."

About a year ago the United States Government presented Mr. Wm. M. Scott, the State entomologist of Georgia, with twenty small insects known as the Asiatic lady bug. It was said to be an insect, imported from Asia by the United States Department of Agriculture, and was guaranteed to kill the San Jose scale rapidly, provided, of course, there were a sufficient number of bugs. They were discovered by one of the Government entomologists several years ago, and by being very careful he managed to bring several pairs to this country. These pairs multiplied, and last year the Government furnished several of the Southern States with twenty bugs each.

Mr. Scott determined to try the scheme and he took the bugs to Marshallville, placed them in a wire cage built around a peach tree which was infected with the San Jose scale, and now the State of Georgia owns some 40,000 of the scale killers. Mr. Scott is very proud of his colony and says he will in a short time be enabled to furnish every fruit grower in Georgia with a supply. Where the bugs have had an opportunity to get after the scale they have almost annihilated it.

For some time past the scale has been playing havoc with the peach trees in the State, and thousands of trees have been completely killed or dug up as a result of the dreaded disease. . . . The bugs are said to be much better for the San Jose scale than the kerosene spray and all other remedies combined.—Journal of Agriculture.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U.S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends ?!

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

Now that the truth was out, a feeling of regret swept over Monckton.

For many days past, his suspicions had pointed to Lady Errol, and, in his mind, he had been convinced of her guilt.

Yet, in this moment, when she stood with the confession of crime on her lips, her beauty and her youth struck on him, and he would have given much to have been able to efface the horrible deed which had blighted her life.

Among all those present, his, perhaps, was the only face on which there rested a shade of compassion.

She saw the pitying expression in his eyes and gave utterance to a shrill, wild laugh.

"I have mocked at my fate!" she cried. "Let none pity me! As I have been my own accuser, so I will be my own judge, taking life for life—shedding blood for blood!"

She thrust her hand amid the folds of her dress.

The next instant there was the gleam of a steel blade.

With a swift movement her arm was uplifted; then, like a flash of lightning, the knife quivered downward, and was buried deep in her bosom.

A crimson stream dyed the snowy fur and the white velvet of her robe.

With a moan of agony, she swayed backward, the dagger, stained with her life-blood, falling to her feet.

Even with the pangs of death sending shudders through her frame, her strong will did not desert her.

She knew she had inflicted upon herself a mortal wound—that every breath she drew brought her nearer to the end—that, if she once closed her eyes, she would never open them again in life.

The agony of her mind overcome the anguish of her body.

With an effort, which seemed to call together all her ebbing strength, she kept herself from sinking to the ground, and, struggling to an erect position, she staggered towards Frank.

"Look on me!" she gasped, fixing her glazing eyes on his face. "Watch my agonies—and think what I was once to you! Let the memory of me rise for ever between you and happiness—between you and love! Wherever you go, my shadow shall follow in your footsteps—my blood cry out for vengeance against you, until the Day of Doom, when you shall be called upon to answer for your sin—for my crime, and my life!"

The last words were scarcely distinguishable, so heavy and labored had grown her breathing.

A film had gathered over her eyes, and, with a convulsive movement, she lifted her arms and clenched her hands in the agony of death.

Once—twice she swayed, her head sinking forward on her breast; then her arms dropped to her sides, and she fell at the feet of the man who had roused in her all the wildest of human passions.

She lay where she had fallen, without sound or motion, her dishevelled hair covered his feet.

He stood like one transfixed, unable to move or speak.

He dared not break the silence which had followed the heavy falling of her body—a silence that seemed to hold his very breath in suspension.

Monckton knelt down, and, with gentle hands, put back some of the dark hair and raised the cold white face.

The eyes were wide open, but fixed and sightless.

The last throb had been wrung from the passion-torn heart, and the gaping wound in the pulseless breast silently proclaimed the end.

"She is dead!" Monckton said slowly, looking up from the lifeless face.

The clergymn went near, and put forth his hand, as though in benediction.

"May God deal lightly with her sins," he said. "May He forgive her, and vouchsafe the wounded soul."

"Amen!" Monckton responded; and then, with that mingling of reverence and awe the strongest man feels in the presence of death, he drew a loose fold of white velvet over the rigid face.

Frank breathed more freely when the ghastly features were hidden from his gaze.

Those wide-open eyes, with their fixed and lifeless stare, had seemed to hold him under a spell, chilling him to the heart.

He drew a deep, long breath, like a man awakenening from a trance, and stepped back from the meshes of dark hair trailing over his feet.

"That must be removed!" he muttered, pointing to the dead form. "It is time to proceed with the marriage ceremony!"

He turned to Nellie, who was crouching away from him, her eyes resting with horror on the form stretched before the altar.

She gave a shuddering cry as he touched her hand.

"No! No!" she gasped. "She has killed herself for love of you! I can never be your wife!"

"It is too late to retreat," he answered, his voice so hollow that it sounded strange in his own ears. "The service is half through. In point of honor, you are already my wife."

"And what was she!" Nellie demanded, pointing to the silent form they were raising from the floor. "With her words still ringing in my ears, do you think I could call you husband? With the remembrances of her agony freezing my soul, do you think I could turn to you with love and trust? What she was to you I do not understand, but this I know—she loved you, and through that love you drove her to despair and madness. I shall never forget this terrible scene, or the cause of it. Whatever was between us ends here—in that dead presence. I promised to become your wife, believing you loyal and worthy my trust. Your deceived me, my faith was misplaced, and now I see you in your true light. I renounce all claim upon you!"

He gazed down at her in a dazed kind of way, a feeling of loss, such as he had never before experienced, sweeping over him.

He grasped her hand with that force of despair with which a drowning man clings to a straw.

"I love you!" he said, hoarsely. "Give me time, and everything shall be explained. I swear to you that woman had no legal claim upon me—no claim of any sort. When I asked you to be my wife, I did so with a free conscience, knowing I could prove myself worthy your trust."

"You cannot turn me from my decision," she answered, freeing her hand from his grasp, and shuddering away from him. "My faith in you, once broken, can never be made whole. We shall part here at the altar, and go our separate ways. Whenever I think of this day, I shall thank Heaven I was spared the misery of being your wife."

Something like a sob broke from her when she had finished. Moving to her father's side, she laid her trembling hand on his arm.

"Take me home," she said, her voice full of pain, "there is nothing more for me to do. His bride is there!"

With a piteous movement she indicated the lifeless form they were carrying away; then, as Lord Rayne put his arm gently around her, she hid her face against his breast, and wept like a child.

Without a word, he led her from the church and placing her in the bridal carriage, took his seat by her side.

"Home!" he said to the astonished groom, and the next moment they were being driven rapidly through the snow.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Frank went from the church feeling as though he had lost all hold upon the interests of this life.

He knew it would be useless to plead further with Nellie.

He had deceived her, keeping back that secret, the knowledge of which would have hardened her heart against him at the outset of their acquaintance.

Those who had gathered outside the porch to watch for the bridal party, gazed wonderingly at him, as he stepped out into the falling snow, his face drawn and haggard, an expression of unutterable despair darkening his eyes.

A Triple Tragedy.

An Indian from the Flambeau reservation in Northern Wisconsin recently came into the fishing resort of Squaw Lake with a curiosity in the way of deer horns he wished to sell. Failing to make a sale, he took the horns back to the reservation. The Montreal "Witness" describes his treasure as three sets of antlers inextricably interlocked. Two sets of antlers so locked are rare, but not unknown. It is believed that the Flambeau Chippeway has the only set of three-locked antlers in the world.

The accident could have happened only in one way. Two bucks of equal strength were fighting in the forest and became locked. Then, while they were still struggling, a third buck appeared and charged them both, probably repeatedly, until his own horns became fastened.

The Indian says he found the horns north of Flambeau Lake, about a mile from the water. They were lying on the side of a hill, and there were no bones near them. The condition of the horns proved that the fight occurred not more than two years ago. The antlers were all of full-grown bucks, showing eight and ten points each.

The third pair had been driven into the others just above where they were joined, and the branches of them were about equally locked with the branches of the others.

They were not broken or chipped in any way, which seems to indicate that when the third buck had made his last charge he was fastened so firmly that there was no room for any one of his points to play in the forks of the others. Indeed, all the horns were so stoutly joined that they could not be moved at all. They are as rigid as if molded in that fashion from steel.

Leishman's Happy Remark.

Mr. J. G. A. Leishman, United States Ambassador to Turkey, is said to be a millionaire; but in childhood he was an inmate of an orphan asylum in Pittsburg. His ready wit and pluck joined to industry, caused him to rise in life. This story of his youth, which is published in the Boston "Post," exemplifies his power of making the best of an awkward situation:

He was driving along a narrow country road. Suddenly he saw another team approaching from the opposite direction. For Mr. Leishman to turn out would have meant the sinking of his carriage to the hubs in the mud of a ditch, but the other team could have turned out without inconvenience.

The driver of the other rig, however, showed no desire to turn out. He was a fat man, and he and Mr. Leishman approached each other till the noses of their horses touched. Each, it was plain, was determined not to turn out. They stopped, face to face, and for a while glared at each other in silence.

Finally the fat man lighted a cigar, crossed his legs, and began to puff comfortably away. Mr. Leishman took out a pipe and smoked in turn.

Then the fat man took a newspaper from under the seat and began to read. Evidently, Mr. Leishman reasoned, this was to be a contest of patient waiting (and at patient waiting he was not good) or else it was to be a contest that would be decided by a coup of some sort. To accomplish a coup, he made up his mind to break the silence, and between puffs he said:

"When you're through with that paper I'd like to look at it, if you don't mind."

This remark caused the fat man to laugh. He apologized to the other for his churlishness, drew his carriage out so that Mr. Leishman's could pass, and the two parted good friends.

Remorse.

"I am very sorry, Victor, to think you were such a glutton. Are you not sorry yourself that you ate so much turkey?"

"Yes, mother, 'cause I hadn't any room left for the mince pie."—"Bazar."

"The widow is talking ambiguously."
"Yes, with a double entente."—Ex.

Storm King Group of Mines

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

The property comprising what is known as the STORM KING GROUP OF MINES offers an attractive and safe investment. The property is the richest in the country and we believe it would be difficult to secure an investment that promises better returns. The following is a description of the mines written by Capt. A. M Paul, whose reputation as an expert in mining matters is known far and near.

These properties are situated in the Cable Cove Mining District, about fifteen miles north of Sumpter, Oregon, and about one mile northwest of the Baby McKee mine, about two miles northwest of the Last Chance, the Alpine, the Imperial and the California mines.

The properties in this report consist of seven claims. The names of the seven claims being as follows: The Eureka and the Honest Dollar. These two claims are on the same vein. Adjoining these two claims and paralleling them on the northwest is another vein upon which there are two claims known as the Jessie and Golden Rule, and paralleling them on the northwest there is another vein upon which there are two claims, known as the Storm King and the Ozone. The last claim of this group lies to the northwest of the last two named, and is adjoining them. This claim is the Shannon Bell.

In making my report I will commence with the two first named claims of the group, the Eureka and Honest Dollar. The development on these claims consists of a tunnel ninety-seven feet in length, running along the course of the vein, showing two feet ten inches of ore in the top of the tunnel and a little over three feet in the bottom, which assays giving values of from $9.68 to $70 per ton in gold. About four hundred feet in a southwesterly direction there is a shaft on the vein ten feet deep, showing the vein to be from one to two inches wide on the surface and about twelve inches wide in the bottom of the shaft, in which assays give values of from $9.76 to $40 per ton in free milling gold ore.

This vein is exposed by small shafts and open cuts for a distance of fifteen hundred feet, and the course of this vein is north, ten degrees east, and the vein cuts the formation, showing it to be a true fissure, and the formation is granite. This vein shows in places a width of from ten to fifteen feet of mineralized matter, commonly called vein matter, but which is caused by hot solutions from below.

I will now pass to the Jessie and Golden Rule. There has been very little work done upon these two claims, there being one discovery shaft ten feet deep, showing ore on all sides of the shaft, and running in value of from $4 upwards. It is my opinion that with development, this, too, will prove valuable property.

The work on the Storm King and Ozone consists of a tunnel near the point of discovery which is driven along the vein for a distance of one hundred and eighty feet, showing ore all the way from the surface to the face of the tunnel, and averaging in width from six to eighteen inches. Three assays give the following values. $12.00. This being a general sample taken from the dump. The other two assays are $62.68 and $79.06 respectively, this being the assorted ore for shipment. The course of this tunnel and vein are north, ten degrees west, and the vein cuts the trend of the formation obliquely (which is granite) and by driving this tunnel five or six hundred feet further it will intersect a quartzite reef (which is running north, twenty degrees east) which would make this a contact vein between granite and quartzite, and should produce a large body of ore at the intersection of the contact.

The only work done upon the Shannon Bell, the last claim of this group is the location work, and is not enough to allow of a report being made.

There is water for power purposes one mile from the property, and timber on the ground, of a very fine quality, sufficient to run the mine for many years to come.

All the assays mentioned in this report were made by the assayer, of the Imperial mine at my request, and the ore was taken by me from the properties mentioned.

I will state that I have been a practical miner since 1870, and am now the manager and superintendent of the Imperial mine in this district.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Dec. 7.—An active movement in the copper shares was one of the few features of the Stock Exchange transactions Monday. The general situation was still regarded favorably although in a number of cases prominent observers say that a reaction was due. The monetary situation was the subject of favorable comment. Indications point to a heavy return of money from the interior this week. The late market presented a series of mixed operations and in many instance that the profits were simply interchanging a few lines of the specialties. The late news was without feature. Outside stocks were quiet and steady.

New York, Dec. 7.—The market will probably be unsettled and lower on Monday, and should have a fair rally on Tuesday afternoon. On strong spots the stocks will be an excellent sale. There will be some rallies, and such rallies stocks should be sold. They will not break wide open from the present, but they will break wide open after they have gradually sagged a few points. People who are short of B.R.T. should put a stop above 50. We do not think there will be an up movement to amount to anything in any stock, this includes A.R. and other specialties.

DIVORCES ARE INVALID

New York People Find Themselves in an Unpleasant Position

New York, Dec. 6—A writer in the American says:

Our "polygamous plutocracy," as Rev. Dr. Newnam Smith called it on Sunday, —Dr. Dix and Dr. Parkhurst must look to their laurels— had a new sensation last evening. A Dakota divorce was yesterday declared invalid. There are more than one hundred ladies well known in New York who have profited by the chivalrous complaisance of the Dakota judges, and most of them have married again; in fact, had selected their "futures before they went to Sioux Falls. There is also one well known lady there at present, and two who have planned to go. Consequently the new decision created a flutter. The choice topic of dinner table conversation last night lay in locating where the various well known divorces have been granted. The Hunnewell-Kemp marriage is not affected, because Mrs. Kemp obtained hers in Newport, while Mrs. Hunnewell's was granted in Boston. But the Dakota divorces have been many, and the complications which may arise may be numberless and various.

SEIZED FURS

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 7 — Deputy Game Warden, Dr. Manhard, while in Smith's Falls, seized a consignment of furs, done up in bags. The lot was composed of otter, muskrat, fox, mink, skunk, bear and lynx skins, a valuable collection, in all worth over $500. The skins were addressed to Brockville and shipped from Sharbot Lake, but nobody knows who shipped them.

Dowie's Descent on New York.

Eight special trains, over as many railroads, have been engaged to carry John Alexander Dowie and his "Restoration Host" to New York City next month. A "great mission" is to be held in Madison Square Garden from October 18 to November 1. Dowie will be accompanied, according to advance notices, by the "Zion White-Robed Choir of Hundreds of Voices, Zion City Brass Band, Hundreds of Officers of the Church, and at least Four Thousand Members of Zion Restoration Host."

A man who knows himself to be in the wrong generally tries to end the conversation; whereas, a woman—is never in the wrong.

A Stormy "First Night."

Commenting on the receptions of his various plays, H. J. W. Dam recently told a reporter that at one time at the opening production of his play, "The Coquette," he thought nobody connected with the entertainment would leave the theater alive. The house," he said, "was the little Prince of Wales, managed by Oscar Lowenthal. The piece did not go very well, and at the end there were calls for the author. I did not mind going out, for a similar play of mine, 'The Shop Girl,' had run twenty months in the Gaiety, and I felt that the pit and gallery would treat me with some courtesy, as one who had, at least, pleased them once. But the 'Boo!' that came over the footlights that night as I made my appearance was really like a tornado! It was almost palpable. I fairly reeled and staggered back as it came at me like something that might be warded off had I the thickness of the curtain between me and it. And it endured, too—endured until I felt myself pulled and jerked about, and realized that the curtain, to the end of which I had been holding with one clenched hand, was ascending. I looked about, and there stood Lowenthal, the color of pure marble. He stepped down, pushed me aside, and then gave that audience a vast amount of information concerning the private character of each and every individual composing it. I do not believe that a coster from Whitechapel could have competed with the manager that night in the expert use of choice Billingsgate. He blackguarded them until they were stilled, and then he blackguarded some more. He paid for that speech with a fortune, for popular indignation told against the Prince of Wales Theater, and he, too stubborn to let go, held on until he was wiped out."

Athletics vs. Beauty.

An English exchange comments as follows on the subject of Athletics for Women:

"The 'beauty specialists' appear to be doing a better trade than ever before; for which they have to thank the immoderate indulgence in athletic exercises which so many women now affect. It is impossible for a woman to abandon her natural position in the scheme of creation without losing something, and the attainment of masculine strength and skill involves, for woman, the penalty of ugliness—that is, from the standard which centuries have set up. Beauty, as generally understood, depends chiefly upon the curves produced by softness and roundness of outline, and a facial expression void of strain or effort.

"Among the lower classes beauty is rare, except in very young, well-fed girls. Comparative idleness, quiet surroundings, mental and physical repose, favor the development of beauty; while work and such sports, games, and exercises as call for more than a trifling amount of exertion harden the muscles and expression together, with artistically unfavorable results.

"The beautiful women of to-day who are known to the world as such are not very numerous. But early in the century painters of portraits were hard put to it to keep pace with the demands of lovely women. Those beauties rode quiet horses, used a needle slowly, and played the harp. To straddle a bicycle would have been an impossible, if not an improper, feat for any one of them, had such a machine existed.

"The health of our girls is certainly much improved, and many a modern father feels the bald patch on top of his head more exposed to the gaze of his giant daughter than is comfortable. But health and stature are purchased at a great cost, and portraits of grandmother, painted in youth, look down without cause for envy upon their healthy, firm-jawed, flat-footed, muscular successors. The apostle of moderation seldom gets a hearing until excesses have been long indulged in, for vested interests without number cause every social hobby and craze to be thoughtlessly and recklessly encouraged.

"The 'open-air' craze has much to answer for. Delicate people open their bedroom windows to fog and damp, to dust and dirt and microbes, with a pathetic belief that the outer air is always safer than that within. The 'morning tub' has before now produced fatal illness, and in all the physical training fads there is danger for those without special knowledge. The chief disease of the day is overstrain, and it fathers a hundred others. 'Nervous disorders,' says Dr. Goodhart, 'affect the muscularly weak and the muscularly strong,' which is a hard saying for those who would rival Hercules."

Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of [illegible] feet, and a tunnel run a distance of [illegible] feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ore. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent. annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

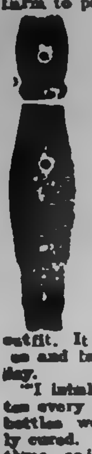
ASTHMA CURED

Mrs. Farndel, Clementsport, N. S., suffered all her life from asthama, but was permanently cured by Catarrhozone after all other means failed.

Mrs. Farndel's recovery affords overwhelming proof of what Catarrhozone will do. Nothing except Catarrhozone was of the slightest benefit, but when given a fair trial it cured.

Now perhaps you need something for your cold or bronchitis or Asthma? Why not try Catarrhozone? Thousands have been cured by inhaling it a few minutes now and again, and certainly it won't do you any harm to profit by their experience.



Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for of others who are suffering from asthma that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone.

"I am now in my eightieth year and cannot recall the time free from the Asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave me relief in five minutes and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used, I was completely cured. I am as free now from Asthma, as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone Inhaler next to life itself.

(Signed) MRS. T. FARNDEL."

This is proof positive that Catarrhozone is a sure and speedy cure for the worst kind of Asthma. It is guaranteed to give satisfactory results, and your money will be refunded if it fails. Girls Wanted

Boarding

Private board for two gentlemen may be had near the C. G. E. Apply at Times office for address.

Christmas Fruits

All kinds of dried fruits are now in great demand for the approaching holiday season. E. F. Mason & Co have the largest and best assorted stock to be found anywhere. You are welcome to inspect and compare quality and prices. Our Crescent Brand Raisins and Currants are superior to all others.

Cold Storage Company

Bobcaygeon Independent.—Mr. W. J. Doughty is in town selling stock in the Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Coy. The proposition is to carry on business as Cold Storage and Pork packing, and export eggs, butter, cheese, etc. The Coy. intend buying the site and buildings owned by Mr. George Carton, which is situated between the Midland railway and Otonabee river, on the south boundary of the town, but in Monaghan. The capital is to be $300,000 in shares of $50.

Take Your Choice

Detroit News: This is to be a bitterly cold winter, so old inhabitants say after inspecting the signs. Fish have double sets of scales, rabbit pelts are thick with fur, apple skins are thick with fur, apple skins are extra thick, and the ice crop is likely to be unusually heavy.

Kingston Whig: Weather prophets point to a mild winter, and to the prospect of a low coal bill. The prayer of the average coal consumer will be that the prediction may be verified.

ALBANY CLUB BALL.

MOST BRILLANT AFFAIR OF THE SEASON

Held in the Opera House Last Night—Everything Tastefully Arranged and Well Carried Out.

Dancing, that art of which poets have sung in all ages and which stands unrivalled to the present day as a graceful amusement was never more fully enjoyed than last evening in the Opera House at the ball given under the auspices of the Albany Club. Although it was the first attempt of this well known organization to conduct a reception of this kind, it proved an immense success, both from a social and financial standpoint. The affair was admirably conducted and the committee in charge were warmly congratulated on the unqualified success of their efforts.

The Albany Club's handsome suite of rooms were lavishly decorated and supplied with everything necessary for the comfort and convenience of the guests. The reception room presented a most gorgeous appearance. Beautifully carpeted and curtained and furnished with plush divans and tete-a-tetes the effect was indeed very striking. Here the guests were received by the following ladies, who acted as patronesses: Mrs. W. H. Meldrum, Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. J. R. Crane, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mrs. (Dr.) Bradd, Mrs. Rupert Gliddon, Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, Mrs. J. H. McClellan, Mrs. J. R. Frost, Mrs. W. Salisbury.

The hallway was also carpeted and profusely decorated with palms, calla lilies, etc. During the reception one of the brilliant features of the occasion was the splendid selections rendered by Gliddon's orchestra, which was stationed in the hall amid foliage and flowers which gave an air of enchantment to the scene.

The lunch rooms were under the supervision of Mr. Harry Long, who sustained his reputation as a first-class caterer. The menu was most elaborate and the tables elegantly appointed.

Ample accommodation was provided for those who enjoyed dancing, the whole opera house floor, on the upper flat being set aside for the devotees of terpsichore. The decorations here were also most artistic, every available space being brightened with gaily colored bunting and appropriate mottoes while the national colors were tastefully arranged and displayed about the walls. The dance program was a lengthy and elaborate one and was remarkable for the handsome gowns worn by the fair guests.

Altogether the affair was the most brilliant of this season's many entertainments, and will linger long in the minds of those who were fortunate enough to have participated in the festivities. The gentlemen who had the affair in charge were Messrs. G. A Cox W. Bunton, R. M. Roy, L. D. Oakley, W K. Hall, Roland Denne, Chris. Graham, W. Salisbury, Dickson Hall, Herb. Edmison and E. Mahon.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Timothy McMahon Passes Away at Neillsville

The many friends of Mrs. Timothy McMahon will learn with regret of her death which occurred a week ago yesterday. Mrs. McMahon's maiden name was Nora O'Brien. The deceased was born in the county of Tipperary, Ireland, 71 years ago, and came to Canada when but a year old. She was married in 1848 to Mr Timothy McMahan, and took up residence in Otonabee, afterwards removing to Mount Pleasant, Mich., where she buried her husband and son and then spent the remainder of her life in her late home, Neillsville, Wis., where she died, Monday, Nov. 30th. Mrs. McMahon was a highly respected lady; her hospitality and generous disposition won for her a large circle of friends. She was a practical, pious Catholic, and leaves to mourn her death nine of a family. She was an aunt of the Rev. Father O'Brien of the Cathedral, and Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, is a cousin of the deceased. The family are: Mrs. Wm. Young, Chili, Wis., Mrs. T. Coughlin Neillsville, Wis.; Mrs. Jer. Coughlin, Ashburnham, Mrs. Hugh McCormick, Mt. Pleasant, Mich; Mrs. George Trogner, Neillsville, Wis., and Timothy and Edward, Neillsville, and one sister, Mrs. Ed. Conroy, Ashburnham. The deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved friends.

—There was some excitement down in Kingston Saturday night when 500 students made a rush and tussled with the policemen.

ON FOOD

The Right Fountain of Health

Proper food is the foundation of health. People can eat improper food for a time and not feel any ill results until there is a sudden collapse of the digestive organs and then all kinds of trouble follows.

The proper way out of the difficulty is to shift to the pure, scientific food, Grape-Nuts, for it rebuilds from the foundation up. A New Hampshire woman says: "Last summer I was suddenly taken with indigestion and severe stomach trouble and could not eat food without great pain; my stomach was so sore I could hardly move about. This kept up until I was so miserable life was not worth living.

"Then a friend finally, after much argument, induced me to try Grape-Nuts food and quit my regular food. Although I had but little faith I commenced to use it and great was my surprise to find that I could eat it without the usual pain and distress in my stomach. So I kept on using Grape-Nuts and soon a marked improvement was shown, for my stomach was performing its regular work in a normal way without pain or distress.

"Very soon the yellow coating disappeared from my tongue, the dull heavy feeling in my head disappeared and my mind felt light and clear; the languid tired feeling left, and altogether I felt as if I had been rebuilt. Strength and weight came back rapidly and I went back to my work with renewed ambition. Today I am a new woman in mind as well as body and I owe it all to this natural food Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN CLEGHORN

An Old and Respected Resident of Otonabee Passes Away

Mr. John Cleghorn an old and highly respected resident of Otonabee, passed away on Sunday at his residence, Lot 25, Con 10, Otonabee, after an illness of about three weeks, death being due to acute bronchitis.

He was in his 73rd year, and was born in Scotland coming to Canada in the fifties and taking a position with the W. A. Scott lumber firm. Later he purchased a farm in Otonabee, Lot 25, Con. 10, and was a successful agriculturalist. Besides a widow there survive him three sons, William Peter and Robert, all at home and Mrs. Joshua Chambers, of Otonabee. Mrs. Cleghorn was twice married and Mrs. Jas. France and Mrs. Wm Hatherly of Otonabee are daughters. The late John Cleghorn was for many years a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and friends who admired his many sterling qualities will learn with regret of his death.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 from the homestead, Otonabee to Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be held at the residence at 1.30 p.m.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Met Yesterday Afternoon and Disposed of Considerable Business

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Ministerial Association yesterday morning and a great deal of business was disposed of.

The schedule of Hospital visitation for December was arranged as follows.

Dec. 7—Rev. J. G. Potter,

Dec. 14—Rev. J. Bastow.

Dec. 21—Rev. J. A. Wilson

Dec. 28—Rev. J. C. Davidson

Arrangements for the week of prayer in January were made as follows.

Monday, Jan. 4, St. Andrew's, Rev. W J. Joliffe, Tuesday, Jan 5, Murray st., Rev. J. G. Potter; Wednesday, Jan. 6th, George street, Rev. J. Bastow.

Mark street, Rev. J. A. Wilson.

Thursday, Jan 7th, Charlotte st., Rev. A H Brace.

Rev. Dr. Torrance read a carefully prepared paper on "Jeremiah" and the following members took part in the discussion—Revs. Potter, Armitage, Joliffe, McKinnon, Bastow, Wilson, Lewis, Kilgour, Davidson.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Father of Mr. Moore, of Collegiate Staff, Killed in Toronto

Mr. Moore, of the Collegiate Institute staff, went to Toronto yesterday, whither he was called by the death of his father, Mr. Wm. Moore, as a result of an accident on Friday evening. Saturday's Toronto papers give the following account:

"William Moore, a carpenter, met his death at the level crossing on Bloor st., west a little before six o'clock last evening. Moore was 65 years of age, and lived with his wife at 99 Perth avenue. A married daughter lives at 161 Lansdowne avenue, and a son at Peterborough. An inquest will be opened at noon—Saturday—by coroner J. M. Cotton, at Bates & Dodds' undertaking rooms, Queen street west.

After returning home from work yesterday afternoon his wife sent him to get some meat at the butcher store. The old man was on his way back over the crossing when he was struck and killed by a south-bound train. The train was stopped, and when picked up, Moore was dead. The identity of the deceased did not become known until Mrs. Moore went to the butcher store to learn why her husband was detained. Mrs. Moore says her husband was deaf and probably did not hear the train approaching."

Concert at Norwood

The concert given on Friday evening at Norwood, under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of St. John's church was a decided success. Mrs. Milton Callandar sang with good voice and fine quality of tone Denzas "Sing On"; the high notes being taken with ease, and clear as a bird. As an encore number Mrs. Callandar sang Thomas' "Mignon," with good effect. At the close of the concert she was simply showered with congratulations. Mrs. Callandar is a pupil of Mrs. W. G. Morrow, Peterborough.

Oddfellows' Entertainment

The committee in charge of the complimentary entertainment to be given in the Opera House to-morrow evening, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge Oddfellows, No. 13, are to be congratulated on securing the services of Miss M. Clarry, of Millbrook, as accompanist. Miss Clarry is an accomplished musician, and has recently been engaged as organist and choir leader by the board of management of Charlotte street Methodist church.

HOCKEY

At a meeting of the Peterborough Business College Students last evening a hockey club was formed with the following officers:

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Creasman, Mr. and Mrs. G H. Williamson.

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Wm. Pringle

Pres.—Mr. C. Harnett

1st Vice.-Pres.—Mr. B. A. Proude

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. R. F. Anglesey.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. Geo. Rogers.

Manager—Mr. E. Howell.

Rink Committee, Mr. Wm. Pringle, Mr. E. Howell.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—A Peterborough man sought to terrify his best girl by pointing a bicycle pump at her. She said he gave her "that tyred feeling."

—Members of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F. expect to have a very successful celebration of the anniversary of the lodge's resuscitation on Wednesday evening.

—Trains coming into Toronto from the west were considerably delayed by snow Saturday. There is a good deal of delay on the C.P.R. main line west of North Bay.

—The Separate Schools will be closed to-morrow on the commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the dogmatic definition by Pope Pius IX of the Immaculate Conception.

—Sir Charles Ross, inventor of the Ross rifle, with which the Canadian militia is to be armed, states that the first consignment of the new weapon will shortly be delivered to the Militia Department.

Love is unequally yoked with sickness. Labor is lightened by love, but love cannot lighten pain or relieve it. Many a man looks on at his wife's suffering willing to do anything to aid her and able to do nothing.

Sometimes, however, the husband's attention is directed to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and its remarkable cures of womanly diseases. He may not have much hope of a cure, but he is led to try the medicine, with the result that in almost every case there is a perfect and permanent cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity. It dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

As a tonic for women who are nervous, sleepless, worn-out and run-down "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled.

"In answer to your letter I will say, my wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief-of-Police, of 33 Prospect St., Weissport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

JAPAN ANXIOUS FOR WAR WHICH IS NOW INEVITABLE

The People Have the War Fever and Will Not be Aqpeased

LONEON THINKS WAR IS OVER

The Only Hope For Peace Is Now With the Czar.

London, Dec. 9.—The leading papers have editorials on the Eastern situation, and all take a gloomy view of the situation. The question in Japan seems to be—not whether the Government will decide upon war with Russia—but whether it will be able to keep the people from forcing it into war with Russia. The Greek war against Turkey was largely made by the people. The American people forced on the war against Spain. The Canadian people compelled their Governments to send contingents to South Africa.

These are significant facts worthy of consideration by those who talk as if wars were always made by "war lords" and the people were ever pacific. The fact of the matter is that the people are more apt to be reckless in rushing into a war when their sympathies have led the way, thann are their rulers who know the weaknesses of their armor and the risks of defeat. There may have been a day when rulers made war for their own aggrandisement, but that day is pretty thoroughly past. In most civilized nations, the people now name the rulers; and they are not likely to venture upon a war with which the people have little sympathy.

Bismarck is blamed for the war upon France; but is it to be supposed that the German people never knew what they were getting ready for? Bismarck conduct on that occasion was that of the wolf who sees his victim in an exposed position, and, without a thought of modern ethics, springs upon his prey. But did the German people rebuke him for it? "Punch" is a popular periodical in England, and after the Jameson Raid—formally condemned by all responsible folk—it depicted a big John Bull, with a hardly suppressed look of satisfaction on his face, saying to Dr. Jameson: "You are a very bad boy, I don't think." Was this very much of a libel on the attitude of the British people?

Are any deep sighs over the recent purloining of Panama by the American Government coming up from the bosom of the American people? The truth is that the fighting instinct is a possession of a human race and not of a few "war lords," and a democracy will give it play with less knowledge of possible consequences than will an informed oligarchy. Grover Cleveland could have led his people against Britain at the time of the Venezuelan message; and yet then the United States had no fleet. One of the lessons which the leaders of the modern democracies must teach their people is a sense of responsibility.

TROOPS BEING RUSHED IN.

Pekin, Dec. 9.—The Gazette's special says that Russia is pouring vast bodies of troops into Manchuria, and is strengthening her naval force in Chinese waters. Japan is also getting ready to strike. It is thought that an ultimatum will be issued in a day or two, after which hostilities will begin.

ENGLAND'S POSITION.

Britain will not likely be drawn into the struggle, her business will be simply to keep other nations out of the fight. Should France join Russia, however, her treaty with Japan will require her to assist.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

Transacted Considerable Business on Monday Evening

The regular monthly meeting of the Ashburnham Council was held on Monday evening. There were present Messrs. F. Adams, Reeve; W. Faint, W. Gibbs, W. Scott, J. Hourigan. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The communications read were as follows:

From G. Wheeler, re lease of shop.—Request granted.

From H. T. Strickland, re work done on Charles, James and Maria streets.—No action taken.

A number of accounts were presented and ordered paid.

A by-law appointing Deputy-Returning Officers and polling places for the election of Councillors and School Trustees was passed. T. W. Quartermaine, was appointed for the North Division at Village Hall, and J. T. Wright for the South Division at the Council Chamber.

A by-law was passed appointing T. A. S. Hay as engineer to prepare plans and report and assess the cost of diverting creek in accordance with the petition of ratepayers.

The sewerage bylaw was also given its third reading.

A tender for snow ploughing was received from Wm. Frith, for north division for $50 for season, and on motion of Mr. Faint was given the contract.

Mr. Scott, chairman of committee, read a report recommending that lights be placed on Stewart street, opposite Stanley Avenue, on Concession street, opposite Euclid Avenue, on Lake street opposite Robinson street, on Douro street opposite Brown street, and on Concession street south, near canal.—Report was referred back to committee for further consideration.

The Council adjourned to meet in special session on Friday evening in connection with extending the term of partial exemption of the Ultimator Co. and the Dickson Co.

The Council adjourned.

Another Horror Feared in Belgrade

Vienna, Dec. 8.—General apprehension prevails in Belgrade lest the bitter antagonism between regicide and anti-regicide parties bring about another murder horror. Speaking to a newspaper correspondent, a prominent Servian whose official position in the palace required constant personal relations with the King, said:

"There is nothing to be feared from the Nisch conspirators, but much for them. If they continue to provoke the party in power there will be a massacre. It is generally regretted that so little blood was shed on June 11. About 200 men are still living who should have been cleared out of the way. If they do not keep quiet an opportunity will be found to correct the omission.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA WORRIED AND WORN

Russia's Troubles Both at Home and Abroad Increasing

VERY GLOOMY SITUATION IN THE FAR EAST

Coalition of Japanese and Chinese Talked of —Russia May Yet Back Down

London, Dec. 9.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that a high degree of nervousness has been noticed lately in Foreign Office circles. Keen disappointment is expressed that Japan has long refused to knuckle under to Russia. In some quarters the belief is expressed that Russia will give way rather than risk war.

In connection with this indication of a possibility that Russia may temporarily throw up the sponge, a St. Petersburg report by way of Berlin, published by the Daily Express, says that the Czar's nerves are entirely disturbed. He is worried, worn, and overworked. His physicians ordered him to leave Skierniewice owing to the damp air and to remain only a short time in St. Petersburg. He will spend January and February at Livadia, in South Russia.

As eyes are turned towards Russia to see whether she is willing to fight Japan, accounts come from the former country that within her own borders there is serious danger of a revolutionary outbreak before the winter is past. A letter from Ekaterinos, dated December 3, says that correspondents has been engaged for several weeks in enquiring into the popular discontent. He declares that the recent disturbances were more sputtering which portend a coming conflagration.

RUSSIAN PREPARATIONS.

Pekin, December 9.—Reports have been received from the consuls at New Chwang, saying that the rumors of the movement of Chinese troops in the provinces of Chili to Manchurian border have alarmed the Russian military authorities. It is believed here this fear is assumed simply as a pretext by the Russians to prepare their winter defences such as mining the river Liau at New Chwang, which work they are about to commence, claiming that there is danger of their being attacked when the river freezes over. It is reported that after the recent encounter between Chinese and Russians near Haingmingtung one wounded Russian officer and ten soldiers were carried to Haungmingtung for treatment. The Russian soldiers engaged in the fight belonged to a body of three hundred men who were operating in the region south of the Liau river, which was evacuated by the Russians in April, 1902, in accordance with their convention with China.

Besides increasing their forces at Liau Yang, three thousand Russian troops will winter at Haicheng. In the Mukden region the Russians have taken the artillery from the Chinese troops.

It is the impression at New Chwang among some of the residents that the Russian military authorities have been affected by China's show of hostility, they apprehending a coalition between the Chinese and Japanese.

JAPAN IS IN A HURRY.

St. Petersburg, December 9.—Japan has communicated indirectly with the Russian Government, urging upon it the desirability for an early response to the Japanese note regarding affairs in the Far East on account of the political situation in Corea, and the Foreign Office here has expressed the opinion that the reply will be ready by Tuesday next.

The return to St. Petersburg of Emperor Nicholas will facilitate action on the document.

Some Russian financiers are arranging for the establishments along the line of the East China Railroad for the sale of Russian goods by wholesale.

Count Dewitte, former Financial Minister, and now President of the Council of Ministers, in an address delivered before a congress of Russian exchanges, strongly supported the theory of industrial syndicates, contending that they are powerful agencies in regulating the production of labor. He predicted the gradual disappearance of small trade concerns.

RUSSIA MUST CARE FOR THE MASSES

Peasantry is in Dangerous Mood and Ripe for Trouble

REVOLUTION IS IMMINENT

Great Unrest Prevails and Outbreak May Occur at Any Moment

London, Dec. 9.—A Russian nobleman attached to the local Russian embassy who recently returned from a visit to his ancestral home, describes with apprehension the dangerous ferment of unrest existing both among the peasants and the working classes in the cities. "Until this year," he said, "I have treated the talk of a revolutionary movement as moonshine, but on returning to Russia three months ago I was struck by the change in the faces of the people during the past year. The peasants and the working classes seem to have lost their religion and nearly all of them are filled with the revolutionary spirit. The strength of the anti-Jewish feeling is appalling. I feel sure there will be extensive massacres before long. But the people will not stop with the Jews; they will expend their rage upon the Germans, whom they hate, and will end up with the nobles."

The latest reports from southern Russia indicate that this pessimistic view is not very much overdone. There has been disturbances that have necessitated the calling out of the military forces at [illegible], Erivan, Elizabethpol, Tiflis, Alexandropol, Kars, Baku and Nakhitchevan. At Riazan, revolutionary leaflets have been distributed by the score and many workmen have been arrested where the prison is overflowing and dwellings have to be pressed into service as places of detention. The chief inspector of police has had his house dynamited and many students have been arrested.

THE SOO INDUSTRIES

Speyer & Co. are Not In the Reorganization

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—From reorganization sources it was learned yesterday that refusal on the part of Speyer and Company to participate in reorganization plan of the Consolidated Superior Co. would not surprise the Moffley Committee. As a matter of fact several members of the committee look for refusal and declare it will not militate against success of reorganization plan. It is regarded as probable that several, if not all the Philadelphia financial institutions, members of Speyer syndicate, which has set Dec. 16 as the day upon which the collateral of the company held as security for the loan, will be sold in New York, will organize an independent syndicate to save the property for the stockholders. Such an undertaking has been practically provided for, and it is believed the formation of an independent syndicate can be accomplished. The final decision of Speyer and Company is expected today.

MANY IMMIGRANTS COMING

Montreal, Dec. 9.—The influx of immigrants still continues. Every vessel arriving in St. John, N.B., has its quota. The latest are on the Lake Erie, which brought over 400, and the Iona, which had 200. The former arrived over the C.P.R. on a special train last evening, while the latter arrived this morning. Nearly all went to the Canadian North-West, or will distribute themselves along the line of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie.

MORE POLES

For the Otonabee Power Co. Recommended by the Board of Works—Finance and Property Com. Reports

The following reports of Committees were disposed of at Monday night's Council meeting—

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Best submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows—

1. We recommend that the application of the Otonabee Power Co. for permission to place poles on the following sts. be granted on the usual terms—Antrim street, south side, from the G.T.R. to Aylmer street, 2 poles; Park street, Hunter to Elm streets, on the east side, 2 poles and on the west side, 5 poles; to replace poles applied for on Sept. 11th, on Brock and Park streets; Perry street, north side, from Aylmer to Crescent streets, 6 poles to replace part of the line on Lake street; Perry Street, north side, from Stewart to Park street, 2 poles; George street, west side, between Wescott and Perry streets, 6 poles; Romaine street south side, from Crescent street to the G.T.R., 5 poles, and on the north side; Lock street, east side, 4 poles; Park street, West side, Perry to Albert streets, 2 poles; Albert street, south side Park to Alfred streets, 11 poles, and Hunter street, north side, between Water and George streets, 1 pole.

2. That no action be taken on the application of John Birkell for repairs and grading on Wolsley street.

3. Your Board finds that the petition from John Williams and others for a sewer on Reid street, from Charlotte to King streets was not sufficiently signed.

4. Your Board wrote the Water Commissioners and asked them to have the hydrant on George street in front of the Oxford House raised.

5. We recommend that no action be taken respecting the application of Andrew Brown for permission to construct a railway siding on Bethune street, between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie streets.

6. We recommend that the application of the Peterborough Light and Power Co for permission to place 2 poles on Brock street, between Donegal and Park streets, be granted, on the usual conditions.

7. We recommend that the petition from the Bishop of Peterborough for a granolithic sidewalk north and west of St. Peter's Cathedral be laid over until next season.

8. We recommend that the Engineer be instructed to lay permanent crossings across Hunter street on both sides of George street and on the west side of Water street.

9. We recommend that the Town Treasurer be authorized to pay T. Mitchell $8.40 and H. C. Stabler $40.00 for gravel in accordance with a certificate from the Town Engineer.

10—We recommend that an offer from J. J. Howden to give $4.00 for the Town's portion of the old plank taken off the swing bridge and rejected and left in the roadway be accepted.

11. We recommend that the Engineer be instructed to repair the crib work on the west side of the creek south from the Brock street bridge, about 64 feet, one half of which is on the street and one half on Mr. Brightman's property, Mr. Brightman agreeing to pay half the expenses.

12 We recommend that the Otonabee Power Co. be given permission to place poles on the following streets, the pole to be placed subject to the approval of the Town Engineer—Sherbrooke street, south side, Park street to the Boundary 6 poles. Aylmer street, west side, London to Dublin streets, 4 poles; Water street, west side, Smith to Anson streets, 22 poles; Water street, east side, Anson street to the Knitting Works, 7 poles; and Ware street, north side, Lock street to the Cemetery, 10 poles.

13. We recommend that in accordance with a report of the Town Engineer, Mr G. Milne be permitted to build a short piece of sewer on Sherbrooke street and arrange with the others interested to pay their share of the expense.

14. We received a report from the Town Engineer regarding the granolithic sidewalk constructed by Samuel Kennedy on the south side of Dublin street, stating that $62.50 would be required to move an inequality in the walk and recommending that that sum be retained from the assignees of Mr. Kennedy. We recommend that the report of the Engineer be adopted.

15. We recommend that in accordance with a report from the Town Engineer, R. Sheehy be allowed an extra sum as fixed by the Engineer for the extra strength of the sidewalk on the crossing of Babb's Lane, and that the other extras claimed by Mr. Sheehy and Mr. Bogue be not allowed.

16 With respect to a petition from J. A. MacPherson and others, asking to have the drain on the south side of Paterson street rebuilt, we recommend that the Clerk inform the petitioners that the work would have to be petitioned for under the Drainage Act, and the cost charged to the properties benefitted.

17 We recommend that Mr. S. Belcher be paid for the inspection of the construction of the drain on Hunter street in accordance with a certificate of the Engineer.

18. We recommend that John E. Hayes be charged $4.50 for 1 1-2 cubic yards of granite he obtained from the Town, and that this sum be deducted from money due him.

19. We recommend that the Treasurer be authorized to receive $1.00 for bricks sold to R. Hillier and $8.00 for stone sold to J. J. Hartley.

20 Your Board advertised for tender for snow ploughing for this season, and received the following tenders—

Southern Division, Wm. Breckenridge $120.00.

Western Division, Wm. Breckenridge, $360.00.

Northern Division, Zimri Blodgett, $174.

We recommend that the tenders of Wm Breckenridge for the Southern Division and Zimri Blodgett for the Northern Division be accepted.

The report was adopted as read.

PROPERTY COM. REPORT.

Ald. Batten submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Property, Building, and Health Committee beg leave to report—

1 Your Committee asked for tenders for the care and operation of the Dan Spence Memorial Ambulance, and that of Daniel Belleghem was the lowest. We have had an agreement and a by-law to authorize its execution prepared, which will be submitted to you.

2. We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee have the implements, store house and contents insured.

3. We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the Mayor be authorized to have electric lights placed in the Police Court room.

4. We recommend that the chairman of this Committee be authorized to instruct Mr. James English to attend to the furnace in the offices of the Tax Collector and Town Engineer.

5. Your Committee does not deem it advisable to sell the lot on Murray st., regarding which Mr. W. H. Roberts wrote to the Council.

6. We recommend that James Montgomery's account, amounting to $457.05 for work in the Town Buildings be paid.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

FINANCE REPORT.

Ald. Rush submitted the following:—

1. That the Debenture to be issued to pay for the local improvements constructed this year bear 4 per cent interest, and that the sinking fund be calculated on a 3 per cent. basis.

2. That the action of the Chairman of this Committee in authorizing the Collector of Taxes to receive taxes on Monday, Nov. 16th, 1903, without the additional percentage charge of 5 per cent., be approved of.

3. That the Selectors of Jurors be paid $32 in accordance with a certificate of the Clerk of the Peace.

4. That the expenses of the Mayor, Solicitor and Clerk, to Toronto, respecting the Assessment Act and Meldrum & Peterborough, be paid on the certificate of the Mayor.

5. That upon the hydrant now on the boundary being moved to a place to be designated by the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and the Town Engineer, it be paid for in the same way as other hydrants authorized by the Town.

Payment of a number of accounts was also recommended.

PRACTICAL DECLARATION OF WAR ON COLOMBIA BY U. S. AND PANAMA

The United States Gunboats are Making a Show of Force

And the Panamians are Destroying Canoes

Colon, Dec. 7—Following instructions received December 6 from the Navy Department at Washington, United States gunboats on both sides of the isthmus have started, or are starting, on reconnoitring expeditions along the coast, principally in the direction of Colombia, for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the trails and roads between the Panama and Colombian frontiers, the facilities of the country for sustaining expeditions marching on Panama, and to generally determine the United States best course of action in case of a Colombian invasion of the isthmus, and also to learn the attitude of the various Indian tribes inhabiting both coasts. The United States cruiser Atlanta has gone to San Blas for this purpose, and probably will continue to the Gulf of Darien. Another vessel will be sent to San Miguel, on the Pacific coast, and a third to David, also on the Pacific, but towards Costa Rica, to look over the local conditions at Chiriqui, and make a show of force if it is thought necessary, and study the possibility of Colombia's landing small schooner expeditions at Chiriqui from southern points. The Panama authorities are aiding these efforts. They have sent out several parties on both sides of the isthmus to seek information and watch possible movements on the part of Colombia. No reports have yet been received from these parties to indicate that any warlike movements are taking place.

Panamian expeditions on the Pacific side are destroying canoes, etc., found in the rivers, for the purpose of hindering the movements of Colombians who might attempt to come down the rivers.

Band of Chinese Robbers were Defeatcd

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8—The Russian troops have defeated a band of Chinese robbers on the Liau River, Manchuria, killing 200 of them and wounding a similar number.

After the conflict between a force of Russian soldiers and a body of robbers at Tachichao, in which five Russians were killed, and nine severely wounded, the Russians pursued the fleeing tribesmen, and finally hemmed them in at the Liau River. The great loss of the robbers is attributed in a Port Arthur despatch to "a panic among the robbers."

ITALY IS PLANNING MANY NEW REFORMS

Government Has Presented Programme to Chamber of Deputies.

APPROVED BY COUNTRY

Proposals Include Compulsory Education, Old Age Pensions, and Legal Rest Day

Rome, Dec. 9.—Patriotic Italy greets with approval the vote in the Chamber to support the Government's action prehensive program of reforms, which includes the nationalization of railways, the construction of roads, railways and acqueducts in Southern Italy, compulsory education of the masses, better salaries for elementary school teachers, old age pensions, and state encouragement of the Sunday rest. Recent diplomatic triumphs have inspired the nation with a fresh sense of its importance, and with an unexampled determination to push forward on the road to success.

ANOTHER AGREEMENT WITH CHINA AS TO MANCHURIA

Reports From Pekin Indicate That the Chinese are Mere Tools for Russian Designs

Pekin, Dec. 7—Prominent officials here assert that China is concluding an agreement with Russia for the Government of Manchuria. It is expected that the arrangements will include most of Russia's supplementary terms for the evacuation, and will nominally confirm Chinese sovereignty while giving Russia an advisory share in the Government.

During the recent conferences at Pekin three plans were discussed: War against Russia; an appeal to friendly nations for assistance and a settlement with Russia on the best terms obtainable. The first plan was dismissed as suicidal. The second failed. Since then China has been unable to suggest and the United States and Japan, to whom she appealed, have been unable to see any practicable steps to be taken. Therefore the third plan was adopted.

London, Dec. 8—Mr. James Bryce, speaking at Aberdeen yesterday, declared that British trade was healthy not needing violent medicine, which might turn to poison. Retaliation was being used by the Government like the might turn to poison. Retaliation was raised one could see the protectionist stage and the actors.

Workingmen Join League.

Three thousand workmen met under the auspices of the Tariff Reform League at Swindon yesterday, and were addressed by Mr. Percy Wyndham. Resolutions were passed favoring the necessity of some of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals in order to protect the home markets. At the close of the meeting 1,000 workmen joined the league.

Pattullo is Speaking.

Mr. Andrew Patullo, M.P. for North Oxford, Ont., speaking at Richmond last night, said that every workingman in Canada was in favor of protection, and two-thirds of the Liberal party in the Canadian Parliament agreed with the Conservative party on this question.

BLOW FOR AMERICANS

The Islands Awarded Americans Do Not Command Port Simpson

Vancouver, Dec. 7—The intention of the United States Government to fortify the two small islands outlying Wales and Pearse, which Uncle Sam received by the terms of the Alaska boundary award, will be speedily abandoned when the Government at Washington discovers that these islands do not, after all, command Port Simpson harbor. Instead of lying respectively two and three miles distant, as stated in the memoranda before the Boundary Commission, these islands of Sitklan and Kannaghunut, according to surveyors who have just returned from Port Simpson, are twenty and thirty miles distant.

Three Thousand Soldiers Have Left Catagena Recently

For the Purpose of Invading the Isthmus

A rumor is in circulation here to the effect that 3,000 soldiers have left Cartagena for the purpose of invading the isthmus. No details are known, and the rumor cannot be confirmed today. News received bby cable from Buena Ventura says that all is quiet there and that there is no indication on the part of the Colombian Government to move troops in any direction.

Washington, Dec. 7—The action of Russia in recognizing Panama leaves Great Britain the only power of consequence that has not yet extended recognition or signified an intention of doing so. The British Government desires to secure some pledges from Panama relative to the foreign debt of Colombia.

THE NEW POLICY

City of Stratford Endorses Hon. Joseph Chamberlain

Stratford, Ont., Dec. 9.—The Board of Trade, at a meeting called to discuss Imperial trade, passed a resolution endorsing Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's plan of preferential trade with the Empire, urging that such preferential trade with the Empire, urging that such preferential trade should be voluntary and not bound by any formal agreement, and each independent Government should consider first the claims of its own people, and be free to change or amend its policy from time to time, as might be deemed necessary. A copy of this resolution was ordered to be sent to the late Colonial Secretary and the Premier.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake' Station, P.E.I.

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible] Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 7, 1903

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

An interesting experiment in municipal ownership is being tried in St. Thomas. A year ago the street railway which the company had aided by guaranteeing the interest on fifty thousand dollars, fell into the hands of the municipality by reason of the inability of the company to continue its operation. The enterprise was a distinct failure under private management. The roadbed was allowed to fall into a condition of disrepair, the equipment was insufficient, the rolling stock ancient in pattern and poorly kept, and the service of a happy-go-lucky character that made walking more satisfactory. In fact, the only real service that the road gave the citizens was to take them to and from the railway stations.

After being abandoned by the company and the service discontinued for two months, the City Council took possession of the system. The roadbed was repaired, the equipment increased, and properly maintained, and the service regulated by a schedule calculated to provide for the requirements of the people. It would have been a marvel had the road earned operating expenses in the circumstances. As a matter of fact, the deficit is $156.48 in the cost of operation alone, while the betterment has been charged to capital account. Adding the interest charges to the cost of management, the city is out about $3,200. This is an excellent showing. The road was operated for the first six months of the year with the old rolling stock, and suffered more or less from the cessation of traffic for the sixty-day interval between the abandonment by the company and the resumption of the service by the city.

By judicious management, a still better result will be obtained the second year. The residents are loyal to the enterprise and take a pride in assisting to make it successful. If the aldermen are superior to the natural tendency to overload the road with employes, and will conduct it on straight business principles, there will be a fair prospect of the Railway City showing the other Canadian municipalities an example in the operation of public utilities.

Guelph has already emulated St. Thomas by acquiring the street railway, and Toronto is awaiting the opportunity. Those who believe in the principle of municipal ownership will be encouraged by the good results of the first year in St. Thomas, and look forward hopefully for still better returns next year.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

As for Russia, the Czar designed the arbitration court at The Hague for other folks. With the sword alone he arbitrates Russia's quarrels.

Three years ago the workmen in Lord Penryhn's quarry, at Bethesda, near London, England, went out on strike. The strike began by the workmen attacking the officials and contractors in the mine because Lord Penryhn refused to accede to certain demands. Hundreds of the quarry men went elsewhere to work, but those of the strikers who remained at home kept up a continual fight with those who remained at work. And now at the end of three years the strikers have returned without having gained a single point, but losing the wages they could have earned, and of the 2,000 men employed hundreds are new men and hundreds of the old hands are still out of a job.

Massachusetts for Reciprocity.

The Minneapolis Journal (Republican) says:—"The action of the Massachusetts Democratic convention in unequivocally declaring in favor of reciprocity with Canada is significant. The Republicans do not seem to appreciate, at least officially, how widespread is the feeling in favor of reciprocity in general and reciprocity with Canada. They do not understand that thousands of manufacturers no longer care so much as they did for a high tariff, and are very much more concerned than formerly about getting their goods into other countries. There can be very little doubt that when the business men of New England read the reports of the convention their hearts were softened toward the Democrats."

All of this is very gratifying to the people of the Dominion, who do not, however, quite understand why newspapers and politicians of the United States treat the question as though no other country, no other desires but their own, need be considered in the matter. Canadians feel gratified that the Americans are now doing the "hustling and 'shouting" for reciprocity, and are thankful that the question rests with themselves and has not to be decided by a tribunal of "impartial jurists." But, while there is a growing feeling in the United States (according to the press of that country) for reciprocity with Canada, the extra session of Congress, called for Nov. 9, has to deal with a concrete reciprocity case in the shape of the Cuban treaty, and already there are indications that the solemn obligation of the Government in that regard will meet with strong opposition. The Brooklyn Eagle (Independent Democratic) says:—"In Mr. McKinley's call for the extra session of 1897 the legislators were notified that they were summoned to deal with revenue questions. The President's wishes were complied with, but Congress did not stop there. Upward of 6,500 bills of general purpose, besides a number of joint resolutions, were introduced in the House and in the Senate. These facts are merely recited to show that the President has less power to direct the action of the Federal Legislature than is possessed by the Governor of New York over the Local Legislature. The acceptance by Congress of the Cuban treaty is problematical. There are new members in the House of Representatives, whose views on the subject are unknown. Powerful interests will possibly be arrayed against the treaty next month, precisely as they have been arrayed against every proposition of the sort that has been put forward here or in Cuba. The pending treaty is less advantageous to us than that which we might have had in 1902, but that is not the fault of Cuba. We refused to enter into a reciprocal trade agreement with her at a moment when her distress was greatest. She is now fairly on her feet, and is proportionately less eager to give or receive preferential treatment. The value of Cuban trade to American exporters is proved by records that can not be disputed. It rests with Congress to say whether that trade shall be sacrificed in the interests of a comparatively small band of capitalists engaged in the cultivation of sugar beets."

This view of the situation finds a good many endorsers among the newspapers of both parties. Those who urged the ratification of the treaty point to the report of the United States Consul at Havana that British and German trade with Cuba is increasing, while American trade is decreasing.

STARVED FOR TWO WEEKS

Kept Prisoner in Ships Hold Without Food or Water

Newport, Va., Dec. 7—Robert Leslie, thirty years old, had been imprisoned in the hold of an ocean freighter for fourteen days, without food or water, when he was rescued on Saturday in a dying condition. He slipped aboard the British steamer, Rappahannock, Capt. Buckingham, while the vessel was loading at Liverpool two weeks ago, and secreted himself among the merchandise. When the ship was at sea, he endeavored to find his way out, but was unable to do so. For ten days he tried to attract the attention of the crew by shouting at intervals, but no relief came, and he abandoned hope.

When found he was a pitiable sight. He weighed only 60 pounds, and was too weak to rise. His weight when he secreted himself at Liverpool was 140 pounds.

Change of Life

A TIME OF INTEREST AND GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALL WOMEN.

Wrecked health is produced by neglect during this trying period, and small wonder that women look forward with dread to its coming, for if not properly passed, is but the beginning of an endless chain of troubles.

As soon as the unmistakable signs known to all women make their first appearance, Ferrozone should be used regularly, and if persistently taken will be a guarantee of happy, healthy old age.

Nothing can bring more pleasure than to know that the days of sickness and suffering are over. This can best be accomplished by building up the system with Ferrozone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease.

Ferrozone increases the appetite strengthens and improves nerve tone and digestive processes, thereby strengthening and invigorating the whole system. It gives tone to the heart, regulates its action, removes distressing palpitations, and it lays the sound foundation of perfect health.

Ferrozone is a sensible and efficient tonic; it brings back strength very quickly, and few people are so strong and healthy, that they would not be benefited by using it.

Be advised and try Ferrozone. It is very pleasant to take, one tablet after each meal. All reliable druggists sell it for 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

IRISH ARE MASTERS

Will Sell Support in Face of British Government

London, Dec. 7—The Freeman's Journal, Doublin, thinks the next session of Parliament must be an Irish session, for the reason that no other kind of session is possible for the Government. "Once again," it says, "there is chaos in the British parties. The Irish National party, united and determined knowing what they want and how to get it, are absolute masters of the situation. The Government, therefore must come to terms with the Irish party which want the laborer's bill, the university bill, and, above all, the Home Rule bill. Finally, the Irish party are ready for a deal with either English party, and whichever offers the best terms and fulfils its offer gets their support. But they are not going to buy a pig in a poke. The Government will have to act promptly and clearly if they desire to retain that Irish support, without which their position is we believe, hopeless."

The Times correspondent says the fundamental fallacy in this scheme is that the Irish party are not united and are not agreed upon what we want and how to get it.

Magersfontein Monument.

On Saturday, Oct. 17, a replica of the monument erected at Magersfontein to the memory of the Highland soldiers who fell in South Africa was placed in the Winter Garden of the People's Palace at

The Memorial—Daily Graphic.

Glasgow Green. The memorial is in the form of an Ionic cross, with Celtic ornamentation, and stands about 20 feet in height. It was originally intended that Mr. Chamberlain should unveil the memorial on the occasion of his recent visit to Glasgow, but, owing to the limited time at his disposal in Glasgow, he was unable to do so. The unveiling was carried out without any formal ceremony. The accompanying illustration is from The Daily Graphic of Oct. 19.

Inspected the Frontier.

The London Daily Chronicle says:—The tour which Lord Kitchener has just completed on the Northwest frontier of India is the most complete ever undertaken by a Commander-in-Chief. He has inspected the whole of our frontier line from Quetta to Gilgit, and examined every fort and point of natural vantage in the country, so that he is now in a position to gauge exactly the chances of a Russian invasion. It is stated that Lord Kitchener has found our forts defended as usual in large measure by the obsolete muzzle-loaders, and has given orders for their replacement by quick-firing guns. He has also discovered our telegraphic and signalling methods to be out of date. Lord Kitchener has just introduced an important and far-reaching scheme for renumbering our Indian army throughout, and he is credited with the intention of reorganizing it completely and putting it on a war footing. When two men of such energy as Lord Curzon and Lord Kitchener get together at the head of affairs, reforms are at hand, and these are now in progress in India.

To be Trained in Winter.

British papers of a recent date contain details of a scheme of winter training for the troops in the first army corps issued by Lieut.-General Sir John French, to be put into operation at once. Everything contained in the scheme is on a progressive scale, the training commencing with company, squadron and battery drill, and route marches to be carried out twice a week by the first and second divisions. These marches will not be a matter of covering so many miles of road, for outposts and other field exercises and musketry field practices will be combined with them. No man is to be exempt from the marches, all employed on garrison duty being relieved for the purpose of attending. Musketry is to form a most important feature in the winter training, the infantry being instructed to fire at least twenty rounds per month at various practices on the ranges. Bad shots and recruits are to perform two exercises per week on the miniature ranges in barracks, and judging distance practice is to be carried out fortnightly. In the very cold weather soup and fires will be provided on the ranges. The Royal Engineers will carry out practical field and defensive works. War games for the officers are to be played, staff rides, field sketching, and reconnaissance conducted periodically, and instructional practice in field dressing and stretcher work undertaken.

BLOW FOR AMERICANS

The Islands Awarded Americans Do Not Command Port Simpson

Vancouver, Dec. 7—The intention of the United States Government to fortify the two small islands outlying Wales and Pearse, which Uncle Sam received by the terms of the Alaska blundary award, will be speedily abandoned when the Government at Washington discovers that these islands do not, after all, command Port Simpson harbor. Instead of lying respectively two and three miles distant, as stated in the memoranda before the Boundary Commission, these islands of Sitklan and Kannaghunut, according to surveyors who have just returned from Port Simpson, are twenty and thirty miles distant.

Patsy Branigan—No; they just christened her "Mamie," that's all.—Comfort.

One of the stock stories about tipping is that of the waiter in a swell hotel sneering at a quarter and remarking to the giver: "I beg pardon; haven't you made a mistake?" A few nights ago, in the main dining-room of the Waldorf-Astoria, where tips range frmo a quarter to $5, a westerner said to his two companions: 'Watch me paralyze this waiter, he ain't worth a cuss. He hasn't showed us any etxra attention, and doesn't deserve a cent, but here goes."

The bill being paid, and change placed before him in a plate, he handed the waiter a copper cent. As he expected, garcon turned up his nose and said:

"I beg pardon; haven't you made a mistake?"

"Not at all," was the reply; "not at all. You are quite welcome. I never give less."

Waiter duly paralyzed.—New York Press.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale of stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing them with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, timber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber; builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers.

"Forest Fortunes" An illustrated book of the great lumber industries of Washington will be mailed free until the edition is exhausted to persons interested in the development of the Pacific Coast States.

CHRISTIANITY AS CHARACTER.

John P. Peters, D.D., St. Micheal's Church, New York City.

He that believeth on Him is not judged; he that believeth not hath been judged already.—St. John iii. 18.

There is absolutely not one single doctrine that is, according to Jesus Christ's teaching, essential to salvation. No dogma can save, no heresy of doctrine in itself condemns; no forms can save, and even the lack of all connection with the visible Church itself, its forms and sacraments, does not of necessity judge a man.

Do not misunderstand. Doctrines are not useless, neither are forms. Right doctrines and right forms are of inestimable value, but they are not essentials because they are the means to an end, and that end is life, character. Christ Jesus came to help us become one with God. Belief on Him is of no use if it mean only that you hold the correct doctrine of His incarnation, the atonement, regeneration, the eucharist, the Church, etc. Flatly, if that is all the faith a man has, if his belief do not involve oneness with God in the Spirit of Christ, he might exactly as well believe in the incarnation of Buddha. The one would help him as much or as little as the other. Saving faith is not belief in a fact, not belief in the facts of the life and death of our Lord, but such a real belief in His life that we come into union with Him; and such union with Christ is union with God the Father and eternal life.

The possibility of eternal life lies in the development of our divine nature, its growth through the infinite ages as we develop more and more in the image of God. It is a constant growth of happiness; a growth of love, of truth, of all the possibilities of the glorious divine nature within us, the feeble consciousness of which even now gives us a sense of power, of grandeur, of happiness, of satisfaction which nothing else can give. But this eternal felicity of divine development belongs only to the man who gives play to his soul—that is, who seeks to develop the divine, the good and the noble that is in him, who believes with his life on the name of the only begotten Son of God.

A man that makes himself a beast, who surrenders himself to the beastly nature that is within him, who chooses the ignoble, the sensuous, the selfish, the dishonorable, is the man who does not believe on the name of the only begotten Son of God, however loud his protestations to the contrary. That is the man who is becoming a beast, who is forfeiting his divine nature and with it every possibility of the eternal and glorious development of the sons of God.

The possibilities of heaven lie in the character of a man, in the aim and purpose of his life; and so it is that God sent His Son, not to judge the world, but to save the world by a life and death, belief in which might help and mould our characters. If a man make choice of Jesus Christ as his master and his pattern, believing in Him as his Saviour from evil, then he has found a help, a succor which priests and prophets longed for and could not find.

All men, whether they will or not, are preparing for the future life as surely as the boy is preparing to be the man. Every man the whole world over is developing the worldly, devilish, beastly side of his nature, or the true, loving, divine side of it. Jesus has shown us what is divine, what we should aim at, what we can be. Belief in Him means the acceptance of that life as our pattern; that we judge right and wrong, good and bad, by no other standard than the perfect standard of our Lord Jesus Christ. To believe on the name of the Son of God is to aim to make our lives like His; to do what we honestly believe that He would have done in our place. And so to believe in Him means to obtain incomparable aid in the hard struggle against the beastly and devilish part of our nature, which, I take it, every man, at least in the moment when he stops and thinks, would like to conquer if he had the strength.

We know God through man, for in the man Jesus of Nazareth was God revealed, and as we know God through man, so only through man may we reach God. Our belief in Jesus Christ, if it be a true belief, is not merely a belief in the one perfect manifestation of God in man; it is a belief in the divine which He manifested. It is a belief in love and truth wherever we find them, a love for and kinship and communion with all good men who manifest in their lives love and truth.

The democracy of the kingdom of heaven—and remember that the kingdom of heaven as Jesus used the expression, meant something in this earth and not merely something in the world to come, and that no man enters the kingdom of heaven in the future life except as he strives to enter it here—the democracy of the kingdom of heaven is the most levelling democracy that men have ever imagined. There is not the shadow of a distinction of rank, wealth, birth or race. All these material and worldly distinctions are cast aside. Full belief in the Son of God means full brotherhood with all the sons of God. The true test of our love of and belief in the only begotten Son of God is our love of and belief in our fellow-men.

The London World has the temerity to advance the following opinion:—"When do women find time to read aught save the novel which others of the set find amusing, and the organ of the special sport to which they are devoted? Never was there a time when books were more plentiful and reading made more tempting; but the dames and damsels who read nowadays are regarded with positive awe, as persons either singularly gifted or just a trifle eccentric."

That must have been written by a man who talked geology to a woman when she was thinking of something more personally interesting.

Grand Larceny.

A daring theft Jack wrought last night
On darling little Rose.
He stole the thing he wanted right
Beneath her very nose.
—Philadelphia "Press."

"Rather a bore, isn't it?" remarked the first man, at a reception. "It is so," replied the other. "I'd sneak out if I could, but my wife would be so angry. She's a friend of the hostess." "I'd sneak out, too, but my wife would be furious. She's the hostess!"

Anecdotal.

A Western Congressman was asked if he did not think President Roosevelt certain to be re-elected, barring any "big mistake" the candidate might make. "Yes," was the reply, "but let me tell you that the biggest mistake he possibly could make would be to allow the crops to fail next year."

A friend of Edward MacDowell attended a recital given by a mediocre teacher's pupils, and when he met the American composer he remarked: "I heard one of the pupils, a little girl of eight, play your 'To a Wild Rose.'" The composer sighed dejectedly. "I suppose," MacDowell remarked, "that she pulled it up by the roots."

During the protracted sessions of the Parnell commission, Justice Day habitually sat with closed eyes. It was commonly supposed that his lordship was sleeping, and the late Sir Frank Lockwood, observing that the learned judge was very much awakened by a little tiff between the president and Sir Charles Russell, exclaimed, quite audibly: "This is the dawn of Day!"

Chauncey M. Depew declares that when King Edward, as Prince of Wales, visited the United States, the old Duke of Newcastle used to scan the accounts of expenditure. At the end of one hotel bill he one day found a charge which he couldn't make out. "What's that charge for?" asked the Duke of the hotel proprietor. "For making such a damned fuss," was the immediate reply.

General Nelson A. Miles says that during the Civil War there was one conscription fakir who made thousands of dollars before the authorities restrained him. This rascal would send letters broadcast, wherein he said he would communicate for two dollars a sure means of escaping the conscription. Letters, enclosing two-dollar notes, poured in on him, and in reply to each letter he would send a printed slip reading: "Join the nearest volunteer regiment."

An old negro living in Carrollton was taken ill recently, and called in a physician of his race to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting any better, and finally a white physician was called. Soon after arriving, Dr. S.—— felt the darkey's pulse for a moment, and then examined his tongue. "Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked. "I don't know, sah," he answered, feebly; "I hain't missed anything but my watch as yit, boss."

One of Pere Ollivier's flock, a very beautiful and handsomely dressed woman, coming very late to church one Sunday morning, caused some disturbance and stir among the worshippers by her entrance, and interrupted the flow of eloquence of the worthy father, who, very irritable and easily put out, said: "Madame perhaps waited to take her chocolate before coming to church?" To this, madame, by no means abashed, graciously replied: "Yes, mon pere; and two rolls with it."

It is related that the American commissioner of fine arts at a Paris exposition once wrote to several artists—to Whistler among them—saying that he would be in Paris shortly, and mentioning the time at which, and the place where he would like them to call upon him. Whistler was asked to call at four-thirty precisely. He wrote: "Dear Sir — I have received your letter announcing that you will be in Paris on the —th. I congratulate you. I have never been able and never shall be able to be anywhere at 'four-thirty precisely.' Yours most faithfully, J. McN. Whistler."

By his tact and amiability Sir Thomas Lipton has made thousands of friends during his visit in New York City. One day recently on the "Erin" he was watching the "Shamrock" from the bridge, and his guests, among whom were some pretty girls, were on the deck below, screened from the sun by awnings. Sir Thomas went down to chat with them for a few minutes, and then said: "I think I'll have the awning taken down." "Don't, Sir Thomas," the women all exclaimed in chorus, "we'll roast here." "But," tactfully replied the baronet, "I'm lonely on the bridge, and I miss your pretty faces." No one objected to the awning coming in after that.

Here is one of Lew Dockstader's latest stories: Two brothers had more or less trouble with the boy next door, and hadn't always come out victors. In fact, the boy next door was so much bigger that he seemed to have the best of it invariably. So it wasn't an unusual thing when one of the boys came into the house with a badly bruised eye. Moreover, he was crying when his aunt stopped him in the hall. "Hush, Willie," she said; "you mustn't make any noise." "What—what's the ma-matter?" he asked, between his sobs. "You may disturb your new brother," said his aunt, soothingly. He dried his eyes in a minute. "Have I got a new brother?" he asked. His aunt nodded. "One besides Jim?" She nodded again. "Bully!" he exclaimed. "You're glad of it?" she asked. "You bet!" Willie fairly shouted; "if Jim and me and the new one can't lick that feller next door, we'd better move."

A pretty story, illustrative of the change of feeling which has come over the Irish peasant toward King Edward since the recent royal visit, appears in the English press. Two London journalists, on their way from Dublin to Cork, accosted a shaggy, farmer-looking native at a Queen's County station with the words: "Well, Pat, what do you think of the King of England now?" "King of England, is it?" replied the Irishman, and there stole over his face an inimitable expression of drollery as he went on in a stage whisper: "Sure, avic, ye'll want a viceroy over there, I'm thinkin'. Himself an' herself are not goin' back to yez at all!" An old dame in Galway who had spoken with the King was questioned as to what she thought of his Majesty. She delivered herself of a long and enthusiastic eulogy, to the effect that "Edward the First of Ireland" was "a grand man entirely," closing with the remark that she had "only wan thrifling fault to find with him," and that was that "they keep the poor man so long in the Phaynix Park beyant that they have him talkin' with a strong Dublin accent."

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Consumption Mastered at Last

Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure

No discovery in medicine has created one quarter of the interest that the Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure has caused. Its severest tests have been made on hopeless cases of Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom have been restored to perfect health. It cuts the phlegm out of the throat and bronchial tubes.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, LaGrippe It cures more quickly than any other medicine in the world.

Constant coughing is like scratching a wound. So long as it is done, the wound will not heal. For coughs, no matter how stubborn, a few doses of Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure will stop the irritation, and a cure is the quick result.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?!

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

How does a gambler look when he has staked all—and lost?

So looked this man, from whom had been swept every hope of peace and love.

He had thought to live down the past—to ignore the existence of the woman he had once called wife; and in the hour of his triumph, she had come before him, like a vengeful spirit, showing him no more mercy than he had shown to her, when he had cast her off from his name.

The whirling snowflakes seemed to blind him, the keen wind smote upon his face, as he made his way slowly along the bleak square, his heart as chill and barren as the day.

Gretchen had had her revenge—Gretchen who had once loved him so madly, and towards whom he had played so craven a part.

He smiled in bitter derision as he remembered her dying words—the curse which was to follow him to the end of his life.

"She has done her worst," he muttered. "She cannot carry her vengeance beyond the grave. She might have spared herself that last effort, and have died in peace."

There was something horribly sinister about his face just now.

He could have laughed in mockery at the words she had uttered, while the agonies of death were rending her frame.

Her shadow haunt him!

There could be now shadow where there was lack of substance, he told himself.

The sands of her life had run out; the vital spark was quenched; she was no more than dust.

Lady Errol's lifeless body was conveyed to the hotel where she had been staying during her absence from Drayton Court.

Mr. Monckton, feeling that the responsibility in some way fell to him, made what arrangements were necessary; telegraphing news of Lady Errol's death, and making known the discovery of Sir Felix Errol's last will.

By this deed, Marc Wilberforce became entitled to a considerable fortune; the estate, and the greater bulk of the wealth, were to revert to Rosalie.

Gretchen's name was mentioned, but not one item of his property had been bequeathed to her.

She had married Sir Felix, hoping to become possessor of his riches. he had willed that she should not reap the worth of a copper piece at his death.

Monckton found Rosalie at Sunnyside, thinner and paler than when he had seen her last.

There was a listless, wan look in her eyes, and he missed the smile with which she had been accustomed to greet him.

"You have heard the news?" he said, retaining the little cold hand she had extended to him.

"Yes," she answered, in a low voice. "They were calling it out in the streets half an hour ago. I heard without understanding; and then Mrs. West bought one of the papers, and told me what it all meant."

"It's a shocking affair," he remarked. "I was in the church at the time of the tragedy."

"And she is really dead!"

"She died a few moments after she had confessed her guilt—died, as you have already heard by her own hand."

Rose sank into a chair, and covered her face with her hands.

It seemed terrible to her to think of all that had happened within the last few months.

With a sick feeling, she remembered the aversion with which she had shrunk from Lady Errol—from the mocking eyes and cruelly set mouth.

"And yet she was so beautiful," the girl said, shivering as she recalled the face that had left such a wierd impression on her mind. "I cannot bear to think how my father must have been deceived in her."

"He knew how far to trust her—at the last," Monckton replied. "One cannot but think of her with pity, remembering what she must have suffered in her sin."

Rose took her hands from her face, and looked thoughtfully into the fire.

She did not know enough of Gretchen's life to be able to feel compassion for her.

She thought only of that one terrible deed, of which she herself had been so nearly accused.

Monckton watched the girl's face, noting the changeful expressions that swept over it.

The gas had not yet been lighted, but the fire-glow filled the room, diffusing an atmosphere of warmth and brightness.

"You will have to say good-bye to this place, before long," he remarked, letting his glance wander round the comfortably-furnished room.

"Why?" she questioned, bringing her gaze to his face with a start.

"You will have to take up your position as the mistress of Drayton Court."

"Alone?" she said, with sudden consternation.

"Well—er—I hope it will not be for long," he answered, a smile coming to the corners of his mouth. "It is hardly likely that Miss Errol—with her attractions—will be allowed to complain of solitude."

In part, she understood his meaning, and a flush stole to her cheeks.

"You mean that I shall marry," she said her gaze turned towards the fire.

"That is the idea I wished to convey," he answered. "Such an event does not seem at all improbable."

"You are mistaken!" she retorted. "I shall never marry."

"I do not see why," he said, with quiet decision. "It ought to be every woman's aim to make some good man happy. Why should you not fulfill that same mission?"

She shrugged her shoulders, and pushed her foot petulantly against the fender.

"Don't talk about missions," she said, "they always lead to such unpleasant results—cannibalism, and all that sort of thing."

He smiled.

He saw she was anxious to turn the conversation from the point in question, and he did not press the subject.

"By the way," he observed, "I have never quite understood what induced you to suddenly dissolve partnership with your friends, the lions. Did my entreaties, at last, prevail?"

"My cousin urged me to discontinue the performance," she answered, without looking at him.

"You are speaking of Mr. Wilberforce?"

"Yes, my Cousin Marc."

"I wonder he allowed you to remain here all these weeks—within reach of temptation."

"He could not help himself," Rose answered. "Besides, what temptation was there, when once I had given that promise? Nothing could make me break my word to him."

"Mr. Wilberforce knew you better than I did," Monckton said. "He understood how far he could trust you."

"He did not even suggest my going away. Where else could I have found a home?"

"There is one waiting for you now, Miss Errol, and I hope, with all my heart, you will be happy at Drayton Court."

She shook her head—somewhat sadly, it seemed to the man who was watching her.

"It is so far away," she said. "What shall I do there all by myself?"

"In the first place, you will have to have a companion or chaperone—a lady of good birth and small means, who could take you about, and, in a general way, fulfill the functions society would demand of her."

"I should hate the sight of her," Rose said, "I have had my own way so much. I could not bear to be held under restraint, and by a stranger, too."

"You could get used to her in time; you must have somebody with you."

"Then I should prefer Mrs. West."

"But would she care to leave her husband?" with the suspicion of a twinkle in his eyes.

"No. I suppose she would not; she would have to bring him with her."

"And would he, in turn, be accom-

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1902

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 35c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $100 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

A Woman who Plays Male Roles.

Vesta Tilley, the English actress, who is famous for her male impersonations, and is starring in the East this season in "Algy," a musical comedy, has long been regarded as the best-dressed "man" on the London stage. In an interview the other day she thus described a new waistcoat intended for morning wear, which is now popular in London: "They are made of pure Spitalfields silk, and have a dainty, well-defined floral or feather pattern resembling the old-fashioned brocade used for waistcoats by our grandfathers. Several titled ladies in London, about eighteen months ago, formed an association or guild to revive the old Spitalfields silk industry, and King Edward was so pleased with the material produced that he forthwith ordered various patterns of it to be made up into vests for his own use. I was fortunate enough to get the second selection, and I have five or six of the vests with me, which I expect will make a sensation. They are all in subdued colors, with light backgrounds, and some of them are iridescent, producing a particularly beautiful effect. The vest ought to be double breasted, cut high and tapering from the waist down to a sharp point in front. I ought to say, perhaps, that they are expensive, costing six dollars in London."

A Woman and A Burglar.

The other evening, says a San Francisco paper, a lady, whose husband had gone out for the evening, was about to retire for the night with her infant child, when, to her amazement, she perceived the foot of a man beneath the bed. Instead of calling for assistance, she coolly went to the child's cot and sat and sang till the little one went to sleep. Two hours then remained before her husband came in. He was surprised to find her waiting up, but when his wife handed him an envelope, saying: "You might run and post this the cause of her waiting was revealed. Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under the bed; run, fetch police." The husband returned in a few minutes with a policeman, and the man was arrested. The burglar, when brought up before the magistrate, remarked that he had come across a few brave women in his time, but this one must have had a nerve like iron, for she sat there for three solid hours. He had no idea that she knew he was there until the policeman pulled him out.

Storm King Group of Mines

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

The property comprising what is known as the STORM KING GROUP OF MINES offers an attractive and safe investment. The property is the richest in the country and we believe it would be difficult to secure an investment that promises better returns. The following is a description of the mines written by Capt. A. M Paul, whose reputation as an expert in mining matters is known far and near.

These properties are situated in the Cable Cove Mining District, about fifteen miles north of Sumpter, Oregon, and about one mile northwest of the Baby McKee mine, about two miles northwest of the Last Chance, the Alpine, the Imperial and the California mines.

The properties in this report consist of seven claims. The names of the seven claims being as follows: The Eureka and the Honest Dollar. These two claims are on the same vein. Adjoining these two claims and paralleling them on the northwest is another vein upon which there are two claims known as the Jessie and Golden Rule, and paralleling them on the northwest there is another vein upon which there are two claims, known as the Storm King and the Ozone. The last claim of this group lies to the northwest of the last two named, and is adjoining them. This claim is the Shannon Bell.

In making my report I will commence with the two first named claims of the group, the Eureka and Honest Dollar. The development on these claims consists of a tunnel ninety-seven feet in length, running along the course of the vein, showing two feet ten inches of ore in the top of the tunnel and a little over three feet in the bottom, which assays giving values of from $9.68 to $79 per ton in gold. About four hundred feet in a southwesterly direction there is a shaft on the vein ten feet deep, showing the vein to be from one to two inches wide on the surface and about twelve inches wide in the bottom of the shaft, in which assays give values of from $9.76 to $40 per ton in free milling gold ore.

This vein is exposed by small shafts and open cuts for a distance of fifteen hundred feet, and the course of this vein is north, ten degrees east, and the vein cuts the formation, showing it to be a true fissure, and the formation is granite. This vein shows in places a width of from ten to fifteen feet of mineralized matter, commonly called vein matter, but which is caused by hot solutions from below.

I will now pass to the Jessie and Golden Rule. There has been very little work done upon these two claims, there being one discovery shaft ten feet deep, showing ore on all sides of the shaft, and running in value of from $4 upwards. It is my opinion that with development, this, too, will prove valuable property.

The work on the Storm King and Ozone consists of a tunnel near the point of discovery and is driven along the vein for a distance of one hundred and eighty feet, showing ore all the way from the surface to the face of the tunnel, and averaging in width from six to eighteen inches. Three assays give the following values, $12.50. This being a general sample taken from the dump. The other two assays are $62.68 and $79.06 respectively, this being the assorted ore for shipment. The course of this tunnel and vein are north, ten degrees west, and the vein cuts the trend of the formation obliquely (which is granite) and by driving this tunnel five or six hundred feet on present course it will further meet a quartzite reef (which is running north, twenty degrees east) which would make this a contact vein between granite and quartzite, and should produce a large body of ore, at the intersection of the contact.

The only work done upon the Shannon Bell, the last claim of this group is the location work, and is not enough to allow of a report being made.

There is water for power purposes one mile from the property, and timber on the ground, of a very fine quality, sufficient to run the mine for many years to come.

All the assays mentioned in this report were made by the assayer of the Imperial mine at my request, and the ore was taken by me from the properties mentioned.

I will state that I have been a practical miner since 1870, and am now the manager and superintendent of the Imperial mine in this district.

(Signed) CAPTAIN A. M. PAUL.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

Chicago, Dec. 8.—There was rather a nervous market for wheat Tuesday. There was considerable selling early, but there was a fair line of support, and consequently in the latter part of the session a less bearish interpretation was given to certain events. The export trade was slow, and the cash market generally was quiet with but little change in prices. The crop news was without fresh feature. The feeling on the close was rather mixed, though the final operations were quite dull and narrow. Corn operations were limited. There was considerable selling during the day, and prices were sustained only at times. The crop report was conflicting. The export demand was slow. In the latter part of the day there was a small increase in the line of buying, but generally up to the last there was a rather uncertain tendency. The trade in oats was slow. The trade generally was professional.

Painting the Empress Dowager.

A distinguished artist, Miss Carl, of the United States, one of the few women painters admitted as members of the Paris Salon, is now living in the summer palace near Pekin as the guest of the Empress Dowager, whose portrait she is painting. The Empress, to make up for her former deficiencies and the long unperpetuated line of her ancestors, is having three pictures done of herself. One will be hung in her private apartments, another in the Hall of Audience, and the third will be sent to the St. Louis Exhibition. The last named is to be the most ambitious work, showing the Empress Dowager in full panoply, tricked out in satins and brocades, "armed for defence, feathered to fortify." She will wear the head-dress known in China as the "shower of pearls," in which ropes of beautifully matched pearls hang like a curtain to her shoulders, as well as her barbaric bracelets and priceless earrings. She has also ordered the Emperor to sit for his portrait, and it probably will be completed in a fortnight or three weeks. Miss Carl's brother, a high official in the imperial Chinese customs, has been chosen to escort China's delegate, Prince Pu Lun, to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

DECAYED GERMAN FRUIT.

Since Friday last some twenty-three vanloads of condemned German plums have vanished into the courtyard of the Bermondsey Borough Council's destructor, says The London Express of Thursday, September 10, and they are destined a few weeks hence to start a useful career as paving stones. Yesterday several vans, with their evil-smelling contents, added to the quantity already waiting to be dealt with, but so heavy have the seizures been that they must wait for a day or two before passing through the processes that result in this wonderful transformation. The fruit must first be burnt, and wet plums would put out the fires of the furnaces unless used in small quantities and mixed with household refuse, which, when burnt, goes to form the "slag" used for the manufacture of Bermondsey flagstones. The slag is ground up into powder, mixed with cement, and pressed by hydraulic power into paving stones. In addition to plums, tins of condemned salmon, tomatoes, sardines and other things "unfit for human consumption" find their way into Bermondsey's flagstone factory. At present the amount of slag available is so great that the output of flagstones is larger than the authorities require. It is therefore proposed to sell the surplus blocks to other boroughs at 2s 6d each. Plums will form a considerable ingredient of the slag for some time to come, for the seizures have suddenly become large. In four working days some six batches of fruit have been condemned in Bermondsey, varying from thirty tons in five railway trucks to fifteen baskets on a costermonger's stall, the contents of which were being retailed at 1d per lb. The Southwark Magistrate yesterday ordered the destruction of 34cwt. of German plums which had been seized at Cotton's Wharf, Tooley street. The Magistrate, after examining the fruit, remarked that it was hopelessly bad.

A Kindly Act.

Queen Alexandra has just sent a most sympathetic and encouraging letter, accompanied by a check for £50, to the Countess of Dudley, who, with the Lord Lieutenant, has just taken up her residence at Rockingham, in west Ireland. This, with a gift of £5,000 from a prominent landholder in the north of Ireland, Sir Hugh Smiley of Larne, on whom the King recently conferred a baronetcy, has been applied by the philanthropic Lady Dudley to her pet scheme, that of establishing district nurses throughout the locality of the Viceregal home. For some time past the one absorbing thought in Lady Dudley's mind, it seems, has been the assistance of these ministers to body and soul, and in her effort to help the poverty-stricken people among whom her lot has been cast. "I feel," she said, as quoted in The London Gentlewoman, "that it is not only the sick who would benefit by an organization of this kind, but the whole community. A tactful nurse, who, by kindness and attention in sickness, could gain the confidence of the people, would do more than anything else toward raising the standard of life in the districts where the most rudimentary knowledge of sanitary laws and the treatment of sickness does not exist, and cleanliness, cookery and domestic comfort are unknown. There is absolutely no standard of comfort; everything is far behind the times. In the poorest districts there are no maternity nurses, and though the babies more frequently than not struggle into existence, it is often at the expense of the mother's life. It is quite impossible for one dispensary doctor to attend some three or four thousand people scattered over a large area, especially in the mountainous localities, where locomotion is difficult, and in the winter weather often impossible; hence it is only by means of district nurses that we can hope to check the suffering and mortality. It may be," she continued, very earnestly, "I hope it may be my privilege to carry out this plan, but to establish the scheme on a permanent basis I need generous—very generous—support. The initial expenses can be met by the donations already received, but a self-respecting subscription list or a substantial sum capitalised will be necessary to carry on the work, otherwise the movement will only have aroused a need and awakened a hope that we shall not be able to fulfil. So far we are only justified in starting two nurses, who will begin their work at once" (in August), "one at Geesala and the other at Carracoe, both pitiably poor districts, which I have personally visited, selecting and furnishing the tiny houses in which the nurses are to live. Something like £100 a year is necessary for the maintenance of each nurse, and the Queen Victoria Jubilee Fund has voted an annual sum of £100 to form the nucleus of a special endowment fund.

"I feel that as the scheme becomes better known people will respond more generously to my appeal, which has already called forth some very liberal contributions, which will, I hope, enable us to start two more nurses on October 1. There will be no fear of overlapping, as we only purpose dealing with the very destitute districts, where no nurse of any kind exists. Here," she said, opening a large book of photographs, mostly her own snapshots, "here are pictures of some of the places where I hope we shall establish nurses. Can you conceive greater misery? They have nothing out of which to make a living, or, as they pathetically express it themselves, 'Sure, we have nothing, glory be to God, only the air and the water.' And, indeed," Lady Dudley added, "the beautiful pure air of the west is the one blessing they enjoy."

To Destroy Mosquitos.

That warfare against the mosquito may be successful, if it is waged thoroughly and relentlessly, seems to be shown by the results attained on the Isthmus of Suez, where the Canal Company has been trying for several months to exterminate the insects. A contributor to Cosmos, according to a translation made for The Literary Digest, says of this isthmian mosquito war: "A special service has been organised for the purpose. All cisterns have been given a thin coating of oil, which prevents the mosquitoes from breeding; and all marshes and ditches where stagnant water might accumulate have been drained. At the same time, medicine has been distributed, which, by curing the fever, diminishes the poisoned sources whence the mosquitoes obtain their virus. Owing to this, since last December the number of cases of fever has sensibly diminished from month to month, as compared with the numbers in corresponding months of previous years. These operations have gone on for only a few months, and, of course, the anopheles has not completely disappeared; but the examination of specimens captured for this purpose shows that none were infected, which is doubtless to be attributed to the fact that the number of malarial patients has been reduced by proper medical treatment. The oiling of the cisterns and the active surveillance of all the places where the mosquitoes can breed have had another happy result—the anopheles are not the only ones that have suffered; these measures have also caused the culex to disappear so completely that even on the hottest days of the season it has not been necessary to use mosquito nets. The month of August is the malarial season at Ismalia, and only after this period can we tell whether the efforts that have been made are fully successful. It is to be hoped that they are. Besides the immense advantage that will be gained for the region itself, this experiment will show what can be done in this line and with what chances of success. A war of the same kind is being waged in Havana, but we do not yet know its results."

A Sharp Retort.

A student noted for his carelessness in dress approached Prof. Simon Newcomb of Johns Hopkins University for advice says The Yale Review. He was thinking of leaving college and going into business, having had a flattering offer.

"Now, you know my case, Professor," he said, "and if you were in my shoes what would you do?"

The Professor looked very serious and replied:

"Black them, of course!"

THE STOCK OF THE

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

IS THE BEST MINING INVESTMENT TO-DAY

This is a strong statement, but facts substantiate it. The work on the mine has proven its value. The promoters have shown their confidence in it by using their own money for development work.

The Company's Property is Six Claims, Patented Land

$60,000 worth of ore blocked out and mine ready for mill.

Mine can be cheaply and economically worked.

Treasury Stock only for sale, and only sufficient stock will be sold to supply machinery.

The mine lacks but one thing—machinery, and to purchase this a small block of stock will be sold at 15 cents per share. When machinery is paid for no more stock will be sold

PROSPECTUS INFORMATION FREELY GIVEN

This proposition is better than that of many companies selling stock at 50 cents a share, and will stand a thorough investigation.

GOLD——$80,000,000——GOLD
—If you want to make a GOLD DIVIDEND PAYING INVESTMENT—
Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

the development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 100 to 400 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,200 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends have been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of

Are You Deaf?

Humdreds of perfect recoveries from impaired hearing and deafness are reported as a result of the use of Catarrhozone

The result of actual experience proves that ninety cases in every hundred can be cured, and stay cured, of impaired hearing by the regular use of Catarrhozone.

Among the many prominent business men whose hearing has been restored by Catarrhozone, might be mentioned Mr. Geo. W. Warner, of 353 Wellesley street, Toronto, and Mr. William Jones contractor, of Halifax, N. S. Both these gentlemen have testified to the merits of Catarrhozone as a suitable cure for deafness, and their statements prove beyond all question that Catarrhozone cures impaired hearing and even total deafness.

The efficiency of Catarrhozone is placed beyond dispute by its long list of successful cures, and on the highest authority we can recommend it to our readers. It is a very simple remedy to use, and never causes confusion or gets out of order.

Catarrhozone inhaler is beautifully polished and made of hard rubber. It is suitable to carry in the vest pocket and can be used in the church, theatre street car, at any time, in any place. The complete outfit costs but $1.00 and lasts two months. Trial size 25c. Sold by druggists or sent to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston. Ont

Ladies' Literary Association

The Ladies' Literary Association of St Peter's T.A.S. will meet on Friday evening, December 11th. Miss Josie O'Heron will read a paper on the "Catacombs." As this will be the last meeting before Christmas all members of the committee are requested to present full reports at the committee meeting on Friday evening.

A Good Suggestion

A citizen made a suggestion to The Times yesterday that is worthy of the attention of the council. It is to have the trees and old stumps cleared off Goose Island this winter. Now that the water is raised this island is totally submerged. If this place was cleaned, as suggested, it would add greatly to the appearance of the river at this point. The cost would be trifling.

A Compromise Probable

The Times was told yesterday by a prominent railway official who was in town for a few hours, that a compromise is likely to be effected between the telegraph operators and the Grand Trunk. The matter is now in the hands of the International Union, the committee of operators having been unable to get any concessions asked for from the Company.

The Slaughter in the Woods

The Canadian Express Company this year handled from the district south of North Bay the remarkable number of 2,350 deer carcasses. The figures somewhat surprised the officials of the company, as it was generally believed that this year's hunting had not yielded the return of the previous year. As it was 633 more deer were shipped from the district mentioned than last year. The Peterborough district also contributed a larger number than ever before.

A Rich Mining Property

We take the following from a Silverton Colo., paper: "Payment in full was made this week by Mr. A. A. Brown to Rice, Hassinger & Moreland, for Plueyune Gulch group of properties, the consideration being $29,000." Mr Brown, who is General Manager of the Stony Pass Mining Company, one of the best propositions, we believe, ever presented to the Canadian investor, has opened an office in Peterborough, which is under the management of Mr. Robert Harrison.

Provincial Appointments

The following Provincial appointments are gazetted: Dr. G. McL. Lang, Owen Sound, and Dr. T. E. Bennett, Meaford, associate coroners in the county of Grey; E. P. Flintoft, Waterloo; G. F. Kelleher, Galt, Edward Proulx, Plantagenet, and J. A. Cockburn, Crysler, county of Stormont, to be notaries public; David Robertson, Warkworth, Clerk of Ninth Division, Court of Northumberland county, in place of the late R. P. Hurlburt; and Hugh A. McLean, Underwood, clerk of the Sixth Division Court of Bruce County.

To Christmas Shoppers

For the benefit, not only of the merchants, but of the readers of this journal who purchase Christmas goods, we may mention that now is the time to buy. The merchants have their Christmas goods in stock. In this respect they are a week earlier than they were last year, and now is the time to see everything and make selections from full lines. The goods are ready, and buyers can now be waited upon, thus securing satisfaction. Don't put off your buying to the last week, or last day. Give the merchant and the clerks a chance, and in doing that you will best serve yourself.

THE COUNTY COURT

December Sittings Opened Yesterday Before Judge Weller

The December sittings of the County Court opened at the Court House yesterday, His Honor Judge Weller, presiding.

The Grand Jury empannelled was composed as follows—J. G. Weir, Otonabee, foreman; J. Armstrong, Monaghan; Wm. Collins, Ashburnham; D. Cameron, Peterborough; J. D. Craig, Peterborough; G. Duffield, Norwood; D. Drain, Dummer, P. Dresden, Smith; J. Savigny, Otonabee; Jas. Sanderson, Smith, and J. VanNorman, Havelock.

The members of the bar present were—Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun, F. D. Kerr, Geo Edmison, R. E. Wood, J. A Sherry, Norwood, and D. O'Connell.

After the Grand Jury was empanelled, with Mr. J. G. Weir, as foreman, His Honor delivered two addresses. After dealing with the cases to come before the court, and making the usual explanations of the law, he drew the attention of the jury to the fact that the Legislature had made an enactment making compulsory the establishment of Houses of Refuge. He also referred to the fact that the ratepayers of Peterborough and Ashburnham had voted in favor of the union of the two municipalities, and incidentally to the county at large. He also referred to the low water in the river, and remarked that while the Grand Jury could do nothing definite in the matter, they might refer to the subject in their report.

In the King vs. Cavanagh, the accused was arraigned and elected to trial by the Judge, and the trial was fixed for Tuesday at 3 p.m.

TWICE WON

Wife Fell in Love with Husband "All Over Again"

The wife of a well-known attorney at law of Seward, Nebr., tells the tale worth reading: "My husband was a soldier in the Civil War and was, as he called himself, 'an old coffee cooler' and had always drank very strong coffee.

"About a year ago he complained of a feeling of faintness every time after climbing his office stairs and was also troubled with terrible headaches that almost drove him wild.

"He gradually grew weaker and weaker until his affliction culminated in nervous collapse and for weeks he seemed to be fading away from us in spite of all our efforts.

"The physicians pronounced him strong and well with no organic trouble whatever and there seemed to be nothing the matter except the complete giving out of his nervous system.

"The doctors decided that coffee was at the bottom of all his trouble and ordered Postum Ceral in its place. He improved daily since he quit coffee and began drinking Postum and now says he feels better than he has felt for 20 years, headaches are gone, no more fainting spells and is gaining in flesh every day and he seems so much younger and heartier and happier than he has for years that I have fallen in love with him over again.

"Now for my brother's case; a few years ago he had a peculiar trouble. His tongue was swollen and sore at the roots and covered underneath with festers.

"He thought his affliction was of a cancerous nature and his doctor was of the same opinion. He could scarcely eat anything and became so poor and run down he was simply a nervous wreck. He consulted various physicians but none were able to diagnose his case or help him in the least.

"At last a doctor to whom he applied said he believed my brother was coffee poisoned and advised him to quit coffee and drink Postum. He gave him no medicine, but told him to give Postum fair trial and return to him 6 weeks. My brother had used Postum only about ten days when the festers disappeared from his tongue and at the end of two weeks the soreness and swelling were gone and he began to pick up in flesh and spirits.

"He has never touched coffee since but drinks Postum all the time and has never had the slightest return of the trouble.

"To look at my experience is it any wonder I can write a heartfelt testimonial for Postum?" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A By-Law to regulate the closing of shops of dealers in Dry-goods, Clothing, Hats, Caps and Furs, Gents Furnishings and Millinery in the Town of Peterborough.

Passed this 7th day of December, 1903.

WHEREAS an application has been received by the Council of the Town of Peterborough praying for the passing of a By-Law requiring the closing of the following classes of shops situated within the said Town of Peterborough under and by virtue of "The Ontario Shops Regulation Act" that is to say the shops of dealers in Dry-goods, Clothing Hats, Caps and Furs, Gents Furnishings and Millinery respectively.

AND WHEREAS the said Council is satisfied that such application has been signed by not less than three-fourths in number of the occupiers of shops within the Municipality and belong to each of the classes to which such application relates respectively and it is desirable to comply with such application.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by the Council thereof therefore enacts as follows:

1. Under and in accordance with "The Ontario Shops Regulation Act" all shops belonging to the following classes situated within the Town of Peterborough, that is to say the shops of dealers in Dry-goods, Clothing, Hats, Caps and Furs, Gents Furnishings and Millinery respectively, shall be closed and remain closed on each day of the week (except Saturday and the day before any public holiday other than Christmas Day and on the four days preceding Christmas Day) at and during the time between seven o'clock in the afternoon and five o'clock in the forenoon of the next following day.

2. Any person or persons or body corporate within the Town of Peterborough neglecting or refusing to close and keep closed the shop of which he or they is or are the occupier or occupiers at and after the hour named for the closing thereof on each day on which the same is hereby required to be closed and kept closed and being a shop of one of the classes aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of the said Act and of this By-Law shall on conviction thereof be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and costs to be levied in case of non-payment thereof by distress and sale of the goods of the offender and in default of sufficient distress such offender shall be liable to be imprisoned in the common gaol of the County of Peterborough for any period not exceeding twenty-one days.

3. This By-Law shall take effect on the fifteenth day of December, 1903.

4. This By-Law shall be published by the insertion of a copy thereof three times in the Morning Times, published in the said Town of Peterborough.

RUSSIA'S DELAY MAY FORCE JAPAN INTO A BIG WAR WITH THE CZAR

Feared That Radicals will Get to Far Beyond Control.

IN CASE OF PARLIAMENTARY EXPLOSION

Pekin Sees Last Chance For Liberty from Grasp of the Bear

London, Dec. 10— The affairs in the far east seem rapidly marching to a crisis. For a month the assumption in well informed circles has been that the reply of Russia to Japan's note would reach Tokio before the reassembling of the diet.

It has also been assumed that, should this expectation be defeated, the Japanese war party would inevitably get out of hand.

There is no doubt that the mikado and his advisers have become seriously disturbed by the growth of popular discontent and the bellicose attitude of the army and navy.

Were a preliminary explosion to occur at this juncture, Japan might be swept into some act of war which it seems to be the effort of St. Petersburg to provoke.

All this may be alarmist conjecture. One thing seems to be certain: Japan has issued nothing in the shape of an ultimatum to Russia and from the outset in October, of direct negotiations, has shown marvellous official discretion.

One of the most favorable symptoms is the modified tone of the semi-official Russian journals.

As an illustration of this change, a Moscow correspondent points out that the Moscow press suggests that it might be well for Russia to abandon all ambitions in connection with the southern section railway and be satisfied with annexing the portion between Manchuria and Amoor.

This would be in deference to the demands of the United States, whose good will Russia is anxious to obtain.

RUSSIA'S LATEST ORDERS

Proclamations have been issued to all garrisons in Russia calling on the soldiers to refrain from firing on their fellow countrymen, and the men have ignored the commands of the military authorities to deliver up the prisoners. Most are punished by banishment into distant towns and villages, where they organize revolutionary committees. The movement is spreading with great rapidity and the demand for revolutionary literature is on the increase.

REHATRIATION OF FRENCH-CANADIANS

C.P.R. Would Prevent Further Emigration From Quebec

THE PLANS OF COMMITTEE

Everything Possible Will be Done to Keep Canadian Population at Home

Montreal, Dec. 10—The C.P.R. has been approached with a view of seeing what it can do, not only to repatriate French-Canadians already in the United States, but to prevent others from following those already there into exile.

Mr. Robert Kerr, the passenger traffic manager, was approached yesterday afternoon in this regard by a committee consisting of Mr. James A. Smart, the Deputy Minister of the Interior, Senator Beique, Mr. Brodeur, M.P., Mr. Lemam and others.

The situation was talked over in all its phases, but when seen this morning Mr. Kerr was unprepared to say just what scheme would be the most advantageous. An effort would, however, undoubtedly be made to carry out the suggestion made. The company was naturally desirous of keeping the people at home, and could be relied upon to do something just as soon as a practicable method of operation had been devised.

FLORA IS DOOMED

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 9—It is feared that H.M.S. Flora will never leave the ill-omened Village Rock as a ship. Since she was run on the rock in a fog last week two attempts have been made to release her, but both have proved failures.

EDUCATION THE CAUSE

London, Dec. 9— Lord Strathcona, distributing the prizes at the City of London College yesterday, said the wonderful prosperity of Canada was due in large measure to elementary and higher education.

—"Making ice" at the Brock street rink is progressing slowly. Unless the weather gets colder, it will be some days before the rink will be open for business.

Misery and Death

Constantinople, Dec. 7—While the Turkish soldiers, aided by cold and hunger, are steadily reducing the Christian population of Macedonia and giving rise to conditions of misery and death probably never before known in the Balkans, Abdul Hamid and his ministers are reported to have elaborated a plan of diplomatic jugglery which is delaying and may even defeat the reform scheme. Discussion is raised on almost every point, and when forced to yield, the Turkish diplomats hasten to heap difficulties in the way of practical results. By these tricks any amelioration of the lot of the Macedonians may be delayed until Europe breaks off the negotiations and summarily executes the reforms.

PLANS ARE NOW READY

Dunfermline Experiment is Outlined for Model City

Ironmaster Has Appropriated Large Sum to his Native Town

New York, Dec. 9.—With $2,500,000 the gift of Andrew Carnegie, to support it, an experiment in sociology is about to be tried that will be watched with the liveliest interest by those who believe or doubt that it is possible to build Utopian cities or to establish Altruria.

In an official statement issued yesterday by the American Institute of Social Service there was shown the plans which the institute has outlined for the carrying out of the new Carnegie Dunfermline Trust.

Dunfermline is Andrew Carnegie's native town, to which he recently transferred by trust deed Pittencrieff Park and Glen and $2,500,000, to be used in making life more pleasant for the toiling masses of the vicinity.

Prof Patrick Geddes, the trust's representative in Scotland, asked the co-operation of the institute, and the plan has just been formulated. It covers twelve closely typewritten pages, goes into minute detail, and is based on personal studies of Dunfermline's needs, made by Dr. W. H. Tolman, director of the institute, who made a journey to Scotland for that purpose.

Some Features of the Plan.

"The plan includes," to quote the statement, "a regional museum, a district for a city beautiful, a social center, a department of civics, boys and girls flower gardens, children's playgrounds and outdoor gymnasia, holiday tours and historic pilgrimages, get-together clubs, and a system of awards and prizes.

"The general outline for a city beautiful suggests that somewhere on the confines of the park land should be set aside on which can be built model dwellings of diversified architecture with due regard to individual needs."

One such house is to serve as a model that others may see how best to combine art and economy, cheapness and decoration. Flower gardens are to be about the houses, and no fences will be allowed to divide the yards. The "social center" is to be a large building for common use as a recreation ground, hall for entertainments and as a general meeting place.

The Regional Museum.

"Details for a regional museum have been given at great length," to quote from the statement again. "In this museum should be collected the various processes of local industries in order that the individual workman may get an idea of how his part is related to the great industry as a whole. In this museum there should be interpretation by means of photographs, models, charts and diagrams, with explanations suited to the average mind.

"The department of civics is intended to inspire youth and to direct their enthusiasm wisely, so that they may raise the tone of their citizenship.

"Under the Get-Together Club details are given for the discussion of subjects of vital interest.

"Under 'Holiday Tours' provision is made for tours of a single day, or for weeks with hints and suggestions as to subjects and institutions of special interest, and how to reach them.

"The idea of the award and prize division is to stimulate interest and to arouse wholesome competition. In this division plans are given for the awarding of prizes to adults as well as to children, for meritorious deeds."

RUSSIA BUYS WAR SUPPLIES

Large Supplies Sent From Danish to Asiatic Ports

Copenhagen, Dec. 10.—The ships of the Danish East Asiatic Company, which has a number of vessels under the Russian flag and is connected with the French East Asiatic Company, are carrying unusually large cargoes of ammunition and other war supplies to Russian ports in Asia. The last steamer of this line leaving Russian Baltic ports prior to the close of navigation has just sailed loaded to her fullest capacity. Hereafter the shipping will be from Odessa, from which port the Danish company is prepared to transport troops. Every effort has been made to maintain secrecy regarding these war shipments.

Exceptionally well-informed persons here believe that, despite the warlike activity, the measures taken are chiefly precautionary and they express little doubt of an ultimate amicable settlement, unless hostilities are precipitated by some unexpected move on the part of Japan.

Japan Communicates Directly With the Russian Government.

THE CRISIS IS NOW VERY SERIOUS.

China is Said to be Strongly on Side of the Japenese

St. Petersburg, Dec. 10— Japan has communicated indirectly with the Russian Government urging upon it the desirability of an early response to the Japanese note regarding affairs in the far east on account of the political situation in Tokio and the foreign office here has expressed the opinion that the reply will be ready by Tuesday next.

The return to St. Petersburg of Emperor Nicholas will facilitate early action on the document.

CHINA ON JAPAN'S SIDE.

London, Dec. 10— A correspondent in China well informed on the opinions of dominant Peking, sends the following regarding China's probable attitude in the event of a Russo-Japanese outbreak:

Because Prince Ching and his entourage are to a large extent bound hand and foot to Russia, it must not be supposed that the Chinese look upon Russia as their fidus achates.

This is by no means the case, and I am given to understand that in the event of Japan's success on the sea, and the Manchurian campaign being undertaken, all the modern drilled and equipped troops at the disposal of China would join in the war.

This would obviously be China's last chance to make a bid for liberty.

Should peace be the outcome of the present negotiations, which I can hardly conceive, then the partition of China into definite spheres is upon us.

The best authorities here don't share the correspondent's expectations of war. Russia's best interests, unquestionably would be served, not by war, but by a slow policy of absorption.

Japan's elder statesmen are also convinced that Japan is unable on financial grounds to enter upon a campaign that may last years.

If hostilities come, it will be because Japan's best statesmen are unable to control the popular clamor.

Paris, Dec. 10.—The Rappel publishes this morning a dispatch from St. Petersburg announcing the massacre by "Boxers" of a number of Christians in the Szechuan province of China.

TWELVE STEAMERS FOR GRAIN TRADE

Canadian Transit Company's Prospectus to Be Issued

CANADIANS ARE INTERESTED

Stock Subscription to Extent of One and a Half Million Invited

London, December 10— The Canadian Transit Company will publish to-morrow its prospectus inviting stock subscriptions to the extent of £300,000 of which £165,000 consists of one pound ordinary shares and £135,000 of five per cent. first mortgage debenture gold bonds at £20 pounds each, secured upon the Company's fleet. The company has made a contract with the new Canadian Company, Limited, for the supply of a fleet, of twelve new specially designed vessels for the grain carrying trade between the great lakes and Montreal, at a price of £275,000; also for working capital up to £25,000. The new Canadian Company in receiving £165,000 in ordinary shares and £135,000 of the Canadian Transit Company's bonds to be delivered within seven months.

With the prospectus are published letters from Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine, and Mr. Hugh Allan, indicating the excellent prospects of success in inland transportation. The directors are John Torrance, Robert Bickerdike, Alphonse Racine, all of Montreal; Charles Carpenter, director of the New Canadian Company, and Joseph Mellowes of London. The sale is made through the London City Midland Bank.

Sherbrooke, Que., December 10.—The majority of the City Council passed a resolution last night by a majority of one which marks another important step in the municipal ownership game. They resolved to apply to the Quebec Legislature for an amendment to the charter to enable them to submit the municipal light by-law to the whole electors of the city, instead of the ratepayers only, as has always been the case in the past. The by-law will be for a loan of some $300,000, and heavy ratepayers are astonished at the proposal to give non-property owners a vote on a question involving a heavy mortgage upon Sherbrooke real estate. Mayor Farwell characterizes the new movement, "a most ingenious scheme to do a most illegal act."

COUNTY COURT

Grand Jury's Presentment—Settlement in O'Brien vs. Noxon

At the session of the County Court the Grand Jury yesterday made the following presentment:—

To His Honor, Judge Weller:—

We, the Grand Jury, Assembled in Peterborough this 9th day of December, 1903, wish to say that we have examined the Court House and Jail, and found everything clean, comfortable, and in good order, and considering the reports of past Grand Juries, the management must be in good hands indeed.

We also consider that owing to the rapid progress that is being made in the Town of Peterborough and surrounding country in manufacturing places of industry, that it is of the utmost importance that a sufficient supply of water be maintained throughout the year for their use, also for navigation purposes, and this can only be secured by conserving the water in our northern lake and we believe the necessary work and expense should be done and borne by our Provincial and Dominion Governments and not by the parties who are the employers of labor and who are endeavoring to increase the wealth of our town and county as well as their own private means. Several of the manufactories and steam boats on our lakes and rivers have been for a long time short of power for want of water, and some have been idle.

All of which is respectfully submitted on behalf of the Grand Jury

J. G. WEIR,
Foreman

His Honor thanked the Grand Jury for the very capable and intelligent manner in which they had performed their duties, and stated that he would have a copy of the presentment forwarded to the Secretary of State at Ottawa, and to the Provincial Secretary, Toronto.

A settlement was made yesterday in the civil case, O'Brien vs. Noxon Company, which was founded on an alleged non-fulfillment of agreement in connection with the purchase of a binder by the plaintiff from the Noxon Co. The settlement is on the basis that the Company cancel a note given by plaintiff for the binder, and agreeing to pay a certain sum towards the cost. The plaintiff agrees to buy a new binder, which the defendants agree to make as perfect as any in the market. E. B. Edwards for plaintiff; Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson for defendants.

The criminal case in which George Parcels was charged with obtaining money by extortion was taken from the jury and there being insufficient evidence to convict the prisoner was given the benefit.

OUR BATTERY LEADS

The Very Fine Showing Made by the 14th at Deseronto

Lieut. Ackerman has received from headquarters the badges and prize money won by the gunners of the Peterborough sections in the firing competition of the Canadian Artillery at Deseronto, June 30th last. Eleven batteries in all, contested the series, the 14th Midland leading by over five points on A Battery, and eleven points on B, both of the permanent force. In other years these Batteries have always headed the list in shooting and consequently they were very much surprised to find themselves beaten by a militia battery equipped with guns entirely new to them. The Peterborough non-commissioned officers and gunners entitled to prizes in connection with the competition are:—

Sergt.-Major Scollie, Badge.
Sergt. Boyle, Badge and $5.00
Sergt. Henderson, Badge and $5.00
Sert. Guerin, Badge and $5.00
Bom Clude, Two Badges and $3.00
Corp Asseltine, Two Badges and $2.00
Bom. Robertson, Two Badges and $2.00
Corp Galley, Badge.
Gr Guerin, Badge.
Gr. Holmes, Badge.
Gr. Roy, Badge.
Gr. Legrandour, Badge.

In addition to the above prizes, which Messrs. Clark and Gibson have kindly consented to display for a few days, the battery commander receives a pair of binocular field glasses valued at $35.00 and the Battery two handsome silver challenge cups, valued at $150.00.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

GOLD MINES PROMISE WELL

Silverton Region Yields Up Much Auriferous Ore

Silverton, Col., Dec. 10.—From all present indication the gold output of this region in 1904 will be a record-breaker. Not only are the neighboring mines yielding rich returns to the developer, but new mining properties are being exploited right along and with most satisfactory results.

Old-time California gold hunters, who passed from washing pan to hydraulic mining, have been looking over the mountains round Silverton and contend that the California hydraulic methods applied to these precipitous peaks, would bring out immense quantities of ore. The men now engaged in local mining, however, claim that the tunnel system of obtaining the ore is amply satisfactory, is wholly practicable in such steep mountains, and in the long run will cost much less than any other method. Unprejudiced judges lean to Colorado, or tunnel, idea as being the most successful system that can be adopted.

Steel Corporation Requires Retrenchment in All Departments

CANADA FAILS TO GRASP PROPOSALS

Says Hon. Clifford Sifton Misunderstood Mr. Chamberlain's Proposals

London, Dec. 9—The St. James' Gazette doubts the accuracy of the report of Hon. Clifford Sifton's speech at the Ottawa Canadian Club, as cabled to England. The Standard also accepts the report with considerable reserve. It says: "If Mr. Sifton really protested against the Dominion of Canada abandoning control of their manufactures or being treated like squalling infants, clamoring for protection and threatening to break up the Empire if she did not get it, he completely misunderstood, not only the whole spirit and intention, but the actual utterances of Mr. Chamberlain on the subject."

BUSINESS, NOT SENTIMENT.

British Breeders are Opposed to Importation of Cattle.

London, Dec. 9—The Westminster Gazette, referring to Lord Onslow's speech, says it is interesting to observe that the home breeder is not in the least more inclined to admit cattle which come from Canada than when they come from the United States. It is enough for him that Imperial as well as foreign cattle have the undesired effect of lowering prices.

MONTREALER'S VIEW.

London, Dec. 9—Mr. W. Darlington, describing himself as a Montreal workingman, has written a long letter to the Birmingham Daily Post, in which he says that all over Canada there is an apparent desire on the part of the Boards of Trade to endorse Mr. Chamberlain's preference policy. Workingmen almost without exception favor retaliation against countries who refuse to trade with Great Britain on a fair basis. He says the only difference between the Conservative and Liberal parties in Canada is that the former desire higher tariff than do the latter.

Montreal, Dec. 9—"At the end of the present year, the first in which the Canadian Pacific Railway has operated steamship lines on both the Atlantic and Pacific, I would say that both lines have had satisfactory years, although taken all round the Pacific line was more satisfactory than the Atlantic. But then conditions are so different that no comparison can be established between them."

The speaker was Mr. Arthur Piers, general manager of all the steamship lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who, in correspondence with a press representative, made his first official statement regarding trade on both oceans.

"My reason for saying that returns were satisfactory on the Pacific," Mr. Piers went on to say, "is that the company has secured a very large amount of the tea and silk trades, and as there is not so much competition and the company offers a better service, freight rates have held firm.

"As to the Atlantic line, there has not been any reason to complain. The fifteen steamers have carried by far a larger amount of tonnage than they did when controlled by the Elder-Dempster Company. Besides, the company made a record in cattle shipments, and for these prices were fair till close to the end of the season. Of course to a certain extent the company was affected along with the other companies by the low freight rates. Again, at the beginning of the season our business was affected by the longshoremen's strike, and the necessity to construct new sheds. All the preliminary work has now been attended to, and the outlook for next season's business is that it will be better than the one just closed. The increased tonnage that the steamers secured was undoubtedly due to the connection they had with the railway."

London, Dec. 9— The Standard this morning says: Hon. Clifford Sifton's attitude regarding commercial union is shrewd, cool and businesslike. So many obscure hints and nebulous threats are being thrown out regarding Canada's position if the demand for preferential trade is rejected that we are glad the ground is cleared in this thorough fashion. There is a note of patriotic self-assertiveness in the speech. We hope that in his remarks regarding the British navy he was only playing to the gallery. There is no need to abandon the attempt to bind the Empire closer, but from Mr. Sifton's speech we perceive that it will need a great deal of careful statesmanship to effect it.

Our Fiscal System.

Dr. Hillier read a paper on "Our Fiscal System" at the Colonial Institute last night. "Britain should not treat the colonial conference of 1902 as a farce," he said.

The Duke of Argyll wrote: "I am in favor of commencing the experiment of legislation along the lines of a preferential tariff."

Mr. Cumberland, formerly of Toronto, strongly supported protection.

Lord Onslow, speaking at the annual banquet of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, Piccadilly, yesterday, and referring to cattle breeding, said he had been pressed to bring in a bill to prevent the admission of Canadian store cattle into this country—(cries of "No")— to open the ports, to discourage home breeders, and to introduce disease. (Applause.)

Winnipeg, December 10—The C.P.R. will appeal to the full court of the North-West Territories on a decision given by Magistrate Colonel Saunders in the case of William McPhalen, a locomotive engineer who was fined $25 because sparks from his engine started a prarie fire near Cochrane. The case was instituted under the prairie fires ordinance of the Territories. Senator Lougheed, appearing for the Company, contends that the Territorial Assembly has no jurisdiction over the C.P.R. or its officials.

LIVE LAKEFIELD LOCALS

Items of Interest From Our Pretty Northern Village.

—Dr. Johnston sprained his ankle quite badly last week while dehorning cattle.

—Messrs. Marshall, of Rathbun Lumber Co., Deseronto, and Oliver, of Oliver Lumber Co., Toronto, were in Lakefield last Friday in connection with an extensive purchase of lumber from Messrs. Lillicrap and Tate. The local firm have had a prosperous season, and expect to have double the output next year.

—Miss Laizlel, who had been visiting here for three weeks, returned to her home at Maple, Ont., last Friday.

—Mr. Wm. Junkin, of Bobcaygeon, is putting in a new floor at Dam No. 1, and also sheeting up the piers. Mr. George Brisbois, of Lakefield, with a gang of men, is placing some new timber in the same dam.

—Miss Quinn, who was visiting relatives in North Smith, has returned home.

—The Chosen Friends held an "At Home" Monday evening. The music was furnished by the Lakefield orchestra. The large number of people in attendance spent an enjoyable evening.

—The Curling Club started preparations for its rink on the canal Monday morning. Mr. R. H. Alford is in charge of the construction work.

—Mrs. Robert Johnston, of Preston, Manitoba, is visiting her sister, Miss McKibbon.

—There was a meeting of the Lakefield Public Library Board in the reading room of the Town Hall, Monday night. The members present were Rev. Mr. Warren, chairman; J. F. Lillicrap, Geo B. Hilliard, O. A. Langley and S. W. Hill. Communications from Mr John Millar, Deputy Minister of Education, and from Mr. W. L. May, Inspector of Public Libraries, were dealt with. The Board decided to purchase fifty dollar's worth of new books.

—Mr. J. M. Campbell, of Kingston, representative of Dick, Kerr and Co., of Preston, Lancashire, Eng., was in town Tuesday. This is the firm which supplied all the electrical machinery for the Lakefield Portland Cement Co. The installation of this machinery has been superintended by Mr. Frank Pullin.

—The stores of the local merchants are filled with attractive lines of holiday goods. The different show-windows are decorated very artistically.

—On Thursday morning of last week a fine specimen of spruce partridge flew through one of the Craig House bedroom windows before the male occupant had broken away from the entrancing arms of Morpheus. Though the sound of the crashing glass was heard all through the house, the sleeper was only sufficiently aroused to indulge in a series of beautiful dreams. As the wings went whirring about the spacious apartment, the slumberer fancied he saw the angelic host which of yore come down to earth with greetings to Heaven's new-born Heir. Then, to the accompaniment of sweet music, he dreamed that he was being translated. At this juncture, the bird perched itself on the sleeper's head to rest, but at once darted away from an advancing hand. There was a wild, school-boy chase about the room, which was ended rather abruptly by the clerk's smiting the feathered visitor with a broom, and knocking him to freedom through the opposite window. Some, in view of recent events, believe this was an ill-omened bird. The young man simply regards the visit as a friendly call from one of the numerous birds at which he has recently fired salutes in the neighboring woods.

The Officials of Japan in London do Not Believe Their Government will Win

Modifications will Likely be Laid Before the Negotiators at Tokio in a Short Time

London, Dec. 9— The Times has the following from its correspondent at Pekin: If Japan is overawed into recognizing the Russian military occupation of Manchuria, the loss of confidence in Japan will weaken immeasurably the Japanese influence in China. Certainly the long delay is having the effect of drawing together once more Russia and China, who have been temporarily estranged since the Russian occupation of Mukden.

MODIFICATIONS MADE.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9.—The modifications of Japan's proposals decided upon by the Czar and his Ministers will probably be laid before the negotiators at Tokio shortly.

The modifications are said to be of minor importance. Russia acknowledges Japan's predominating influence in Corea. Certain reservations are made regarding coast defences or stations, to prevent any interruption of Russia's freedom of trade.

A separate understanding will cover Manchuria, Japan agreeing to leave the question of evacuation in abeyance, and to recognize Russia's special interests there. In return Russia is to acknowledge Japan's trading privileges secured under treaties with China.

CONCESSIONS IMPOSSIBLE.

London, Dec. 9—When the confirmed report of the modifications proposed by Russia was laid before Secretary Nabishimi, of the Japanese Minister here he said: "It is another step in the negotiations, but, from my knowledge of Japanese public opinion, I feel safe in saying that the final settlement of the great questions at issue between Japan and Russia will be difficult to reach while the essential question concerning Manchuria is left in abeyance. Four months ago Japan, in effect, ordered of Russia the observance of treaties relative to the evacuation of Manchuria and the evacuation of any portion of Corean territory occupied by Russia. It is inconceivable that there can be any question of mutual concessions regarding Corea and Manchuria."

FATALITY AT A LUMBER CAMP

Was Killed Yesterday While at Work in a Dysart Township Limit

A man named Shaw, employed in Messrs Craig & Austin's lumber camps in Dysart township, was killed Monday afternoon while at work in the woods. He was engaged in felling a tree when suddenly a heavy branch broke away and before the unfortunate man could escape, it came down with tremendous force striking him on the head and inflicting a terrible wound. Besides this he was terribly bruised about the shoulders and body.

A physician from Minden was summoned, but before he arrived the poor fellow died. Shaw's home is in Minden, and he leaves a wife and several children to mourn his loss.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG.

The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room [illegible] Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

DISTRICT NEWS

APSLEY.

—There is enough of the beautiful to make good sleighing here, and farmers are taking advantage of it to haul in hay, feed, oats, etc., to the lumber camps.

—Water is scarce in wells and spring creeks; some are dry now that never were dry before. Unless rain and a big thaw comes it will be rather serious in some parts.

—Everything has been favorable for lumbermen, and there will be a large drive go down Eel's Creek this next spring.

—A number of accidents have already been reported from the lumber camps, but so far, fortunately, nothing very serious.

—Festus Young was brought out Sunday from camp with his foot badly crushed by a log. Dr. Bell dressed it, and does not think any bones are broken.

—From the number of cattle taken out of this section last fall by buyers we thought there would be none left for home consumption, but judging from the large number of dressed beef which is being daily brought in, for sale or taken direct to the camps the supply seems inexhaustible—good prime beef too.

—One of our enterprising residents has purchased the Lindsay lot, and is busy drawing building material on the ground to build a blacksmith shop. Jim says the more the merrier—there's room for all.

—Mr Benjamin Woods, of Chandos, passed through Apsley today on his way back to New Ontario, where he has a very fine farm. Benny is taking his team and waggon with him, and expects to come back next spring to get his own mate to help keep house.

—Up to the present time there is not much excitement over municipal affairs, but there likely will be later as several new candidates will be in the field.

—A steam saw mill will soon be in operation in the northern part of Anstruther, which will be of great advantage to the settlers in that section.

—A few miles of a walk is nothing when one wants to show their sympathy to the sick. Such kindly feelings are general up here.

—For Xmas presents go to Wm. Galton's store. A choice lot of Xmas and text cards and calendars; also new games, dolls, picture and bound books, and a choice lot of novelties and notions.

Monkey Discipline.

One of the monkey cages in the New York "Zoo" contains a mother monkey and her baby. Some visitors one day gave the mother a chocolate peppermint. She tasted it, smacked her lips, winked and put it all into her mouth—only to remove it at once, and smack and wink much harder. After a second she repeated her experiment, and again hastily removed the peppermint.

Once more she put the dainty in her mouth, but once more took it out. Then, with watery eyes, she laid the candy carefully on the ledge of her cage, turned her back, walked over to the opposite side, seized the rails with both hands, and gazed out as if she had never seen a peppermint.

Meanwhile the baby, who had been engaged with visitors in a corner, had returned to the front. Seeing the peppermint, he picked it up and tasted it. But his mother's three experiments had left only a nibble for him. That disposed of, he, too, walked to the opposite side, seized the rails, and stood gazing out with the same air of utter absorption as his mother's.

As soon as the latter had cooled down she came back again, and looked for the peppermint. Not seeing it, she swept with one paw all along the ledge where she had left it, but in vain. Suddenly she ran to the baby, and twisting his head to face herself, put one hand on each of his jaws, pulled his mouth wide open, stuck her head in, and gave a big sniff. Then she turned him over and spanked him soundly.

BRONCHITIS

Catarrhozone cures Bronchitis of three years' standing after four Doctors Failed

A Remarkable Case

"I feel it my duty," writes Mrs. Boyd, of Lessardville, N.B., "to let you know that I have been cured of Bronchitis of three months' standing by Catarrhozone.

"With the least change in temperature or exposure to inclement weather, I was attacked with bronchial discomfort, wheezing in the chest, hoarseness, sore throat, partial loss of voice, and stuffiness of the head. I consulted four doctors and was treated by them all without any benefit.

"Catarrhozone was strongly recommended to me by several persons whom it had benefited, and I was induced to give it a good trial."

"It quickly relieved my difficult breathing, so I got the complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, etc., and I began systematically the Catarrhozone treatment.

"In a few days the huskiness and hoarseness disappeared, and my voice became stronger. The running of the nose, and 'stuffiness of the head,' feverishness, difficult breathing, were all done away with before I had been using Catarrhozone very long.

"About six weeks' treatment was sufficient to do more for me than four doctors failed to do in three years' time. It cured me and I don't believe there is another such a remedy on earth. Its action is speedy, pleasant and permanent."

Catarrhozone is a new, scientific treatment, and is guaranteed to cure Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Cold, etc. or money refunded. It contains nothing injurious and can be used by the infant as well as by the adult.

It is both a local and a constitutional remedy. The Inhaler supplies abundance of medicated air, which spreads through all the air passages, killing germ life, and healing sore spots as it goes.

The impurities in the blood are driven off by Ferrozone tablets which strengthen and build up the system to such a healthy condition that disease simply can't exist.

Catarrhozone is recommended by doctors and druggists for all respiratory diseases. It relieves quickly and cures permanently. Complete outfit costs $1.00; trial size 25c. At Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston.

BY-LAW No.____

A By-Law to authorize the purchase of certain real property required for the use of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough and to borrow the sum of Ten thousand dollars to pay for the same.

Passed this.....day of......1903

WHEREAS the Corporation of the said Town of Peterborough requires to secure land from which to obtain stone, gravel and sand for use on the streets and for constructing sidewalks in the said Town of Peterborough and for other Municipal purposes and has obtained an option for the purchase, at the sum of ten thousand dollars, of the following parcels of land situate in the said Town of Peterborough namely, Lots numbers 22, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29 in Block A on registered plan Number 14 for the Town of Peterborough, Lots numbers 2, 5 and 6 in Block D on said plan; Lot number 7 in said Block D except the south forty feet thereof, Lots numbers 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19 in Block E on said Plan, Lot number 29 in said Block F except the part conveyed to one John C. Higgins by registered instrument No. 12413 for the Town of Peterborough, all Block G on said Plan and all Block F on said Plan subject to a right of way on said Block F ten feet in width extending from Water Street along the north side of Lot number One in said Block D heretofore granted to the owner of said lot One.

AND WHEREAS the said parcels of land are well suited for the said purposes and it is desirable to authorize the purchase thereof at the said price and the borrowing of the said sum of Ten thousand dollars to pay therefor, which is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this By-Law.

AND WHEREAS in order to raise the said sum of Ten thousand dollars required for the said purposes it will be necessary to issue the debentures of the said Corporation for the said amount.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll being for the year 1903 is the sum of Four million, four hundred and eighty nine thousand, eight hundred and eighty dollars ($4,489,880).

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing debenture debt of the Municipality, exclusive of local improvements debt, but including the debt of $230,000 incurred for the purchase of the waterworks, is the sum of five hundred and sixteen thousand, seven hundred and ninety dollars and seven cents ($516,790.07), and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrear.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $400 to be raised annually for a period of twenty years, the currency of the debentures to be issued under and by virtue of this By-Law to pay the interest of the said debt, and the sum of $372.16 to be raised annually during the said period for the payment of the debt to be created by this By-Law, such last mentioned sum being sufficient, with the estimated interest on the investment thereof, to discharge the said debt when the same becomes payable, making in all the sum of $772.16 to be raised annually as aforesaid.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by the Council thereof therefore enacts as follows:

1. This By-Law shall take effect on the date of the final passing thereof.

2. It shall be lawful for the Council of the said Town of Peterborough to obtain, acquire and purchase the real property above mentioned and to borrow the sum of ten thousand dollars to pay for the same and to issue debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum, such debentures to be sealed with the Corporate Seal of the Town of Peterborough, and to be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and countersigned by the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust, to be payable within twenty years after issue thereof and to bear interest at the rate of four per centum payable half yearly on the thirtieth day of June and the thirty-first day of December in each year, and to have coupons attached thereto for the payment of such interest. Such debentures, as to principal and interest to be payable at the office of the Secretary of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust in the Town of Peterborough.

3. There shall be raised and levied during each year of the currency of the said debentures by a special rate upon all of the rateable property in the Town of Peterborough the sum of $400 for payment of the interest and the sum of $372.16 as a sinking fund for the payment of the said debt at the maturity thereof, making together the sum of $772.16.

4. The proceeds of the said debentures when sold shall be applied in paying the purchase money for said real property.

5. The votes of the duly qualified electors of the Town of Peterborough shall be taken upon this By-Law on Monday, the fourth day of January, 1904, commencing at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and closing at the hour of 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, at the following polling places and before the following Deputy Returning Officers respectively, that is to say:

Town Clerk.

New Fashions in Jewelery.

The new season's jewelry promises to be more artistic in design and fascinating in variety than that of the last, declares the "Manufacturing Jeweler." The tendency has been toward a wide departure from the beaten tracks of gold or silver ornaments set with precious stones, and the more unique a design for belt buckle, brooch or chain, the better it has been liked. Dull finished metals with uncommon jewels and colored enamels in Celtic and Oriental forms are leading.

Diamonds and rubies hold their place, but they are worn so commonly that women who pride themselves on being original demand novelties that are uncommon. They would rather have the soft-hued, uncommon-colored stones that must be brought from the far corners of the earth, the finest specimens of which are so seldom found that there are not many duplicates.

Big sums are paid for green garnets, for orange-tinted zircons, for rose-pink topazes and peridots, whose glint is the color of the young spring buds. These warm-colored stones are becoming and can be got in hues that harmonize particularly well with the shades of favorite costumes. Many women have a favorite color and wear only the jewels that accord well with it.

A nouveau art necklace, a gold chain studded with uncut turquoise or sapphire stones, a matrix pin—any one of them will stamp the wearer as decidedly up to date. Bracelets, charms and lockets of jade are very popular. Coral, either rough or in polished bead form, is much worn. Semi-precious stones are seen to a great extent, topaz being prominent among them. Oriental jewelry in the shape of girdles and necklaces is beautiful, but not every woman can wear it.

A necklace of uncut turquoise has a gold bead between every two blue stones, and another pretty combination is pink coral alternating with white sapphires. One beautiful and elaborate necklace seen recently was made of two rows of seed pearls, with pendant gems hanging at intervals all the way around. In the center, forming a pendant, was a quaintly-shaped, rather large baroque pearl, and among the other stones were sapphires, amethysts, topazes and moonstones.

Some fine enamel work is shown in personal ornaments of dark blue enamel, or in silver with wild briar rose painted thereon. Various shades of gold and colored enamel traced in finest designs form the setting for the uncommon gems.

A stone of amethyst tint will be set in silver of a dull shade, enriched with tracery of purple and white enamel; a yellow diamond will have its gold framework varied and heightened with orange and pearl enamel. Often a fine topaz of uncommon hue will have all the gold work of its setting overlaid with enamel frosted with fine lines of diamonds.

Dull silver-looped settings are effective, too, with a mixture of coloring taking on the hue of the stones. The combinations of color are often those to be found in nature's water products. Some shells from the salt water have the metallic lustres and colors that are most sought after in animal jewelry and dress accessories.

New necklaces have the appearance of natural vines with leaves and tendrils of greenish gold and orange or coral-colored stone for the fruit. Pendant grapes and delicate flower pieces are simulated in parti-colored gold, glistening enamel and gems of appropriate character.

Forest Fortunes

More capital can be profitably used buying Timber Lands, building Mills, etc., for

THE NATIONAL TIMBER CO'Y

OPERATING IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

7% Guaranteed to Investors. Owing to the rapidly increasing value of standing timber and lands, the assets behind this preferred stock will grow in value every day even if this company should fail to market any finished lumber for years. Stock in operating lumber companies in Washington is good collateral at any bank.

Preferred Stock . . 7% Is as safe as a government bond. The National Timber Company has no debts, bonds, salaried officers or directors, etc., or expenses beyond that of actual lumbering operations. The sale of the stock will enable the company to extend its operations with great profit to present and future stockholders.

Rich Timber Region

The State of Washington now leads the world in lumbering. The richest timber regions in the United States are found within its borders.

Douglas fir, spruce and the red cedar of Washington forests bring the highest market prices and have penetrated every portion of the globe.

Access to the World's Markets

Washington is the gateway to the Philippines, Alaska, and the Orient, being nearer to the Far East than any other. Great rafts and coast trade vessels carry dressed lumber to the Eastern markets by water. Railroads furnish an overland route to the East.

1902 was the best year ever experienced by the lumbermen of Washington. Mills were generally operated day and night. The railways were simply swamped with business. Shipments were 64,140 cars, against 47,000 cars in 1901.

There is practically no limit to this market. Some mills and factories have orders ahead for nearly a year's output. There has never been a time when the demand was so strong or the lumber business so remunerative as it is at the present time; and we are just on the threshold of a wonderful advance in the lumber manufacturing industry of Washington.

The National Timber Co. has secured advantageous locations for new mills equipped with the latest money-saving machinery. Has options on and will purchase more choice tracts of timber at cash bargain prices. It will be necessary to pay three to five times as much for the same property, at the present rate of advance, in 10 years.

This company can use additional capital to protect itself from all competition in such a way as to insure its stockholders large profits for the next 20 years.

Lumber experts agree that more money will be made in the lumber business in Washington the next decade than ever before in the history of the lumber business of the United States. Today there is less risk, little or no waste, manufacturers profits, widest markets, less competition, greatest demand and highest prices.

Statement of the Company's President

With three large coal mines opening within a few rods of where our new mills are to be located, we will have a splendid opportunity for disposing of our slabs and common lumber at prices fully up to wholesale lists or possibly better, and for all our better grades we can find a ready market in the East, as we will have our trade already established, since we are handling the product of other mills at the present time.

M. W. MILES,
Vice-Pres. People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Statement of the Vice-President

The officers of this company, of which I am a director and stockholder, are men of sterling worth and ability. This company will be second to none within a few years. I believe its 7 per cent. guaranteed preferred stock is as good an investment as any I know of.

W. J. STEARNS,
President People's Savings Bank,
Sioux Falls, S.D.

Purpose of Selling Stock

Every share of stock held by the officers and directors has been paid for in full and every dollar realized from the sale to stock, to those who join them now will be used in purchasing timber and timber lands, erecting mills and manufacturing plants and furnishing these with a working cash capital. It is easy to acquire a fortune if you have an interest in those industries in which fortunes are made.

I will send to any investor who will mail me name and address, lumber statistics, vouched for by government experts, railroad presidents, lumber men bankers, and business men of the Pacific Coast.

The preferred stock is secured by the earnings from all the company's properties, including that which may be acquired by purchase in the future.

The capital of the National Timber Company is $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 preferred stock, $2,500,000 common stock which can share in the dividends of this company only after 7 per cent. has been paid upon the preferred stock.

The 7 per cent preferred stock is sold strictly and in all cases at $10 per share (par value). This is the first and only allotment ever offered the public.

This company particularly desires stockholders who are owners of retail lumber yards, and manufacturers who are large consumers of dressed lumber; builders and contractors, or those connected with industries that give them insight into the conditions confronting the "lumber market." Don't wait—but send today for prospectus and full details of the National Timber Company.

I Recommended and sold Alaska Central Railroad Stock to hundreds of my clients throughout the Northwest, which now sells in the open market at five times the price I first offered it. My clients are my best indorsers

NERVOUS DEBILITY
CURED.

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Self abuse, later excesses and private diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Elmey, of Toledo, says: "At the age of 14, I learned a bad habit and at 19 contracted a serious disease. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

The "Infernal Member."

At the meeting of the State Medical Society of Pennsylvania a few days ago, papers dealing with appendicitis were read by Dr. John B Deaver of Philadelphia and Dr. Richard Henry Gibbons of Scranton, both prominent surgeons. Dr. Deaver said that he had during the past year operated in 580 cases of appendicitis, which indicates that the disease is as fashionable as ever. The strange part of the doctor's statement, however, was that only five per cent. of these 580 cases had terminated fatally, and they, he declared, would not have resulted thus if they had not been neglected. The thing to do, according to Dr. Deaver, is to have the vermiform appendix snipped out the minute it begins to be troublesome. "I advocate instant operation," he explained, "and I never cut so that a stitch is necessary." In other words, the patient who goes to Dr. Deaver in time shuts his eyes, takes a long breath, there is a tweak and a snip, and lo! the great expert flips the appendix into a pile of them in a corner, and the business is done with. This is encouraging, and should serve as a strong incentive to people whose vermiform appendices don't properly behave to have them out. Dr Gibbons is even more relentless than Dr Deaver in his opposition to the appendix He was known, he said, as a physician who was "always cutting out the appendix," and he always advocated the removal of all appendices, whether they were supposed to be diseased or not Removing a healthy vermiform appendix he declared, was no more dangerous than having one's hair cut, and with the "infernal member," as he called it, gone there would be a serious danger out of the way forever. He admitted that he cut out the troublesome thing every time he got a chance, and his remarks clearly indicated that he would as soon see a child of his growing up with horns as with a vermiform appendix.

Women as Judges of Character.

Are women better judges of character than men? A clever man, the other day whose profession as a barrister had given him many opportunities of studying men and women, confessed that where his judgment of acquaintances had often misled him, his wife had never made a mistake It is difficult to explain why women should be such efficient critics. The average woman probably could not base her dislike of a person, immediately after his or her introduction to her, on arguments that would appeal to the male mind as reasonable. She simply knows that some mysterious intuition prompts her to pronounce Mr. Smith's or Mrs Jones' condemnation. "The reason why I cannot tell; I do not love thee, Doctor Fell."

Women are more suspicious than men and, as a rule, more observant. Little traits of character which escape a man are simply revelations to his wife. Women are supposed to be more impressionable, more susceptible, more trusting than men, but facts do not bear out this supposition. Quite as many men make foolish marriages as women; indeed, it may be doubted whether more than a small minority of the latter marry without having formed a pretty accurate estimate of their partners' characters.

Strong reasons may induce a woman to accept a man—she may be tired of her poverty, her loneliness or hard work—but she is quite as well aware of his faults as other people. Women are rarely so unwise as to marry, as do men solely for the sake of les beaux yeux. As to judging her own sex, a woman is, as a rule, just, unless the particular person has come between her and the man she loves. Then indeed does she mete out no mercy, and the "dear friend" of a moment before is transformed into a monster of iniquity.

Declined.

Major Pond, who was responsible for introducing to the public some of the greater and lesser lights of the lecture platform, had many an experience full of eccentric humor. Sometimes his charges met him with the greatest good humor Often those whom he approached felt compelled to beat back his persuasions almost at the point of the bayonet; for nobody was so persuasive as Major Pond. Mr. Kipling replied to a tempting proposition:

"I might do it as soon as I had two mortgages on my house, a lien on the horses, and a bill of sale on the furniture, and writers' cramp in both hands; but at present I am busy, and contented to go on with the regular writing business."

The great preacher, Charles Spurgeon repulsed him in an ascending scale of denial. The first reply ran:

"It will only be a waste of time for you to see me, as I am not at all in your line."

The second said:

"Your good-natured pertinacity is so admirable that I trust you will not waste it upon an impossible object. The whole United States in bullion would not tempt me to deliver one such lecture."

The third reply was conclusive:

"I have, in as plain a manner as possible, declined to make your acquaintance, and I beg, with all courtesy and decision, to do the same again. I know your business, and I have no wish to enter upon it further."

Plants that Produce Insanity.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington is at present investigating the curious behavior of certain plants growing on the Western prairies which are known as loco-weeds. "Loco" in Spanish signifies crazy. Cattle and other animals feeding upon loco-weeds suffer a derangement of the brain that prevents co-ordinating movements. Several weeds belonging to the bean family are included in this poisonous category. It has been asserted that a single dose of some of these weeds will cause insanity; but Mr. V. K. Chesnut of the Department of Agriculture expresses the belief that several days of feeding are required to produce a bad effect.

Three Prize Sentences.

The winner of a prize of one guinea, offered by the London "Academy" to the person who should select the three most pregnant and felicitous sentences from any authors, chose the following three quotations:

Fancy plays like a squirrel in its circular prison, and is happy; but imagination is a pilgrim on the earth—and her home is in heaven.—Ruskin.

Discouragement is but disenchanted egotism.—Mazzini.

The true wisdom is to be always seasonable, and to change with a good grace in changing circumstances. To love playthings well as a child, to lead an adventurous and honorable youth, and to settle when the time arrives into a green and smiling age, is to be a good artist in life and deserve well of yourself and your neighbor.—Stevenson.

"When it comes to opening up a new country," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "there is nothing can beat a volcano."—Yonkers "Statesman."

A Groom's Voluntary.

Sir Frederick Bridge, the English musician, is a good story teller, according to T.A.T., and has a fund of amusing personal experiences to draw upon. One of the great musician's best stories is about a provincial church organist, who was once a pupil of his. This young man was appointed to an important church in the Midlands. In course of time he married. During his absence his voluntaries were much missed by the congregation. They had always been appreciated, and their renewal was looked forward to. "Imagine," says Sir Frederick Bridge, "the intense amusement of the people when the newly-married organist gave as his first voluntary, upon his return, Handel's 'Waft Her, Angels, to the Skies.'"

To Build Cruisers.

As a result of the recent naval manoeuvres the British authorities are considering the advisability of building some "dogging" cruisers, to pursue battleship fleets of the enemy and pounce on those which are forced to fall behind. The Bacchante and the Aboukir "dogged" Lord Charles Beresford's fleet in this way almost to the Azores. The flagship Majestic had something the matter with her engines. She was frequently compelled to slow down. Then the big, heavily armed cruisers of the pursuing fleet would swoop down on her. It was necessary to slow down the entire squadron several times for her protection.

"Another point of much interest is that of speed in battleships," writes a British naval authority. "Those who have been engaged in the manoeuvres would have done much better with a few knots more in hand. There are experienced flag officers who say that high speed in battleships is not essential. Yet if gun powder and protection go before it, speed is, in nine cases out of ten, the only thing that can enable a strong fleet to bring a weak one to action. It is the factor that enforces victory and will enable the British fleet to carry on its old policy of seeking out the enemy to destroy him wherever he may be found."

The Wrong Man.

They had been married only a few months, and the wife stood by the side of her husband looking into one of the department store windows. A handsome tailor-made dress took her fancy, and she left her husband to examine it more closely. Then she went back to him, still talking.

"You never look at anything I want to look at any more," she complained. "You don't care how I dress. You don't care for me any more. Why, you haven't kissed me for two weeks."

"Indeed, I am sorry, but it is not my fault," said the man.

Turning, the lady looked at him and gasped. She had taken the arm of the wrong man.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Baloon Trip.

There is nothing exciting about a balloon voyage. You take your place in a shallow wicker basket; decide to take a picture of the crowd as you leave the earth; hear the order "let go," and before you can press the button the crowd has evaporated—sunk out of sight—and the rest is a moving picture show, with no sense of motion, the air delightfully cool and absolute silence. Presently a voice, apparently from another balloon a long way off, asks how you like the journey. You have exactly the same trouble with your hearing you had while in the caisson, but from an opposite cause—there pressure, here rarefaction. In this case, too, the act of swallowing brings relief. A balloon trip is for all the world like sitting in a dentist's chair and taking a whiff of gas, followed by a pleasant dream. But, of course, instead of taking gas, gas is taking you. Photography under these conditions is a very simple matter—pointing the lens over the edge of the basket, waiting until the desired object comes into view, and the snapshot is taken.—W. N. Jennings, in Booklovers' Magazine.

A Quiet Village.

It seems hardly credible, says The London Telegraph, that not more than thirty minutes from all the noise and bustle of Paris there lies a village that is so quiet, so peaceful and so old-fashioned that one would imagine one's self at least one hundred miles away from the gay capital. Here at this village, La Frette by name, and about fifteen minutes' walk from Cormeilles, preparations for midday and evening repasts have to be made very early in the morning, for no such thing as a good shop is anywhere near, and the walk to Cormeilles is one which one considers twice before taking, for it is up steep and rough roads. So daily butcher, baker and greengrocer pass this quaint little place, and the villagers gather round the various tradesmen and make their purchases for the day. They also buy their clothes in this way, and may often be seen trying on bonnets, dresses and boots in the middle of the street. From a scenic point of view, all artists have agreed that there is no place to equal La Frette between Paris and Havre. To the left of the village is the park of Maisons Laffitte, and facing the park is Sartrouville, while opposite lies the forest of St. Germain, in all its green splendor. To the right is Herblay, quite an important place, whose church is visible for miles along the Seine. La Frette itself has the quaintest villagers possible. Many of them speak worse French than those of the Midi, and it is an event indeed when one takes a journey up to the capital. They are thriftiest of the thrifty. Only a short time ago one of the peasants gave his daughter no less a sum than 250,000 francs on her wedding day, and another is to receive the same amount on her approaching marriage. And yet this man, who must be worth 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 francs at least, lives in a patched-up old house and digs in the fields from early morning till late at night.

Be Regular in Milking.

The cow is a creature of habit, and therefore the time and manner of milking should vary as little as possible from day to day. The yield of milk will sometimes vary by reason of matters of such small moment that we fail to reckon them. From our results a change in milkers showed a small average loss in yield. Some cows were not affected at all, while others gave a slightly reduced yield. This will depend, however, upon the ability of the milker. Carlyle found no appreciable difference in the frequent changing of milkers. Tracy found by a good milker following a careless one an increase with five cows of 244 pounds of milk in two weeks.

Cows fed at milking time are apt to hold their milk when the customary feed is withheld. This may occur even when the animals have access to abundant pasture. This is so noticeable with some of the station cows that it is advisable to give them a little grain through the summer season to induce them to give down their milk. Emery notes that a cow that gave over seven pounds of milk gave only two pounds when her customary feed was withheld at milking time.

Allowing cows to miss a milking has a tendency to dry them up, and is liable to cause an injury to the udder, some cows being affected much more than others in this respect.—(Bulletin No- 106, Kentucky Agricultural College.)

YOUR GREY HAIR brought back to its original color, and forever retained.

Positively not a Dye, but a Purely Natural Growth.

ELECTROCENE

A Guaranteed Preparation to Restore Grey and Faded Hair to its Natural Color, and Retain it.

With the powerful aid of electricity, grey hair can be restored to its natural color by natural means. The herbs and plants of the mountains and field have in them all the elements of life, health and beauty that the grey hair requires for its restoration.

ELECTROCENE is the product of certain herbs, barks and plants which by long and careful experiments, have been found to contain all the elements necessary to the life, beauty, color and health of the hair. They are not a dye; they contain no vile and deadly chemicals to destroy the hair's life; but from their first application the hair begins to take on the gloss and beauty of youth while gradually but surely the hair returns to its natural color, and will forever afterwards retain it. Such a change is not brought about in a day or a week, but as the roots of the hair absorb the health-giving elements from the herbs and the wonderful electric strength Electrocene contains, nature gives it a fresh lease of life, and soon ten years have been lifted from your appearance. The hair goes back to its natural color, becoming soft and silky, with that lustrous gleam of youth that is the envy of all beholders. Electrocene does not stain the scalp or clothes, is NOT A DYE, but whatever its color was at the most vigorous time of your life, it's color will be again after using. A little patience will bring you the rich reward of a head of beautiful, healthy, natural hair, with the softness and lustre of youth. The growth is promoted and the grey, faded or streaked hair springs again into life and the colors of life. The Electrocene will not rub off, is not sticky, dirty or gummy, and will not stain the scalp. It prevents the hair from falling out, promotes its growth cures and prevents dandruff, does not wash off, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, produces the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and causes that turning grey to assume its original color and retains it forever afterwards.

Price $1.00 per bottle or six bottles for $5.00. Sent on receipt of price.

Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure

No discovery in medicine has created one quarter of the interest that the Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure has caused. Its severest tests have been made on hopeless cases of Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom have been restored to perfect health. It cuts the phlegm out of the throat and bronchial tubes.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough, LaGrippe it cures more quickly than any other medicine in the world.

Constant coughing is like scratching a wound. So long as it is done, the wound will not heal. For coughs, no matter how stubborn, a few doses of Electricity Cough and Consumption Cure will stop the irritation, and a cure is the quick result.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine—Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Canadian Magazine FOR 1904

During 1903 the circulation of THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE has increased with remarkable steadiness. The articles on Canadian history have proved exceedingly attractive. Its circle of readers is double what it was three years ago. The excellent Christmas Number has met with a splendid reception. The programme for 1904 will be sent to anyone interested on receipt of a post card addressed to 63 Yonge Street, Toronto. There will be a new historical serial equal in interest to "The War of 1812." The Short Stories will be more numerous and more varied in character. The general articles, Canadian and foreign, will be the best that have ever been presented by a Canadian periodical.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

panied by the circus?"

She looked at Monckton, and saw he was laughing at her.

"It would not do to have anybody," she said. "If Drayton Court is to be my home, I shall have to live there alone—and how wretched I shall be!"

"It will not be so bad as you anticipate," he answered. "Besides, are your pleasures here of such an enticing nature?"

She was silent.

Gazing into the fire, she seemed to see, in the glowing embers, the face that was scarcely ever absent from her thoughts—Marc's face.

In her heart she knew why she dreaded leaving this homely roof.

Scarcely a day passed without a visit from Marc—busy as he now was with his painting; for he had returned to his art, with a new zest, and was bringing all his will to bear upon his work.

If she went into the country, she knew she would not see him very frequently.

He would not be able to spare the time for the journey.

It was this conviction that made her dread going to Drayton Court.

She would lose sight of Marc again, and how much his companionship was to her, she herself scarcely understood.

For a long time after Mr. Monckton had left her, she sat gazing into the fire.

Life had gone on so smoothly since Marc had found her, since he had claimed her as his kinswoman.

She was not anxious for any change.

Taken altogether Sunnyside was a pleasant home; everybody there was kind to her—and it was so conveniently near Marc's studio.

While she sat dreaming in the firelight, she heard the iron gate, that cut off the front garden from the road, swing back on its hinges.

Her heart throbbed, and a soft rose-flush came to her cheeks.

Springing to her feet, she hurried out into the hall, and opened the entrance door.

Marc stood out in the wind, snowflakes clinging all about him, a smile on his handsome face.

"Rose," he said, taking off his hat, and holding out his hand to her, "did you expect me in this evening?"

"I hoped you would come," she answered, closing the door as he entered, and giving him her hand. "What a lot of snow you have brought with you! You look like the veritable King Frost himself."

"Do I? Well, I trust you will give me a warm welcome. This has chilled me to the bone."

"Did you come through it for the sake of seeing me?" she asked, taking his gloves from him, and smoothing them out on the table; while he pulled off his coat, and shook the snow from his boots.

"Whom else should I come to see?"

"Well—not the master of the lions," she said, with a gleam of the old mischief in her eyes. "Come into the library; it is warm there. Mrs. West only has the drawing-room used on Sundays and holidays."

"Not a bad sort of arrangement, in its way. Anyhow, the library is good enough for me—and so would a barn be, if you were in it. Are those worthy people in the house just now?"

Marc's tone was always a little sarcastic, when he spoke of Jim and his wife.

The artist could not forget the circus, nor how he had found Rosalie.

Beyond that, he had a good-natured contempt for the self-made man, with all his vulgarity and ignorance.

Towards Polly, however, Marc felt a kind of gratitude.

She had watched so carefully over Rosalie, guarding her from the dangers which might have beset her path.

"They will not be home until late to-night," Rose said, leading him into the room. "They are always the last to leave the circus. While you sit down and warm yourself, I'll go and tell Bess to get the tea."

Formalities had to be dispensed with at Sunnyside.

Although the house was large, there was only one responsible servant, and it was a marvel how she got through so much work.

There was a groom, who cleaned the boots and knives; but in the evening, he had to assist with the circus horses, and the woman was left to get on as best she could.

Rose went into the neat, bright kitchen, where an inviting smell of hot cakes prevailed.

"I do believe you have been making something nice for tea!" she exclaimed, going to the stove, and opening the oven. "How thoughtful of you, Bess!"

"I knew you're fond of those shortbreads," the woman said, gratified at the effect of her surprise. "They're done to a turn, and the water's boiling for the tea. It won't take a minute to get everything ready."

She took the teapot from the table, and lifted the kettle; but accidents will sometimes happen to the most careful.

While pouring the water on to the tea, the kettle slipped sideways, and the contents streamed over her hand and arm. Rose rushed to her assistance.

The confused sounds reached Marc; in a moment he had found his way to the kitchen, and, at a glance, had grasped the situation.

"Sit down," he said, laying a firm hand on Bess's shoulder, "and keep still. I can be as good as a doctor in a case like this."

There was authority, as well as kindness, in his voice.

Bess left off screaming, and allowed him to push her gently into the chair, while he held her arm out straight, to keep it from coming in contact with her dress.

"Get me some strips of old linen," he said to Rose, "and some oil. It does not seem a very bad scald."

Rose thought it could not look much worse; but she did not stop to say so.

She hurried off to get the things he had asked for, and then helped him to bind up the woman's hand and arm."

"It will soon get well," he remarked cheerfully. "We will make you more comfortable, by putting the injured arm in a sling, and then you can move about, without fear of giving yourself fresh pain."

"Thank you, sir. I'm sure you're very good. I don't know what I should have done, if you and Miss Rose hadn't been here to help me. I'd better get some fresh water for the kettle now, and wipe up the hearth. The place is swamped!"

"Never mind about that, Bess. I'll see to the kettle—and as to the wet hearth, the fire must dry it."

He picked up the kettle, and then stood looking round in a perplexed way.

"Where shall I find the water?" he asked.

"We had better draw it from the boiler," Rose said. "Be careful, or we shall have another accident."

Together, they filled the kettle, and replaced it on the fire, and a murmuring sound told them they would not have to wait long for tea.

"The cake will be burnt to cinders," Bess observed, in an aggrieved tone; "and here I am as helpless as a baby, while everything is going wrong."

Rose took out the cakes; they were not a shade browner than they ought to have been, and she praised them up, putting the most tempting on a separate plate for Bess.

The tea was made and Marc carried the tray into the library—a room almost entirely given up to Rose, and in the appointments of which, her good taste had been allowed to predominate.

A Canadian university man was touring in Scotland last summer. One Sunday morning he put his little hammer in his pocket (for he is an amateur geologist), and, strolling out upon the hills he began to chip off such specimens of rock as interested him. A native happened along as the man was thus engaged. The native looked on with a frown for a moment. Then he said: "Sir, do ye ken yer breakin' more than stones there?" "Breakin' the Sabbath, eh?" said the young Canadian with a laugh, and, to appease the Scot, he put away the hammer and walked onward a little way with him. A turn of the road revealed the ruins of a castle. "What castle is that?" said the stranger. The Scot frowned. "It's noo' the day," he said, severely, "to be speirin' sic things."

At a certain London church the collection used to be made in nicely embroidered bags, but so many old buttons and stale pieces of chocolate being put in, it was decided to try "plates" instead. The first Sunday the usual number of coppers and three-penny pieces were put in, but among them a bright yellow shining piece was observable. On Monday morning there were more callers than usual at the vestry, some of them with the same application. After a short interval another came with the same, "Oh, I am so sorry, but I put a sovereign into the plate yesterday by mistake. Could I have it, as I really cannot afford it?" "What?" said the vicar; "you are the fifth that has been to see me this morning with the same application, but the church warden has just told me that the supposed sovereign is only a gilded shilling!"

Gregarious Reading of Poetry.

Andrew Lang has lately been taking a fall out of the Browning and other poet societies, as did Stedman long ago. In an article on "Poet and Public," in the London "Morning Post," the genial Scotsman writes:

It may also be noted that many people who certainly read poetry seem to feel timid, lonely and deserted, so that they flock together into little mobs for mutual protection, Wordsworth societies, Browning societies, reading societies of all kinds. Now, I would as lief fish at Loch Leven in a fishing competition—men in boats shouting to each other and breaking the silence round Queen Mary's island prison, whiskey going, every kind of gregarious horror—as read poetry in a society. It is in solitude, "in a nook with a book," that poetry is to be tasted. But we hear of a society for reading Mr. Meredith among the Northumbrian miners—one might as well read Euclid in a society. These studies demand lonely application. A dozen decent bodies met to dig the meaning out of "In Memoriam" is a spectacle comic and mournful, and one that would have consternated the poet. It takes a dozen men and women to understand him—and then they don't.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January 29th, 1903

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Peter D. McFayden, Riverdale, P. E. I. writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412, Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, [illegible] will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Storm King Group of Mines

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

The property comprising what is known as the STORM KING GROUP OF MINES offers an attractive and safe investment. The property is the richest in the country and we believe it would be difficult to secure an investment that promises better returns. The following is a description of the mines written by Capt. A. M Paul, whose reputation as an expert in mining matters is known far and near.

These properties are situated in the Cable Cove Mining District, about fifteen miles north of Sumpter, Oregon, and about one mile northwest of the Baby McKee mine, about two miles northwest of the Last Chance, the Alpine, the Imperial and the California mines.

The properties in this report consist of [illegible] claims. The names of the [illegible] claims being as follows: The Eureka and the Honest Dollar. These two claims are on the same vein. Adjoining these two claims and paralleling them on the northwest is another vein upon which there are two claims known as the Jessie and Golden Rule, and paralleling them on the northwest there is another vein upon which there are two claims, known as the Storm King and the Ozone. The last claim of this group lies to the northwest of the last two named, and is adjoining them. This claim is the Shannon Bell.

In making my report I will commence with the two first named claims of the group, the Eureka and Honest Dollar. The development on these claims consists of a tunnel ninety-seven feet in length, running along the course of the vein, showing two feet ten inches of ore in the top of the tunnel and a little over three feet in the bottom, which assays giving values of from $9.68 to $70 per ton in gold. About four hundred feet in a southwesterly direction there is a shaft on the vein ten feet deep, showing the vein to be from one to two inches wide on the surface and about twelve inches wide in the bottom of the shaft, in which assays give values of from $9.76 to $40 per ton in free milling gold ore.

This vein is exposed by small shafts and open cuts for a distance of fifteen hundred feet, and the course of this vein is north, ten degrees east, and the vein cuts the formation, showing it to be a true fissure, and the formation is granite. This vein shows in places a width of from ten to fifteen feet of mineralized matter, commonly called vein matter, but which is caused by hot solutions from below.

I will now pass to the Jessie and Golden Rule. There has been very little work done upon these two claims, there being one discovery shaft ten feet deep, showing ore on all sides of the shaft, and running in value of from $4 upwards. It is my opinion that with development, these, too, will prove valuable property.

The work on the Storm King and Ozone consists of a tunnel near the point of discovery and is driven along the vein for a distance of one hundred and eighty feet, showing ore all the way from the surface to the face of the tunnel, and averaging in width from six to eighteen inches. Three assays give the following values: $12.50, this being a general sample taken from the dump. The other two assays are $62.65 and $79.08 respectively, this being the assorted ore for shipment. The course of this tunnel and vein are north, ten degrees west, and the vein cuts the trend of the formation obliquely (which is granite) and by driving this tunnel five or six hundred feet [illegible] sect a quartzite reef (which is running north twenty degrees east) which would make this a contact vein between granite and quartzite, and should produce a large body of ore at the intersection of the contact.

The only work done upon the Shannon Bell, the last claim of this group is the location work, and is not enough to allow of a report being made.

There is water for power purposes one mile from the property, and timber on the ground, of a very fine quality, sufficient to run the mine for many years to come.

All the assays mentioned in this report were made by the assayer of the Imperial mine at my request, and the ore was taken by me from the properties mentioned.

I will state that I have been a practical miner since 1870, and am now the manager and superintendent of the Imperial mine in this district.
